Carl V. Valenti, 90

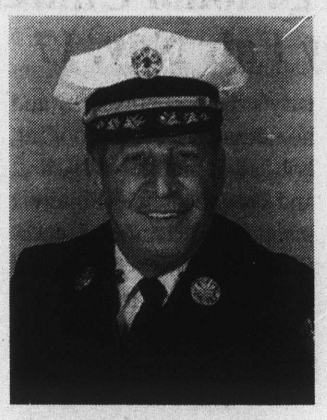
A funeral Mass for Carl V. Valenti, Chief, Quincy Fire Department, Retired, age 90, of East Bridgewater and formerly of Cape Cod and Quincy, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Valenti died peacefully Sunday at his daughter's home, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Quincy to the late Michael A. and Domenica A. (DiScuillo) Valenti. He was raised in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School and attended Northeastern University. He had lived briefly in East Bridgewater, previously over twenty years on Cape Cod and most of his life in Quincy.

Mr. Valenti was a retired chief of the Quincy Fire Department. He was appointed to the Quincy Fire Department on Dec. 7, 1957. He was promoted to lieutenant on May 2, 1970, to captain on Feb. 16, 1974 and to deputy chief on July 22, 1978. On Aug. 5, 1985, Mr. Valenti was promoted to acting chief and then to the rank of chief on May 4, 1987. He retired on June 24, 1988 after thirty-one years of service.

Mr. Valenti was a proud World War II veteran having served in the U.S. Coast Guard as a Seaman 2/c aboard the USS Eugene



CARL V. VALENTI

(PF-40), a Tacoma-class frigate.

As a young man, Mr. Valenti was a successful stock car racer with the nickname "Speedy Fireman." He won many races in his number "36" race car at various tracks, including Seekonk, Westborough and Norwood.

Later in life, he was well known for his karaoke skills and was called the "Ambassador on the Cape."

Most of all, Mr. Valenti's passion was for his family and especially to his grandchildren and great grandchildren, supporting all their many activities and accomplishments.

Beloved husband of the late Emily A. (Grant) Valenti. Devoted father of Teresa M. Valenti of Weymouth, Cynthia J. Murrin of East Bridgewater and the late Michael A. Valenti II. O. Margaret Taylor

Services for O. Margaret "Peg" (McDermott) Taylor, a longtime resident of Marshfield, formerly of Quincy, were private and a celebration of her life will take place a later date.

Mrs. Taylor died at the age of "39 and holding" on Sunday, October 28, 2018.

Indominable. Feisty. Energizer Bunny. Spitfire. Caring. Fierce. Generous. Force of Nature. These are the words and phrases people have used to describe Mrs. Taylor.

Olive Margaret McDermott grew up in Quincy, the daughter of James and Olive McDermott. She graduated from Quincy High School, and met and married handsome airman, Paul Douglas Taylor of Braintree, in 1948, and eventually welcomed six children into their family fold. As the older generation of McDermotts were fond of saying, Mrs. Taylor was "a real trooper", the ultimate compliment. Fun loving, enjoying cocktails and dancing to big bands in her youth, she dealt with many challenges and adversity through her life with grit, a combination of Yankee-Irish stoicism, and determination. She was protective of her family, wanting only the best for her kids and that they be safe and happy, and was intensely loyal to her circle of friends that formed in her early 20s and remained with her for life.

Small in stature, large in presence, Mrs. Taylor was a woman who raised her children to be self-sufficient and fiercely independent and encouraged them to pursue their dreams and career goals, telling them they could do anything they put their minds to. Educating her children was of the utmost importance to her. She instilled her children with a passion for reading at a young age. Mrs. Taylor spent countless hours volunteering at the Ventress Memorial Library, and was adamant that her kids took full advantage of it. But pity the family fool who lost their library card, returned their books late, or bent the corner of a page instead of using a bookmark. In later years, she worked her way through the bookshelves of the Linden Ponds library, checking out so many books, she became somewhat infamous amongst her fellow bibliophiles.

Mrs. Taylor will also be remembered for the unique Halloween costumes she wore to the Marshfield Senior Center Halloween party each year. She was a good sport, modeling memorable senior versions of Octomom and Lady Gaga. She also enjoyed running a part-time antiques business with her sister, Miriam LaCroix, in Wellfleet for several years.

Mrs. Taylor loved indie flicks, milk chocolate, hamburgers at the 99 Restaurant, the Boston Red Sox and the Bruins (but only the Bobby Orr and Derek Sanderson years), bossing around her brother Jim McDermott at family gatherings, and the case of champagne her brother, Paul McDermott, bought her every year at Christmas time. She was also a great cook, who brewed her own root beer, baked amazing cookies and occasionally served her children hot fudge sundaes in lieu of dinner. She enjoyed making delicious holiday meals for the other Taylor men, her in-laws, Harold and Joe – even though her father-in-law wouldn't commit to driving up from the Cape unless there was baked ham on the menu.

Mrs. Taylor took great pleasure in heading to the beach at 7:30 a.m. during the summer months so her kids could benefit from free swimming lessons in the frigid waters of Green Harbor, while she played cards with friends. These lessons continued until everyone passed their lifesaving exams, and by then, they had acquired her lifelong appreciation for all things ocean-related. She was an avid walker who could easily clock 3-7 miles per day at a hard-to-match pace and participated in the Relay for Life well into her 80s. While cooking holiday feasts, she would often kick her kids out of the house and take them on a 3-5 mile hike through the woods to the North River. Any guests who could not hack the hike were not invited back the following year.

Mrs. Taylor instilled in her family an appreciation for liberal politics, culture, history and travel among other things. After retiring, she and her husband would break out the Atlas Road Map, pack a jar of Sanka and a couple of coolers and take off on cross-country road trips during the long winter months. She also managed to explore 12 other countries with her sister and children, including a trip to Spain in her mid-80s. If she had any unfulfilled wishes, it was to travel more.

Along with an indelible mark on the world, countless fond memories and Pegisms (anecdotes too numerous to mention), Mrs. Taylor leaves her loving family, Roger Taylor, Nancy Taylor and Jim Aldoupolis, Paul and Kim Taylor, Carol Taylor and cherished grandchildren Rebecca and Meghan Taylor. She was preceded in death by her husband, Paul Taylor, and sons, Stephen and Michael Taylor.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Foundation of America at alzfdn.org or Globe Santa at globesanta.org.

Two Charged Following Presidents Place Evacuation

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two Quincy College students were arraigned on charges they used pepper spray inside the school's campus, sending several people to the hospital and prompting first responders to evacuate the building.

Hannah Craig, age 18, of Lambert Street in Medford, and Samani Freeman, age 19, of Cummings Highway in Mattapan, both pleaded not guilty during their arraignment Nov. 1 in Quincy District Court. Each was charged with two counts of assault and battery with a deadly weapon, disturbance of a school or public meeting, having a noxious/filthy substance in a building, and disorderly conduct.

Craig and Freeman were released on the condition they stay away from Quincy College and remain alcohol and drug free. They are both due back in court Dec. 17 for a pre-trial hearing.

School officials said Craig and Freeman have been suspended.

Police were called to Presidents Place at 1250 Hancock St., which is home to Quincy College, the National Park Service and a number of businesses, around 5:30 p.m. on Oct. 30 after a woman on the third floor complained she was having difficulty breathing and felt pain on the right side of her body, according to a statement.

The Quincy Fire Department was already on scene treating one victim, police said, and officers found other victims complaining of the same symptoms. All were having difficulty breathing, felt dizzy, were coughing and had itchy skin. Several individuals were taken to a local hospital for treatment of their injuries, which were determined to be non-life threatening.

Firefighters first ordered the building's third floor evacuated, and later evacuated the entire building.

The Boston Fire Department's Hazardous Materials Team and Quincy Fire Department deemed the building safe at 9 p.m. Police then re-entered the building along with Quincy College's head of security to view security footage from the third floor.

The surveillance footage showed two women, later identified as Craig and Freeman, using a can of pepper spray in a third-floor lounge area, police said. The two women were located on nearby Coddington Street and arrested. Police said a can of pepper spray was seized as evidence at that time.

and over to a safe area. Another quick-thinking motorist stopped an approaching oil truck, knowing that they carry fire extinguishers and helped control the fire until the Fire Department arrived.

Nice Work to Officer Bowes and those outstanding citizens who stopped to help!

SCAM INFO: A resident contacted me to let me know that she received a telephone call from her own number, so she picked it up to figure out what the scam was. The caller/scammer said that they were from Verizon and that her "IP address has been corrupted and you need to change your license agreement."

The resident contacted her telephone company who suggested that she could block telephone numbers for a monthly fee. She then logically questioned how if she blocked her own telephone number would she get any calls! The service representative agreed that this would not be a good option.

Bottom line: if the caller ID number shows up as yours, do not answer it.

USING YOUR DIRECTIONAL: Giving advance notice when turning is not only courteous, it's for your safety. When using your signal device to make a turn, it is best to apply the directional well before you brake for the turn. This lets motorists know the reason why you are slowing down and reduces the risk of an accident or even isolated cases of road rage.

So how do you determine how early you should use your directional?

A driving instructor once told me to use two telephone poles distance to alert drivers behind you of your intentions.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although your energy level is high, be careful not to commit to too many projects at this time. You'll do better focusing on just a few tasks rather than spreading yourself too thin.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your heart might be leading you in one direction, but pay attention to your keen Bovine intellect. I'm cautioning you to think things through before making any commitments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your "serious" Twin has been dominant in your life for quite a while. It's time now to let that "wilder" half take you out for some good times -- perhaps with someone very special.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Career aspects are high for Moon Children who make a good impression. Show people not only what you can already do, but also how you can be more valuable to them in the future.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Things start to brighten for the Lion's immediate financial future. But be careful to resist the urge to splurge. You need to tuck something away to help you through another tight period.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Having to do too many tasks in too short a time could lower your mood to just above the grumbling level. But if you handle things one at a time, you'll get through it all soon enough.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your usually carefully made holiday plans could be subject to change later this month. Use this week to prepare for that possibility by starting a Plan B just in case you need it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful about joining a colleague's plan to solve a workplace problem. Investigate it thoroughly. Otherwise, you could find yourself in a predicament with other associates.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Slow down that high-paced whirl you've been on. Spending quiet time alone or with people you care for can be both physically and spiritually restorative.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Make suggestions, not demands. You'll be more successful in getting people to follow your lead if you exercise quiet patience instead of strong persuasion to get your ideas across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You still need more facts before you can make an informed career choice. One note of caution: Be careful about whom you ask for that information; otherwise, you could be misled.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changing situations through the end of the week could lead to some challenging opportunities for those perspicacious Pisceans who know how to make them work to their advantage.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of being both daring and cautious, traits that could make you a research scientist or maybe even a rocket-ship designer.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD -- Quentin Tarantino's "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood" teams Leonardo DiCaprio as Rick Dalton (a struggling former TV Western star who couldn't make it in films) and Brad Pitt as Cliff Booth (Rick's longtime stunt double and best friend). Most of the other characters are based on real people from the Helter Skelter reign of terror in 1969 Los Angeles.

Margot Robbie ("I, Tonya") and Emile Hirsch play Manson clan victims Sharon Tate and Jay Sebring, while "Billion's" Damian Lewis is film superstar Steve McQueen. "Beverly Hills 90210's" Luke Perry plays "Lancer" TV series star Wayne Maunder, Nicholas Hammond is actor Sam Wanamaker, Al Pacino is Rick Dalton's agent, Mike Moh is Bruce Lee, Rumor Willis (daughter of Bruce) is actress Joanna Pettet and Dreama Walker is Connie Stevens, to name some of the real people being portrayed. Sounds like a fun film.

Brad Pitt has completed the sci-fi thriller "Ad Astra," with Tommy Lee Jones, Ruth Negga and Donald Sutherland (due May 2), and is producing "The King," for Netflix, based on Shakespeare's "Henry IV, Parts 1 and 2," and "Henry V." While Shakespeare may not bring young people in, casting Timothee Chalamet, Robert Pattinson, Joel Edgerton, Ben Mendelsohn, Sean Harris and Lily-Rose Depp (daughter of Johnny Depp) surely will!

Those of us who remember all the shows now being rebooted not only have the feeling we've been there, but that it was better the first time around. It began with Netflix rebooting "The Gilmore Girls" and "Full House," then CBS successfully cloned "MacGyver" and "Hawaii Five-0," but "Murphy Brown" doesn't seem to have the oomph it once had. "Dynasty," without a big budget for clothes, seems lackluster. "Magnum P.I." without Tom Selleck isn't the same, despite all the crashes and near-death incidents.

"Last Man Standing" moved to Fox when ABC canceled it, killed off Oscar-nominee Robert Forster (as Tim Allen's father) and then wrote out Hector Elizondo (his partner in "Outdoor Man") and lost Molly Ephraim, Allen's TV daughter, Mandy, who left to do the film "The Front Runner," in which Hugh Jackman plays former presidential candidate Gary Hart. "The Conners" still revolves around Roseanne, and if it fails ABC can still blame her, even though it fired her.

But it's not over, folks. Pilots have been ordered for reboots of "Buffy, the Vampire Slayer," "Frasier," "Sabrina, the Teenage Witch," NBC's "V," "Grimm," replacing David Giuntoli with a female "Grimm," and Armistead Maupin's "Tales of the City," with Laura Linney, Ellen Page and Olympia Dukakis set to return, among others. How about rebooting an original idea that makes us laugh, like "The Mary Tyler Moore Show"?!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Faience Bowl --- Talented artists often become well-known for just one type of art when they actually created many different things. Emile Galle (1846-1904), the famous artist known for his cameo glass, designed, made and sold pottery and furniture. The glass and furniture are popular with today's collectors. The pottery is scarce and not well-known. Galle was a leader in Art Nouveau design and a passionate botanist, yet few of the art books mention anything but his cameo glass.

Galle's father had a store and sold glass and ceramics. Emile Galle studied glass making, design, botany and mineralogy, and he even served in the Franco-Prussian war. This training helped him in his commercial projects. After schooling, he moved back to Nancy, France, his birthplace, and started his own workshop. In 1874, he directed Saint-Clement pottery and eventually moved it to Nancy. His pottery was exhibited at the 1878 Paris Exhibition, and later, he showcased both pottery and glass at another Paris exhibition. He set up his furniture shop in 1884. The wooden pieces feature marquetry using naturalistic designs similar to those found on his cameo glass.

Galle invented many new techniques for making glass, and he started the Art Nouveau style that used curved lines, shapes and natural designs with plants and animals. His Art Nouveau cameo glass was world-renowned, and he continued to study and write about horticultural subjects. Galle died at age 58 after a long battle with leukemia.

A large faience-handled bowl with flowers, scrolls, dolphin heads and a picture of a sailboat was auctioned at a James Julia sale in 2017. It's marked with a Cross of Lorraine and the words "Emile Galle Fecit Modele depose." (Emile Galle registered design). A similar bowl was on "Antiques Roadshow" in 2016 with an estimated value more than twice the price paid of $968.

Q: While at an estate sale, I bought a Hall six-cup ceramic teapot. The bottom is stamped with pattern No. 0113, and the color is maroon with a gold patterned detail. There also is "M8" stamped on the bottom rim. When was this made?

A: You have a Hollywood teapot first made by Hall in the 1920s. It was made in 4-cup, 5-cup, 6-cup, and 8-cup sizes. Hollywood teapots were made in solid colors as well as with decal decorations. At one time, Hall was the world's largest manufacturer of teapots. The value of your teapot is $25 to $35.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was British philosopher, logician, mathematician, historian, writer, social critic and political activist -- and, not insignificantly, Nobel laureate -- Bertrand Russell who made the following sage observation: "The fundamental cause of trouble in this world is that the stupid are cocksure while the intelligent are full of doubt."

* In an odd coincidence, President Abraham Lincoln had a secretary named Kennedy, and President John F. Kennedy had a secretary named Lincoln. Kennedy the secretary told Lincoln the president that he shouldn't go to Ford's Theatre the night he was shot; Lincoln the secretary tried to convince Kennedy the president not to go on a trip to Dallas, where he was shot.

* If you're like the average man, your beard grows about half an inch every month.

* Those who study such things claim that an average bank robber in the United States nets about $4,000 for every job. No info at hand on how the researches acquired their data.

* You might think that hot dogs are a relatively recent food offering, but you'd be wrong. The first sausages were created more than 3,500 years ago when ancient Babylonians began stuffing spiced meat into the intestines of animals.

* The fastest of all non-domesticated canines, the African wild dog can sprint faster than 40 mph.

* Many people make provisions in their wills for their pets; it's the compassionate thing to do. Singer Dusty Springfield went a bit further than most, though; she specified that her cat was to be fed only imported baby food.

* Here's a great recipe substitution: "If you do not have cream, melted vanilla ice cream can be used for icings on cakes or pastries." -- P.B. in North Dakota

* "I have four brothers and sisters, and Thanksgiving is always a huge affair. We rotate homes for hosting, but we each take a responsibility for food. A few weeks ahead, we hold a 'food lottery' to decide impartially who gets to bring what: side dishes, desserts, etc. This way, we don't get stuck in ruts, like always having a certain person do desserts. The surprise factor makes it exciting. The host family is always responsible for the bird." -- K.M in Massachusetts

Supreme Sacrifice Remembered

★ ★ 100 Years Later ★ ★

PRIVATE GUIDO J. CICCONI was a first generation Italian-American native of Quincy. He joined the U.S. Army and was killed in battle in France on Nov. 4, 1918, one short week before the armistice. Mr. Cicconi's memorial square is at the corner of Liberty Street and Centre Street in South Quincy. He and his family lived on Liberty Street. On the 100th anniversary of Mr. Cicconi's death, Mrs. Liz McHugh, niece of Guido's brother Arthur, hung a memorial bouquet at the square. Mr. Cicconi's remains are interred at Hall Cemetery, along with his parents, behind St. Mary's Church where the family worshipped. In the early 1970s a bronze bust of Mr. Cicconi's was stolen from atop the tombstone. His duty to his country and ultimate sacrifice is remembered to this day. Photo Courtesy Frank McHugh

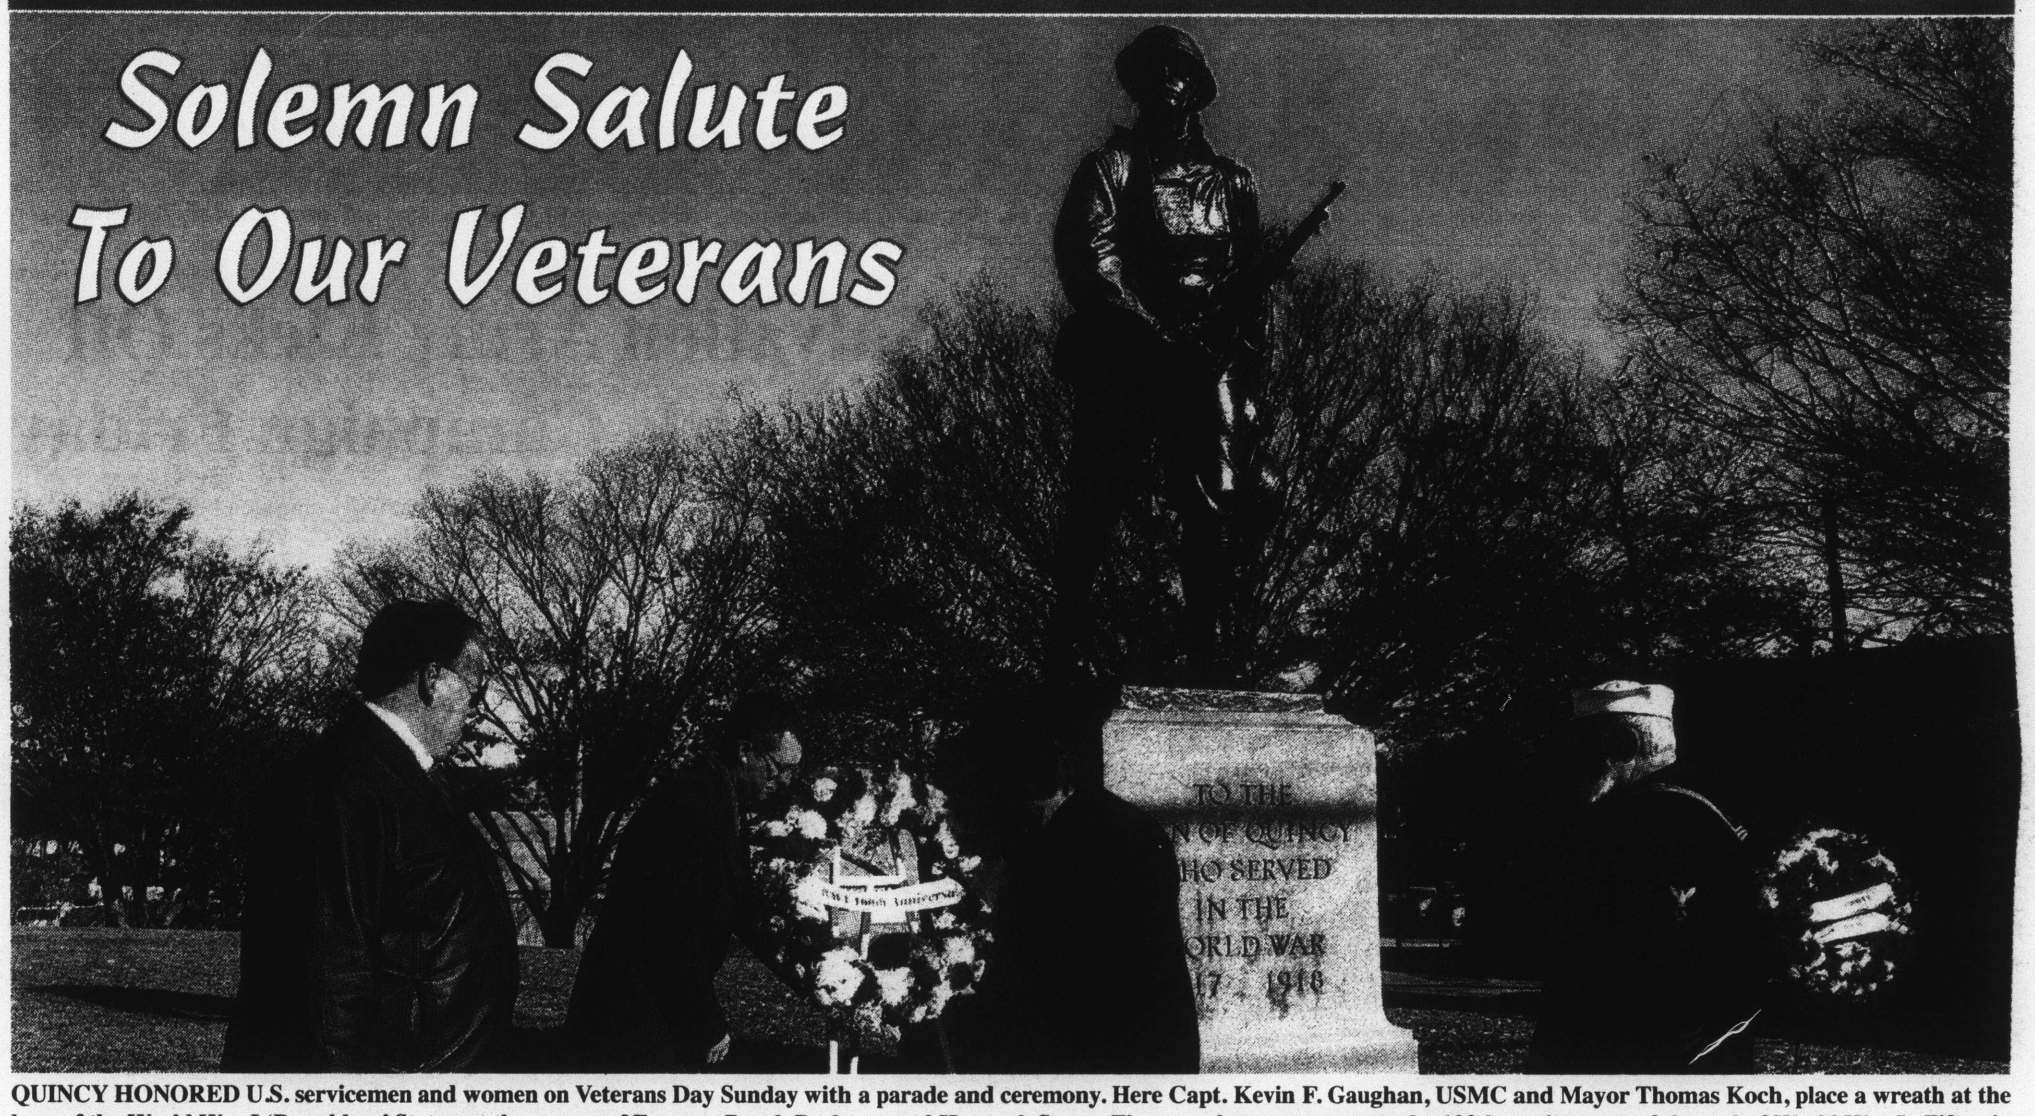
Solemn Salute To Our Veterans



QUINCY HONORED U.S. servicemen and women on Veterans Day Sunday with a parade and ceremony. Here Capt. Kevin F. Gaughan, USMC and Mayor Thomas Koch, place a wreath at the base of the World War I 'Doughboy' Statue at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Hancock Street. The wreath commemorates the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I. Fifty-six Quincy servicemen were killed during that war. Looking on are George Nicholson (left), director of Quincy Veterans Services, and Leo Reardon, Officer of the Day.

By AMBER MAYNOR
Captain
Quincy Salvaton Army

Christmas is not Christmas without snow or without seeing The Salvation Army Red Kettles. It is during this most wonderful time of year that The Salvation Army ventures into the cold streets, in order to receive from the warm hearts of others, donations that will help meet needs within the community.

You may pass a store during your holiday shopping, where the jingle of a bell may catch your attention, followed by the sight of the iconic red kettle. While many people recognize the red kettle, many do not know the meaning and mission behind it.

The red kettle was born in 1891, in San Francisco, California, when Captain John McFee, was looking for a way to feed a Christmas meal to over 1,000 individuals without the income needed for such. He set-up an old brass urn, and within no time was able to pay for

'Veterans Are Resilient Men And Women Who Continue To Answer The Call To Service'

Capt. Kevin Gaughan, USMC, Keynote Speaker

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy native Kevin Gaughan was serving halfway around the world in Afghanistan on Super Bowl Sunday in 2010, when the New Orleans Saints defeated the Indianapolis Colts.

Gaughan and his fellow marines had dug foxholes around the city of Marjah as part of Operation Moshtarak, and several had to be medevaced that night following hours of freezing rain. Gaughan and unit leaders went foxhole to foxhole the next morning and happened upon a marine from Louisiana, who knew instinctively the Saints had won their first championship.

"With total deadpan delivery, the lance corporal said that – in his Louisiana drawl –his daddy had been a lifelong Saints fan, and he told him when hell froze over the Saints would win the Super Bowl, and he was pretty damn sure that it froze

SINGING CANARIES

Improvements in diamond-cutting technology have now made it possible to enjoy yellow "canary" diamonds in a wider range of shapes and sizes than ever before. As a result, there has been a significant upsurge of interest in fancy yellow diamonds. These canary diamonds owe their yellow color to the presence of nitrogen and range from pale yellow, which is quite white with only a hint of yellow, to gemstones with highly saturated yellow color. While the paler canaries can serve as affordable alternatives to white diamonds, the more yellow diamonds can be rather expensive investments. Natural color intensity largely determines value. Those with a strong yellow hue are further enhanced when set in yellow gold.

We believe one of the most important aspects of our service to you is our knowledge of diamonds - their colors, unique characteristics, value, what makes them sparkle, and how to help you choose the highest quality diamond for your investment. We know the more you shop with us at Rogers Jewelry, the more you'll realize you can trust Quincy's finest jeweler for integrity, experience, service and quality. For the ultimate gift to yourself or someone else very special, see our selection of diamonds at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. Our diamond collection contains virtually any shape and size imaginable. Call us at 617-773-3636.

Don't Forget: We pay cash for Gold - Platinum - Diamonds... highest prices paid.

Rep. Ayers Presents Bicycle To Squantum Student Lily Quilty

State Rep. Bruce Ayers recently stopped by Squantum Elementary School to present a bicycle to the student who read the most books over summer vacation.

Lily Quilty, a first grade student, was this year's lucky recipient.

"It's always great to be at Squantum School and spend some time with the students," Ayers said. "I'm proud to once again partner with the Quincy Public Schools to promote literacy, and recognize Lily's hard work with a new bike."

Quilty, whose father Conor was present for the surprise presentation, also received an official state citation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives recognizing her accomplishment.

Ayers annually works with the elementary schools within his legislative district to offer free bicycles to students to reward summer reading.

LILY QUILTY, a first grader at the Squantum School, received a new bicycle courtesy of state Rep. Bruce Ayers for reading the most books during the summer vacation. Also shown here is Lily's dad, Conor Quilty.

Friends Of Butler's Pond Fall Cleanup Saturday

Friends of Butler's Pond will conduct a fall cleanup of the pond area on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 9 to 11 a.m.

Community residents are invited to join with Friends of Butler's Pond to pick up litter, cut down weeds, and clear brush.

Trash and yard waste bags will be provided. Bring your gloves and weed cutters.

Meet on Merrymount Road at the south end of the pond.

Friends of Butler's Pond is a local community organization working with the City of Quincy to restore and preserve this beautiful pond and natural area.

Go to Friends of Butler's Pond website www.butlerspond.org for information about the history, wildlife, ecology, preservation efforts, and Friends activities, visit "Friends of Butler's Pond (Quincy, MA)" on Facebook, or email butlerspond@gmail.com.

School Enrollment Up To 9,623 Students, Majority Of Class Sizes At Favorable Levels

By TOM GORMAN

Despite an increase in Quincy's public school enrollment, the majority of class sizes remain at favorable levels.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro recently updated the school committee on this fall's enrollment numbers. As of Oct. 1, he said that the district has a total of 9,623 students, an increase of 96 students over last year.

"It's not a significant increase this year," he said.

Since 2015, the school system has seen an increase of 284 students. In 2015, there were 9,339. That jumped to 9,442 the following year. Last year, the total was 9,597.

Over the past 12 years, DeCristofaro said the district has had "ups and downs" in enrollment. In 2006, there were 8,969 students; that increased yearly to a total of 9,470 in 2013. The following year, the enrollment decreased by 75 and the district was down by another 56 in 2015.

It was noted that full day kindergarten started in 2006 that led to an increase in grades one through five.

The superintendent said additional kindergarten classes were created this year at Merrymount and Montclair schools to accommodate an increase in neighborhood enrollment. Also, prekindergarten classes were added at Point Webster Middle School.

Overall, class sizes are still reasonable this fall.

At the elementary level, 79 percent of classrooms have 20 or fewer students. None of the classes above 20 have more than 24 students, which is the set limit. The majority of the schools have 18 or fewer students in each class.

There are 95 percent of middle school classes with 24 or fewer students. There are 15 classes with 25 students and six classes that have 26 students.

At the high school level, 83 percent of core academic classes have 25 or fewer students, with the majority having 22 or fewer. There are four classes at Quincy High that have 30 students and more than a dozen between both high schools with 26 to 29 students.

DeCristofaro said both high schools have space to accommodate additional students if needed.

According to the enrollment numbers, Atherton Hough and Merrymount elementary schools had the largest increase this year with an additional 21 students at each school. On the

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of Wollaston showing a train passing under the Beale Street Bridge on its way to Quincy Center. Newport Avenue is on the right. The old Wollaston Depot on the left, originally named Wollaston Heights, was on the right side of the tracks until Newport Avenue was widened. It was very narrow and still a dirt road at this time and was widened to ease navigation on the hill for horse drawn wagons when it was mud. The tall building at the top of the hill was the Wollaston Hotel. It was built in 1870 along with the depot when the land called Wollaston Heights was subdivided into house lots. The Old Colony Railroad Corporation built the railroad on this right-of-way in 1845. John Quincy Adams was still serving as the U.S. congressman from the district that included Quincy when it was built so very close to his home on Adams Street.

AARP Fraud Watch Update: November

By CINDY CAMPBELL
Communications Director
AARP Massachustts

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

• An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:

Every November we celebrate Veterans Day and this year is especially meaningful as we celebrate the 100th anniversary of Armistice Day. In a shameful twist, scammers see honoring veterans as a perfect time to call across the country pretending to represent charities benefiting our nation's heroes.

Scammers often use sound-alike names (or invent authentic "organizations") to solicit funds. Before donating, verify each charity by checking their names and reputations at give.org or www.charitynavigator.org.

This Veterans Day, we should be honoring our veterans, not lining the pockets of scammers who use their name so disrespectfully.

SCAM ALERT #2:

Medicare Open Enrollment runs through Dec. 7th, and it's a banner time for Medicare fraud. Beware of ads that promise medical equipment covered 100% by Medicare. You may see one in the newspaper offering a free power chair, or a TV infomercial claiming you can get anything to ease your pain with no money out of pocket.

Medicare only covers durable medical equipment that is medically necessary with a doctor's prescription. If you have any questions about what is or is not covered, call 1-800-MEDICARE. SCAM ALERT #3:

Even though we are still several weeks away from tax season, scammers are hard at work trying to scare you into paying back taxes and other IRS "penalties" all year round. If you receive a call saying something like "Urgent! We found that fraud was committed on your last tax filing which you are hiding from the Federal Government," please hang up.

Scammers are very good at making you feel you did something wrong, especially when they pretend to be from the IRS! Remember to STOP and VERIFY.

Call the IRS yourself at 1-800-829-1040 and you will soon see that the call you received is a scam. To report an IRS impersonations scam, visit this IRS site.

SCAM ALERT #4:

With holiday season upon us, scammers have plenty of inroads to steal our money and event he gifts we send. Here are some way to protect yourself: When shopping online, use well-known sites and type in the web address yourself, instead of clicking on a link.

Buy gift cards online from the retailer or from the cashier, to avoid compromised cards that may be sitting on gift card racks. Require a delivery signature for packages to avoid the possibility of holiday packages being stolen from the recipient's doorstep.

Visit aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more tips on enjoying a scam-free holiday season.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

18-Year Old Drinking Law: 'A Nightmare'

Passage of the 18-year old drinking law has helped create what Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn calls "an absolute nightmare for the police force."

Since July 1, 1973 when the state's legal drinking age was lowered, Chief Finn said, Quincy has witnessed:

The doubling of juvenile drinking arrests; an increase in the assault of Quincy police officers by intoxicated youth; the consumption of liquor by children as young as ten, and an increase in automobile accidents involving teenage drivers.

Chief Finn commented, "The assault and battery on police officers is unbelievable. It is not uncommon for 15 and 16-year olds to whack an officer."

"Now," says Finn, "with the lowering of the drinking age the 18-year olds are buying liquor for the 11, 12 and 13-year olds, sometimes for the 10-year olds."

COUNCIL VOTES TO BOYCOTT SUGAR

Ward One Councillor Leo J. Kelly successfully sponsored a Council resolve for a citywide boycott of sugar during the Thanksgiving week.

Citing that the price of sugar "has tripled within a matter of days," Kelly also urged neighboring cities and towns to join Quincy in the sugar boycott.

Through the boycott, Kelly said, government officials and citizens could "work together in a united effort to abate this injustice in our economy."

LaRAIA SURVEY SHOWS OPPOSITION TO NEW NQ HIGH SCHOOL

A total of 116 out of 219 respondents to a questionnaire sponsored by Quincy City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, oppose the construction of a new North Quincy High School, according to LaRaia.

LaRaia printed the questionnaire in a local newspaper "to check on reports of public opposition to the new school." It also appears in today's edition of The Quincy Sun.

LaRaia says he still remains "open minded" on the matter but will "probably vote along with public opinion."

Three Quincy Girl Scouts Earn Silver Award

Convert Overgrown Woods Near School Into Nature Trail

By LINDSAY CARINCI
Girl Scout Troop 85042

Three girls from Girl Scout Troop 85042 in Quincy recently earned their Girl Scout Silver Award.

The Silver Award is the highest award a Cadette Girl Scout can earn. The Silver award requires a minimum of 50 hours of community service that benefits and educates the community. Between the three girls they had over 160 hours collectively.

Isabella Carinci, Jayda Berry, and Angel Bresnahan decided for their project they wanted to put in a nature trail in the unused, overgrown woods near the Clifford Marshall Elementary School where they attended school. They met with school Principal Nicholas Ahearn and pitched their idea. Mr. Ahearn thought it was a great idea and supported the girls 100 percent from beginning to end.

They also had a lot of help and support from the community. Friends helped them clean up the area.

Gail Spring, a member of the Wollaston Gardening club, helped them identify all the foliage in the area. The Mayor's Office and Mr. Martin from the Park Department donated wood chips to the project.

On Sept. 26th the girls opened their path to the first two of what will hopefully be many classes at Clifford Marshall. The students were shown around the nature trail, visiting the rubbing stations and learning about the various native plant life. This inaugural event was a success.

The nature trail is open to the public during non-school hours.

THE NATURE TRAIL project received community support including mulch donated by the Quincy Park Department. Here Jayda Berry and Isabella Carinci prepare to move the mulch.

Recipes For Thanksgiving

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for three foods that we can enjoy for Thanksgiving Day and beyond.

One is for a very simple cranberry sauce that my daughters Rita and Ann Marie make and the other is for pumpkin cheese cake and pumpkin pecan pie both made without the conventional pie crust. They are made with ginger snaps or graham crackers.

These recipes are timeless and may be some you have already made.

CRANBERRY SAUCE

1 cup cranberries
1/3 cup orange juice
1/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Mix all of the ingredients together, and then cook in a pan until the cranberries are all blended in the juices. Within a few minutes you have the most delicious cranberry sauce ever.

PUMPKIN CHEESE CAKE

3-eight ounce packages cream cheese (softened)
1-15 ounce can pumpkin mix (without sugar)
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs

In a bowl, whip up the cream cheese, sugar and vanilla until smooth. Add the pumpkin and the beaten eggs and mix well. Set aside.

For the Crust

1 1/2 cups ginger snaps or graham crackers
5 tablespoons melted butter

Mix the two ingredients together and place on a greased pie plate pressing on the bottom and on the sides. Bake in a 400 oven for 8 minutes.

Remove from the oven and place the filling. Bake in a 425 degree oven for 15 minutes, and then at 350 degrees for one hour or until a toothpick comes clean from the center.

PUMPKIN, PECAN PIE

1-15 ounce pumpkin pie mix (without sugar)
5 ounces evaporated milk (or 2% milk)
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cloves
2 eggs (beaten)
1/2 cups chopped pecans)

Mix the eggs, milk, sugar and spices until blended. Add the pumpkin and nuts and stir until smooth.

Use either of the crusts and bake for 8 minutes in a 400 degree oven. Then when filled bake for 425 degree oven for 15 minutes and then 350 degree for one hour or until toothpick comes out clean in the center.

Giblet Turkey Stuffing

By MARIE

This is a recipe for stuffing that I usually make for Thanksgiving Day. It contains the giblets from the turkey. If you don't want to use them, just eliminate them from the recipe.

GIBLET TURKEY STUFFING

4 ounces of ground meat (any favorite)
2 stalks celery (chopped)
1 small onion (chopped)
Livers from the turkey (cut up)
2 tablespoons Bell's seasoning (or thyme)
1/2 bag stuffing mix
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1/4 cup Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup white wine

Saute the celery and onion. Add the ground meat and the livers and the wine. Cover and cook until meat is done. Add the stuffing mix that you have soaked in water or stock.

Stir and cook covered, then add the bread crumbs and the cheese and cook for another few minutes. If the mixture looks thin, add more crumbs. If thick add more liquid (water or stock).

You can either cook the stuffing separately or when completely cooled in the turkey. If separate, bake covered in a 350 degree oven for 25 minutes until done.

Quinoa Butternut Squash, Kale Pilaf

By SUSIE

Here is a delicious recipe for those who may be on the "fence" about trying quinoa. Quinoa is easy to digest, gluten free, delicious and easy to prepare as well. For culinary purposes quinoa is considered a "grain" but actually it is a seed. Loaded with calcium (who needs milk?) 5 grams of protein, fiber, iron, and many other minerals, I think you will start keeping quinoa in your pantry after tasting this recipe.

QUINOA BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND KALE PILAF

2 ½ cups rinsed and drained quinoa
5 cups chicken or vegetable broth
½ cup chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 head of lacinto kale, destemmed and chopped
2 cups butternut squash, cubed
3 tbsp. Olive oil
1 tbsp. Ghee or pasture butter sea salt
pepper
½ lemon juiced
2 tblsp. Each fresh sage and fresh thyme, chopped.
Parmesan cheese

Place quinoa and broth in saucepan and let come to boil. Cover and simmer between 12 and 15 minutes until broth is absorbed and quinoa is done. Keep covered.

While quinoa is cooking, saute' onion in oil and ghee/pasture butter until lightly browned and sizzling. Add squash and kale. Toss in about a teaspoon of sea salt and some freshly ground pepper. Stir well and put heat down low. Toss in garlic and cover and cook, stirring occasionally, about 15 -20 minutes until squash is done and kale is tender. (Sometimes I add a bit of broth at the end if too dry, it all depends on how many times you take off the cover and let off too much steam.)

Toss vegetables in with the cooked quinoa. Add in the herbs, lemon juice, more sea salt if needed, and pepper to taste. Drizzle with olive oil and sprinkle with cheese. Serve hot.

Party With A Purpose For Interfaith Social Services

Feed The Hungry Gala Dec. 7 Features New Breweries, Musical Act

After an evening of sampling dishes, playing games and fundraising, attendees at this year's Feed the Hungry Gala will dance the night away to the energetic funk of the South Shore's Aldous Collins Band. The band joins the event for the first time, playing during the event, Friday, Dec. 7, at Granite Links Golf Club.

Other new additions to the event, which supports the programs of Quincy's Interfaith Social Services, include a craft beer corner and several new restaurants participating in the chef dine around.

Interfaith Social Services operates one of the largest emergency food programs in Greater Boston as well as a mental health counseling center and homelessness prevention program. Interfaith's programs are a safety net for thousands of children and families from the South Shore who are struggling to make ends meet.

Proceeds from their Feed the Hungry Gala provide for a third of their annual funding.

Now in its 21st year, the gala features carnival-style games, live and silent auctions, and a chef dine around where attendees sample food and beverages from some of the region's top restaurants and purveyors. New this year will be tables from 110 Grill, Davio's Northern Italian Steakhouse, Smokey Stax BBQ and Eat Local – owner of Trident, Galley, The Tinker's Son and bia bistro. They join returning chefs from Alma Nove, Fratelli's, Granite Links, JP Fuji Group, Montilio's Baking Company, Sadie Mae's Cupcake Cafe, The Corner Stop Eatery, The Quarry, The Range Bar and Grille and The Townshend.

At the new craft beer corner, attendees can sample beers from newcomers Bent Water Brewing, Stellwagen Beer Co. and Widowmaker Brewing. Additional beverage samples will be provided from Bin Ends Wine, Bradford Distillery, Coffee Break Café, Mayflower Brewing, Samuel Adams and Simpson Spring.

The event is sponsored by many individuals and businesses, including Presenting Level Sponsor Arbella Insurance Foundation and Champion Level Sponsors Granite Telecommunications and JetBlue. Several sponsorships are still available; information is available at bit.ly/ISSgalasponsor.

Tickets to the event are on sale at FeedHungryGala.org.

Hyperhidrosis: More Than Normal Sweating

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Hyperhidrosis, or excessive sweating, is a common disorder which produces a lot of grief for those afflicted. It is estimated 2%-3% of Americans endure excessive sweating of the underarms (axillary hyperhidrosis) or of the palms of the hands and soles of the feet (palmoplantar hyperhidrosis).

RUTH JONES

Underarm issues tend to start in late adolescence, while palm and sole sweating often commences earlier, typically around age 13. These problems can be lifelong if not addressed.

Sweating is distressing and complicates business and social interactions. Severe cases can have serious consequences, making it difficult for people who suffer from it to grip a pen, maneuver a car steering wheel, or shake hands.

There are two types of hyperhidrosis.

• Primary hyperhidrosis, also called focal hyperhidrosis, causes excessive sweating in the hands, underarms, face, and feet without any obvious reason.

• Secondary hyperhidrosis, referred to as generalized hyperhidrosis, causes excessive sweating in a larger area of the body or even the entire body and can be triggered by excessive heat as well as a medical condition or medication.

Typically, your sweat glands produce perspiration that is transported to the skin's surface when the air temperature rises, such as when you're exercising, you have a fever or are stressed. When those factors no longer exist, the nerves that signal sweating are put on hold.

Unfortunately, for those who have hyperhidrosis, the sweat glands don't turn off, and they continue to perspire even though conditions don't necessitate it: such as in air conditioning, watching television or even in a swimming pool.

With a methodical evaluation of causes and triggers, many people with this disorder can achieve good results and improved quality of life. The simplest way to combat excessive sweating is with the use of an antiperspirant, which most people already utilize every day. The majority of antiperspirants contain aluminum salts. When you roll them onto your skin, antiperspirants form a plug that blocks perspiration. You purchase antiperspirants over the counter or your doctor can prescribe one for you. Over-the-counter antiperspirants may be less irritating than prescription antiperspirants. It is advisable to begin with an over-the-counter brand, and if that proves unsuccessful, ask your doctor about a prescription.

Many antiperspirants are sold combined with a deodorant, which won't stop you from sweating but will help control the odor from your sweat. You can also apply some of them to areas other than your underarms, where you sweat, like your hands and feet. Some may even be applied to the hairline. Applications at bedtime, in addition to in the morning may assist in keeping you drier

If your hands and feet continue to sweat your healthcare provider may recommend the following options:

Iontophoresis: During this treatment, you sit with your hands, feet, or both in a shallow tray of water for about 20 to 30 minutes, while a low electrical current travels through the water. No one is sure exactly how this treatment works, but experts believe it blocks sweat from getting to your skin's surface. You'll have to repeat this treatment at least a few times a week, but after several times you may stop sweating. Once you learn how to do iontophoresis, you can buy a machine to use at home. Although iontophoresis is generally safe, because it uses an electrical current it's not recommended for women who are pregnant and people who have pacemakers or metal implants, including joint replacements, cardiac conditions, or epilepsy.

Botulinum toxin: Another treatment option for heavy sweating is injections of botulinum toxin A (Botox), the same medicine used for wrinkles. Botox is FDA-approved for treating excessive sweating of the underarms, but some doctors may also use it on the palms of the hands and soles of the feet. Botox works by preventing the release of a chemical that signals the sweat glands to activate. You may need to have several Botox injections, but the results can last for almost a year.

Anticholinergic drugs: When other treatments have failed, your doctor might recommend a prescription medicine such as an anticholinergic. Oral anticholinergic drugs stop the activation of the sweat glands, but like all medicines they can have side effects including, blurred vision, heart palpitations, and urinary problems.

Surgery: Surgery is only advised for people with severe hyperhidrosis that hasn't responded to other treatments. During surgery, the doctor may cut, scrape, or suction out the sweat glands.

Complications of hyperhidrosis can include:

• Social and emotional complications. Excessive sweating causes serious problems for many people. Many say their symptoms are difficult to tolerate. They avoid social and professional occasions because of embarrassment. Many also report difficulties in their relationships due to excessive sweating.

• Maceration. This is a technical term for the mushy, wet appearance skin exhibits when it's continually moist. This general skin breakdown can precipitate other skin conditions, which are usually mild.

• Jock itch (tinea cruris). This fungal infection appears in the folds of the groin. Heavy sweating creates a continuous moist environment that can make a person at higher risk for developing this.

• Athlete's foot (tinea pedis). Similar to jock itch, athlete's foot is a fungal infection of the feet. The fungus thrives in moist conditions. Athlete's foot commonly starts in between the toes, where excessive sweating may be severe.

• Body odor (bromhidrosis). The actually sweat itself is not what smells bad. It's the substances that skin bacteria generate when they come in contact with sweat. The sweat in the underarm and genital areas is the most prone to producing body odor. Sweaty feet, constricted in tight shoes, run a close second. Keeping these areas clean and dry can help, but this can be difficult to accomplish for people with hyperhidrosis.

• Warts and bacterial infections. The maceration or skin breakdown from heavy sweating can allow easier entry for bacteria and viruses that cause skin infections, including warts.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Airman Matthew Eagles Graduates Military Training

U.S. Air Force Airman Matthew D. Eagles recently graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland, San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Additional $2M In Improvements To Shea Memorial Rink

DCR Will Replace Rink Slab, Dasher Boards At WQ Rink

The Baker-Polito Administration announces the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) will replace the rink slab and dasher boards at the Shea Memorial Rink in West Quincy.

The improvement projects, which are expected to begin in spring 2019, follows the administration's recent installation of a new refrigeration system at the rink in 2017, making a total investment of $3.2 million to the ice rink facility.

"The Shea Memorial Rink is a popular recreational facility offering visitors a safe place to learn, practice, and play," said Department of Conservation and Recreation Commissioner Leo Roy. "The Baker-Polito Administration is thrilled to be investing in the future of the Shea Memorial Rink for the residents of Quincy and surrounding communities."

The projects will begin with the demolition of two existing ice slabs of the main rink and the construction of a new slab. The new poured concrete slab beneath the ice features a warming layer with anti-permafrost technology to allow for extended use. Additionally, new dasher boards and protective netting will be installed. Prior to the rink slab and dasher board renovation, the agency replaced the rink refrigeration system in 2017, a $1.2 million undertaking.

"Investing in community facilities, is investing in the residents of the Commonwealth. The Shea Memorial Rink has been a valuable asset to the City of Quincy and nearby towns as a place for sporting events, family time and physical activity. We are grateful to the Baker-Polito Administration for their continued commitment to municipalities and to the Department of Conservation and Recreation for their work in improving the rink," said state Sen. John Keenan (D-Quincy).

"I'm proud to have advocated for the improvements to the Shea Rink and am grateful to DCR for committing the resources to make it happen," said state Rep. Bruce Ayers (D–Quincy). "This important funding will be well-spent to benefit the countless students and adults who use the Shea Rink and all it has to offer the community."

In honor of former Quincy Mayor William T. Shea, the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), a predecessor agency of DCR, named the 1962 rink after Mayor Shea. Shea served as mayor from 1908 to 1911.

The rink was originally built as an outdoor skating rink, which was renovated in 1972. The renovation project fully enclosed the rink, installed spectator stands, and built team rooms for athletes. The last major work done on the rink occurred in the 1990s.

The improvement projects are expected to be completed in November 2019. The Shea Memorial Rink improvements project, along with similar undertakings at John W. Flynn Memorial Rink in the City of Medford and Bajko Memorial Rink in the City of Boston's Hyde Park neighborhood, reflects over $10 million dollars in upcoming ice skating facility improvements.

Merrimack Valley, Bridgewater Credit Unions Approve Proposed Merger

The members of Merrimack Valley Credit Union and Bridgewater Credit Union voted in favor of merging the two organizations, taking an important step in creating one of the 10 largest credit unions in Massachusetts with nearly $1 billion in assets.

Merrimack Valley Credit Union members voted 230 to 43 in favor of the merger, and Bridgewater Credit Union members voted 162 to 21 in favor of the merger.

"As with the state charter conversion, our members have voted to support the future growth of Merrimack Valley Credit Union, this time by approving the merger with Bridgewater Credit Union," said Peter Matthews, president and CEO of Merrimack Valley Credit Union. "Combining the two organizations will create additional resources, allowing us to better serve our current and future members with expanded service offerings, improved pricing, extending low-cost financial services to more members in a wider community and larger community support programs."

Echoing the same sentiments, John J. Howard, president and CEO of Bridgewater Credit Union, added, "We're thrilled that our members recognize the value of the merger with Merrimack Valley Credit Union. We both strive to provide the best experience to our members and employees, serving working families with diverse backgrounds and even multiple generations from the same family. We put our staff and members first and will continue to do so throughout the merger process and beyond."

Merrimack Valley Credit Union and Bridgewater Credit Union expect to officially become a combined credit union in early 2019, pending regulatory approval. While the combined organization will be called Merrimack Valley Credit Union, Bridgewater Credit Union will operate as "Bridgewater Credit Union, a division of Merrimack Valley Credit Union." Howard will lead the combined credit union, while Matthews will retire.

Members of both credit unions can continue to conduct business as usual without any interruption to their accounts or the branch offices they visit. Information about the merger's next steps will be communicated to members as the merger progresses.

Upset About Wife's Reduced SS Benefit

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My wife contributed to Social Security before and after working alongside her first husband in their business, but with no contributions during that period. In more recent years she taught public school for enough years to qualify for NV PERS. Social Security is telling us that when she starts her PERS at age 65 about 40 percent of her SS will be taken away. To us the two should be totally separate. Can you explain the logic of this reduction? Why should she be penalized for working a period of time outside of a SS profession? Thank you for your response in advance. Signed: Upset Husband

Dear Upset Husband: If your wife is eligible for Social Security on her own record, and she will also get a pension from Nevada's Public Employee Retirement System (PERS), then her Social Security benefit will, indeed, be affected by Social Security's Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) when she starts her PERS pension. The WEP provision was enacted by Congress in 1983 as part of a broader program to restore Social Security to solvency against looming financial issues.

According to the Social Security Administration, WEP was intended to create better equality in how benefits were computed for those who worked their entire career contributing to Social Security, and those who did not. The logic was that, since the Social Security benefit computation is intentionally weighted toward lower-earning workers, to compute benefits in the same way for those who did not contribute fully to Social Security was unfair because they also receive an enhanced pension in addition to Social Security. So, they changed the benefit calculation for anyone with a pension from employment which did not contribute to Social Security. That formula, which normally uses 90% of the first "bend point," or segment, of one's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) over their lifetime, instead uses a 40% multiplier for those with a non-SS-Covered pension.

The "bend point" values change each year, but for 2018 the first bend point value is $895, so someone affected by WEP applying for Social Security today would see their benefit contribution from the first bend point - the one which contributes the most to one's benefit amount - as $358 instead of $806. The WEP reduction is mitigated if someone has more than 20 years of substantial earnings from employment which contributed to Social Security, and WEP goes away if one has more than 30 years of substantial SS-covered earnings. There is also a maximum WEP reduction for each year, and the reduction cannot be more than 50% of the non-covered pension, so WEP can never completely eliminate one's Social Security retirement benefit.

But there's other bad news: when your wife is eligible for Social Security spousal or survivor's benefits and her PERS pension has started, she will be affected by another provision called the Government Pension Offset (GPO). The GPO reduces spousal and/or survivor's benefits by 2/3rds of the amount of the non-covered pension, which can entirely eliminate the Social Security spousal or survivor benefit. And the rationale for GPO mirrors that for WEP. I know it will be small comfort, but you are hardly alone when it comes to being upset about your wife's Social Security benefit being reduced by WEP. I understand your contention that "the two should be totally separate" and there are many, including some members of Congress, who share that view. In fact, there is a bill before Congress now known as H.R. 1205 - The Social Security Fairness Act - which proposes to eliminate both WEP and GPO. Unfortunately, that bill has made little progress despite having about 188 bipartisan cosponsors, and little prospect for passage seems possible at this time. While I know this doesn't relieve your displeasure about WEP, I hope it at least somewhat clarifies why it was enacted and how it works.

Quincy Bay Seawall Plan Gets First Approval

8,000 Linear Feet Of Barrier Would Be Replaced From Adams Shore To Houghs Neck

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Conservation Commission approved plans to replace 8,000 linear feet of seawall running from Adams Shore to Houghs Neck, the first of several permits the project will need before work can begin.

The commission approved the plan in a 4-0 vote on Nov. 7 following a public hearing that lasted more than an hour. Some of the residents who spoke at the hearing urged the city to build a higher wall than the current design calls for, though engineers working with the city said the height has yet to be determined.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said construction could start as early as next spring provided the permitting process is complete and the project receives financing. City officials will seek grants for the project, which does not yet have a final price tag. Additional community meetings on the plan could be held early next year as the design is finalized.

The city plans to replace the seawall along Quincy Bay in two phases. The first phase – which the Conservation Commission approved at its meeting – is the 8,000 linear of seawall between Chickatabot Road and Babcock Street. The second phase would go from Babcock Street to Bayswater Road. David Murphy, an engineer with the firm Tighe & Bond, said the second phase is currently being designed.

The current seawall along the area of phase one is about 11 feet above mean sea level, Murphy said. The plan proposed at the commission hearing calls for the seawall to be raised an additional two feet with an optional two-foot extension that could be added in the future.

Some area residents felt doing the four-foot increase at once would be too much, Murphy said.

"One of the feedbacks we received was doing the four-foot increase that was tossed around was too high. We believe the four-foot [increase] adequately addresses long-term sea level rise and increased storm surges, but that's going out 50 to 75 years," he said.

"We believe a two-foot increase is sufficient for the near future, but the design is including the ability to add a two-foot extension on top of it in the future."

As part of the project, Murphy said the 14 storm-water outfalls that run under the seawall to Quincy Bay would be improved. Replacement outfalls will be installed capable of handling rain from a 100-year-storm, and designed so that water in the outfall can flush out any sediment in the pipe. The outfalls would also include check valves to prevent seawater from surging inland.

The seawall blocks themselves will also have drainpipes installed in them to let any water drain out to the sea. Those would also include check valves to ensure the water would only flow out to sea.

Some of the residents who spoke at the hearing were concerned the new seawall would only stand two feet higher than the one currently in place.

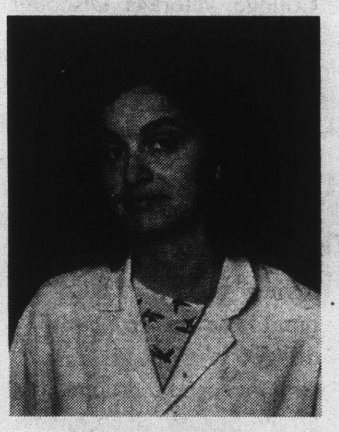
Viruses, Vaccines And Public Health Topic Monday

Flu season is already upon us. New viral diseases are being discovered on a regular basis. How can you be safe?

There is lots of talk about vaccines and whether or not they are a good idea.

The public is invited to the Thomas Crane Public Library on Monday, Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. and hear from a microbiologist who specializes in flu and herpesvirus research. Get your questions answered!

The presenter, Marta M. Gaglia, Ph.D., is an assistant professor in the Department of Molecular Biology and



MARTA GAGLIA

Microbiology at the Tufts University School of Medicine. She runs a lab at Tufts that is working to unravel the mechanisms that viruses use to take control of infected cells and in particular reprogram host gene expression to promote the viral life cycle.

The infectious agent at the centers of Dr. Gaglia's studies are an AIDS-related pathogen, Kaposi's sarcoma-associated herpesvirus (KSHV), which causes Kaposi's sarcoma and aggressive lymphomas, and the ubiquitous influenza A virus. Kaposi's sarcoma remains the major cause of cancer-related death in parts of Africa and there are no targeted therapies for this disease. Influenza A virus infections affect 5-15 percent of the world-wide population yearly, with up to half a million deaths per year. Vaccines and therapeutic options are still only partly effective.

Understanding the biology of KSHV and influenza A virus will help in the design new therapeutic strategies. Also, studying the complex interaction of viral and cellular factors allows Dr. Gaglia and her team to probe the normal working of the cell and uncover fundamental new aspects of gene regulation.

Dr. Gaglia grew up in Torino, Italy, and lived in Trieste, Italy and London, UK, before moving across the pond (and a continent) to do her graduate studies with Cynthia Kenyon at UCSF and her postdoctoral training with Britt Glaunsinger at UC Berkeley. After 11 years in California, she moved to Boston to start her own lab at Tufts University School of Medicine in 2014.In her free time, she reads fantasy and mystery novels, plays board games, does yoga, and goes on snorkeling holidays.

Quincy College Military, Veteran Services Best In MA

Quincy College, with 200 veterans enrolled, is ranked first in Massachusetts and 9th nationally in Military Friendly Top 10 list, earning the Gold Award designation for 2018-2019.

This marks the eighth consecutive year that Quincy College has been ranked a Military Friendly School by Victory Media, the leader in successfully connecting the military and civilian worlds. For the 2018 rankings, Quincy College reached an additional pinnacle of achievement in serving veterans and their dependents - the Gold Award for being ranked in the top-ten in the nation among peer institutions.

The Military Friendly Schools designation is awarded to the top 15 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools in the country that are doing the most to embrace military students, and to dedicate resources to ensure their success in the classroom and after graduation.

Institutions earning the Military Friendly School designation were evaluated using both public data sources and responses from Victory Media's proprietary survey. More than 1,700 schools participated in the 2017 survey; 1,273 were awarded with the designation. Ratings methodology, criteria, and weightings were determined by Victory Media with input from the Military Friendly Advisory Council of independent leaders in the higher education and military recruitment community. Final ratings were determined by combining the institution's survey scores with the assessment of the institution's ability to meet thresholds for Student Retention, Graduation, Job Placement, Loan Repayment, Persistence (Degree Advancement or Transfer) and Loan Default rates for all students and, specifically, for student veterans.

Above and beyond the Gold Award, Military Friendly designation, Quincy College remains committed to continually improving the education experience provided to those students who have sacrificed in service to their country.

"The Military and Veteran's Services Office is honored to support our veterans and we are honored to be recognized by Victory Media for a eighth year in a row," said Karen Connick, Military and Veteran's Services Specialist for Quincy College Military and Veteran's Services Department in Quincy and Plymouth.

"We continually evaluate our programs and assess the needs of our students, providing one-on-one support. We look forward to continuing to serve the Quincy College community of veterans in 2019 with honor and commitment they deserve," Connick added.

Connick, a retired Colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve who served at Naval Station Newport in Rhode Island is uniquely positioned to address veteran students who have recently returned to civilian life or who are veterans who are in the community.

Quincy College offers veteran support on both the Quincy and Plymouth campuses.

Reflecting on her position at Quincy College, Connick said:

"It's been a pleasure to work at Quincy College and work with the Quincy and Plymouth student populations to not only continue to recognize and support their pursuit of higher education but continue to support and honor their service. One such way we continue to honor our veteran students and the community of veteran faculty and staff is to host Veterans Day luncheon's, post Veteran student names in the hall way in the weeks leading up to Veterans Day, and also honor the community of South Shore veterans by hosting a Memorial Day event each year. We are committed to supporting the veteran community on campus. The Victory Media designation reflects what how we conduct ourselves on a daily basis."

Through the Quincy College Veterans Discount Program, veterans may enroll in either Liberal Arts or Professional Programs classes at a discounted rate. Veterans are eligible for this reduced rate regardless of the number of courses they take in a semester. The veteran discount program is not funded by the state or federal government; therefore veterans who are eligible for education benefits through the VA may also receive the Quincy College discounted rate.

Quincy College advisors address the needs of veteran students and their dependents by reviewing both military and college transcripts, as well as CLEP and DANTES exam scores, for transfer credit according to American Council of Education (ACE) recommendations.

Veterans, veteran dependents, and active duty service members are able to use their federal education benefits at Quincy College including: Post 9/11 GI Bill, Montgomery GI Bill, Vocational Rehabilitation, My CAA, VA Work Study and Tuition Assistance at Quincy College.

For more information visit Quincy College's website at http://www.quincycollege.edu/departments/military-veteran-affairs.

Christ Church To Hold Christmas Fair Nov. 30, Dec. 1

The Wolly Café will be open for lunch beginning at 11 a.m. serving hot dogs, hamburgers, chowder and other food items.

Toys For Tots Drive At Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell announces the registry is sponsoring its 13th Annual U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots drive.

"Every holiday season, the registry witnesses firsthand the many acts of kindness and Christmas spirit as numerous people, ranging from registry employees, title examiners, attorneys and the general public, drop off gifts. I fondly remember one year a local mother whose two young children brought in toys," O'Donnell said.

This year marks the 71st anniversary of Toys for Tots. The program was established in 1947 when the wife of a Marine major wanted to donate a Raggedy Ann doll for Christmas, but couldn't find an organization to take it. "Since that time 548 million gifts have been donated," noted the register.

The U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program's mission is to help those less fortunate children experience the joy and happiness associated with Christmas. The program operates in 800 cities and towns throughout all 50 states. The Toys for Tots drives annually has 40,000 people involved in the drive, ranging from Marines to volunteers.

Donations of unwrapped new toys and games can be brought directly to the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds building located at 649 High St. in Dedham Center from Monday, Nov. 19 until noon on Wednesday, Dec. 12. A marked donation bin will be set-up in the lobby which is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"We all have the power to make Christmas something special. Giving to the Toys for Tots truly represents the best of the holiday season," O'Donnell said.

ConCom Approves Kincaide Park Plan

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city's Conservation Commission gave the green light to the city's proposal to renovate Kincaide Park in South Quincy.

The commission approved the park plan in a 4-0 vote during its meeting on Nov. 7. The City Council was set to consider a $5.35 million bond to pay for the park improvements at its meeting Tuesday, after The Sun went to press for the week.

The plans to renovate the 5.2-acre park on Water Street – located between the Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School and Sterling Middle School – were unveiled at a City Council meeting earlier this year.

A $27 million park improvement bond approved by the council in 2017 set aside $1 million for Kincaide Park, but city officials began eyeing bigger changes to the space based on community feedback.

"The main improvements to the park are actually including a lot of recreational amenities that don't currently exist," landscape architect Scott Bishop told the commission.

"We are replacing the fields that are currently baseball and softball with a multi-use field that helps to support the activities at both Sterling Middle and Lincoln-Hancock. This was done in partnership with the school system to support their daytime programs as well."

The proposed improvements include a FIFA-regulation soccer pitch that could be utilized for other sports as well, a splash pad, basketball courts, bocce courts, a spring track, a trail for walking and running, new play and exercise equipment and ropes course. New lighting and stormwater systems would also be installed, along with a net of 96 new trees.

Bishop said the plan for the site includes the creation of bioswales – swales filled with vegetation – to help collect and treat stormwater.

"The cool thing about what we're doing is, by the way…we're not just putting in a bunch of drains. We're actually treating the water that is on site. We're creating a series of bioswales that create unique environments for those using the trail and outdoor amenities on site," Bishop said.

"We're going to improve water quality from what it is currently. In addition, we're also adding additional storage capacity to the site."

other end of the scale, Clifford Marshall Elementary School is down the most with a decrease of 34 students this year with Beechwood Knoll close behind with 26 fewer students.

In 2009, there were a total of 3,831 elementary students in the district. That peaked at 4,228 in 2013, and this year, the total is 4,088.

At the middle school level, Atlantic Middle School had the largest student increase with an additional 35 students this year. Point Webster is up by two students and the other middle schools are down – Sterling (2); Central (17); and Broad Meadows (10).

Since 2009 when there were 2,048 middle school students, the enrollment has increased to 2,241 this year, an increase of six over last year.

North Quincy High School had a spike of 35 additional students this year while Quincy High had a decrease of 12.

The high school enrollment was at its peak in 2009 with a total of 2,797 students. That went up and down slightly the next three years. It's currently at 2,757.

There was a significant decrease of 109 high school students in 2013 from the previous year. The enrollment dropped following three years, then spiked by 99 in 2017 from 2016.

The superintendent said that the number of special education students has increased this year. However, there are fewer special needs students being sent to out of district programs.

Regarding open enrollment – where parents can request to send their child to a different neighborhood school – officials explained that requests are granted based on current and future available space.

Parents who have a child in a school are given preference for an open enrollment request for that school.

This year for kindergarten, there were 70 requests and 52 were approved including 15 siblings. Three years ago, there were 98 requests and 36 approved, including 18 siblings. In 2016, 45 of 85 requests were approved including 20 siblings. Last year, there were 75 requests and 52 granted including 23 siblings.

In grades 1 through 5, there were 58 requests and 22 granted. In 2015, 17 of 75 requests were granted. The following year, there were 81 requests with 18 approved. Last year, 32 of 78 requests were granted.

At the middle school level, 42 requests were made and 29 approved this year for grade 6. In 2016, 27 of 53 requests were approved in grade 8. Last year in grade 7, 34 of 69 requests were granted.

This year at North Quincy High School, 55 requests that were all granted. At Quincy High, all 48 requests were approved. In the past three years, all requests that ranged between 95 and 103 were approved.

Lighthouse Fellowship Team In Athens

Lighthouse Fellowship sponsored a team of 9 people to help Central Asian refugees in Athens, Greece from Oct. 12-20.

Greece is a major channel for refugees fleeing war and persecution and seeking safety in Europe. In July alone 107,500 arrived in Europe. But some countries are closing their doors and thousands remain in Greece with little chance of moving forward. Most of them are without hope, friendless and hungry.

The Lighthouse team worked alongside a very dedicated group there called Father's Heart which the church has been financially supporting for four years. It also sent teams to help in 2015 and 2017. Father's Heart provides clothes, food, medicine and other resources including temporary housing for women traveling alone.

The church team assisted in cooking 1,000 meals, sorting hundreds of pieces of clothing, teaching ESL classes, and cleaning out a storage area to be used as a nursery. One day they organized a party for the refugee women which included games, dancing, fingernail polishing and making bracelets. Another day children were encouraged to laugh and enjoy exciting games, relay races, various crafts and tie-dying shirts. The. mothers were as happy as the kids to do the crafts. Anything that lifts their spirits and brings a little joy is a blessing for them. Both events ended with a healthy meal.

Before leaving for Greece a Squantum resident, Betsy Disharoon, put the team in touch with a group called Knitting4Peace that distributes hand-made items such as shawls, scarves, sleeping mats, and baby blankets around the U.S. and the world. As hundreds of folks knit, weave or crochet they pray for those who deliver the items and those who receive them.

The Lighthouse team was delighted to take 100 of their Peace Pals, small knitted dolls which are each unique. They gave them to refugee children in Athens and in a refugee camp in another area. It was a joy to see their eyes light up as they received the lovely dolls which were made and sent with love.

Since the Athens team serves about 1,000 meals each week, they had a serious need for plastic forks. They didn't have the money to buy them and there weren't enough in the local stores anyway. They prayed about the need for several weeks. One day they got a call that one of the refugee camps had some forks that they no longer needed.

The Quincy team had the fun of unloading the van filled with 50,000 little packets of fork, knife, spoon and napkin!! They were reminded that God knows how to supply our needs. Recently they were also running out of spaghetti - one of the regular meals served - and again they prayed. A week later a team mate came in to the director and said someone had brought spaghetti. "Where should we put it?" The director said the kitchen cupboard would be fine. "No," the messenger said. "It's a truck load of spaghetti boxes and sauce that's arrived from a church in Italy." The folks from Lighthouse Fellowship took photos of the spaghetti wall.

The Lighthouse team included a young man who works in the U.S. as a paramedic. He trained the leaders of the Athens group in first aid and CPR so they are now certified. This met a definite need and they were very grateful for that opportunity. Each member of the Lighthouse group wished they could stay longer and one is considering returning long-term. They considered it a privilege to work with the very loving and dedicated folks at Father's Heart.

On Sunday, Nov. 18, at the 10 a.m. service at 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, they will show photos and report on their time in Athens. All are welcome to come.

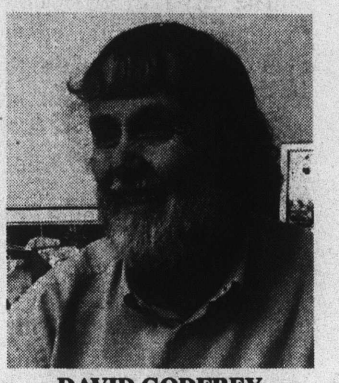
Don't Be Afraid Of Scary TV Commercials!

By DAVID GODFREY



DAVID GODFREY

Remember the old time commercials? Campbell's Soup, Hmmm Hmmm good! Buicks, Breakfast of Champions, Coca Cola.

Fast forward to 2018, and you'll see that advertisements have undergone a big change, and for the worse.

Gone are the days of catchy jingles, comedic exchanges, and Mr. Whipple.

In their place are messages of decline, accidents, illness, and death. The accompanying graphic images paint a pretty dismal future for any listener who is not alert to their hidden messages.

Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, says in her book, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, "The press unwittingly sends forth many sorrows and diseases among the human family. It does this by giving names to diseases and by printing long descriptions which mirror images of disease distinctly in thought. A new name for an ailment affects people like a Parisian name for a novel garment. Every one hastens to get it. A minutely described disease costs many a man his earthly days of comfort. What a price for human knowledge!"

From day one, evil has been trying to convince the world that it has power and can create conditions beyond God's control. Its most effective weapon is fear, and uses it to get us concerned about something most dear to us, our health. And evil is not shy about using television, radio, and the internet, all most effective tools, to spread its lies.

Ads tell us, often in graphic detail, that our life is in potential danger. The TV shouts out "One in five people will get this dread disease in their lifetime."

Or, "If you've been exposed to these conditions, you need to be checked out."

God tells us to be confident, and that He will be with us in all circumstances: "Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee" (Isaiah 43).

The only power fear has is what we give it. We've got nothing to fear, God is in our corner, and He says, "I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord" (Jeremiah 30).

Jesus provided proof of God's love and care for us. Even in the face of the most dreaded disease, he was not dissuaded. "And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him" (Luke 5).

From the temptation in the wilderness, to feeding the multitudes, to healing illnesses of every kind, he remained convinced of the facts concerning God and man. Science and Health puts it this way: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick."

We can be just as alert as he was to deny any suggestion, and especially in todays commercials, that would attempt to destroy our peace, and which many times actually serve as the catalyst for unwanted symptoms to appear. The Bible assures us that not one of God's children can ever be outside of His loving care and outstretched arm.

Picture this from Psalm 16:

"I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope.... Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore."

David Godfrey has previously conducted worship services as First Reader of his church, and has also served as a Sunday School teacher and as the church's liaison with the public.

Buddhist Learning Center Plans Back On Table

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to build a new Buddhist learning center in Quincy Point is back on the table a year after an application to construct a similar facility was withdrawn.

The Massachusetts Budhi Sisk Society is proposing to tear down the home at 62 Massachusetts Avenue and construct the new learning center, which would connect to the group's existing structure at 54 Massachusetts Ave. The proposal to build the new three-story learning center requires approval from the Planning Board, which could hold a public hearing on the application as soon as its meeting Wednesday.

City Councillors Brad Croall and David McCarthy co-hosted a community meeting on the proposal Nov. 8 in the Coddington Building. Members of the Massachusetts Budhi Sisk Society comprised nearly the entire audience at the meeting.

The society had sought permission to build a learning center last summer, but withdrew their application to do so in September 2017 following a community meeting in which residents raised concerns about traffic and parking. The proposal brought forward at that time called for building the learning center between two homes the society already owned at that time – one at 54 Massachusetts Ave. and the other 15 Glenwood Way.

The organization has since purchased the home at 62 Massachusetts Ave., which abuts 54 Massachusetts Ave. The former would be torn down to make room for the new learning center, which would connect to the extant building at 54 Massachusetts Ave.

William Phelan, the attorney representing the Buddhist society, noted Croall had suggested the organization purchase an additional property and incorporate it into the plan during the previous community meeting.

"The folks from the temple heard the concerns that were expressed by the councillor – in fact specifically the councillor suggesting that maybe they go back and acquire another property to make all this fit correctly," Phelan said. "They heard and did just that."

By acquiring the additional home, Phelan said the applicant was able to increase the number of parking spaces at the learning center from seven in the first proposal to 33 in the one now under consideration. The pick-up and drop-off area for the Sunday school that will operate inside the learning center can also be moved on site, as opposed to having that area on the street.

"All the pick-up and drop-off will be done at the rear of the property, which is just a huge improvement," Phelan said.

The temple hopes to create one of the first comprehensive Buddhist libraries in the country, he said, where monks can study.

"All the scriptures and the books that they retain are going to be preserved at this location," Phelan said, noting the two upper floors of the learning center would be used primarily to house the various texts.

The Sunday school would operate in parts of the basement and ground floor of the facility. The school has 40 to 50 students at present, mainly from Quincy, but could accommodate up to 100 students in the new facility, Phelan said.

Because the society is a religious group, the learning center would be exempt from traditional zoning rules, Phelan said, though the proposal mostly adheres to the zoning requirements for the neighborhood, which is in a residential B district.

Most of the building would stand 35 feet high, which is allowed under the zoning code, though one section above the entrance would be 38 feet tall, he stated. Phelan said the floor-area ratio of the new facility would be slightly higher than what the zoning code allows and the front façade of the building would be 14 or 15 feet from the street – in line with the extant home building at 54 Massachusetts Ave., but less than the 25-foot setback the zoning code mandates.

The 33 parking spaces provided surpasses the number required in the zoning code, which calls for one space for every five people in an assembly.

Croall said the new plan is an improvement over the previous proposal, though he and McCarthy planned to visit the site prior to any Planning Board hearing on the matter.

"It's definitely an improvement," Croall said. "I'm supportive of what you're trying to do as a big-picture item. I just want to make sure it will just blend in to the neighborhood as much as humanly possible."

East Boston Savings Opens New Branch

East Boston Savings Bank (EBSB) has opened its 37th branch office in Burlington.

The new branch is located at 50 Summit Drive at the Middlesex Turnpike and Route 95/128 interchange. The 2,100-square-foot office has been designed to take full advantage of the space. The branch includes a traditional teller line and offices to accommodate customer interaction and business transactions as well as a conference room.

Vice President, Branch Manager,. Paul Saia and Assistant Manager, Ilva Velmishi said they are looking forward to introducing themselves and EBSB to the neighborhood.

Also, EBSB residential and commercial loan officers are available to discuss financing options for both consumers and businesses. The Burlington location marks a continuation of EBSB's expansion pattern along the Route 95 corridor.

East Boston Savings Bank operates 37 full-service branches in the greater Boston metropolitan area and offers a variety of deposit and loan products to individuals and businesses located in its primary market, which consists of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk and Suffolk counties.

Founded in 1848, East Boston Savings Bank operates 37 full-service branches and a Mobile Banking Unit in the greater Boston metropolitan area.

'The Subconscious Mind' Exhibit At Library

This November the Thomas Crane Public Library presents an present acrylic and oil paintings by Patricia PecaCalle. The exhibit is titled "The Subconscious Mind."

"My passion is to create paintings that reflect the often-overlooked beauty of the subconscious mind," PecaCalle said. "That tiny space between one thought and the next one is pregnant with soulful insight. I saturate my artwork with bits of dreams, visions, episodes of deja vu, symbolism, and even glimpses of alternate realities, as I believe there's more to life than what can be seen by the naked eye.

"I give all this a touch of fantasy, then wrap it in colors, and what you get is a peek into my soul. My mixed media paintings are created on canvas, I often incorporate some clay work in the mix. I indulge in high contrast sets of color, and use a variety of mediums and materials like acrylic paints, texture paste, resin, and more."

concerned a two-foot increase in the seawall height would not be enough as sea level rises in the future.

"It's going to come up more and more and I don't want to have to worry about moving my house up or anything else. I've been talking to a lot of my neighbors and most of them say four feet – there are a couple that say two feet," Rines said. "I say go for the four feet now."

Lillian Austin, a Sea Street resident, likewise said she wanted to see the seawall height raised by four feet, not two.

"If we don't do it right and these water levels keep getting higher and higher, it's a waste of money," Austin said. "Do it right the first time."

Murphy said the application before the Conservation Commission and other state and federal permitting agencies would allow for either a two-foot or four-foot increase in seawall height. The environmental impact would be the same for either design because only the height of the block placed atop the new concrete base would change, he explained.

"We're not asking you to make the decision on the two or four," Murphy told commission members. "That will be a city decision outside this commission."

McCarthy, the Ward 1 councillor, said the new seawall could have different heights depending on the topography of the neighborhoods behind it. Lower-lying areas – like the Post Island Road and Terne Road neighborhoods – could see a four-foot increase, with a two-foot increase in other areas. Additional community meetings will be held to help determine the final height of the seawall.

"I think the two/four option should stay, because we're probably going to go up in those low areas after we have probably a few more [meetings]," McCarthy said, noting he previously held four community meetings on the proposal since August.

"We'll come back again once we're about to start this whole project."

Murphy said the height of the seawall would not have to be consistent because the size of waves varies.

"Common sense says to put the same elevation along the entire stretch. Engineering and science says in Boston Harbor…the wave fetch is different some areas," he said.

Commission members said they supported giving the engineers designing the new seawall flexibility to determine its height.

"If that flexibility is there, I think that's great," said Maureen Glynn.

"I'm inclined to go with the experts," added E. James Iorio. "My opinion on that is you give them the option of two to four depending on where they have to do it. Let the experts – the engineers – decide where it has to be one height and where it has to be another."

Register O'Donnell Hosts Computer Seminar

Continuing his efforts to provide outreach to Norfolk County communities, Register of Deeds William O'Donnell recently hosted a free informational seminar on computer assisted land record research.

At the seminar, attendees learned how to navigate the Registry's online research page www.norfolkdeeds.org and to access documents such as deeds, mortgages, Homesteads and mortgage discharges. The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds state-of-the-art computer system has more than 8.5 million land document images available for viewing, dating back to 1793.

"We are very proud that all of our land documents are online and are accessible within 24 business hours of recording," O'Donnell said.

"The feedback we have received from attendees indicates these computer seminars are very useful for real estate professionals, genealogists and members of the general public alike."

For those attending the seminar, computer skills were not required. Each attendee received free reference materials, which they took home with them. Additionally, there were several staffers on hand who were available to assist and answer questions.

"Those attending the October 23rd seminar learned how easy it is to look up land related documents," O'Donnell said. "With this knowledge, they can do this research from the comfort and convenience of their home or work computer."

O'Donnell concluded: "These computer seminars, held twice each year in the spring and the fall, are a great way to engage the public in the important work done here at the Registry of Deeds. The seminar dates are advertised in local papers throughout the county as well as through the Registry's social media outlets. For further information, you can contact Alicia Gardner at 781-461-6104 or at agardner@norfolkdeeds.org."

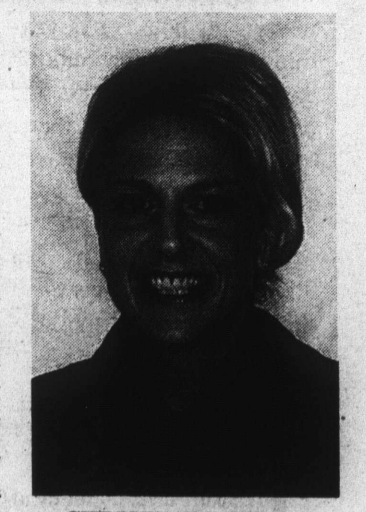
Full-service real estate and property management firm Peabody Properties (http://www.peabodyproperties.com) announces that Christine DiBella, Property Manager for The Moorings at Squantum Gardens in Quincy has been named the Accredited Residential Manager of the Year by the Institute for Real Estate Management (IREM).

DiBella was honored at the recent IREM Boston metropolitan Chapter No. 4 80th Anniversary Gala and Chapter Awards Night at The Granite Links Ballroom in Quincy. The ARM Award recognizes real estate management excellence performed by an IREM member who holds the ARM credential.

DiBella, a resident of Quincy, was recognized for advancing the real estate profession; providing superior service to residents; demonstrating leadership qualities through innovative initiatives, programs or business practices that resulted in property success and/or business advancement; and for her commitment to ethical business practices based on the IREM Code of Professional Ethics.

"The ARM credential through the Institute for Real Estate Management is not only an important individual accomplishment, but also a valued industry designation that provides a platform for career growth opportunities," said Kristin Pine, director of Training and Education for Peabody Properties. "It is no surprise that Christine has been proudly recognized for this prestigious industry award; she is an extraordinary member of the Peabody team and well-deserving of this honor from the Boston Chapter. The entire Peabody Properties community and family extend their congratulations."



CHRISTINE DiBELLA

Salvation Army Kicks Off Red Kettle Campaign Friday

the Christmas meal.

The same passion to meet human needs continues to be the backbone of The Salvation Army today. The Salvation Army, an international movement, is an evangelical part of the universal Christian church. Its message is based on the Bible. Its ministry is motivated by the love of God. Its mission is to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and to meet human needs in His name without discrimination

Since 1895, over 123 years, The Salvation Army has been in Quincy, Massachusetts, with the mission to meet the physical, emotional, and spiritual needs of individuals and families within the community.

Last year alone in direct services to the community we used $146,998.12, where we were able to meet the following needs:

Christmas Assistance: 832
Food Pantry: 3,832
Rental Assistance: 133
Utilities: 220
Back to School/Clothing: 222

The Red Christmas Kettle campaign continues to be the strongest form of fundraising for The Salvation Army in Quincy. While the campaign is only a little over six weeks long, these donations are used all year long to support the costs of our social services and other programs such as music, feeding, and youth character development programs.

This year the first red kettle made its appearance Nov. 13th, at the Roche Bros. on Falls Blvd. The remaining kettles will begin Friday, Nov. 16. We currently have 17 stands which will be located as far as Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree, and of course, right here in Quincy. Locations include Hobby Lobby, Roger's Jewelry, Shaws, South Shore Plaza, Star Market, Stop & Shop and Walmart.

The Salvation Army Community Leader kettle, a tradition started 22 years ago by Henry Bosworth, late publisher of The Quincy Sun, will also be set up again this year.

The community leader kettle will be positioned near the John Adams Statue, Hancock-Adams Common, on Thursday, Nov. 29 and Thursday, Dec. 6. Several dozen community leaders will man the kettle from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The goal for the Red Kettle Campaign this year is $133,000. We want to say thank-you to the following businesses who have already helped kick-off our campaign in purchasing a business sponsorship during the kettle season:

Colonial Federal Savings Bank, DiPesa & Company CPAs, John J. Pasciucco Jr. DDS, Kelley's Oil Company, Keohane Funeral Home, Law Offices of Morgan J. Gray, P.C, Mahoney & Harnais, NorthEast Community Bank, Quincy College, Rural Masonic Lodge A.F. & A.M.

The Salvation Army's current brand is "Doing the Most Good." While that is our ambition and passion to meet as many needs as we can, our local motto here in Quincy is, "Fighting for good, for God." We are a church who loves God and loves others, out of the abundance of love God has shown us. We are on a mission to compact the darkness the world has thrown upon us, looking to show love in practical ways.

Our Founder, William Booth, once said

"While women weep, as they do now,
I'll fight
While little children go hungry, as they do now,
I'll fight
While men go to prison, in and out, in and out, as they do now,
I'll fight
While there is a drunkard left,
While there is a poor lost girl upon the streets,
While there remains one dark soul without the light of God,
I'll fight-I'll fight to the very end!"

We are still fighting and still in need of individuals to join us to help meet humans needs. It takes everyone together, an army, to tackle the task. We hope that you will consider joining us this season, in helping us reach not only our monetary goal for the Red Kettle Campaign, but the goal to change lives through these donations.

I'll fight, will you?

Harris Asks City Officials Explore Food Waste Collection

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris wants city officials to explore the possibility of collecting food waste separately from trash and recyclables.

Harris planned to submit a resolution asking for the creation of a task force to vet the collection of food waste when the council convenes Tuesday night, after The Sun's deadline for the week.

The resolution asks Mayor Thomas Koch to appoint a task force – comprised of members of the mayor's climate change committee and other city officials – to explore the possibility of collecting food waste curbside.

Harris, in his resolution, noted Koch has called for sweeping changes to its trash and recycling program meant to bolster the recycling rate in the city while reducing the amount Quincy pays for waste disposal. The program would include the distribution of uniform trash and recycling barrels citywide.

Other communities, Harris said, have turned to the collection of food waste to further reduce disposal costs.

"Many cities and towns achieve further reduction in both disposal cost and greenhouse-gas emissions by using a third bin for household food waste, which is then sent for composting and/or anaerobic digestion," he wrote in the resolution.

If food waste were collected on a weekly basis, Harris added, the city could even explore bi-weekly collection of trash and recyclables with dual-purpose trucks that could handle both those types of waste.

Harris said a dozen Massachusetts communities – including Cambridge, Hamilton, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Natick and Salem – already have food collection programs in place. Cambridge, he said, pays about $100 to dispose of each ton of trash, compared to $65 per ton of food waste.

Cambridge began its pilot program in 2014 with 600 volunteer households and expanded the program to the entire city this April. More than 1 million pounds of food scraps were collected in the first four months alone, Harris said, reducing the city's trash by 9 percent.

Rodents were a concern in Cambridge when the program started there, but Harris noted the bins used for food waste are made with thicker plastic and can be locked, making them more secure than standard trashcans.

Colonial Federal 'Share The Warmth' Clothing Drive Benefits Salvation Army

Whether this winter is snowy or not, it will be cold. And there are men, women and children in our local communities who would truly appreciate your generous gift of a new warm hat or a good new pair of gloves or socks.

Which is why Colonial Federal Savings Bank is sponsoring the 4th Annual "Share The Warmth" drive to collect new hats, gloves and socks for a pre-Christmas donation to the Salvation Army.

"As a neighborhood bank, we're always looking for ways to help people in the community," said Susan Shea, Colonial Federal treasurer and chief operating officer. "This seemed like a fun, easy way for people to help others - something that would make both the givers and the recipients happy."

Donation boxes are available now through Tuesday, Dec. 11th in the Colonial Federal offices in Quincy, Weymouth and Holbrook; and for residents only at 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy.

Practical and/or fashionable warm new hats, gloves and socks are needed for men, women and children. Cash/check donations are also welcome.

For questions or to arrange to make a cash/check donation, call Peggy or Kerry at Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 617-471-0750.

With full-service offices in Quincy, East Weymouth and Holbrook, Colonial Federal has been the South Shore's "neighborhood bank" since 1889.

All deposits are insured by the FDIC.

The phone number connecting all offices is 617-471-0750.

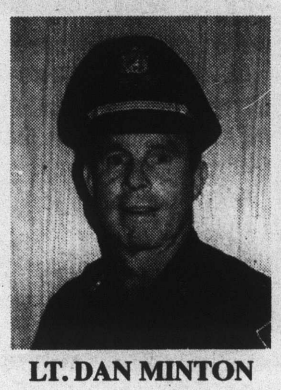
A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, Nov. 7, at approximately 5:50 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (Sgt. R. Tapper, Detectives O'Rourke, O'Brien, Powers, Cassidy, Glennon, Bossart and Donovan) were working in plain clothes operating unmarked non-traditional police cars. They were conducting surveillance in the area of 100 Granite St., the parking area of T.J. Maxx, due to recent drug activity being reported.

The Quincy Police DCU has conducted numerous investigations in this area which have resulted in numerous arrests as well as the seizure of drugs. At this time, Detective Powers observed a male (suspect 1) sitting in the passenger seat of a parked green Honda at the corner of nearby Granite and Parker Streets. Detective Powers knew suspect 1 as a substance abuser.

Detective Powers queried the registration and found it be registered to a female from Wellesley, and he could tell that the operator was a young male. Detective Powers observed suspect 1 exit the vehicle and walk towards 125 Granite St. so he broadcast his observations to other members of the DCU and that the Honda was now travelling on Granite Street toward Burgin Parkway. Detective O'Rourke was able to pick up surveillance of the Honda where he was later joined by Detectives Bossart and Donovan. Detectives Powers and O'Brien were able to encounter suspect 1 in the parking lot of 125 Granite St. to investigate their belief that he was just involved with a drug transaction with the operator of the Honda.



LT. DAN MINTON

Detective Powers asked suspect 1 what he was just doing in the Honda and he said, "You can check. I just owed him money." Detective O'Brien began checking suspect 1 and found a folded up scratch ticket tucked into his sock which contained a knotted plastic bag holding brown powder. Upon Detective O'Brien discovering the drugs, suspect 1 blurted out, "You got me. You guys gave me a chance. I should've just cooperated."

Detective O'Brien placed suspect 1 into handcuffs and then notified members of the DCU that he had recovered drugs and to stop the Honda and place the operator under arrest. Detective Powers read suspect 1 his rights per Miranda and he stated that he understood and agreed to speak with him. Detective Powers asked suspect 1 how he contacted the male driving the Honda and how much he paid for the drugs. He said he called the operator/suspect 2 and paid $20 (1 twenty dollar bill) for a bag of "dope," street jargon for heroin/Fentanyl. Suspect1, a 54-year-old Quincy resident was advised that he was being placed under arrest for Possession of Class A and for an outstanding default warrant. Meanwhile, Detectives O'Rourke and Bossart pulled suspect 2 over so patrol Officer Dabilis stop the Honda on Washington Street by activating his emergency blue lights.

The detectives removed suspect 2 from the car and placed him in handcuffs while Detective Bossart advised him of his rights per Miranda and he stated that he understood. Detective Bossart asked suspect 2 where he was coming from and he replied, "Boston." When asked where he was going, suspect 2 initially said that he was going to see a friend, but could not or would not say where he was going to see a friend. He then changed his story that he was just driving around in Quincy.

When asked if he stopped at any time in Quincy, suspect said no and when asked who the male was in his car a few minutes earlier, suspect 2 rolled his eyes, shrugged his shoulders and looked away from the detectives. When asked again, suspect 2 responded, "I don't know what you're talking about."

Detective Donovan noticed that suspect 2 had the GPS application on his phone activated and it appeared he had a set destination at the time he was stopped. Detective Donovan asked suspect 2 if the address set in his GPS was for another drug deal and he just shrugged his shoulders and over last night," Gaughan recalled.

Gaughan, who served six years in the Marine Corps before leaving active service in 2012 with the rank of captain, was the guest speaker at Quincy's annual Veterans Day observance on Sunday. More than 100 residents and veterans attended this year's ceremony on a cold and cloudless day in front of the World War II memorial inside Merrymount Park, which was preceded by a parade along Hancock Street from Quincy High School.

The parade paused briefly for a wreath-laying ceremony at the Doughboy Statue at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Hancock Street, which honors the 56 Quincy men killed during World War I. Sunday marked the centennial of the armistice that ended hostilities between Allied and German forces in what was then known as the Great War.

Gaughan shared several anecdotes about his two tours of duty in Afghanistan as part of his remarks during the 30-minute long ceremony. He remembered, for example, a marine who not only survived after being shot in his helmet, but also continued with his deployment in Afghanistan.

"Not only did this marine stay with us and patrol for the remainder of the deployment, but every night he sang Billy Joel's 'Piano Man' to each member of his platoon as a lullaby so they could fall asleep," Gaughan said. "On the nights that I heard it, I slept like a baby."

He also recalled a platoon adopting three local cats while in Afghanistan, and naming them after the superhero Wolverine, NFL player Kyle Turley, and Gaughan's wife, Katie.

"I chose to share these memories with you today because I hope they help you see veterans as the resilient men and women who have answered the call to service and continue to do

Q-NQ Football Hall Of Fame, Seniors Dinner Nov. 20

7 New Members To Be Inducted

The Quincy High School and North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame will induct seven new members at its annual dinner this month.

The Hall of Fame and Seniors Dinner will be held Tuesday, Nov. 20 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall, Quarry Street, Quincy. The evening celebrates the historic 86-year rivalry between the two high schools.

The Hall will enshrine seven new members this year:

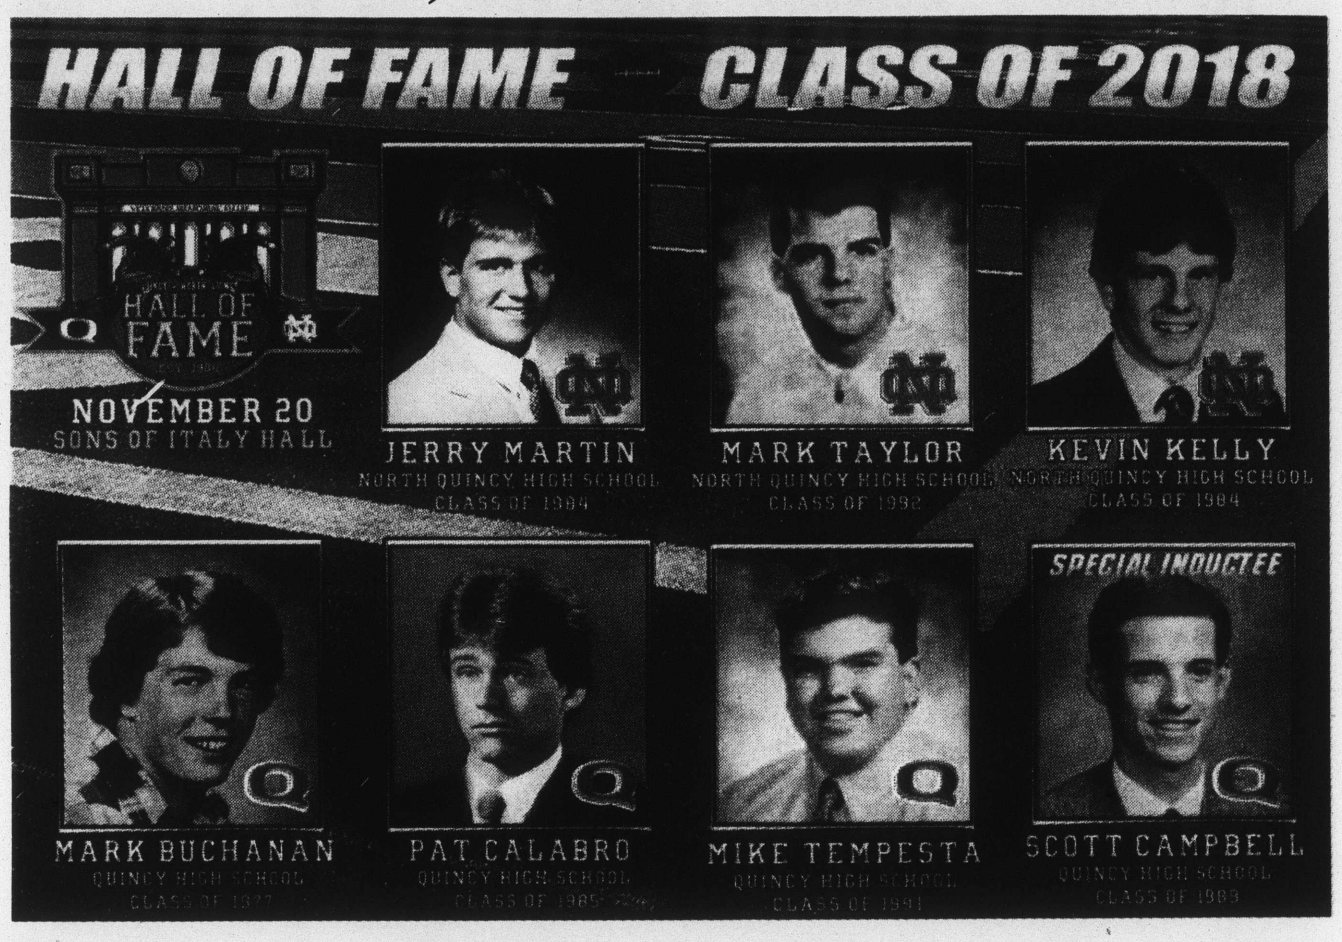
The North Quincy Red Raiders will honor former players Jerry Martin (1984), Mark Taylor (1992) and Kevin Kelly (1984).

The dinner will also be attended by the senior football players, cheerleaders and coaching staffs from from each school.

Proceeds from the event will go to fund scholarships for senior players from each school. The Hall of Fame Committee will also award trophies to the Offensive and Defensive Players of "The Game" on Thanksgiving.

Tickets for the event are $40. They are available online through Eventbrite.com (search "Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame") and by mail by contacting Sean Halpin at (617) 980-2674 or email QNQFootballHall@gmail.com.



New Quincy Historical Society Publication Debuts Nov. 29

In celebration of its 125th anniversary, Quincy Historical Society will debut A Quincy Book of Days, a treasury of facts, anecdotes, and observations from across the span of Quincy history for every day of the year, at a special event at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy, on Thursday, Nov. 29 at 7 p.m.

A Quincy Book of Days contains items for all 366 (including leap year) days, many with multiple entries, and more than 100 images. Entries include great events, but also sports, arts and entertainment, pop culture, and daily life.

The Nov. 29 evening program will feature the premiere of the book and a celebration of the Society's 125th anniversary. Authors Dan Simmons, Wayne Miller, and Corinne Waite will discuss how they tackled the daunting task of finding and assembling the material, including some surprising and serendipitous experiences, and share some of the items in the book. Historical Society staff will then take the audience on a brief visual tour of the past 125 years in Quincy. There will be refreshments and a celebratory toast in honor of the book and the 125th anniversary.

A book signing will conclude the evening. A Quincy Book of Days sells for $14.95. It will also be available in the Historical Society Museum Shop, 8 Adams St., Quincy, from Nov. 30 onward.

Quincy Football Downs Pembroke For 2nd Straight Win

By TREVOR WENNERS

Sophomore Isaiah Steinberg showcased what it means to be a true two-way player for the Quincy High School football team on Friday, Nov. 9.

The highly-skilled running back and defensive back ran for 173 yards on 29 rushes and a TD, to go along with an interception in the end zone late in the second quarter during a 14-12 victory over Pembroke in heavy rains and gusty winds at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"Isaiah was all over the ball tonight both offensively and defensively," said Presidents head coach Kevin Carey. "The kids played great. We moved the ball on them and Pembroke is a good program."

The Titans (2-8), who were trailing, 8-0, received great field position on their first drive of the second half, as a botched punt by Quincy gave the visitors the ball on the Presidents' 5 with 8:43 left in the third. On fourth and goal from the 8, Pembroke senior quarterback Tommy Brooks fired an 8-yard TD pass to pull the Titans within 8-6 with 6:29 remaining, but Steinberg broke up the 2-point conversion to keep the Presidents in the lead.

Quincy did exactly what it was to suppose to do on its next drive, as it embarked on a 15-play, 64-yard scoring drive, eating up eight minutes, 11 seconds. The Presidents took advantage of two face-mask personal fouls against the Titans, and on third and 19 from Pembroke's 41, sophomore quarterback Amarion Robinson located Steinberg for a 16-yard gain through the air. On fourth and 3, Robinson ran 4 yards, putting the hosts at the Titans' 21. Steinberg snuck into the back of the end zone from 2 yards out on second and goal with 9:10 left in the game, but the visitors remained within one possession, 14-6, after a failed 2-point conversion.

Quincy's defense settled in, and forced the Titans into a fourth and 15 from their own 37 on the ensuing drive. Pembroke ran a fake punt, but the Presidents were able to take over on downs at the Titans' 45 with 7:53 remaining after senior running back Aidan Geary only picked up eight yards.

The Presidents faced a fourth and 8 on their next drive, and senior captain Andrew Rooney threw an incompletion on a fake-punt play, giving Pembroke the ball at its own 43 with 6:12 left. The Titans showed their poise on fourth and 10 from the 30, as Brooks flung a 21-yard pass down the middle to senior Nick Tarantino. Brooks cut the Presidents' lead to 14-12 with 1:46 left on a 2-yard sneak, featuring a nice spin move. Pembroke elected to go for 2, and a false start pushed the attempt back to the 8. The biggest play of the game came up next with junior Devante Williams and senior captain Mark McKenna chasing down Brooks for a sack, while Brian O'Connor was also a huge factor on the play for the Presidents.

The Presidents ran out the clock on the next possession with a roughing-the-kicker penalty on the Titans sealing the deal.

"We came up with some big plays," Carey said. "They did the job tonight. I am very impressed. We made a lot of mistakes, and if we play like that in two weeks, it is going to be a tough Thanksgiving against North Quincy. We are looking forward to it, but we have to fix some things, like tackling, blocking and ball control."

It appeared that the Presidents were going to score on their first drive of the night, as Steinberg broke open a 49-yard run down the right sideline, bringing the unit to Pembroke's 16. On third and 11 from the 17, the drive came to an abrupt ending with Tarantino intercepting Robinson in the end zone.

The Presidents' stifling defense forced three straight three-and-outs in the first half, and Pembroke did not get its initial first down until midway through the second quarter. Quincy scored on its second time with the ball, highlighted by a 28-yard run by Steinberg, which brought the Presidents to the 1. Junior running back Thomas Le smashed through the line on first and goal for the TD, and then Robinson connected with senior wide receiver Aidan O'Connell for the 2-point conversion with 55.2 seconds on the clock in the first.

Quincy has been playing some strong football lately, as the squad is currently on its first two-game winning streak of the year, taking down Durfee, 14-0, at Veterans on Nov. 3. The Presidents were also competitive in a 21-12 setback at Marshfield on Oct. 26, and if a couple plays went differently, the unit could be riding a three-game unbeaten streak.

"I wanted to be competitive the whole season," Carey said. "That is what we have done throughout the past three weeks. We have moved into November and we are right where we need to be. We are banged up, but we have a couple of weeks to rest before the big game."

Quincy and North Quincy will continue its historic Thanksgiving Day rivalry on Thursday, Nov. 22, with kickoff at 10 a.m. from Veterans. This year will mark the 86th city football championship, as the Red Raiders eked out a 7-6 win in 2017.

North Quincy Football Bows To Marshfield Rams

By BRUCE MARQUIS

The driving rain did not slow down the host Rams of Marshfield High School last Friday evening at James C. Anderson Field as they dominated the North Quincy Red Raiders 36-0.

Outgaining the visitors 443 to 103 yards, the home team improved its record to 4-6, preparing to face undefeated Duxbury on Thanksgiving. This is not an enviable task for any football squad.

North Quincy's record fell to 4-6, as a promising season, beginning at 3-0, was sidetracked by a slew of injuries to key players, especially its seniors. The Raiders will be looking to salvage a successful campaign on Turkey Day Nov. 22, when it will enjoy home team status against the Quincy Presidents at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Kickoff will be at 10 a.m.

Deferring again after winning the toss to open the game, NQ's senior Kieran O'Driscoll drilled the opening kickoff through the wind and water to the Marshfield 12-yard line. The return was made all the way out to their 46. Six plays later the Rams went into the end zone on a 12-yard touchdown pass from Christian Dunn to Cade Chabra and the conversion kick was good to make the deciding score 7-0.

The ensuing kickoff was returned 18 yards by Raider sophomore Tyler Le to his own 25. Three running plays, two by senior captain Win Tran and one by sophomore Liam Hines, fell a yard short of a first down, and O'Driscoll's punt was downed at the opponents' 16-yard line. Ten plays later Marshfield hit pay dirt with a 7-yard scramble by Dunn. After another successful conversion kick by Jack DiPasquale, the score was 14-0 and the outcome of the game was not in doubt.

The starting Raiders defense could not hold up to the Marshfield offensive onslaught especially its ground game that churned out 297 yards on 40 rushes, 7.4 per. This defense consisted of ends senior captain Joshua Dangora and junior Joshua Jackson; junior tackles Mike Levine and Michael Gordon; linebackers senior captain Ryan Kelson, junior captain Jackson Zhau and sophomore Sean Jackson; while the secondary boasted senior Eric Hellmuth, Hines, Le and sophomore Jamal Maximilien. Later seniors Mike Ladas and Nick Hallak, junior Kevin Dinh, sophomores Alex Demeritt, Brendan Hines and Shane O'Connell, and O'Driscoll substituted in.

Late in the tilt freshmen Harry Gaudiano, Ray Bego, Brandon Baker and Cooper Hanson gained some useful game experience, helping to hold their opponents at the one-yard line to end the disappointing evening.

The Red Raiders offense was bottled up for most of the night and suffered from a few dropped passes, primarily due to the slippery football. Only 4 passes out of 20 were completed for 75 yards. The game began in a light drizzle, but the precipitation increased steadily throughout the contest, played before only several hundred spectators. Sporting a 3-man defensive line led by nose tackle Ryan Mosesso (6' 5" – 250) pounds, the exceptionally large and mobile Ram line was backed up by four fleet linebackers. They held North Quincy to 28 net yards on 29 rushes of the pigskin.

NQ offense was led by standout senior captain Tim Layden. The running backs were senior Eric Hellmuth, Tran and Hines, and later in the game Demeritt and O'Connell had 7 carries combined. The line was anchored by center Dangora and guards senior Dimitri Dimitriou and Levine. The tackle slots were filled by Kelson and junior Matt Scanlon, and playing tight end were senior Jonathan Knowles and freshman Colm Geary. Wide receivers were Knowles, senior Mike Ladas, Hellmuth, Maximilien and Le.

One of the few consistent strengths for NQ was the continuation of effective snaps between center and quarterback. With more than 450 plays from scrimmage this season, there have been no muffed or bad snaps, a relatively unusual occurrence. The combination of Dangora to Layden goes back 8 years.

The Rams' running game was effective throughout the game with junior running back Robert Violissi, 6' – 200 pounds, piling up more than 202 yards on19 carries, scoring touchdowns on runs 1 and 18 yards. He ran behind a huge offensive line, featuring sophomore right tackle Mason Leonard, 6' 4" – 320 pounds, – think, "he is only a sophomore."

There were not a lot of bright spots for the North Quincy eleven beneath this edition of Friday Night Lights. One was the return to action of Zhau. He played outside linebacker for most of the game but did not return to his past position on offense at guard. Other highlights were a first down pass from O'Driscoll (his first ever) to Liam Hines on a fake punt, and a "hook and ladder" play that almost allowed Hellmuth to get into the end zone just before halftime.

Late in the game junior quarterback Andrew Gott was inserted at quarterback to relieve a limping Layden. Gott stood tall in the pocket and delivered some accurate throws, some of which bounced off the wet hands of his receivers. This experience should prepare him well for his battle next year to be his team's signal caller.

Marshfield Head Coach Scott Madden, who was not overconfident going into the game, was pleased with his team's performance. He claimed that it was the first time all year that his squad performed well in "all three phases of the game – offense, defense and special teams." To this reporter he did not seem daunted by his team's prospects against the 10-0 Duxbury Dragons on Turkey Day. Could there be an upset in the making?

NQ Head Coach Ryan Craig said that "It is what it is," in referring to the game's outcome. He continued, "We now need to heal up and get ready for Thanksgiving."

Sporting shorts and no head gear, the coach continues to show the toughness that marked his career as a Hall of Fame running back and linebacker for the Red Raiders. A former legendary mentor calls Craig "the best football player I ever coached." The NQ football constituency is hoping that some of that toughness continues to translate to his squad's present and future on field performances.

Brandeis Seniors Emily, Julia Bryson Named To UAA All-Academic Team

Brandeis University seniors Emily Bryson and Julia Bryson of Quincy have been named to the University Athletic Association's (UAA) All-Academic team for the fall.

The Brysons, both members of the Brandeis cross country teams, are 2015 graduates of North Quincy High School. They were among the student-athletes selected due to their high merits in the classroom, as well as their participation in UAA sports.

UAA All-Academic recognition is awarded only to those student-athletes who have not only completed one full year of study but also carry a minimum 3.300 cumulative grade point average. The 3.300 cumulative grade point average standard is parallel to the qualifying threshold used by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) to determine nominations for Academic All-America® candidates across all sports.

Colby-Sawyer's Courtney Murray On Conference Volleyball Team

Colby-Sawyer senior Courtney Murray of Quincy has been named to the Great Northeast Athletic Conference (GNAC) Women's Volleyball Second Team.

Murray was second on the team with 240 kills and 2.16 kills per set. She led the squad with a .213 hitting percentage. She finished second on the team with 42 blocks on 10 solos and 32 assists.

In conference matches only, Murray ranked ninth with 112 kills, 14th with 2.49 kills per set and 14th with a .273 hitting percentage. Murray reached double-digit kills in 11 matches, highlighted by a 15-kill performance in a 3-2 win at Emmanuel.

Murray finished her career ranked ninth in kills (873) and seventh in attempts (2,738).

North Quincy Volleyball Reflects On Outstanding Season

By TREVOR WENNERS

The 2018 North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team will always occupy a special spot in the heart of Red Raiders' 12th-year head coach Kerry Ginty.

The second-seeded Raiders (18-4, 14-1 in the Patriot League) were outlasted in the semifinals of the MIAA Division 1 Central/East Sectional Tournament, 3-1, by third-seeded Belmont (18-3) on Nov. 7, at Newton North High.

The tough ending to the season does not outweigh all the positives, as the Raiders earned a share of the Fisher Division crown with Quincy and only lost three regular-season matches. This group strived to get better on a daily basis, while also being pillars in the community.

"We had a great year," Ginty said. "This group of seniors had the best attitude all year long. They came to practice every day, ready to work. They showed tremendous leadership on and off the court, and they are such a nice group of girls. They showed their seasoned-veteran side when times got tough. It was a great season overall because we had some games where we were playing really well and they never got a big head about it. We had a great record, but we always knew we could get better."

Seniors Alexsandra Qose and Camryn Burgio led the way at the net throughout the 2018 campaign, finishing with 273 kills, 219 digs and 107 aces, and 251 digs, 239 kills and 69 aces, respectively. Senior captain Kayli Wu posted 346 assists, 155 digs and 39 aces, while junior Olga Kosinski came into her own, tallying 83 kills, 75 digs, 43 aces and 32 blocks. Seniors Sara Wong (316 digs) and Lindsay Lee (182 assists) were also crucial contributors.

"Our girls' volleyball program had an amazing season, and the whole North Quincy community is so proud of them," said NQ athletic director JJ Niamkey. "They are the true definition of what it means to be a student-athlete. They work so hard on the court and in the classroom, and it shows with how much success they have in both areas."

After sweeping 10th-seeded Arlington, 3-0, in the quarterfinals on Monday, Nov. 5, at the North Quincy High gym, the Raiders came ready to play in their semifinal-round match, building a 7-2 advantage in Game 1. Qose kept North Quincy in control, extending the lead to 15-10 on a kill, and then putting the unit up 19-15 on an ace. The Raiders built a 23-18 advantage, but six straight points gave Belmont its first lead at 24-23 during a 27-25 opening-set win.

"We got ahead of ourselves and mentally got rattled a little bit," Ginty said. "We were trying to adjust to the intensity of the game. If we had won that first game, things might be different, but we did not."

The second set was all Belmont, as the unit poured in eight straight points for a 12-3 lead, concluding with an ace by junior Sophia Estok. North Quincy took a timeout and scored the next four points, but that was the closest it got the rest of Game 2. Senior Jane Mahon gave the Marauders a 2-0 advantage with the game-clinching kill in a 25-17 win.

The energy that permeates through this Raiders' team is inspirational, and it was evident that they were not packing their bags without a fight. After digging themselves into a 3-1 hole in Game 3, the Raiders claimed a 9-5 lead on a kill by Burgio. The lead ballooned to 13-8 thanks to an ace by Kosinski. Qose had the magic touch late in the set, slamming back-to-back kills to clinch a 25-20 win.

The Raiders lived another day, and Game 4 was must-see theater. It looked bleak for the unit after the Marauders developed a 20-15 lead on a huge block at the net by Mahon. Ginty called a timeout and rallied her troops, and the girls threw everything but the kitchen sink at Belmont, cutting the deficit to 23-22. Belmont scored the next two points to punch its ticket to the Sectional Final, which was played against top-seeded Newton North on Saturday, Nov. 10, at Wellesley High.

Qose (24 digs, 19 kills), Burgio (24 digs, nine kills), Wong (45 digs) and Wu (23 assists, 21 digs) all played well for NQ. Burgio also showcased her mental toughness in Game 3, refusing to be sidelined after a left ankle injury, which clearly impacted her production down the stretch.

"It was a great battle," Ginty said. "Belmont played some great defense. I thought we played some good defense, and there were times when I did not think the rallies were going to end. It was a test of who had the most endurance and who could stay mentally tough the longest. I am really proud of my girls for grinding out every point. It was a long night, and Belmont deserved to win. They did a great job. I am really proud of my seniors for the leadership that they showed to stay calm and battle back from some deficits. We just did not end up on the right side of the scoreboard."

Throughout the fall, the weather has thrown a wrench into the works with a record six meets moved due to inclement conditions and two others run in less than optimal condition with rain or threat of thunder.

"I can't remember a season so disjointed with storms," said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "It's not enough to run in less than optimal conditions but just having to reorganize our training, moving speed workouts to other days, having to water them down because they're too close to meet days. The entire state has shown performances down a click for everyone straight across the board."

Such was the case with the league meet scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 27 at Pembroke. The call was made on a Thursday to move it to Tuesday, Oct. 30. The meet had lots of high points for QNQ, most importantly were four all-star selections: two each for boys and girls.

The league selects seven athletes based on season dual meet performances and then picks an additional five from the league meet. For QNQ boys both Ryan Polsgrove and Braeden Kopp ran themselves onto the All-Star team. Polsgrove was 26th and Kopp 28th for QNQ. Freshman Robert Cannon was 43rd missing by one spot of making all-star. Nick Ouellette, the teams #1 runner for most of the season was ill and off his game finishing 46th.

Other varsity runners were QuangVinh Tran 57th and Robbie Donovan 58th. Donovan suffered a hairline fracture to the fibula despite finishing the race and was lost for the remainder season.

In boys JV Matt Francouer ran his best race of the year to finish 11th. Freshman Emmett Bandzak was 17th. Other finishers were Will Cook 28th, Dakota Pendleton 40th, Jack Nelson 44th, Jonathan Bina 57th, Shane Faherty 58th, Alex Ouellette 71st, Logan Almeida 77th, Matt Leonard 83rd and Zach Clements 114th.

In the varsity girls race, Abby Murphy ran her best of the season finishing 5th. Lezly Acevedo was 16th, Mairead Kelly 36th, Jennie Burgess 51st, and Amanda Morris 61st.

Murphy was a consensus pick for All-Star and Acevedo ran herself onto the All-Star team despite a severely sprained ankle suffered during the race. Several runners passed her over the final 50 yards edging her out of the medals (top 15 got medals).

In JVs freshman Sabrina Egan ran the race of her life placing 13th. Other finishers were Ava Lapsley 62nd, Eve Anderson 71st and Hannah Murphy 72nd. Hennessy was quick to point out the Murphy improved six minutes over her time her a year ago. Other league honors include Ryan Polsgrove; Sportsmanship boys, Braeden Kopp Academic award boys, Eve Anderson Sportsmanship girls and Abby Murphy Academic girls.

At the MSTCA Frank Mooney Coaches Invitational moved to Sunday due to a Nor'easter that hit on Saturday, several QNQ runners had big days. The top fifty finishers earned medals with top three finishers getting plaques. In all 4,000 runners participated in 16 separate races.

The highlight of the day was Quincy High Senior Abby Murphy winning the Senior Girls 5K race adding to her other top three finishes over the past three years. Murphy went through the mile mark in third but the patient QNQ runner moved into 2nd behind a Winchester runner at the two-mile mark. The two were side-by-side with 1,200 meters to go and then Murphy put the hammer down and won by 30 seconds. Other medalists were Robert Cannon in freshman boys 3K (28th), Braeden Kopp 35th in junior boys, Nick Ouellette 28th in senior boys, and Jennie Burgess 34th in freshman girls.

At the MIAA Division 1 championships QNQ runners turned in excellent performances despite injuries forcing some to the sidelines or crimping performances. The meet was run in severe wind and cold which from time-to-time turned sunny, but the occasional gust of wind toppled several teams tents and most of the times turned in were off line.

Such was not the case for QNQ. In the boys race, Nick Ouellette, Braeden Kopp, Robert Cannon and Ryan Polsgrove ran nearly season bests over the mushy 5K course at Wrentham. QNQ runners Robbie Donovan (fibula) and Will Cook (ankle sprain) were out of the lineup. Jack Nelson subbed for Cook admirably.

On the girls side Abby Murphy made history being the first and only Quincy High runner to ever qualify for four consecutive All-State performances with her 14th place finish. The All-states originally scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 17th at Mount Northfield is now being moved to Stanley Park in Westfield due to flooding at Northfield. Ironically Westfield was where Murphy ran her first All-State as a freshman.

Lezly Acevedo still at less than 100 percent with her ankle ran well. QNQ was without Ryleigh Smith, lost early in the season with a hip injury, and Maeve White also with a hip injury. That didn't stop freshman Jennie Burgess from turning in her fastest time of the year in her biggest meet. Other finishers were Sabrina Egan and Amanda Morris. Finishers from both squads with place and time included: Boys 5K, Nick Ouellette 110th 18:10, Braeden Kopp 122nd 18:18, Robert Cannon 128th 18:24, Ryan Polsgrove 147th 18:49, Vinh Tran 157th 19:30, Jack Nelson 165th 20:23, Emmett Bandzak 166th 20:26. Girls 5K Abby Murphy 14th 20:03, Lezly Acevedo 92nd 21:55, Jennie Burgess 117th 22:52, Sabrina Egan 140th 24:44.

Conway Donates Golf Tourney Proceeds To Home For Homeless

Father Bill & MainSpring's newly constructed housing project for the homeless in Brockton got a recent boost from Jack Conway, Realtor. Conway contributed the $9,500 proceeds from its 2018 Charity Golf Tournament to "Montello Welcome Home Again," a 3-story residence at 682 North Main St. containing 23 efficiency apartments for previously homeless individuals, with 12 units prioritized for U.S. Military veterans.

"Our company is proud to support the many efforts of Father Bill's & MainSpring to end homelessness in our region," said Conway CEO and President Carol Bulman. "It's very exciting when a new project comes to fruition that will provide permanent housing and supportive services for people who so desperately need it."

John Yazwinski, president and CEO of FBMS, thanked Bulman for her firm's donation to Montello Welcome Home Again, which is located across the street from "Jack's Place," a 3-story homeless housing residence named for the late Jack Conway. Patti's House, a FBMS duplex home nearby, was named for Bulman's mother,. Patricia Conway, who co-founded Brockton's MainSpring House shelter in 1982.

"The Jack Conway Company continues to be an angel to our organization," said Yazwinski. "The longtime support from its charity golf tournaments have literally moved thousands of families out of homelessness."

Croall Seeks Zoning Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

City Council President Brad Croall wants Mayor Thomas Koch's administration to launch a review of Quincy's zoning code as development continues in the city.

Croall planned to submit a resolution seeking a review of the city's zoning ordinance at Tuesday's City Council meeting, after The Sun went to press for the week.

Croall's resolution asks Koch to hire a third-party consultant to begin a comprehensive review of the city's zoning code and its housing stock. Croall is recommending the consultant be paid for out of the Affordable Housing Trust Fund.

Croall would like to see the consultant produce the comprehensive report on the zoning code – including possible changes to the current ordinance – and future housing stock by the spring of 2019, at which point the City Council could begin to discuss possible changes to the current zoning law.

In his resolution, Croall noted the city has permitted more than 4,000 new residential units since 2011, the last time a comprehensive review of the zoning code was undertaken. Because of the ongoing development, he said it's time look at the zoning ordinance once again.

"A city's zoning laws should match the current reality of the city's housing stock, parking realities and community standards," Croall wrote in the resolution.

Additionally, the resolution notes Koch joined with the 14 other members of the Metro Mayors Coalition – which includes the leaders of communities around Greater Boston – in pledging to build 185,000 units of new housing throughout the region by 2030 to address the area's burgeoning housing crisis.

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of: November 11th, 2018

- Modular sections for the Nova Residences are starting to be delivered to the Quincy Shipyard. The developer, D.F. Pray, is scheduled to start erecting the modular's on the site at 1500 Hancock Street (from Revere Road) toward the end of November/beginning of December. The proposed times for the delivery to the site are 9:00am to 3:00pm. Expect some delays on Revere Road from Dennis Ryan Parkway to Hancock Street during delivery of the modular box sections.

- The sewer work on Cottage Avenue is almost complete. Testing of the system had begun last week and should be wrapped up by the end of this week. Once the system has passed the required pressure and vacuum tests, the new sewer system will be put online and the bypass system will be removed.

- There will be detours and lane shifts(at different times during the week) at the intersection of Dennis Ryan Parkway and McGrath Highway, along Dennis Ryan Parkway in front of the courthouse and along Dennis Ryan Parkway from Cottage Avenue to the old entrance of the Hancock Lot.

- Removal of soils continue within the site of the old Hancock Parking Lot and caisson's continued to be installed as part of the support of excavation for the new garage.

IN HIS BENEDICTION, Rev. John (Jack) Swanson, chaplain, Quincy Veterans Council, reminded those gathered at the World War II statue at Merrymount Park for the Quincy Veterans Day ceremony that Sunday marked the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I. Veterans Day was originally known as Armistice Day commemorating the signing of the armistice on Nov. 11 at 11 a.m. in 1918. Rev. Swanson noted more than 53,000 Americans were killed in two years of fighting in World War I. Elected officials on the platform are (from left) Councillor Nina Liang, Councillor Anne Mahoney, Councillor Noel DiBona, Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, Ward 2 and Council President Brad Croall, Sen. John Keenan and far right Mayor Tom Koch.

so," Gaughan said. "Veterans are not superheroes or machines – they are people that need to laugh, sing or tell stories to provide happiness in a place and at a time when it seems like happiness does not exist.

"Veterans need to know that their fellow veterans and citizens are there to support them when they return from the battlefield. We are a nation that has been at war for 17 years, and so many of our service members have come home with severe physical damage or dealing with the unseen effects of post-traumatic stress disorder.

"Many of our wounded vets, vets dealing with PTSD, and family members dealing with a vet's death or injury, need to know that their community is there to support them. You don't have to sing a song or adopt cats or tell jokes to help a veteran or a veteran's loved one in distress, you only need to let them know that you are there to help - you are there to provide happiness in a place and in a time where it doesn't seem like happiness exists.

"For being here, I thank you, and I ask that you continue to support your local veterans."

Mayor Thomas Koch said the men and women the city was honoring Sunday afternoon are true patriots.

"I know there is a game going on somewhere, but these are the real patriots among us," he said. "This city has a tremendous tradition going all the way back – if you go over to the burial ground next to City Hall, you'll see names that served in the Revolutionary War. And ever since that period, generation after generation of men and women have stepped up to serve. We are so, so grateful for their service."

Koch said attendance at the parade and ceremony is the greatest gift residents can give the city's veterans.

"You gave the veterans the greatest gift you could give – your presence here today," he said. "Thank you for that."

George Nicholson, the city's director of veterans services, said other communities have stopped holding parades in recent years, while Quincy's tradition is going strong.

"I'd just like to thank all of you for being here. The work we put into making this parade happen every year is vindicated by your presence," he said. "There are many towns that don't have their parades any more this year. I know a number that used to that are just having breakfast sessions this morning instead of parades.

"When we gather, this is such a tribute to the city of Quincy."

Nicholson, who served in the Air Force during the Vietnam War, said all veterans missed holidays and family events while serving.

"All of us who have been in the military – we've missed holidays, we've missed family gatherings and special occasions," he said. "That's all part of the sacrifice that we make."

Nicholson remembered being in basic training over Christmas during his first year in the Air Force. The drill instructors, he said, let Nicholson and his fellow trainees stay up until 9:30 that night and sleep in until 5:30 the next morning. The base went quiet after lights out, and someone started singing "Silent Night," only to be told to stop by everyone else, because it wasn't a Hollywood movie.

"That part always stuck with me. There is nothing about what our veterans do and those in uniform do that is a Hollywood movie. It is reality," Nicholson said. "Those who served and the families who wait for them know it's no Hollywood movie. They know it's a reality."

Daniel Tinney, the outgoing commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, thanked his fellow veterans for their support over the past year, and community members for their presence.

"I want to thank all my fellow veterans for their support through the year and the citizens for coming out today to support us," he said. "Thank you."

The Rev. John Swanson, the chaplain for the Quincy Veterans Council, said it was important to remember the sacrifice Americans made during World War I. More than 53,000 Americans were killed in two years of fighting, which he compared to the 58,000 killed in the Vietnam War.

Swanson also compared how the nation treated veterans of those two wars, both when they returned home and in the following decades.

"The World War I veteran came home to a ticker-tape parade. The Vietnam veteran came home and was spit upon. Twenty years later, the Vietnam veterans had the wall on the mall. Twenty years following World War I, the World War I veteran was shot at by his own countrymen on the same mall," he said.

City Council President Brad Croall asked that God bless the men and women who serve in the armed forces today.

"It is nice to be with you as we gather here on this day of remembrance and may God continue to bless those men and women who remain actively in the service protecting our nation and also take a moment to remember those folks who did pay the ultimate sacrifice so that we can continue to be here today," Croall said.

Councillor Noel DiBona, chairman of the City Council's veterans committee, noted Mount Wollaston Cemetery has been chosen as a location for the Wreaths Across America program this year. More than 3,200 wreaths will be placed on veterans' graves there on Dec. 15 as part of the program.

"In one month…3,200 wreaths will be laid on the graves of the Mount Wollaston Cemetery to honor our veterans. All of you are welcome to join us and be a part of this special day," DiBona said.

"Remember, everyone here today is what makes this tradition continue. Thank you volunteers, thank you Quincy, and thank you veterans."

'The Yellow Wallpaper' Performances At Nease Library

Quincy Theatre company produces a Massachusetts native playwright's one-act adaptation of a classic piece of literature: Charlotte Perkins Gilman's The Yellow Wallpaper with two performances Nov. 31 and Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. at the Nease Library in Quincy.

Tickets are a suggested donation of $10. The venue has limited seating.

Pariah Theatre Company continues its 2018-2019 season examining issues of mental health with an adaptation of The Yellow Wallpaper. Centered around a woman's decline in post-partum depression with an incorrectly diagnosed psychosis, the way in which women were treated medically in the late 1800's comes to light. Put on a "Rest Cure" by renowned doctor Weir Mitchell, the Woman is taken by her husband and sister-in-law to a remote country house to be in isolation. Despite her increasingly desperate pleas, neither John nor Jenny give in to ending the cure early and the Woman descends further into depression and psychosis.

Says the director and playwright Sherryl Helm: "The mission of Pariah Theatre Company is to create space for "marginalized voices" to be heard, and that is what I am trying to do with my play. The audience will notice that I staged the Woman in the Wallpaper (the apparition that the Woman sees as part of her psychosis) as a companion to the Woman, rather than a threat or "evil" character. I believe this choice stemmed from the fact that I wanted the Woman to know she's not alone. So, for any women, any persons, sitting in the audience who are battling mental illness, the truth is that "There are things in the Wallpaper that no one knows but you – struggles that no one truly understands but you; but this does not make your struggle any less valid, or your story any less valuable. Your story matters. I hope to honor your stories and the stories of women past, present and future with this story."

did not respond. Detective Bossart located 3 folds of money ($1, $40, $720) in suspect 2's front left pants pocket for a total of $761. Detective Bossart asked suspect 2 if he has a job and he said, "I'm in school to be a truck driver."

Officer Dabilis used K-9 partner Charlie to sniff suspect 2 and the K-9 immediately alerted to the presence of narcotic odor from the area of suspect 2's pants/groin area. Suspect 2 denied that he had any additional drugs with him. The Honda was towed back to the police station as suspect 2 was placed under arrest for Distribution of Class A.

Once at the police station, detectives conducted a strip search of suspect 2 but no additional contraband was found. The Honda was searched K-9 Officers Foley and Dabilis, which resulted in the discovery of a napkin containing four knotted bags containing heroin/fentanyl in a void behind the dashboard that was accessed by opening the glove box. Detectives believed suspect 2 hid the drugs there out of sight.

Suspect 2, a 21-year-old Hyde Park resident, was additionally charged with possession with intent to distribute Class A (heroin), possession with intent to distribute Class A (fentanyl) and Operating a motor vehicle after suspension.

Nice Work!

SPOOFING:

Caller spoofing is a service that allows a caller to masquerade as someone else by falsifying the number that appears on the recipient's caller ID display. Caller spoofing is provided as a service by a number of vendors to people who then use it to scam people.

If you get a telephone call that shows your own number in caller ID, do not bother answering because it is highly likely that it is a scammer. Why else would someone hide their real number? Most people who answer the call do so out of curiosity that their number appeared, but don't ask why the caller used their number.

Spoofing can also be used to have legitimate numbers show up in your Call ID. This technique has occurred in calls involving Internal Revenue and Social Security scams. These are the most common. The actual number of the agency will show up and this gives credibility to the call and to the scam. The scammer, claiming to be from an agency, can call from anywhere and their goal is to obtain your personal information.

The SSA number is 1-800-772-1213. The caller says he works for the Social Security Administration and needs your personal information – like your Social Security number – to increase your benefits payments. (Or he threatens to cut off your benefits if you don't give the information). It's not really the Social Security Administration calling. It is the SSA's real phone number, but the scammers on the phone are spoofing the number to make the call look real.

Keep in mind the SSA or IRS will not threaten you to get personal information and they won't promise to increase your benefits in exchange for information. When in doubt, call the agency in question back at their actual number, tell them what occurred and ask if they are looking for you. Most likely the answer will be no followed by an explanation that SSI and the IRS will send a letter to you first, with instructions to call them.

If still in doubt, look up the telephone number.

Quincy Police Adult Self Defense Program

This free program will be offered Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 27 and Nov. 28, a two-night course, from 6 p.m. to approximately 8:30 p.m. at Sons of Italy at 120 Quarry St.

This program is open to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a parent/guardian and there is no residency requirement. Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program.

There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with. The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

Bring a friend! It's more fun! To sign up or get more information, contact Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton at dminton@quincypolice.gov or 617-745-5719.

Superintendent Outlines School Year District Plan

By TOM GORMAN

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro outlined his annual district plan for the school year that calls for providing more family engagement, improving student achievement and student support.

The school committee recently approved the plan that includes five goals. Two of the goals are the superintendent's and the other three are joint initiatives between DeCristofaro and the committee.

The superintendent's goals are related to professional practice and improving student learning. The joint goals target instructional leadership, home and community connections, and initiative management.

DeCristofaro told the committee that the plan "promotes the learning and growth of all students and the success of all staff by cultivating a shared vision that makes powerful teaching and learning the central focus of schooling."

"The plan ensures that practices in all settings reflect high expectations regarding content and quality of effort and work, engage all students, and are personalized to accommodate diverse learning styles, needs, interests, and levels of readiness," he said.

The first superintendent's goal is the evaluation of all administrators. This involves DeCristofaro conducting announced and unannounced observations of each principal, director, and coordinator.

The observations are to be completed by the end of this month with an initial assessment report to be completed by April 15. A final assessment report will be completed by next October.

DeCristofaro's second goal is to improve the state accountability level.

Beginning this fall, the district will measure improvement for the non-high school lowest performing student cohort - or group of students - in math and ELA by increasing the number of earned achievement points from four this year to six points next year under the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education's 2019 District and School Accountability Report.

Beginning last month, the plan called for all schools to implement specific action steps directly tied to increasing the achievement and growth of lowest performing students. In February, principals and instructional leaders will facilitate an assessment that will include a collaborative examination of mid-year data to measure student growth and achievement of the lowest performing students.

By next April, principals and the superintendent's leadership team will have prepared the student cohort for state testing.

In June, principals and instructional leaders will assess the end-of-year data to measure program and student growth and achievement.

Other action steps include having all schools implement and assess targeted assistance initiatives designed for each school's specific needs relative to the lowest performing students and requiring each principal and design team being responsible for targeted actions, family engagement, and focused academic after-school programs.

Also, the superintendent and leadership team would review the needs of lowest performing students before meeting with principals and the curriculum and assessment team would monitor all initiatives.

The next three goals are joint initiatives with the school committee.

Goal three involves the district's improvement plan to include a diagnosis of the school system's strengths and areas that need improvement to improve student achievement and organizational performance.

Action steps include reviewing and modifying the plan's framework, elements and components, and establish goals.

The next goal is improving home connections.

DeCristofaro's leadership and principal teams will collaborate with the Quincy Parent Advisory Council for special education students, and Citywide Parents Councils to co-sponsor at least 10 home-school connection events.

Additionally, the teams will identify home-school connection topics for parent academies, promote event awareness on the district's website and through social media, and assess feedback to plan future events. All presentations and events are to be taped and aired on the Quincy Public Schools' YouTube channel.

The last goal is system initiative management.

According to DeCristofaro, this is an extension to the district improvement plan, where the superintendent "will work with principals, the Superintendent Leadership Team, school community, and stakeholders to renew, establish, and manage 10-15 system initiatives."

During this school year, DeCristofaro and administrators will update the school committee and subcommittees on the progress of various initiatives.

Action steps include the superintendent and the leadership team to reviewing the district and program goals and identify areas of need, support or enrichment for the upcoming school year and integrate appropriate initiatives into the district's professional development plan.

Additionally, the district's various teams will be working on several initiatives.

The curriculum and assessment team will develop goals such as aligning the curriculum, developing differentiation strategies, and preparing students and teachers for the next generation MCAS test.

The special education team will develop program improvement goals aligned to a variety of initiatives such as special education pathways, the ASPEN module (student information database), examining the inclusion model, and preparing special educators for the new next generation assessment guidelines.

The technology planning and training team will develop program improvement goals for digital learning professional development, preparing teachers and students for computer-based assessments, and implementing ASPEN.

The Student Support Team will be developing program improvement goals for program-based instruction, health and wellness, substance abuse prevention, and diversity competency training.

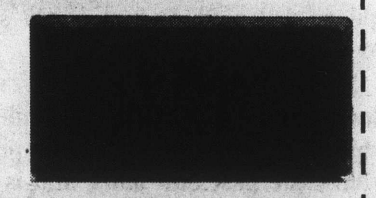
Bricks for Veterans Program



Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

AC, Sub-Compacts, 'Hesitation,' Rust Removal

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

In a past column a Honda Accord owner questioned about problems with the air conditioner. I had a 2004 Honda CRV that had an air condition problem that I had repaired and later received a notice about a recall. Luckily, I still had a receipt and was able to get a significant refund towards the work I had done. I would advise the owner to check for recall and if none at least hold onto receipt for work done for possible future recall.

This is very good advice; you never know when something could be covered well outside of the warranty. Years ago, I had a Volkswagen Cabrio and the convertible top was starting to fail. The car was outside of the warranty but there was a class action lawsuit that allowed for the top replacement at very little cost to me. It always makes sense to contact the manufacturer as well as doing a little homework online to see if a repair may be covered.

I'm trying to get my 2007 Saturn Vue an inspection sticker. A local shop first inspected it and said I needed to get the electric system checked due to a problem with the airbag. That shop told me to go to a General Motors dealer. When I had the car at the dealer they said it was okay. I went back to the first shop and they said it is the same problem and gave me a card with a number on it and said to check that. I went back, had it checked, and they said, "able to communicate with computer system, no action required." What should I do next? It is getting very frustrating.

From your description it sounds like there is a communication problem between the car's computer and a scan tool or the inspection equipment. Like all electronics issues there is a specific fault-tree style diagnosis to find the problem. This starts with something as simple as checking all the fuses to testing individual components. It is not unusual that one module will be causing a communication issue with another module. After checking power and ground circuits, typically other modules are disconnected to see if communication to the scan tool is noted.

My son was driving his 2009 Subaru Impreza when all the dash lights came on and the cruise control light was blinking. We plug it into his diagnostic device and it showed a code PO420. We brought it to our mechanic and he replaced the O2 (oxygen) sensor. Everything was fine for two weeks when all the lights came back on. This time my mechanic put a lifter/adaptor under the sensor. Again, everything was fine for two weeks and then the dashboard lit up. We took it to a Subaru dealer who without much diagnostics declared we needed a new catalytic converter ($1,500). I then brought it to a muffler and exhaust shop. He replaced another sensor and took the lift-device out from under the first sensor. It was near inspection time on the car, so he did an inspection and the car passed the emission test and safety portion of the inspection. The PO420 code has never shown itself again since the first event. The car never functioned differently from the get-go. It runs just fine. It has been one week since the last repair and no lights yet. Questions: do we really need a new catalytic convertor and secondly if so does it have to be an original one as the dealership stated? We only plan on keeping the car another two years.

From your description it is most likely the car needs a catalytic convertor. The idea that the shop mounted the oxygen sensor out of the exhaust stream (fooling the computer by tampering) tells me the catalytic convertor efficiency is not where it should be. It has been my experience that aftermarket catalytic convertors don't always work as well as the factory units. If you can save money and the repair shop will stand behind their work and the parts they install, then use the after-market part.

I have a 2016 SRX Cadillac with 17,500 miles on it. When on the highway at high speeds above 40 miles per hour, I hear wind that sounds like when I have an open window in the rear. My dealer checked the wheel bearings and say they were okay and said it must be coming from my tires, which are Michelin. The sound increases with the speed of the car. Could it be insufficient insulation at the rear door or around the windows?

As a general rule Michelin tires are quiet unless like all tires they have worn unevenly. A simple test would be to swap out the tires off another SRX to see how your vehicle sounds. At this point the technician needs to determine the source of the noise. A technician using a vibration tester will be able to see if the noise is related to a mechanical part such as a bearing, transmission component or even a vibration from an exhaust pipe or other component touching (grounding out) on the body of the vehicle. These testers that were once mechanical, but now incorporate an oscilloscope and measure the frequency of the vibration. You mentioned the possibility of a wind noise and that needs to be investigated as well.

What is the best sub-compact to buy used for reliability? My budget is $8-$12,000 and I need a small car that will last a long time and be cheap to keep?

My first choice would be the Honda FIT; in your price range you should be able to purchase a 2011/2012 model with reasonable mileage. The FIT is economical, reliable and quite practical for a subcompact. As something a bit different I would then look at the Scion xD or Prius C. The Scion although not made now is a Toyota so reliability is excellent. The hybrid Prius C gets fantastic mileage and has be very reliable. If you can use a slightly bigger car the Kia Soul is a good choice and if you drive a manual shift can be a very good value.

I have a GMC 2500HD pickup and the door sticker states the front tires should be at 65PSI and the rear tires should be inflated to 75PSI. I just had an oil change and tire rotation at my dealer, at about 11,000 miles. I checked my tires and they are all at around 63psi. Should I set the tires at different levels?

I believe in setting vehicle tires at the pressure recommended by the vehicle manufacturer. The only time I would vary the pressure is if you were carrying a heavy load for a long distance.

I have the factory trailering (pull out, folding) mirrors GMC truck and they have what looks like a LED-bulb in lower left and lower right corners, on both mirrors. I have questioned my dealership numerous times and searched the internet as to what these are. My dealership said they were backup lights - but they do not light up in reverse! I'm guessing they are for side collision avoidance?

I'm surprised the dealer didn't know the answer. The lights are auxiliary back-up lights and they activate when you turn the cargo-bed light on.

I'm thinking about buying a Jeep so that I can place a small homeowner plow on it during the winter to plow my own flat driveway. Can I get away with the Jeep JK or do I need a vehicle with a beefier suspension?

People have been adding plows to Jeeps for years and it is even easier today. Now there are light weight "homeowner" style plows that are fully functional and very light weight. Meyer, a long time plow manufacturer makes a light weight power plow that attaches to a front trailer hitch, making installation quick and simple.

I am currently driving a 2014 Subaru Forester XT which I absolutely love. My plan was to give it to my son and buy a new Forester. I just found out that Subaru is no longer producing this model with this engine. I feel the performance is a major safety enhancement. I also like the size, safety and reliability. Can you recommend any comparable alternative vehicles that I can look at? I was also considering trying to find a 2018 Forester XT. I would appreciate your thoughts.

The 2019 Subaru Forester now has only one engine, but it does produce more horsepower and torque than previous naturally aspirated engines. With 182 horsepower and with higher engine torque and a somewhat lighter overall vehicle weight the 2019 Forester performance is quite good. If you are looking for more horsepower the Buick Envision, Chevrolet Equinox and Jeep Cherokee all have V-6 engine options that produce horsepower similar to your current Forester.

My wife's 2004 Ford Taurus, which we have owned since 2006 with about 118,000 miles on it, has a problem which I call "hesitation." This problem has developed within the past 800 miles and is getting progressively worse. I'll try to explain what I mean by "hesitation." When driving between 20 to 60 MPH when it is necessary due to traffic too slow (just releasing pressure on the accelerator pedal) and then putting pressure on the pedal to resume speed it will act like there is a failure of the ignition. This will occur several times sometimes to the extent you will think it will quit, before correcting itself and running smoothly again. When accelerating onto an expressway with a speed limit of 65 or 70 MPH if you try to accelerate slowly it will often hesitate but if you put "pedal to the metal" there is no hesitation. So far, we have had the spark plugs replaced and the ignition coil. The car seemed to be fixed until we took a couple of hundred-mile trip and then it acted up again. Any ideas?

I would start by going back to the repair shop that performed the repairs; it sounds as if they are on the right track. In addition, there is an obligation on their part to repair the car for the problem you originally came in for: hesitation. Some things to check are computer codes and any available computer data. Then I would pay particular attention to the wiring harness. I have seen some case that over time as the engine rocks back and forth it puts stress on the wiring harness and causes this type of problem.

I am waiting on a body shop quote for rust removal and repainting of the areas below both doors of my 2012 F-150 truck. After his first look the body shop guy said they didn't look too bad but the job would be more or less expensive depending on how deep the rust goes and if there are holes the rockers would have to be replaced as that would be a structural fault. Also, the bottom lips of both doors have missing paint but are not rusted yet, so I asked for a quote for repair of them. What can be done to prevent future rusting? Would installing mud flaps in the front, help prevent this in the future?

Mud flaps will certainly help prevent sandblasting of the painting which will help eliminate surface rust which can lead to more serious problems. Water can also be making its way down from the rear window or even the high -mounted brake light and causing the rocker panels and in some cases the corner of the cab to rust out. The body shop could also apply a coating (pebble finish) to the bottom of the doors and rocker panels (3M makes a product specifically for this) and it helps prevent chipping. I have also seen some shops thoroughly undercoat the inside of the panels while in the process of repairing the rust damage.

My 2012 Nissan Altima 2.5 S has only 60,000 miles on it. Since I only put 3-4,000 miles a year on it, it could last my lifetime. That said, the low beams are dim for my aging eyes. My mechanic says that the wiring cannot handle more wattage, and that he's had no success with LED replacement bulbs. I don't want to give up driving at night.

The first place I would start is to make sure the plastic lenses are perfectly clear. If they are hazy you won't get as much light on the road. Bulbs dim with age, so perhaps the bulbs in your six-year old car are nearing the end of their life. I have not tried LED replacement bulbs, but I have used bulbs that are brighter than the stock bulbs. Most of the major lighting companies (GE, Sylvania, Hella) all make bulbs that claim to be 50-90 percent brighter than the stock bulb, without blinding oncoming traffic. The negative side of these high-performance bulbs is a shorter life (in some cases only 12 to 18 months).

Worship service begins Sunday at 10 a.m. at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

Bell ringers are Sunday school students Jovanika Edouard and Jimmy Rheault. Liturgist Jeff Craig will come and call to worship. Pastor Vandergrift will lead the service and preach his sermon.

Nancy Jacobs and Robert Rheault will assist as Deacons. Steve Reed, minister of music, will direct the choir.

Following the service there will be a Fair review meeting with Jill Hockney and Kara Kuntupis. A fellowship coffee hour is held hosted by Nancy Jacobs.

Later in the day an ecumenical service will be held at Bethel Church of the Nazarene in Germantown. Holy Trinity Parish and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will participate.

Yoga will be on Thursday, Nov 15 at 7 p.m.

Ecumenical Service Sunday At Bethel Church Of Nazarene

The Annual Peninsula Ecumenical Service will be held in the Bethel Church of the Nazarene, 41 Empire St. off Palmer Street, Sunday, Nov 18 at 3 p.m.

Fr. Martin Dzengeleski, pastor of the Holy Trinity Parish, will give a Thanksgiving Homily. Participating churches include Bethel Church of the Nazarene, Most Blessed Sacrament, Houghs Neck Congregational and Our Lady of Good Counsel.

A combined choir will sing the songs of the season.

The public is invited and welcome.

Christmas Fair Saturday At Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will hold its annual "Jingle and Mingle" Christmas Fair Saturday, Nov. 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the church gymnasium.

The fair will feature homemade baked sweets and treats, handcrafted gift items and a snack bar. There will also be prize raffles including a chance to win a 40-inch flat screen Smart TV.

The Christmas fair has become a holiday tradition for many people in the Wollaston community.

For over 100 years the Union Congregational Church has been a part of the Wollaston and Quincy community.

Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service Nov. 20

The annual Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service will take place at Quincy Point Congregational Church on Tuesday, Nov. 20th at 7:30 p.m.

St. Joseph's Parish will co-host with QPCC and special music of the season will be sung during the service by choirs of both churches. The homilist will be Rev. Kimberly Murphy from QPCC.

The collection taken will go to St. Joseph's Food Pantry, as they serve the needy of the Quincy Point area. As is the tradition, a Community Service Award is presented to an individual who has been of great service to the community. This year's award will be presented to Joseph T. Desmond, Jr.

Desmond is active in many Quincy community service opportunities and serves his parish community of St. Joseph as well. Through the Boy Scouts, he participates in several annual service events, including the Houghs Neck Chowdafest, the Strawberry Festival, lobster dinners, and many other Eagle Scout projects that fellow scouts have organized. He has helped with a trail marker project at Black's Creek in Quincy, cleaning up the Crusher in Quincy, and many more.

Desmond has also served as an historical interpreter at the Quincy Church of the Presidents, leading tourists throughout the historical church and into the basement crypt to view the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

Desmond has also been available to help at St. Joseph's Church. He is an altar server as well as lector and has assisted with religious education in the past.

More recently, he brought together his Boy Scout work and his St. Joseph's service by undertaking his Eagle Scout project at St. Joseph's. The project involved the renovation of a garden area and the installation of a Rosary pathway. Working with local merchants, he obtained all of the necessary landscaping materials, the know-how and the flowers to create a new worship area that not only beautifies the grounds but also helps to promote prayer.

Refreshments will be served, in the church hall, following the service. All are welcome attend.

There will be bus service provided for residents of 1000 Southern Artery. Bus service will be as follows: Pick up: 1000 Southern Artery, East Wing at 6:50 p.m. and North Wing at 7 p.m.

Return bus at 9 p.m.

OBITUARIES

Timothy D. Manning, 36

A funeral Mass for Timothy D. Manning, 36, of Quincy and formerly Milton will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mr. Manning died suddenly Nov. 9 after a hard fought battle with addiction and depression.

He was loved by many and will be remembered as a person with an amazing work ethic in both his battle with addiction, as well as in his career. Born in Boston, he was raised in Milton, graduating from Milton High School, Class of 2000, where he played hockey. Mr. Manning went on to receive his Bachelor's degree in marine engineering from Mass Maritime Academy in 2005. He was presently employed by Jones Lang Lasalle as an engineer at the Boston Harbor Hotel where he had many friends.

Mr. Manning's love of the ocean was enhanced during his days of boating with his family at the South Boston Yacht Club and on the islands of Boston Harbor.

He loved his nieces and nephews, Aidan, Jacqueline, Marty and Delainey with all his heart. They always brought a smile to his face, just as Mr. Manning always brought a smile to people wherever he went. He will be sadly missed by his family, friends and coworkers.

Beloved son of William D., Sr. and Deborah M. (Joyce) Manning of Quincy. Loving brother of William D. Manning, Jr. and his wife Jessica of Quincy, Patrick T. Manning and his wife Jennifer of Marshfield and the late baby Daniel Manning. Devoted uncle of Aidan, Jacqueline, Martin and Delainey. Grandson of the late William and Mary Manning and Timothy and Nora Joyce. Also survived by his little buddy Mason Delorey, who loved him like a father.

Private interment.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Memorial donations may be made to The Answer House, 5 G St., S. Boston, MA 02127.

Stephen M. Bolter, 57

A funeral Mass for Stephen M. Bolter, 57, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Francis Xavier Church, Weymouth.

Mr. Bolter died Nov. 6 after a lengthy illness.

He was the loving son of Winifred Bolter of Quincy and the late William Bolter. Father of Stephanie Ingalls of ME. Brother of William T. Bolter and his wife Joyce of Weymouth. Uncle of Amy Federico of Braintree and Patricia O'Neil of NH. Also survived by many aunts, uncles and cousins.

Mr. Bolter's last wish was to see the Red Sox win another World Series and his wish came true.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jimmy Fund, 1309 Beacon St., Brookline, MA 02446.

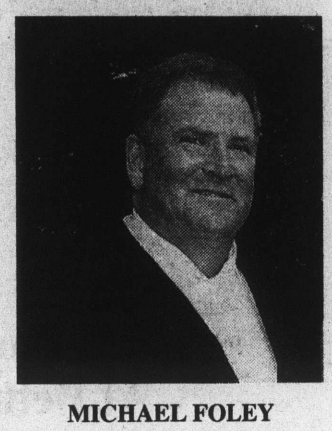
Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, Weymouth.

Michael Foley, 62

A funeral Mass for Michael Foley, 62, of Squantum was celebrated Nov. 10 in Sacred Heart Parish, Quincy.

Mr. Foley died Nov. 4.

Loving husband of Maryellen (Holt) Foley of Squantum. Devoted father of Thomas Foley of Quincy, Michael Foley and his wife Kristin of Hanover. Grandfather of Vincent and Vera. Brother of John "Jack" Foley of Abington, Edward "Eddie" Foley of Weymouth and Theresa Foley of Ipswich.



MICHAEL FOLEY

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Janet Gray, 78

JANET GRAY

A funeral Mass for Janet Gray, 78, of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in Most Blessed Sacrament Church of Holy Trinity Parish, Quincy.

Ms. Gray died Nov. 9 following a short illness.

She was the loving daughter of the late John C. and Gertrude (Murray) Gray.

She was a devoted Catholic and longtime communicant of Holy Trinity Parish in Quincy. She retired from the IRS after many years of service and volunteered for Meals on Wheels.

Ms. Gray enjoyed swimming and spending time in the company of friends and family.

Dear sister of Sheila McLaughlin and her husband Donald of Weymouth and the late John Gray, Lorraine Martin and Donald Gray. Also survived by her canine companion, Sadie, as well as many nieces, nephews, extended family and friends.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Catherine N. MacDougall

A funeral Mass for Catherine N. "Honey" (Gillooly) MacDougall, of Quincy, was celebrated Nov. 9 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. MacDougall died Nov. 5.

She adored her family and always put others before herself. If there was anything anyone ever needed, she was there. She had a huge and caring heart. Mrs. MacDougall enjoyed music and boating with friends in the summer. She was a member of the Quincy Yacht Club and worked as a sales representative for over 30 years at PPN. She was a special person who will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Daughter of the late Edward and Catherine Gillooly. Beloved wife of the late Donald M. MacDougall. Loving sister of Frank Gillooly and his wife Carol of North Carolina, David Gillooly and his wife Kathleen of Quincy, Patricia "Snookie" Robinson and her husband Richard of Stoughton, Jean Hartman of Stoughton, John Gillooly and his wife Cindy of Easton, Dennis Gillooly and his wife Anna of Maine, and the late Edward Gillooly and surviving spouse Pauline, Carol Smith, Mary Gillooly, and Susan Jones. Cherished sister-in-law of Robert MacDougall. Mrs. MacDougall was like a mother to the late Mark Gillooly and like a grandmother to his daughter Lauren Catherine Gillooly. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, and special friend Sheila Lunnin.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Barbara F. Nicholson

A celebration of life service for Barbara F. (McNeil) Nicholson, of Quincy and Oak Bluffs, was held Nov. 10 in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Nicholson died Nov. 3.

After her husband's retirement, she enjoyed traveling to Europe, winters in Florida and summers on Martha's Vineyard. Mrs. Nicholson found joy when surrounded by her family while still encouraging them to expand their horizons. She had a loving impact on many, with a strength and compassion that lifted them all. She enjoyed quilting and the wonderful friends and pets that made her time on earth enjoyable.

Mrs. Nicholson was the beloved wife of 65 years to the late William F. "Bill" Nicholson Jr.; devoted mother of Janet Nicholson-Cronin of Abington, Heather Sexton (Jack) of Calif., and the late William F. Nicholson III; loving sister of Martha Scott of Fla., and the late Lois Iacoviello; cherished Nana of Melissa, Rachel and Greg Cronin, Jackie and Alexandra Sexton. Also survived by many nieces, nephews and dear friends.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

I have a ratty 20-year old Chevrolet Tahoe and the "service engine soon" light comes on. I love this truck and even though it is old, it does everything I need it to do. The codes are PO171 and PO174. I have had the fuel pump/filter replaced and changed the spark plugs and it still has the lights coming on. Overall the truck runs fine, but I want to use it again for my winter "beater." Any thoughts on a quick fix?

There are a variety of items that need to be checked. Your repair shop needs to follow a typical fault-tree diagnostic procedure to find the issue. Some of the items to check are vacuum leaks, leaking exhaust and even the intake manifold. I have seen intake manifold leaks and even some of the larger fittings that attach to the manifold cause this problem. Ideally the best thing to do would be find someone with a smoke machine that can check for leaks.

My question is regarding the necessity of the cabin filter. The dealer wants about $50 to replace it and I have seen them on line for as little as $7.00. I'm not convinced I really need this filter, but I have seen you comment it is important. My question is, do I really need to use the expensive filter?

With most cars, replacing the cabin filter is generally a very simple do it yourself project, and personally I would replace the filter when it gets dirty, not based on mileage. As an example, with my car I check the filter once or twice a year and replace it when it is dirty. One of our cars is three years old and I just recently replaced the cabin air and engine air filters. I replaced the more expensive factory filter with an aftermarket filter which as it turns out was the company that provided the original filter at about half the price. At less than $25 I replaced both the cabin and the engine air filter.

I'm 63 years old and it is about time I took care of myself and I want to buy a sporty car. I want a two-door car and would prefer something with a back seat. I looked at the Chevrolet Corvette, a great car but it wasn't for me. The Jaguar F-Type was nice, and the Porsche Caymen was fun but seemed a bit small. Any thoughts on something else?

I recently drove the Lexus LC500 it is a rear-wheel-drive sports car with a back seat (maybe for occasional use) typical Lexus luxury and the latest technology inside and is very stylish. It is fast, sounds great without being obnoxious handles well, rides comfortably and should you care about such a thing averaged 23 miles per gallon during my road test.

I have a 2015 Audi S5 with all-wheel-drive and hit a giant pothole and damaged one wheel and bruised at least one tire. During the last trip to the dealer, I was told that the two right side rims are slightly out of round. The dealer has given me two choices, buy new expensive rims or have the rims repaired. Does repairing work and is it safe? I am about to buy new tires and I don't want to put new tires on bad rims.

Certainly, repairing a wheel/rim will be cheaper than buying a new wheel. As to the safety issue, if the wheel is repaired properly, there is not a problem. Any wheel repairs that I have seen have looked almost as good as a new wheel and considerably less cost. I would carefully inspect the tires and at a minimum replace two, so they match on each axle.

I received a 'warranty notification' from Nissan North America about the evaporative emission vapor vent tube from the fuel tank to the evaporative emission canister. Is there anything I should look for that would give me a clue that this is happening to my vehicle? It goes on to say that the vehicle has software that may not be able to accurately pinpoint the issue. They are extending the warranty to 15 years or 150,000 miles. I don't want to wait till it's too late.

I believe the issue is the vent gets clogged with dirt or even spiderwebs. The problem is the system works or it doesn't. The first indication of a problem is very slow filling of the fuel tank with constant pump shut offs. If this happens the vent is clogged or partially clogged.

We spend winters [6 months] in Florida and I purchased a 2004 Toyota Corolla to leave there for a spare car. The Corolla only has 75,000 miles on it. A friend starts it once a week and lets it run for about 10-15 minutes. He does not drive it anywhere because I'm cheap and cancel the insurance. He said the "check engine light" now goes on when he starts the car. Any thoughts why it would go on when it hasn't been driven for a while.

The check engine light could be on for any number of reasons from a loose gas cap to a faulty sensor. The other issue is a rodent could have damaged a hose or wiring. At this point the best thing to do would be bring the car to a good repair shop for a checkup. You actually may be doing more harm than good starting the car and letting it run every week without driving it. It would be better to drive the car every three weeks or so for 30 minutes. If this is impossible then I would fill the fuel tank and add a fuel stabilizer, fully inflate the tires, top off all the vital fluids and disconnect the battery. When you return to Florida expect the battery will need recharging and bring the car to a good repair shop for a check-up before any long-distance trips.

I had four new tires installed and the wheels aligned on my six-year old car with all the work performed at the dealer. During the road test, the mechanic noted a shuttering and suggested replacing the transmission fluid. I have never noticed anything and wonder if the work really needs to be performed or if they were trying to sell me a "bill of goods?"

The technician could have noticed a bit of a "chuggle" when the transmission was shifting. This can happen when the transmission fluid loses its friction additives. Certainly, at this point and age with your car it can't hurt to change the fluid.

I recently purchased a 1985 Ford Mustang as a project to restore with my daughter. The car runs well, but the handling and ride are not great. The car seems to wander and bang over bumps. We are thinking of replacing the shocks. We have also checked the steering and ball-joints and all looks good. Any suggestions?

Replacing the shocks is a great place to start. When replacing the shocks consider replacing the springs to restore the ride height, which will improve the ride. In addition, give the suspension bushings extra attention. If the bushings have started to deteriorate there will be some flex and movement that will cause vague handling. This sounds like a great project and a great way to spend quality time with your daughter.

Where Were YOU?

I quickly rushed out of my home to watch the Veterans Day Parade in Quincy on Sunday, the 11th of November, 2018, the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I, Armistice Day. I knew the parade would be very short, so I didn't want to miss anything.

Unfortunately, I did; I only saw the last half of it. But the parade was still inspiring, and the people there with me applauded passionately.

But what was very disappointing was the sparse crowd. The intersection where I stood had maybe a dozen or so people, including the police officer directing any traffic. I bet there were more participants in the parade than those watching it. Geez.

To those who came out in the cold weather to honor and say "Thank you" to all of our soldiers, the soldiers are vey grateful and appreciative.

To those who didn't come out...you couldn't give up 1 or 2 hours to honor these heroes? You couldn't give up watching the Patriots / Titans to come out and say "Thank you" to them? I bet you came out for the Red Sox Parade in Boston, dealing with the traffic, crowded trains, and crowds, but you wouldn't come out for your local Veterans' Day Parade? Baseball players are NOT heroes; these military personnel, men and women,are the true heroes. Do I need to repeat and remind you of that?

Some, maybe many, of these soldiers may be wondering what they are fighting for, when people care more about shopping, football games, parties, than simply applauding them and thanking them for their military service.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A project benefits from your organizational skills that get it up and running. Your success leaves a highly favorable impression. Don't be surprised if you get some positive feedback soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Spend time on practical matters through the end of the week. Then begin shifting your focus to more-artistic pursuits. Resist being overly self-critical. Just allow yourself to feel free to create.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Restarting those creative projects you had set aside for a while will help provide a much-needed soothing balance to your hectic life. Besides, it will be like meeting old friends again.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans could make it tough to keep a commitment. But stay with it. You'll get an A-plus for making the effort to do what's right and not taking the easy way out by running off.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's enthusiasm for a workplace policy review is admirable. But be sure you know who is really behind the resistance to change before pointing your finger at the wrong person.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You can expect to have to do a lot of work through midweek. Devote the rest of the week to checking your holiday plans in case some need to be adjusted to accommodate changes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to avoid signing on the dotted line in the early part of the week. You need time to study issues that weren't fully explored. Later in the week might be more favorable for decision-making.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new development could snarl travel schedules or other holiday-linked projects. Some flexibility might be called for to deal with the problems before they get too far out of hand.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Relatives seek your advice on a matter you'd rather not be involved in. If so, use that sage Sagittarian tact to decline the "offer," so that no one's feelings are needlessly hurt.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A shift in planning direction might help you speed up your progress toward achieving that long-planned goal. Trusted colleagues are ready to offer some valuable support.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected demand for settlement of an old loan could create some pre-holiday anxiety. But you might not really owe it. Check your records thoroughly before remitting payment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a good time to get into the social swim and enjoy some well-earned fun and games with those closest to you before you have to resume more serious activities next week.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your ability to sense the needs of others makes you a wise counselor for those seeking help with their problems.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Big news! Sylvester Stallone is taking John Rambo out of mothballs and preparing "Rambo: Last Blood." But before we see that, Sly has surrounded himself with friends Dolph Lundgren, Sugar Ray Leonard and former wife Brigitte Nielsen for "Creed II," due Nov. 21. Phylicia Rashad and Milo Ventimiglia round out the cast.

And speaking of not giving up the ghost, Disney has heeded the words of critics and fans who thought "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales" was bloated, incoherent, repetitive, draining and a rehash of the first four films. It also was the lowest grossing film in the 14-year, $4.5 billion franchise, with a $795 million gross against a $320 million price tag. Disney's solution is to bring on board Robert Reese and Paul Wernick, who successfully wrote the two "Deadpool" films that killed it at the box office and with fans, just like "Pirates" used to do.

Milo Ventimiglia, rerunning daily in "The Gilmore Girls" and riding high with the hit NBC drama "This Is Us," will star in the comedy "The Art of Racing in the Rain," with Kevin Costner, Amanda Seyfried and Gary Cole, due in 2019. Next up for Ventimiglia is the romantic comedy "Second Act," with Jennifer Lopez, Leah Remini, Vanessa Hudgens and Treat Williams, coming Dec. 21.

Jennifer Aniston and Reese Witherspoon still haven't settled on a title for the series they're creating and starring in for Apple, but they've settled on their leading man. Steve Carell will return to series TV (his first since "The Office") as their morning show anchor (too bad "Murphy Brown" beat them to the punch).

Ryan Murphy, creator of "Glee," "Nip/Tuck," "American Horror Story," "American Crime Story," "Feud: Betty and Joan" and the current FOX hit "9-1-1," donated $10 million to the Los Angeles Children's Hospital after they saved his son, Ford, when he was diagnosed with an often fatal pediatric cancer at 2 years old. Murphy wed photographer David Miller in 2012 and they have two young sons, both born via surrogate.

Wonder Woman may be a superhero, but her studio, Warner Brothers, was afraid to open "Wonder Woman: 1984" right behind their "Joker" with Joaquin Phoenix. They've moved her from November 2019 to June 2020.

Dame Judi Dench will play "Deuteronomy" (always played by a man) in the film version of "Cats," with Idris Elba as Macavity, Jennifer Hudson (who sings the show-stopping "Memories" as Grizabella and Taylor Swift, due Dec. 19, 2019.

Mark Wahlberg has been set to play Steve Austin, "The Six Million Dollar Man," but the June 2020 opening date has been scuttled. Guess superpowers only get you so far!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Skittles Turkey --- This 16-inch-high turkey made in 1907 is not a toy, but a "package" that held game parts. It is made of a composition material and has glass eyes and metal wheels. Stored inside the turkey are parts for a skittles game, a variety of bowling. Skittles is popular in many European countries and is played indoors or out; in England and Ireland it is played indoors in a pub. The game uses nine or 10 pins and, of course, a ball.

The painted wooden pins often were made in fancy shapes. Soldiers, sailors, spelling blocks, clowns, penguins, vegetables, frogs, ducks and other figures were made. The figural "packages" online this year include a large frog, parrot, rabbit, vegetables, pumpkin, clown and many hens with chicks. There is even an airplane that held pilots. Modern skittles games often are made of plastic instead of wood. This turkey sold for $2,124 at a Bertoia auction in New Jersey.

Q: I have some old 10-inch Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman records from the 1940s that I would like to sell. I know there are collector books for old stamps and coins, but are there any resources to help value old records?

A: People collect all kinds of old records because of their interest in a particular type of music, a particular artist or a particular music label. Most old best-selling records were pressed by the millions and are worth very little unless they are notable for some reason -- an autographed jacket, a short run pressing, or an obscure title or artist.

Buyers usually look for records made before 1950 and after 1970 in new or nearly new condition, with the original paper sleeves or jackets. Your old 10-inch records probably are "78s," with one song that lasts about three minutes on each side. They are shellac, made before the era of long-playing vinyl records, and are not very desirable to collectors.

There are websites that buy records and have very specific lists for what they want and what they don't want. Big Band music is popular, but those records still sell for only about $2. Your local library also might have price guides for old records, such as Standard Catalog of American Records 1950-1990, 9th edition, or Goldmine Record Album Price Guide, 9th edition, both by Dave Thompson.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was 20th-century American singer and songwriter Bobbie Gentry who made the following sage observation: "Euphemism is a euphemism for lying."

* In a match between a 200-pound mountain lion and a 20-pound porcupine, the lion is likely to be the loser -- and probably will die if it tried to take a bite of the desired prey.

* The next time you're annoyed by a bad case of the hiccups, consider poor Charles Osborne. In 1922, when he was 28 years old, Mr. Osborne got the hiccups. For the next 68 years, he continued to hiccup, finally stopping in 1990, one year before his death at the age of 97.

* Marilyn Monroe's iconic film "Some Like It Hot" (which in 2000 was named the greatest American comedy film of all time by the American Film Institute) originally was titled "Not Tonight, Josephine!"

* At one time the Catholic Church considered it sinful to eat a hot dog.

* For a nation based on a foundation of democracy, the U.S. certainly has a lot of states (that were originally colonies, of course) named for British royalty or nobility. The state of Virginia, for instance, was named for Queen Elizabeth I, known as the "Virgin Queen"; and Georgia was named in honor of King George II. King Charles II got both North and South Carolina, while the Duke of York and Albany -- later King James II -- was honored when the state of New York was named. Even France got in on the action: When explorer Robert de la Salle claimed a large chunk of territory for France in 1682, he named it Louisiana, after King Louis XIV.

by Jo Ann Derson

* "I have two guest bedrooms that hardly get used until holidays. I keep the beds made up, but when I am expecting guests I will usually strip the beds to freshen the sheets and blankets. I toss the sheets into the dryer with a fabric-softener sheet and hang the blanket outside in the sunshine for several hours. It always does the trick, and I don't need to wash linens that are already clean!" -- U.C. in California

* According to an eBay survey, more than half of Americans (56 percent) have unused smartphones in their home and nearly half (48 percent) have thrown away a smartphone that they no longer use. If you have unused smartphones hanging around, why not offer them up for sale. eBay has a kit to make it easy to value and sell your device, or use other local services, like Facebook's marketplace option or Craigslist. Be sure to factor in shipping or meet in a safe place to conclude your transaction -- like a local police substation!

* No time for making scratch dinner rolls for Thanksgiving? Here's a way to make store-bought rolls look and taste delectable: Reserve a small bit of any fresh herbs you used for seasoning your turkey or dressing. Finely chop it. Brush warmed rolls with melted butter, and sprinkle with the finely chopped herbs and some flaked salt.

* It's still not too late to get a flu shot, which is the No. 1 way to avoid getting the flu this season. Here's No. 2: Keep your hands clean and away from your face -- that's eyes, nose, ears and mouth.

* Snow flurries got kids down unexpectedly? Give them a little extra traction on their bike tires with the addition of well-spaced zip ties. About 30 per tire, a couple inches apart. Just be sure they're not too tight.

Halloween Costumes Distributed To Children In Need

Hundreds of local children in need were able to dress up and join their friends in Halloween festivities this year, thanks to generous donors to Interfaith Social Services' annual Halloween Costume Drive.

Nearly 30 volunteers assisted Oct. 20, in a costume distribution day at Interfaith's offices in Quincy, helping families browse the racks and boxes of donated costumes, looking for the perfect match.

"Each year our food pantry provides groceries to thousands of local kids. We are always looking for ways where we can bring a little joy to their lives as well," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "Many of these children are living in difficult situations. It is so incredible to see the excitement on their faces when they find that perfect costume. We're so grateful for all the amazing donors and volunteers who make this program possible."

Interfaith Social Services operates one of the largest emergency food programs in Greater Boston as well as a mental health counseling center and homelessness prevention program. Interfaith's programs are a safety net for thousands of children and families from the South Shore who are struggling to make ends meet. The costume drive was open to Interfaith's food pantry clients.

Hundreds of costumes were donated to the program by individuals and businesses, many of whom ran costume drives at their organizations. Local groups that ran drives include Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts (Quincy office), South Shore Medical Center, Baker, Braverman & Barbadoro P.C., The Woodward School, Bay Farm Montessori Academy, Plymouth River School, Martignetti Companies, TechTarget, First Congregational Braintree and Saint Joseph Parish. Stop & Shop's Marketing Department also contributed 50 large pumpkins for families to take home and carve.

Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday

• Tree Lighting Friday Night
• Santa, Elves Arrive By Parachute Saturday

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy will hold three days of fun, family friendly Christmas activities this weekend, capped off by the 66th annual Christmas parade on Sunday.

The weekend's events will start Friday evening with a tree-lighting ceremony on the Hancock-Adams Common, which is located between City Hall and the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

Friday's tree-lighting ceremony will go from 5 to 7 p.m. The event will include a puppet show, roving carolers and costumed characters, fire jugglers and more. Popcorn and hot chocolate will be available for free. Other vendors will offer food and drink for sale.

The Donna Marie Children's Puppet Show is slated for 5 p.m., followed by a children's Christmas Chorus at 5:45 p.m. Mayor Thomas Koch – and a special guest – will light the tree at 6:15 p.m.

Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said residents looking to attend Friday's event can park in the Ross Lot, Messina Lot or at Presidents Place.

On Saturday, Santa Claus and his team of helper elves will descend upon the city – literally – when they parachute onto Pageant Field in Merrymount Park. The festivities there will begin at noon and include hayrides and costumed characters.

This year will mark the debut of a new Saturday event at the Hancock-Adams Common featuring live music from 2 to 7 p.m. Munk Duane & Soul Jacker will play from 2 to 4 p.m., followed by DJ Paul Duffley from 4 to 5 p.m. and Soul

SANTA CLAUS will again be the star of this year's Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday. This year's parade also features a number of floats, speciality units and marching bands that will proceed from Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway in Quincy Center to North Quincy High School beginning at 12:30 p.m. Quincy Sun File Photos/Robert Bosworth

Police Adult Self Defense Program Nov. 27, Nov. 28

Quincy Police will offer a free adult self defense program Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 27 and Nov. 28.

The two-night course will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St. The program is open to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a parent/guardian and there is no residency requirement.

Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with.

The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

To sign up or get more information, contact Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton at dminton@quincyma.gov or 617-745-5719.

THINK PINKY

Before they were ever worn by mid-century mobsters and turn-of-the-century rappers, pinky rings were worn by Victorian-era men and women on their left hands to signify that they were not interested in marriage. Today, this modern classic is staging a comeback that both men and women are using to show their style. Whether it's a classic monogrammed signet ring or a dainty ring decorated with tiny diamonds, there is a pinky ring to suit all styles and occasions, whether it is being worn with a cocktail dress for a night on the town or a t-shirt and jeans for a casual brunch in the backyard. Pinky rings can be big and bold or subtle, but they must always be interesting.

Whether your taste in rings leans toward contemporary or traditional, you'll find something to suit your style at Rogers Jewelry. Our designs are innovative and our craftsmanship flawless. And we know our sales personnel are sure to please because we believe in old-fashioned personal service. Experience it for yourself at our showroom at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, whether you are shopping for a ring for a special person or something to add to your own jewelry collection. PH: 617-773-3636. Serving Quincy since 1944, now let us serve you.

City Band from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Food and beverages will be available for purchase throughout the event.

On Sunday, the 66th annual Quincy Christmas Parade will step off from the intersection Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway at 12:30 p.m. The parade will make its way up Hancock Street to North Quincy High School; the parade will detour around the Hancock-Adams Common in Quincy Center, traveling instead along Temple Street and Washington Street.

The cavalcade will feature more than 100 units all decked out to this year's theme, "Do you hear what I hear?" The Christmas Festival Committee selected that theme – suggested by Quincy resident Dolly Di Pesa – from 46 entries. For winning the annual theme contest, Di Pesa will have the chance to ride along in the parade on an antique vehicle.

Part of the Ross Lot will be open for public parking the day of the parade, Recreation Director Barry Welch said. The remainder of the lot will be used for staging, as will the Messina Lot, the lot at the Quincy District Courthouse, and the smaller lot at the corner of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway.

Public parking will also be available at Quincy High School, the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library, the Coddington Building, Quincy Historical Society and Presidents Place in Quincy Center, Central Middle School and Merrymount Park in Wollaston and the Vane Street lot in North Quincy.

Seventeen bands are set to march in the parade. They are the Boston Police Column of Pipes and Drum, Immaculate Heart of Mary High School, Waltham American Legion Band, New Bedford High School, Acton-Boxboro High School, Boston Windjammers, Worcester Brass, Joseph Case High School, New Magnolia Jazz Band, Somerset Berkely High School, the Quincy/North Quincy High School combined band, David Prouty High School, Worcester Power and Light Calliope, Branches Steel Band, Marblehead High School, Burglington High Shool and Randolph High School.

Ten floats will also take part in the parade. Stop & Shop, the Quincy Foundation, Quincy Conservancy, Quincy 400, the Rotary Club, Koch Club, YMCA, Quincy Catholic Academy, Montilio's Bakery and REI will all sponsor floats.

Other units taking part in the cavalcade include the Hallamore Clydesdales, Wally the Green Monster, a fire dancer, 18 costumed characters, Quincy Police and Fire Departments, other local police departments, Brewster Ambulance, veterans groups, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, dragon dancers, the king and queen at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools, nearly two dozen antique vehicles, the Salvation Army, Toys for Tots and local elected officials.

The Massachusetts Aleppo Shriners Division will also take part in the parade. The organization will have its bands, temple guard, various officers, fire brigade and more on hand.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On Dec. 8, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln offers his conciliatory plan for reunification of the United States with his Proclamation of Amnesty and Reconstruction. It allowed for a full pardon for and restoration of property to all engaged in the rebellion with the exception of the highest Confederate officials and military leaders.

• On Dec. 6, 1933, a federal judge rules that "Ulysses" by James Joyce is not obscene. The book had been banned in both the United States and England when it came out in 1922. Three years earlier, its serialization in an American review had been cut short by the U.S. Post Office.

• On Dec. 5, 1941, John Steinbeck's nonfiction book "The Sea of Cortez" is published. The book reflects Steinbeck's serious study of marine biology. He would later use his knowledge of the sea and its creatures in creating Doc, the marine biologist in "Cannery Row" (1945).

• On Dec. 4, 1952, heavy smog begins to hover over London. Smoke, soot and sulfur dioxide from the area's industries and cars were trapped by a high-pressure air mass, leading to the deaths of at least 4,000 people, many of whom died in their sleep.

• On Dec. 3, 1967, Lewis Washkansky, 53, receives the first human heart transplant, in Cape Town, South Africa. He was given drugs to keep his body from rejecting the heart, but died 18 days later.

• On Dec. 7, 1982, the first execution by lethal injection takes place in Texas, when Charles Brooks Jr. receives a fatal dose of a barbiturate by intravenous injection.

• On Dec. 9, 1992, nearly 2,000 U.S. Marines arrive in Mogadishu, Somalia, to spearhead a multinational force aimed at restoring order in the conflict-ridden country. In October 1993, rebels shot down two U.S. Army Black Hawk helicopters and killed 18 American soldiers.

Jack 'n' Jill Day Care Center Holiday Donation Drive

Local daycare service provider Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Center is coordinating a holiday donation drive. This year's drive will benefit Quincy Community Action Programs.

Suggested items for donation are:

Spices, cooking oils, stuffing, turkey gravy, mushroom soup, canned green beans, pumpkin pie mix, pie shell (graham cracker crust), cake, bread, desserts and non-perishable holiday meals.

Non-food: diapers (size 2,3,4,5), diaper wipes, toilet paper, paper towels, shampoo, soap/body wash, tooth brush, tooth paste, deodorant, laundry detergent and dish soap.

Jack 'n' Jill Child Care invites the community to participate in the holiday drive.

Items can be dropped off at 39 Station St., Quincy, from Nov. 26 to Dec. 21 between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

"This tradition teaches our children the importance of helping others and allows me to see that their actions, no matter how large or small, can make a big difference," said Carol Ann Spada, current administrator of Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Center. She said the center is motivated to enhancing its relationship with local neighborhoods and is hoping that Quincy's community can come together to make a difference this holiday season.

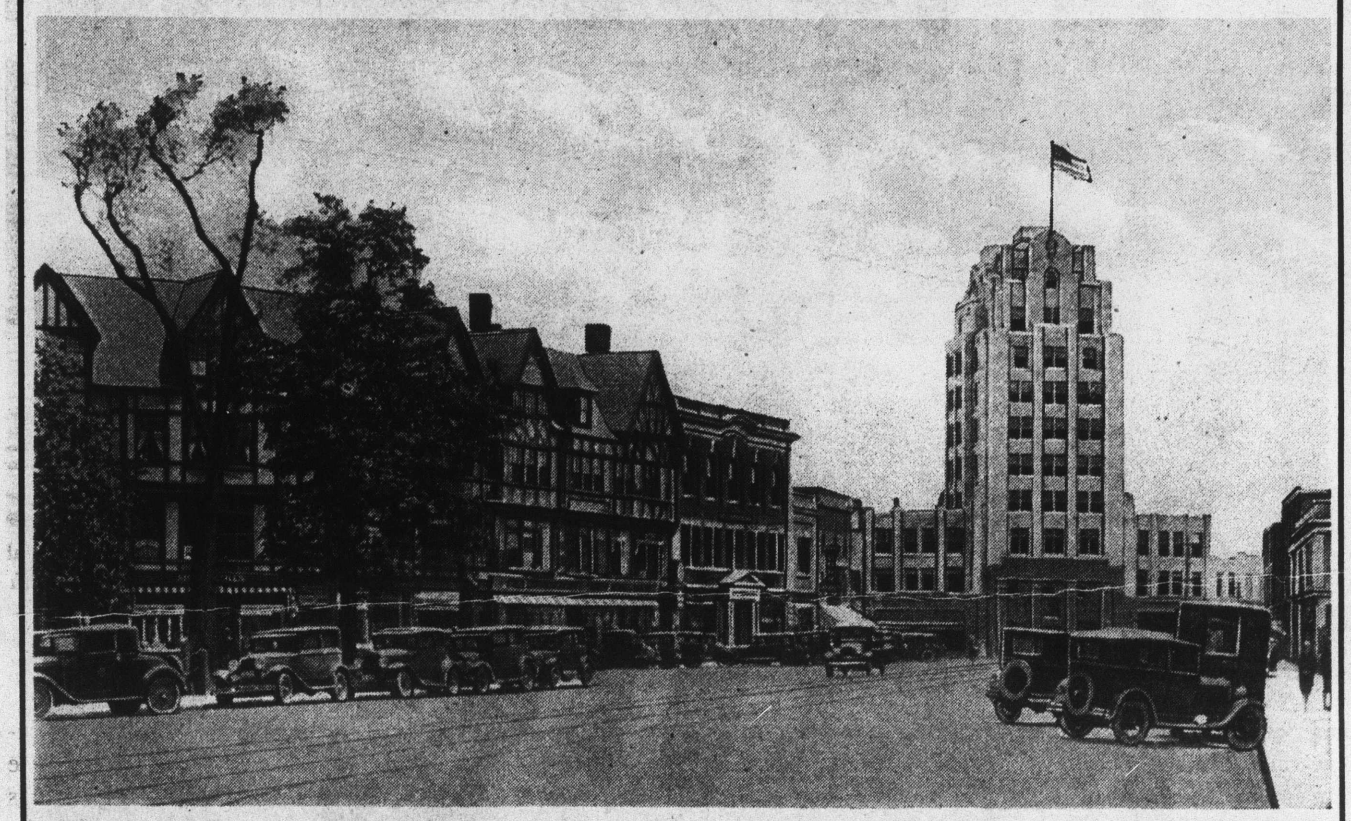
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1930s postcard view of Quincy Square just after the Granite Trust Company's building was built by its Chairman Theophilus King. He insisted that the U.S. flag fly every day from the top of the building as it does today. Not discernible is the sign over Howard Johnson's first restaurant on the left of the bank's entrance. King financed Johnson on the condition he open a restaurant in his new building. The old Quincy Savings Bank building in the center of the picture is home today to the offices of The Quincy Sun. Each bank's building entrance is made of Hitchcock granite known in the trade as "The Aristocrat." It came from the Hitchcock Quarry, on Quarry Street, that was owned by The Quincy Quarries Company of which King was President.

Veterans Council Commemorates Centennial Of World War I Armistice Agreement

As church bells tolled 21 times in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Armistice Agreement that ended World War I Nov. 11, a delegation from the Quincy Veterans Council stood at the foot of Quincy's WWI Doughboy statue to receive a time capsule that was scheduled to be unearthed on this specific occasion.

Acceptance of the time capsule was accomplished by Quincy Veterans Council Commander Dan Tinney and Council Past Commander Charles Hurd.

The Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution, Tea Party Chapter, conducted a wreath laying ceremony, led by Chapter president Peggy O'Connor at the Doughboy statue, in which they too, paid homage to the Centennial celebration and those who served during WWI.

After the conclusion of the Veterans Day parade, during the collation back at the Morrisette Legion Post, the contents of the time capsule were revealed. The time capsule had been dedicated by a group of 25 of the last surviving 59 WWI veterans who resided in Quincy in 1985. The contents consisted of newspaper articles and guest lists about the events honoring these veterans, some samples of their WWI veterans organization; a number of index cards detailing the actual service of many of the WWI attendees and a VHS tape, the content of which has yet to be viewed.

QUINCY VETERANS COUNCIL Commander Daniel Tinney (left) and Leo Reardon, Veterans Observance Officer of the Day, carry a time capsule unearthed Nov. 11 to help commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Armistice Agreement that ended World War I.

After the latter has been reviewed, these documents will be offered to the Quincy Historical Society for preservation.

$1.11 Residential, $1.81 Business Tax Hikes Proposed

Mayor James Sheets has proposed FY 94 Tax Classification rates that would mean increases of $1.11 per $1,000 for residents and $1.81 per $1,000 for business owners, compared to last year's rates.

A public hearing on Sheets' proposed tax rates of $14.57 per $1,000 for residential and $30.58 per $1,000 for C.I.P.P. (commercial, industrial and personal property) will be held Monday, Dec. 6 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers in City Hall.

The tax rates, which were unveiled at the last city council meeting, would keep the percentages of Quincy's $78.6 million tax levy the same as last year: 60 percent residential and 40 percent C.I.P.P.

RECOUNT SCHEDULED IN SCHOOL RACE, TO DECIDE CEDRONE OR BARRY IN 3rd SPOT

A school committee election recount requested by two candidates will get underway Thursday morning, Nov. 18, according to City Clerk and Board of Registrars Chairman Joseph Shea.

School Committee woman-elect Christine Cedrone and first runner-up Sean Barry each requested a recount in all six wards in the city.

Cedrone captured the third and final spot in the Nov. 2 school committee election, narrowly defeating Barry by eight votes.

(Editor's note: The results of the recount produced a tie between Cedrone and Barry. The tie vote created a vacancy on the committee to be filled by a joint meeting of the school committee and the city council. At this meeting, Mr. Barry received the majority of the votes cast and was seated as a member of the school committee.)

They will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in New Hampshire joined by their maid of honor, Nancy (Ryan) Clifford and their best man, William "Billy" Deshler and loving family and friends.

'My Last Continent' By Midge Raymond

'The Fine Print' Book Review

By BETH VACCA

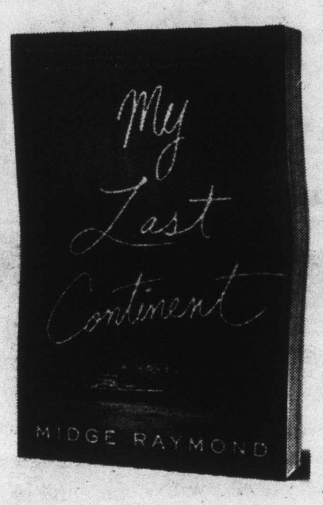
A love story within a lesson of climate change. Deb Gardener, a penguin researcher, feels more at home in Antarctica amongst her beloved penguins, than she has ever felt among humans. Science and nature have always been her true loves.

As a young girl growing up in the midwest with an absentee father and a mother in denial it is not a large leap to understand why she enjoys the solitude and beauty of the Antarctic over the messiness of life.

This story walks us through Deb Gardeners life by allowing us glimpses into her past relationships. High school. College. Grad school. You begin to understand how and why Deb believes she must choose between her professional life as a naturalist and researcher or a life with friends and a family.

We watch as she is forced to reconcile her need for both in her life.

Raymond's knowledge of the Antarctic, its wildlife and the changes that have affected both over history is at once edifying and a call for action. In a gentle yet persuasive voice Raymond asks us to question how we live our own lives and how our choices and/or our lack of choices impact the environment and the creatures that exist in it.



Through Deb and her job as a tour guide, a necessary evil in order for her to conduct research on penguin colonies, we are given insight on many of today's hot topics including climate change, veganism and the tourist industry. Raymond does not back down from difficult topics. Her characters struggle with all issues of life including death.

While I may not agree with the author on certain matters (Marie's lentil sausage soup which appeared in The Quincy Sun a few weeks back sounded amazing) her characters prove to be thoughtful and thought provoking: Raymond writes well reasoned arguments on issues best not discussed at dinner parties. Her dialogue is delivered in a gentle, non-adversarial manner in a way that readers will appreciate no matter which side of an issue you happen to fall.

While this novel seeks to educate on environmental issues it is first and always a love story. The love between human beings. The love we learn the penguins show each other through lifetime mating and raising their young whether instinctual or otherwise.

And the love for the Antarctic which Raymond describes in exquisite detail and although advocating for less intrusion in the area makes you want to go and discover the beauty of it for yourself. And seriously, who can resist a story with penguins?

Don't forget to read .... The Fine Print.

Students To Tell Classic Tale Just In Time For The Holidays

By GRANT KUEHL

Next month, Hancock Street in Quincy is transforming into Bedford Falls as Quincy Catholic Academy is presenting its first staged holiday play, It's a Wonderful Life.

Based on the timeless classic film by Frank Capra, It's a Wonderful Life depicts the life of George Bailey, an idealistic community leader, as he contemplates how to handle a serious conflict in his life. Following some Christmas Eve advice from Clarence, an apprentice angel, George learns to love the life he has been given and to value the community that has held him through tough times.

The play has inspired several students to re-examine what they take for granted each day.

"This play has been so encouraging. It's great to do this kind of theatre piece because we have a small cast and everyone is spotlighted in the show" mentioned Tanmay Chandra, a grade six student. Others, like seventh grader Ryan Li, say they enjoy the message. "It tells a great story about a man who uses angels to teach us important messages - that we all have wonderful lives and it has made me realize that when something bad happens in life, it is important to realize that you have a good life."

This version of It's a Wonderful Life is directed by Grant Kuehl. The production is a shortened version of the popular radio play and will be performed without an intermission by nearly 30 middle school students. Actors will portray the characters you know and love using four standing microphones and a collection of sound clips and live sounds to honor the artistic creativity modeled in the 1940s through radio broadcasts.

Quincy Catholic Academy is planning to have the radio play available for live streaming. You can locate the live stream the day of the performance by following them on Facebook or Instagram.

It's a Wonderful Life is set to run for one performance only on Thursday, Dec. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Quincy Catholic Academy gym, 370 Hancock St., Quincy.

Ticket prices are $5 for adults and $2 for students 16 and under.

Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. The run time for the production is 75 minutes. This production is performed with the permission of Playscripts Inc.

Established in 2010, Quincy Catholic Academy located in Quincy is a Roman Catholic School enrolling students in Pre-Kindergarten (starting at age 3) through Grade 8.

QUINCY CATHOLIC ACADEMY will present its first staged holiday play, It's a Wonderful Life on Thursday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m. in the school gym. Ticket prices are $5 for adults and $2 for students 16 and under. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m.

WHAT'S COOKING with Marie & Susie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Mini Snowball Cookies

By MARIE

How about a delicious cookie that is no bigger than ping pong ball?

Today's recipe is just that, given to me by my niece, Jean. This recipe is only a few ingredients and it is a most tasty desert with finely chopped walnuts and covered with powdered sugar.

Mini Snowball Cookies

Preheat oven to 325 degrees

2 sticks of butter, softened and at room temperature
½ cup confectionery sugar
1 cup of walnuts, finely chopped
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups of flour

For Cookie Coating: 1 cup of powdered sugar in a small brown paper bag or plastic bag.

Mix all ingredients until well blended. Roll the mixture into a ball the size of a walnut.

Place cookie balls on an ungreased cookie sheet, or cookie sheet prepared with parchment paper. (These cookies do not spread so you do not need to leave a lot of room between them on the cookie sheet.)

Bake for 20 to 30 minutes until bottom is golden brown. Jean said she checks the cookies after baking for 20 minutes and then times them accordingly.

When cookies are done put 1 cup of powdered sugar into a brown paper bag or plastic bag.

Gently drop 4 cookies into the bag. Close the bag and gently shake the bag until cookies are well-coated. Remove the cookies and add more cookies approximately 4 or 5 at a time.

Add more powdered sugar for coating as needed.

Store in a plastic container.

Carb-Free Cauliflower Stuffing

By SUSIE

Stuffing is always my favorite side during the holidays. I normally make a "regular" stuffing as well as this one.

It is nice to have both available so the guest can either choose (or dine on both). Cauliflower has been being used recently in everything from pizza crust to breads to even gnocchis. (More on that later.)

Hope you like this as much as I do.

CARB-FREE CAULIFLOWER STUFFING

- 4 tbsp. butter or ghee
- 1 onion, chopped
- 2 large carrots, peeled and chopped
- 2 celery stalks, chopped or thinly sliced
- 1 small head cauliflower, chopped
- 1 c. chopped mushrooms (any kind I like shitake)
- Sea Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1/4 c. Freshly Chopped Parsley
- 2 tbsp. chopped fresh rosemary
- 1 tbsp. chopped fresh sage or 1 tsp. ground sage
- 3/4 cup organic vegetable or chicken broth
- 1/4 cup almond flour

Directions

1. In a large skillet over medium heat, melt butter. Add onion, carrot, and celery and saute´ until soft, 7 to 8 minutes.
2. Add cauliflower and mushrooms and season with salt and pepper. Cook until tender, 5 to 10 minutes more.
3. Add the flour, then add parsley, rosemary, and sage and stir until combined, then pour over vegetable broth and cover with a lid. Cover until totally tender and liquid is absorbed, 15 minutes.

Holiday Turkey Tips: Food Safety On Thanksgiving

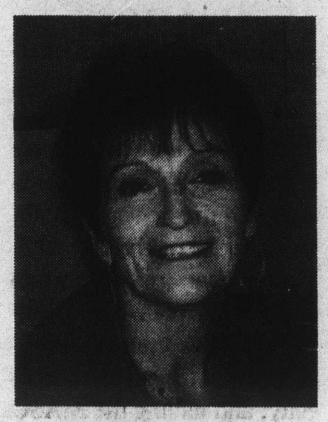
A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

The Thanksgiving gathering is the largest meal many cooks prepare each year. Trying to accomplish this amazing feat accurately, especially the turkey brings a fair amount of pressure, whether a host is experienced with roasting a turkey or not.

Food safety is probably not the initial thing you think about when planning a holiday dinner. But to keep your gathering from being memorable in the wrong way, it's important to protect your guests from foodborne illnesses.

Follow these tips to make sure your Thanksgiving meal is both delicious and safe to serve.



RUTH JONES

Steps to follow before cooking a turkey:

• Read labels carefully. Temperature labels show if the bird is fresh or frozen. If you plan to serve a fresh turkey, purchase it no more than two days before Thanksgiving.

• Purchase two thermometers: a refrigerator thermometer to ensure the turkey is stored at 41 °F or slightly below and a food thermometer to make sure the cooked turkey reaches a safe 165 °F.

• Thaw the turkey by using the microwave, the running cold water method, or the refrigerator. The refrigerator method is USDA recommended. A frozen turkey is safe indefinitely, but a thawing turkey must defrost at a safe temperature. Allocate 24 hours per 5 pounds to defrost in the refrigerator. When the turkey is left out at room temperature for more than two hours, its temperature can creep into the danger zone between 41°F and 135°F, where disease causing bacteria can grow rapidly.

Steps to follow when cooking a turkey:

• Wash hands with warm water and soap for 20 seconds before touching any food to prevent the spread of many types of infection and illness. Bacteria from raw poultry can contaminate anything that it touches. Thoroughly wash your hands, utensils, and work surfaces to prevent the spread of bacteria to your food and family.

• Do not wash the turkey. This only spreads pathogens onto kitchen surfaces. The only way to kill bacteria that causes foodborne illness is to fully cook the turkey.

• Keep raw turkey separated from all other foods at all times.

• Use separate cutting boards, plates, and utensils when handling raw turkey to avoid cross-contamination. Wash items that have touched raw meat with warm soap and water, or place them in a dishwasher.

• Cook the turkey until it reaches a minimum temperature of 165 °F, as measured by a food thermometer. Check the turkey's temperature by inserting the thermometer in three places: the thickest part of the breast, the innermost part of the thigh, and the innermost part of the wing.

Cook stuffing in a casserole dish to make sure it is thoroughly cooked. If you stuff the turkey, do so just before cooking. Use a food thermometer to make sure the stuffing's center reaches 165°F. Bacteria can survive in stuffing that has not reached 165°F, and possibly cause food poisoning. Let the turkey stand 20 minutes before removing all stuffing from the cavity and carving the meat.

• Keep guests with sticky fingers out of the kitchen. Holidays occur during cold and flu season, which further compounds the fact that about half of all people have staph aureus bacteria on their hands, which can cause illness.

Steps to follow when consuming leftover Thanksgiving food:

• Refrigerate leftovers within two hours to prevent bacteria from growing on the food. Clostridium perfringens is the second most common bacterial cause of food poisoning. Outbreaks occur most often in November and December, and appear to be related to holiday meals.

• Divide leftovers into smaller portions. Refrigerate or freeze in covered shallow containers for quicker cooling. Store leftovers in shallow pans or containers to decrease cooling time, this prevents the food from spending too much time at unsafe temperatures (between 41 °F to 135 °F).

• Discard any turkey, stuffing, and gravy left out at room temperature longer than 2 hours; 1 hour in temperatures above 90 °F.

• Do not store stuffing inside a leftover turkey. Remove the stuffing from the turkey, and refrigerate the stuffing and the meat separately.

• Avoid consuming leftovers that have been left in the refrigerator for longer than 3 or 4 days. Use the freezer to store leftovers for longer periods of time.

• Keep leftovers in a cooler with ice or frozen gel packs if the food is traveling home with a guest who lives more than two hours away.

• If freezing leftovers, use within 2 to 6 months for best quality.

Reheating Your Turkey:

Cooked turkey may be eaten cold or reheated.

• Set the oven temperature no lower than 325 °F.

• Reheat turkey to an internal temperature of 165 °F. Use a food thermometer to check the internal temperature.

• To keep the turkey moist, add a little broth or water and cover.

In the Microwave Oven:

• Cover your food and rotate it for even heating. Allow standing time.

• Check the internal temperature of your food with a food thermometer for a full 2 minutes to make sure it reaches a minimum of 165 °F.

Finally, be careful with eggs. Many eggnog recipes call for uncooked eggs, you need to use pasteurized eggs or cook the egg yolks to be sure you kill any potential salmonella bacteria.

Eggs should be kept refrigerated until ready for use and always cook egg products to 160 degrees.

Have a Safe and Happy Thanksgiving!

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Symposium To Focus On Community Inclusion Of People With Disabilities

Lisa Drennan, founder of MERGE Diverse Abilities Inclusion Consulting, will be leading a presentation titled "Enhancing the Potential of Both People & Organizations through Diverse Ability Inclusion" for the 15th Annual Community Development Symposium, hosted by the City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

The event will take place on Wednesday, Dec. 5 at the Thomas Crane Public Library from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Community Meeting Room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Attendees will explore techniques, strategies and philosophies that promote an inclusive culture to better support persons with developmental, intellectual or physical disabilities. Target audience includes community organizations and public service professionals at all levels from direct service to the Executive Suite, Board of Directors and volunteers.

There is no cost to attend, but registration required via visiting the website: http://DiverseAbilityInclusion.eventbrite.com.

Drennan has a 35-year career supporting individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. She directed the Sollar Wellness Center, a first-of-it-kind building offering recreation and education specifically designed to meet the needs of persons with developmental disabilities.

LISA DRENNAN

In 2014, Drennan joined the South Shore YMCA as the first-ever association director of inclusion where she developed and implemented innovative programming paired with comprehensive staff training. She provided leadership on a national level as the Chair Person of the YUSA's Diverse Abilities Working Group, a platform of learning and sharing of best practices for Y's across the country. She founded MERGE in 2018 to build stronger communities by providing expert guidance on inclusion of persons with diverse abilities.

The Planning Department has been providing capacity-building symposiums for public service agencies since 2004 on a variety of topics including but not limited to performance measurement and collaboration, childhood health, and literacy. The events have pulled together up to 75 professionals per event, which creates a rich environment for networking opportunities.

Events are made possible by the City of Quincy, Community Development Block Grant of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, community collaborations, and for this year, contributing sponsorships by the South Shore YMCA and the Quincy Lions Club.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SIGNS TO LOOK FOR

An estimated 65 million Americans have some form of gum disease, which leaves them vulnerable to infection and tooth loss. Worse yet, many people are ignoring signs of gum disease that might otherwise lead them to effective treatment before their problems grow worse and more difficult to treat. It is important to recognize common symptoms of gum disease, which include spitting blood after brushing and flossing. This is a sign of the mildest form of gum disease, called "gingivitis," which can be treated rather easily. However, symptoms such as wiggly teeth and receding gums may be indications that gum disease has progressed to more severe "periodontitis," which warrants immediate attention to prevent both tooth and bone loss.

Avoiding gum disease and achieving optimal dental hygiene success are not all that difficult. Almost everyone can accomplish both with a modest amount of time invested daily. Keeping up with home dental care as well as scheduling periodic cleanings and wellness exams are two important steps toward accomplishing the goal of a healthy mouth. State School Committee Association Opposes Arming Teachers

By TOM GORMAN

The Massachusetts Association of School Committees (MASC) approved a resolution opposing arming classroom teachers.

During the school committee's Nov. 14 meeting, member Kathryn Hubley, Quincy's MASC delegate, reviewed the results of the MASC conference where several resolutions were acted upon a few weeks ago. The resolutions represent positions taken by the MASC on various issues or potential legislative measures. Prior to the conference, the Quincy school committee voted on the resolutions that were presented.

Quincy was joined by many other districts in opposing the arming of teachers. Although there currently is no such proposal before the state legislature, the MASC wanted its voice heard on the matter. Following recent school shootings, some of the nation's leaders have called for providing firearms to teachers as a way to defend against shooters.

"This resolution only pertains to providing firearms to educators," Hubley said.

She explained some delegates were concerned about teachers who are police officers or those who have a license to carry a firearm. Hubley said in those circumstances, each district would have its own policy.

Massachusetts Teachers Association President Barbara Madeloni had called the suggestion of arming teachers "simply outrageous."

"It reflects a bizarre commitment to violence as the answer to problems," she said in a statement issued last spring. She went on to say that students and teachers have joined forces to end gun violence and "are committed to a more peaceful world."

The MASC said mental health and violence preventive measures need to be implemented as a way to deal with the issue.

Another resolution called for districts to provide for non-English speaking parents in their preferred language five days prior to a scheduled meeting to review their child's Individual Education Plan (IEP). Quincy school committee members voted against this proposal, but, the resolution was approved by the MASC delegation.

Quincy officials had argued that the proposal would be costly and possibly open up the city to litigation if the five-day deadline requirement could not be met. The district's Director of Special Education Erin Perkins had explained there are 471 non-English language students – representing 66 different languages -now on IEPs.

Perkins had said it would the cost the city up to $2,000 per page to have documents translated and likely the deadline could not be met. She noted the district provides interpreters at meetings when needed and uses state standardized forms in various languages where the city can add translated text.

Other resolutions approved by the MASC were: requiring all private, charter, and home schools that receive public funding be subject to the same state instructional standards and requirements as public schools; asking the U.S. Department of Education to stop its plan to no longer fund sex education programs that teach abstinence-only; and having the MASC assist in filing legislation protecting LGBTQ students from bulling, discrimination, and harassment based on their gender identity.

Also approved were, a proposal that, should the legislature legalize sports wagering, a portion of revenues be committed to public education; standards for reporting and accountability; and not combining the U.S. Education Department with other federal departments.

The MASC approved a resolution to create an advisory panel that would work with the legislature on policies for small and rural school districts. The panel would look into modifying the school foundation budget and related Chapter 70 financial assistance. Quincy abstained on this issue.

The delegation rejected a resolution on asking the legislature to allow regional school districts to bid out and or collaborate on bus transportation. The resolution is to be reworked and presented again at a later time.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Will I Get Spousal Benefits?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: What percentage, if any, should I be able to collect on my husband's Social Security benefits? He started his at full retirement age and I'm turning 62 in 3 months (born 1957). I did work and am eligible to collect on my own work record. Half of his benefit would be approximately $300 more a month than I would collect with my own benefit. I am not currently working and do not have plans to go back to work. When I called the SS office to make an appointment, I asked this same question and the person I spoke with said I couldn't collect on my spouse. I have a friend who told me his wife did get some extra benefit from his Social Security and she also worked. Signed: Inquiring Mind

Dear Inquiring: Not everyone is automatically entitled to spousal benefits, and everyone doesn't get 50% of the higher earning spouse's benefit amount. Whether or not you are eligible depends upon how much your benefit on your own work record is at your full retirement age, compared to half of your husband's benefit at his full retirement age (FRA). And if you take benefits at age 62, both your own benefit and your spousal benefit will be reduced. Born in 1957, your benefit at age 62 from your own work record will be reduced by 27.5% from what it would be at 66 ½ (your full retirement age). Because you're taking the spousal benefit early (you'll be deemed to be filing for spousal benefits when you claim your own) you won't get 50% of your husband's FRA benefit, rather it will be reduced. Here's how you can figure out your total benefit at age 62, and whether you will get a spousal benefit in addition to your own.

First, find out what your benefit amount would be if you wait until your full retirement age to claim (you can get this from Social Security or by creating your own "My Social Security Account" online at www.ssa.gov). Since you say your husband claimed at his FRA, compute one half of his current benefit, and then compare your FRA benefit amount to one half of his benefit amount. If half of his is less than your FRA benefit, you won't get a "spousal boost." If half of his is more than your FRA benefit, you will get a spousal boost, but it will be reduced because you're taking it at age 62 instead of at your FRA. At age 62, rather than half of your husband's benefit you would get about 34% of his benefit, and the difference between that amount and your own reduced age 62 benefit is your spousal boost. That spousal boost, if any, will be added to your age 62 benefit amount to arrive at your total Social Security benefit at age 62. And that total amount will be less than 50% of your husband's benefit. Since Social Security has already told you that you aren't entitled to a spousal benefit, it's probable that your own FRA benefit amount is more than 50% of your husband's FRA amount.

GMA Big Step In City's Fight Against Climate Change

Readers Forum

Quincy city government has substantially increased the energy efficiency of city buildings and operations and its use of renewable energy. Now, as the Sun reports ("City Eyes More Renewable Energy," Oct. 25), the city is considering a move that would do even more to reduce the greenhouse gases that, by fueling increasingly violent weather and sea level rise, are threatening life and property here.

Specifically, the city has been exploring a program called green municipal aggregation (GMA), whereby electric power used by residents and small businesses would contain a bit more clean renewable energy than the basic service electric power that most Quincy residents now rely on. On behalf of Quincy Climate Action Network, I'd like to thank City Councillor Ian Cain for introducing a resolution that authorizes the city to explore GMA; the other city councilors for their unanimous vote for the resolution; and Mayor Koch and his administration for their diligent pursuit of GMA.

Under GMA, the increase in green power would be small, probably another five percent added to the 13 percent that state law requires for 2018, but when multiplied by the number of ratepayers in Quincy, it would represent a big step in our city's fight against climate change. Meanwhile, residents would barely notice the difference. Like residents of Somerville, Brookline, Dedham, Arlington, and the numerous other towns and cities with GMA, they'd continue to receive their bill from National Grid, and the price of their power would be roughly the same—a tiny bit higher or lower than now. Finally, those who'd rather stick with basic service—or switch back to basic service at any time—could do so by checking a box on a postcard, visiting a website, or calling an 800 number.

At present, Quincy residents have two choices when buying electricity: basic service or the deceptive deals being pushed by door-to-door electricity purveyors. Sadly, many residents have fallen prey to the latter and experienced spikes in their electric bills. By contrast, if we adopted GMA, we'd have at least two legitimate choices: basic service or fairly priced greener electricity. That sounds great to us at QCAN.

Councillors Divided On $6.3M Kincaide Park Project

Plan Includes Regulation Soccer Pitch, Hoop Courts, Splash Pad

PLANS FOR KINCAIDE PARK in South Quincy include a new FIFA-regulation soccer pitch, a sprint track, a walking and running trail, bocce courts, basketball courts, play and exercise equipment and a new splash pad. The City Council is weighing a $5.3 million bond to pay for the project. Rendering Courtesy City of Quincy

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors were divided on a proposal to renovate South Quincy's Kincaide Park, with some saying it would reinvigorate a neglected neighborhood while others balked at the $6.3 million price tag for the project.

The council's finance committee voted 5-3 on Nov. 13 to give a positive recommendation to Mayor Thomas Koch's request to borrow $5.3 million to cover outstanding costs of the project The full council did not vote on the measure, however, to give the mayor time to review alternative ways to pay for the project.

Plans for the park – located on Water Street between the Lincoln-Hancock and Sterling schools - include a FIFA-regulation soccer pitch that could be utilized for other sports as well, a splash pad, basketball courts, bocce courts, a spring track, a trail for walking and running, new play and exercise equipment and ropes course. New lighting and stormwater systems would also be installed, along with a net of 96 new trees.

A $27 million park improvement bond approved by the council in 2017 set aside $1 million for Kincaide Park; the bond will be paid for with hotel tax receipts, which Quincy collects when guests stay overnight in a hotel or motel in the city.

Based on community feedback, Koch proposed bigger changes for the field earlier this year, and proposed paying for them with the $5.3 million bond the council is now considering, which would be paid out of the general fund.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the 5.2-acre park is underutilized, with existing facilities that are often empty. The proposal before the council, he said, would draw in people from all walks of life.

"It's an incredibly underutilized area in the city… this really just reimagines it in an enormous way that brings people in from the community – all sorts of people from the community," Palmucci said. "It's very impressive."

Councillor Noel DiBona said he understood the need to improve Kincaide Park, but was concerned about how much the city would borrow in the near future to pay for other capital improvements, including new seawalls and a public safety headquarters. DiBona proposed cutting $4 million from the bond request, leaving $2.3 million to renovate Kincaide between the bond under consideration and the one already approved.

"I feel that in a time like this we have to be a little bit more on the conservative side when it comes to appropriating funding, especially when it comes to bonding," he said.

In response to those concerns, Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said the city has applied for six grants to pay for part of the project's cost and is eying additional ones as well. He was optimistic, but not certain, the city would receive a grant of up to $1.2 million from the state for the project; the other grants would be from private foundations. Walker said the grants could pay for between 25 and 50 percent of the project cost.

Councillors rejected the proposed cut in a 5-3 vote, with Ian Cain and Brad Croall joining DiBona in favor of it. William Harris, Kirsten Hughes, Anne Mahoney and David McCarthy joined Palmucci in voting against the cut. Nina Liang was absent from the meeting.

The 5-3 vote to pass the item out of committee would be along the same lines.

Mahoney said the park project could help improve the surrounding neighborhood as a whole.

"You could actually see growth from more than just a park, because you would be reinvigorating, reimagining and reinventing an area that has been left to kind of fall in on top of itself," she said. "There are families over there that are trying to really reinvent this area, but they need help and this is how you do it."

McCarthy said the neighborhood has been neglected over the years, with projects in other parts of the city given higher priority.

"It know it's a lot of money, but that area is way overdue," he said.

Harris said he would support the project because it has the backing of Palmucci, the neighborhood's ward councillor.

"I believe in supporting the ward councillors in their areas because they've supported me," he said.

Cain, the finance committee chairman, said the city needs to do a better job of prioritizing projects.

"You can't just keeping going on using daddy's credit card. That's just not the way it goes," Cain said. "Sometimes you actually have to sit back and say, 'this is more important than that, people need this more than that.' Nobody is doing that."

Croall, the council president, asked if the mayor would be open to using other sources of funding to pay for the project. Croall suggested the city could use the $4.7 million it has in state-certified free cash, money from the Community Preservation Committee, or $2 million he said is now available in hotel tax receipts.

"There is some funding in play that lies outside the taxpayers' pocketbook," Croall said.

Walker said he would be willing to look into using money from those sources between the Nov. 13 meeting and the council's next session on Nov. 26.

"I would obviously be happy to spend the next two weeks working with Councillor Palmucci, working with our team, to see what potential is there for other funding sources in addition to what we have in front of us today," Walker said.

Cain then asked Palmucci if he would amenable to tabling the discussion until Nov. 26. Palmucci said he wanted the item voted out of committee but could wait until the next meeting for a final vote on the matter.

"My vote wouldn't change based on where the money comes from," Palmucci said. "I'm on board with what folks are saying, but I support it either way."

Councillors did approve one amendment, offered by Palmucci, before voting the bond order out of committee. The amendment states any other funding source the city receives for the project would be deducted from the total amount borrowed against the general fund.

That amendment was approved in a 7-1 vote, with Croall opposed.

What Is a Celebrant Service?

A celebrant service, sometimes called a Celebration of Life, is a funeral or memorial service that expresses the life story of the individual who has departed. It is often officiated by a Funeral Celebrant, also called a Life Celebrant, who is a non-clergy professional that helps families create a personal and meaningful ceremony. Celebrants work with family members to create a service intended to be a uniquely personalized, deep, and loving remembrance of their loved one.

Mary Gallagher, Certified Funeral Celebrant, feels that there are two purposes to a celebrant service; one is to celebrate the person who died and the other is to help loved ones as they begin the process of grief. Often, what is most helpful for many people is to take the time to tell the stories of the person's life. It's not so much about listing the accomplishments of the person, but rather the lasting effect this person had on the people who loved him or her and what will live on in memory.

You Have Choices

When choosing an officiant for a loved one's funeral, many families are not aware that they have choices. At Keohane Funeral Home, we not only offer celebrant services, we have Certified Funeral Celebrants on our staff to serve our families in the way that is most meaningful for them. A celebrant service offers an alternative to a service officiated by clergy, especially for those families who are not affiliated with a church, do not wish to have a traditional religious service, or do not want to hold services in a church setting.

While celebrants often fulfill the role of clergy in a funeral service, they are not affiliated with any particular religion and can include as much or as little religious content or ritual as the family wishes – the choice is in the hands of the family. This tribute exemplifies the spirit, uniqueness and significance of the life of the loved one. Above all, a celebrant service reflects the wishes of the deceased and the family.

Life Stories

A celebrant is a facilitator who is able to take the time to sit down and listen to the needs of loved ones in order to fully honor the individual who has passed. During the meeting with family and friends, often in the comfort of their own homes, the celebrant collects stories and memories in order to express the life story of the individual who has departed. The celebrant then designs and conducts personalized funeral services that celebrate the life of the loved one. Many personalized elements can be included, such as personal stories; favorite music; video tributes; photos or memory boards; poems and readings; as well as prayers and rituals.

A celebrant service can be as traditional or non-traditional as the person being remembered. These services fulfill the same purpose as any funeral – to celebrate the individual life and provide comfort to loved ones.

Recently, on the causeway towards Squantum, Troop 24 did a community service project. They repaired an osprey pole, which had been leaning for many years.

Along with this, last year Troop 24 as an Eagle Scout project built another osprey pole on the other side of the marsh. Since these events occured, there have been spottings of Bald Eagles and Ospreys on both poles near Squantum. It is fantastic to see rare species of birds such as the Bald Eagle in our local neighborhood.

Ameriprise Grants $25,000 To Local Workforce Program

Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS), a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization dedicated to preventing and ending homelessness in Southern Massachusetts, has been awarded a $25,000 grant from Ameriprise Financial.

The funding will benefit FBMS' WorkExpress program, a social enterprise in Quincy and Brockton that helps individuals experiencing homelessness gain confidence and attain more self-sufficiency through employment experience.

Ameriprise, which has offices in Boston and financial advisors located across the South Shore and Southern Massachusetts, has provided grants in support of WorkExpress for the past five years.

"Many of the men and women who enter our emergency shelters are motivated to get back to work in order to move into housing of their own," John Yazwinski, president and CEO of FBMS, said. "However, it can be very difficult for our guests to re-enter the workforce due to employment barriers such as high transportation costs and a lack of job training. Thanks to generous funders like Ameriprise, our WorkExpress program provides guests with an opportunity for paid employment, supportive case management, and a pathway toward permanent housing."

"Despite a strong economy, far too many Americans are struggling to make ends meet and don't have access to stable housing." said Brian Pietsch, head of community relations at Ameriprise Financial. "Father Bill's & MainSpring is a source of hope in times when these individuals need it the most – and we're proud to support this important mission."

WorkExpress, founded in 1996, employs dozens of individuals and offers skills training and on-the-job experience. The workforce program helps FBMS guests get back on their feet with a structured routine that requires commitment, discipline, and a strong work ethic. WorkExpress is hired both internally and externally to complete jobs such as graffiti removal, apartment flips, office cleaning, and landscaping.

WorkExpress operates out of both of FBMS' emergency shelters for individuals, Father Bill's Place in Quincy and MainSpring House in Brockton. Many WorkExpress participants eventually move out of shelter and into one of the more than 500 permanent supportive housing units managed by FBMS.

Revised Plans For Beachcomber

Residential Units, Retail Space Removed; Proposal Now For Two-Story Restaurant At Site

By SCOTT JACKSON

The new owners of the former Beachcomber on Wollaston Beach are revising their plans for the site following a community meeting on the proposal.

The new owners of the Beachcomber, located at 797 Quincy Shore Dr., went before the Board of License Commissioners on Nov. 13 for a transfer of the liquor license held by the owner of the former nightclub.

The board approved the request unanimously, though further approval will be needed before a new restaurant can open on site. New construction on site also requires approval from the Planning Board.

Edward Fleming, the attorney representing Lin Xu and her partners in the new restaurant set to open on site, said the proposal for a new facility is set to change following community meeting last month.

The initial plan pitched by the new owners called for a three-story building. The first floor would have included a reception area, sushi bar and retail space. The main restaurant space would be on the second floor with six residential units on the third floor.

Fleming said residential units and retail space would be removed following feedback from residents. The plan would include just restaurant space with a function room.

"The goal right now is to have two floors of restaurant – so probably…takeout and casual dining on the first floor with fine dining on the second floor," Fleming said. "There will be a function room on that second floor so that weddings can be hosted and private parties.

"It's not going to be an entertainment facility like the Beachcomber – a nightclub of that sort. It's certainly not going to be as loud and busy as the Beachcomber."

Fleming said the new facility would be built in the beach-style to blend in with other homes in the area.

Dr. Allan Yacubian, an abutter to the Beachcomber property, said he had some outstanding concerns about matters such as dumpsters and possible odor from the site, but believed those could be addressed as part of the planning process. Yacubian welcomed improvements to the site.

"I am happy for them. I am not in opposition, I want you to know, but I'd like to clear up anything I can think of before we go ahead," Yacubian said. "I have all the confidence in Mr. Fleming and this group, and they've been nice about everything. Anything would be better than what we have."

The Beachcomber opened its doors in 1959 and the nightclub closed for good in 2015.

Bar Denied Bid For Extended Hours Wednesday

By SCOTT JACKSON

The manager of a Quincy Center bar withdrew his request to stay open an extra hour Wednesday night following opposition from the city's police department and other members of the licensing board.

Edward Matthew, manager of Revel at 79 Parkingway, went before the Board of License Commissioners on Nov. 13 to seek permission to stay open until 2 a.m. Wednesday night.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the chairman of the board, said the board has control over hours of operation for establishments with liquor licenses between the hours of 11 p.m. and 2 a.m. Quincy rolled back its closing time from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m. nearly 40 years ago, Scheele said. The board traditionally allows establishments to stay open an extra hour on New Year's Eve, and will do so again this year.

Matthew said he sought to stay open an extra hour on Wednesday night after learning of the board's decision to push back closing time on New Year's Eve. Revel planned to hold a "homecoming event" the night before Thanksgiving, catering to residents coming home for the holiday. The event would serve as a fundraiser for two charities, Matthew said, Score for More and Coats for Cocktails.

Matthew said he planned to take measures to stop revelers from other barrooms coming to his establishment after the others closed. No patrons would be allowed inside after 1 a.m., and the extended closing time would not be advertised.

"We don't want to bring in anyone else from another bar," Matthew said. "We're going to close the door at 1. We just want to be able to stay open until 2."

John Rodophele, a Grenwold Road resident, said the board should not grant the extra hour to just one bar.

"I don't think individually we can grant one place the license to do something until 2. I think if you want to maybe let everybody in the city stay open until 2, you could do that just like with New Year's," Rodophele said.

Alternatively, he said Revel could be allowed to stay open after 1 a.m. without being allowed to sell alcohol after that time.

Matthew said other licensees could seek permission to stay open later if they wanted.

"If any other restaurant wanted to ask, they have the same ability," he said.

Police Capt. John Dougan said the department was opposed to the request. The night before Thanksgiving is the busiest night for the police, he said, busier even than New Year's Eve.

"It's really amateur night, we have a lot of problems, we're very busy that night and to have another bar open 'til 2 serving alcohol is a disaster for us," Dougan said.

"I've worked for 35 years. I've worked a lot of Thanksgiving eves. It's actually the busiest night for us during the year, and it's nothing but problems. You staying open until 2 a.m. will open Pandora's box," Dougan added, saying other bars would be soon seek permission to stay open later as well.

Other members of the board deferred to Dougan's opinion and said they would not support giving Revel the extra hour. Matthew withdrew the request following their comments.

In other business on Nov. 13, the board:

Granted a special use permit for the Merrymount Association's annual Turkey Day Trot. The race, which begins at 8 a.m. Thursday, is expected to draw 150 participants and will start and end at Merrymount Beach.

Granted a pair of one-day beer and wine licenses to the city of Quincy for events it will hold Friday and Saturday on the Hancock-Adams Common as part of the city's annual Christmas festivities. Mark Carey, an aide to Mayor Thomas Koch, said the city was only likely to use the license for a live music event on Saturday from 2 to 7 p.m. and not the tree-lighting ceremony on Friday from 5 to 7 p.m.

Granted a common victualler license to Quincy Hungry Tummy, which will move into the storefront at 103 Franklin St., formerly home to Evolino's Hand Pies. The new takeout restaurant is set to open in about month.

Granted a common victualler license to Yaowarat at 6 Beale St. The 32-seat Thai restaurant is set to open there in early 2019 following a complete renovation of the space.

Granted a pre-packaged food license to Blue Hill Gas, 550 Willard St. The license is pending final approval from the Health and Inspectional Services Departments.

Granted a cabaret license to Rewild at 1546 Hancock St. The cabaret license allows up to three musicians to perform at a given time.

Rejected a request from Vaagn Arakelyan for a motor II license for his Payne Street home. He had sought the license to enter dealer-only online auctions, but board members said they would not grant the license to him for his residence.

Quincy Students Visit With Gillette Engineers, Machinists

Approximately 65 middle and high school students from Quincy Public Schools visited the Gillette World Shaving Headquarters in Boston Nov. 7 as part of an on-going School and Community Partnership. Students visited with engineers and machinists from P&G/Gillette, learned about various career paths in science, engineering, and robotics, and showcased their own robotics programs in the P&G/Gillette lobby to over 150 of Gillette's employees.

"The presentation was really good. I learned about the different types of engineering. I was really surprised at how many kinds there were," said Shubham, a student at Point Webster Middle School.

Added Kaitlyn, an eighth grader at Central Middle School: "The presentation allowed me to see that there were subdivisions to engineering. Seeing all these engineers find their passions inspires me to do my own thing."

Through the P&G/Gillette engineering department, employees can request funds for projects about which they are passionate. One of the funding criteria is building culture/climate at Gillette and for the second consecutive year, mechanical engineer, Zachary Egan and a team of volunteers put together a proposal to support the Quincy robotics teams. As part of the approved project, P&G/Gillette invited the grades 6-12 robotics teams to a "show & tell event" to share their accomplishments and chat with engineers and machinists at the company.

"I learned a lot," said Huy, a Central Middle School student. "The presentations help broaden my view of what I want to be when I grow up. My favorite presentation was Linda's because of her message to be flexible, you won't know what can happen in the future. You have to be open to trying new things."

P&G/Gillette's $10,000 grant will go directly towards Quincy Public Schools grade 6-12 robotics team registration fees, design and engineering expenses, team marketing, and miscellaneous costs that occur throughout the season.

"The event at P&G Gillette was inspiring," said Annie, a Quincy High School sophomore. "I had the chance to talk to some of the best engineers in their respective fields and learned a great deal from them. Seeing them be passionate about their work has made me realize that I still have a lot to learn in terms of both engineering and life.

"At Gillette, I got the chance to see their laboratory and it was amazing. It was set up in a way that allowed for total, unhindered creativity and I had never seen anything like it before. Overall, my experience at Gillette was a great one. It allowed me to delve deeper into my passion for engineering, and it's an experience that I'll never forget."

Liang Calls For LGBTQ Commission

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillor Nina Liang has proposed creating a commission whose mission would be to ensure a culture of respect, safety and equality for LGBTQ residents of Quincy.

Liang introduced an ordinance to create the commission during the council's meeting on Nov. 13. It was refered to the ordinance committee, which Liang chairs, for review in the future.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who co-sponsored the measure, said the LGBTQ Commission would aim to make Quincy more open, inviting and welcoming.

"The essential drive behind this is that this commission would enable folks to work on issues that affect this community to make the city a more open, inviting and welcoming place for this community," he said.

"The request is to create a commission, under the auspices of the city government, to work on these issues on a regular basis…a full-time sort of outlook on how we can constantly improve things.

"Some of the work done to date has been tremendous and we should build on that – most notably the Q Pride event, which was wonderful."

Liang was not present at the Nov. 13 meeting.

The commission would include an unspecified number of members. At least one member would be appointed from each of Quincy's six wards and three from city government – one from the City Council, one from the School Committee and another from the Quincy Police Department. Representatives from non-profit and advocacy groups would also be included in the commission.

The ordinance calls for members of the commission to be LGBTQ residents of the city whenever possible, and for a commission whose members reflect the diversity of the city.

The duties of the commission would include bi-monthly public meetings, publication of an online newsletter or website to communicate with city residents, programing and events of interest to the LGBTQ community, working with the city's businesses and organizations to ensure a welcoming and inclusive environment, and providing a venue for LGBTQ residents to share ideas and provide on the commission's work and the work of the city.

O'Donnell Reports Small Real Estate Sales Increase in Norfolk County

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reports a small increase in county real estate sales during the month of October along with declining mortgage activity.

"There were a total of 1,567 real estate sales, both residential and commercial, in Norfolk County for the month of October, representing a two percent increase year over year," O'Donnell said. "However, the average sales price, again for both residential and commercial, was $931,559 for the month, a robust 30 percent increase compared to October 2017. Also, the total dollar sales volume was $883 million, a 29 percent increase compared to the previous year."

Mortgage financing in Norfolk County showed a decline.

"A total of 2,084 mortgages were recorded during October, a 13 percent decrease from the previous year," O'Donnell said. "Total mortgage indebtedness also decreased by 15 percent to $936 million. These numbers clearly reflect ongoing increases with interest rates, which have caused consumers to pause when it comes to buying a house or refinancing."

The Registry's October foreclosure numbers significantly dropped by 46 percent compared to the same time period in 2017. Additionally, the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings, the first step in the foreclosure process, saw a reduction of 15 percent.

"There is no question these foreclosure numbers are good news," O'Donnell said. "With that said, we cannot forget that foreclosure activity has a human face associated with it. Despite the good economy, some of our neighbors are facing economic hardships. In this regard, my office continues to partner with the Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks Southern Mass, 508-587-0950 to help homeowners who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage document. Another option is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400."

Homestead activity at the Registry in October was relatively flat. A total of 1,020 Homesteads were filed, a one percent decrease compared to October 2017. Noting the importance of filing a Homestead application," O'Donnell said aHomestead provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000.

"These monthly statistics confirm what we already know. Limited inventory has led buyers to engage in competitive bidding for properties, thereby driving up real estate prices," O'Donnell said. Another factor that sees no signs of abating is the continuing increases in interest rates. The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds will continue to closely monitor these real estate trends in terms of how they affect the market."

Fall High School Athletes Honored

By TOM GORMAN

Several fall sports student athletes of North Quincy High School and Quincy High School were honored by the school committee last week.

The athletes were joined by their respective coaches and athletic directors. Each athlete was introduced and presented with a certificate of recognition for their athletic and academic achievements.

"They do a great job on the field and on the court, and do a great job in the classroom," said North Quincy High School Athletic Director JJ Niamkey.

North Quincy High School football team captains Ryan Kelson, Josh Dangora, Jackson Zhao, Andrew Airosus, Tim Layden, and Win Tran were honored along with their head coach, Ryan Craig.

Niamkey said the team earned the fourth seed in the MIAA State Championships this fall.

"The football team had great success this season," he said.

Also honored were Red Raider volleyball team captains Aleksandra Qose and Kayli Wu, and coach, Kerry Ginty.

According to Niamkey, the volleyball team had a 17-3 season and was Patriot League co-champions with Quincy High. The team was the second seed in the MIAA state championships.

"They did a great job and had a wonderful season," said Niamkey.

Quincy High School boys' soccer coach Mark Spendlove was honored for being named Eastern Massachusetts Division 2 South Coach of the Year.

"It's a very prestigious honor," said Quincy High School Athletic Director Kevin Mahoney.

Spendlove was joined by three of his team's senior stars, Sheelens Ostine, Matthew Sheridan, and Theo Fox.

Mahoney said that the soccer team had 13 wins, three losses, two ties and played in the MIAA championships.

"It was one of the most successful seasons," he said. "This program is top notch this season."

Joining longtime Quincy/North Quincy cross country coach Geoff Hennessey to be recognized was Quincy High senior Abby Murphy.

Murphy won the Coaches Invitational Girls Senior Cross Country 5K race three weeks ago, according to Mahoney. She was to compete this week for the fourth time in the MIAA Cross Country All-State meet.

The Presidents' volleyball team captains Colleen Connor and Julianne Gazzola and coach Jacqui Niosi were recognized by the committee. Teammate Gianna Franceschini was also honored, but was unable to attend the ceremony.

The volleyball team finished the season with an impressive 16-5 record and qualified for the MIAA state tournament.

"It was another very successful season," Mahoney said.

The student athletes were praised for their work.

"We are extremely honored and excited for all their accomplishments,' said Niamkey.

In other matters: The committee expressed appreciation to the Quincy Lodge of Elks for its donation of 792 dictionaries to the district's grade 3 students. This is the 15th year the lodge has donated dictionaries to the city's elementary schools.

School Supt, Dr. Richard DeCristofaro notified the committee that 191 teacher mini-grants totaling $37,000 were awarded during a Nov. 1 ceremony. To date, nearly $400,000 has been awarded by the district's community business partners.

DeCristofaro told the committee that 182 seniors from North Quincy and Quincy high schools received the John and Abigail Adams Scholarships during separate ceremonies at both schools. The students scored in the top categories of the MCAS English Language Arts and math exams.

The combined scores place them in the top 25 percent of students in the graduating class. The scholarships covers tuition for eight semesters at any state college or university.

The committee approved an out-of-state trip for the Point Webster Middle School and Atlantic Middle School grade 8 to New York City June 6 and 7.

The committee referred two proposed improvement plans to subcommittees. The School Improvement Plan Goal Development was referred to the teaching and learning subcommittee and the School Improvement Plan Facilities Areas of Need was referred to the facilities, security and transportation subcommittee.

NQHS Sports Proposed To Move To South Shore League

By TOM GORMAN

Some school officials are proposing to move North Quincy High School sports teams out of the Patriot League to the South Shore League.

During the school committee's Nov. 14 meeting, member Douglas Gutro informed his colleagues that the athletics and wellness subcommittee, which he chairs, continued discussion earlier this month on having North Quincy High School change its athletic affiliation to the South Shore League.

According to Gutro, Principal Robert Shaw reported that a coaches' survey was split on staying in the Patriot League and moving to another league. Some coaches felt that the Patriot League teams offer good competition while those on the other side opined changing leagues would be "beneficial."

"At this time, Mr. Shaw and (North Quincy High School Athletic Director J.J.) Niamkey feel that remaining in the Patriot League seems to be the best choice," Gutro said.

Right now, there is a plan to have North Quincy High play South Shore League teams as non-league games over the next year. Accord-

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, Nov. 10, at approximately 11:05 p.m., Officers Mark Millane, Bob Sweetland and Steve Burgio were dispatched to a West Quincy address for a family problem call.

The officers were greeted by a 50-year-old mother and her 20-year-old daughter. The mother stated her 30-year-old son has lived at this address in the past; however, he is no longer wanted there. She said she had an argument with her son last night which resulted in a call to the police and he was escorted off the premises without incident.

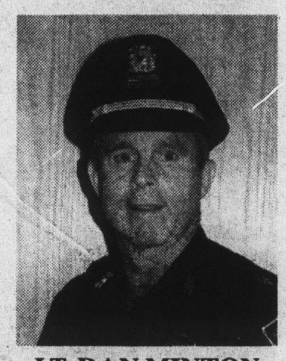
The mother told her son he was not to return to the residence. She said tonight she came out of her bedroom and saw her son in the bathroom, adding the door to her apartment must have been unlocked because she did not see her son come in. When she told him he was not welcome in the residence, the son told her, "Stop bothering me - leave me alone."

She approached her son in the bathroom and he reacted by yelling, "Get away from me" while forcefully pushing her with two hands to the floor. The mother said her son then went back into the bathroom and locked the door.

Officer Millane checked the bathroom door and it was still locked, so he knocked on the door and the son opened it. The officers asked the son to come out of the bathroom, which he did. As officers detained the son, Officer Millane interviewed the mother, who said her son is very angry and threatened he wanted to kill her and police officers. She added her son has been hospitalized in the past for emotional/mental health and anger issues and should go back to the hospital or go to jail.

Officer Millane then interviewed the daughter who said she heard her mother and brother arguing but did not see her mother actually get hit, but did see her falling backwards and then hit the floor. Brewster Ambulance arrived on scene but staged outside at the direction of the officers, to avoid escalating the situation.

Officer Millane calmly spoke with the son and tried to convince him to go to the hospital and meet with a mental health clinician, but the son adamantly stated, "I ain't going to the hospital," stating this over and over. The officer took another approach, telling the son that the police and his mother would rather see him go to the hospital than spend time in jail. The son reiterated, "I am not going to the hospital. Take me to jail."



LT. DAN MINTON

Left with no choice, the officers handcuffed the son and transported him to the station for booking on the charge of assault and battery on a family/household member. The mother was advised of her protection rights to get an emergency restraining order which she said she wanted.

The on-call judge was contacted and after hearing the facts, granted the order against her son. Officer Millane then went to the cell block area and served the son with the order. Nice Work!

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE

On Friday, Nov. 9, at approximately 9:45 p.m., Officers Mike Kelly, Steve Brown, Steve Graham and Tara Waters along with Sgt. Mike O'Shea were dispatched to the area of the Kennedy Center at 440 East Squantum St. on a call of a 20ish male with a gray hoodie walking around with two machetes, one in each hand.

As officers were en route, updated reports were that the suspect was walking towards The Moorings at 420 East Squantum St. The initial search in the pouring rain did not produce any results.

Officer Kelly then met with the caller who said the male was alone and swinging the machetes about while walking. At this time, Officer Waters was checking the area of Ayers Brothers garage when she saw the suspect come out of the darkness without the machetes in his hands. She was joined by Officer Brown, and they approached the suspect and handcuffed him for their safety.

The suspect denied having the machetes but moments later Officer Graham found them pushed under a fence in the same area Officer Waters saw the suspect emerge out of the dark from. The suspect was patted down by Officer Waters and a box cutter was found on him.

The suspect, a 24-year-old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for two counts of carrying a dangerous weapon and transported to the station for booking. The suspect's vehicle, which was found nearby, was towed. Nice Work!

PROTECT YOUR PACKAGE DELIVERIES

As the holiday season approaches, there will be an increase in theft of packages off of doorways. To help prevent the loss, there are some tactics you can take:

• See if the online purchase can be delivered to the store for pick up for free.

• UPS, FEDEX and Amazon all operate locations where packages can be delivered

Amazon has locations at Whole Food Markets and some convenient stores. When you order, look for the nearest location. Last holiday season I had packages left off at a convenience store in North Quincy and it worked out well.

UPS and FEDEX require that you register an account and it is a simple process.

You can request that your package be delivered to a neighbor or specific location at your house, like a side door. UPS does not charge for the service however FEDEX may. (Excerpts from Kiplinger magazine/December 2018)

QUINCY POLICE ADULT SELF DEFENSE PROGRAM

This free program will be offered Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 27 and Nov. 28, a two- night course, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

This program is open to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a parent/guardian and there is no residency requirement. Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program.

There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with. The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

To sign up or get more information, contact Lt. Dan Minton at dminton@quincyma.gov or 617-745-5719.

Tree Lighting Friday At Hancock-Adams Common

86TH CITY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

North Quincy Red Raiders vs. Quincy Presidents

Raiders, Presidents Ready For THE GAME

By BRUCE MARQUIS

The 86th Thanksgiving Day football game between the North Quincy High School Red Raiders and the Quincy High School Presidents promises to be another hard-fought contest. Based on their respective records for this campaign, tomorrow's tilt is considered a toss-up with neither school having a clear advantage.

Nevertheless, an objective observer would probably give a slight nod to Quincy, which is relatively injury free and coming off successive wins, while North Quincy has several key players out and others continuing to compete with nagging injuries. It is common knowledge, however, that the emotion in this game rules out most other factors.

Noted as the "visiting" team at its own home field, Veterans' Memorial Stadium, the 3-7 Presidents lead the all-time series 47-33-5. They will be seeking to avenge the last two Turkey Day outcomes, both of which came down to the final plays of the respective tilts. The programs have split the last 10 games in the series. Obviously, the Raiders still have a way to go in order to catch up.

The 4-6 Red Raiders will be on a mission to make it three wins in a row against their arch rivals. The seniors will be looking to finish out by winning all their games since their freshman years, since their ninth-grade group won on the Little Turkey Day battle in 2015 over their freshman opponents.

The squads have had four common opponents this year – Marshfield, Pembroke, Silver Lake and Weymouth. Both local teams lost to Marshfield and Weymouth; they each bested Silver Lake; and Quincy outscored Pembroke 14-12 after North Quincy had lost 15-9 to the Titans albeit without their regular quarterback.

Other Raiders' victories came at the expense of Westwood, Archbishop Williams and Plymouth South. They were on the wrong side of the score in their home playoff game versus Plymouth South and other defeats were at the hands of Scituate and Hanover. The Presidents' third victory came against Durfee of Fall River. Quincy's very tough schedule included losses to Bay State members Braintree and Milton in addition to spankings from Whitman-Hanson, Duxbury and Hingham – all relative pigskin powerhouses.

One of the elements of this tradition that makes it unique and special is that it is a true intra-city rivalry. In addition to many of the players having competed on opposing teams in the Quincy Youth Football League, and at times even on the same squads, many have also played as teammates or opponents in soccer, basketball, hockey, baseball and lacrosse competitions within the Granite City. Sometimes the opposing players on Turkey Day are close friends, and in the case of President Tommy Le and Raider Tyler Le, they are first cousins. It doesn't get much closer than that unless it's civil war!

This will be the first time since 1999 that each team boasts a "rookie" head coach, and they both were star performers for the programs they are now leading.

Pigskin Gala Before Q-NQ Game

The 31st annual Pigskin Gala high school football tailgate party returns to Pageant Field on Thanksgiving morning with family fun, entertainment and a pregame breakfast spread free for all guests.

The event is open to the public and made possible by the support of many local businesses. It begins at 6 a.m. and ends at 10 a.m. in time for kickoff of the 86th annual Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game. Food is generally available by 7 a.m. and then throughout the event.

Proceeds from the event will be donated to the cheerleaders from both of Quincy's two public high schools, who will host a pep rally at the celebration before marching to Veterans' Memorial Stadium for the game.

The Pigskin Gala host committee last year donated $2,000 to the combined Quincy-North Quincy band program and anticipates donating an equal or greater amount to the cheerleading programs this year.

Pigskin Gala XXXI will also feature a performance of patriotic music by teenage bagpiper Patrick Sullivan, son of Daniel and Keri Mortimer Sullivan, both 1988 graduates of Quincy High School.

The Pigskin Gala is dedicated to the memory of long-time Pigskin Gala supporters and hosts Phyllis Buttomer and Nancy Byrne.

Kevin Carey explains that, "I am excited about this, but it is a new experience for me – I was used to being Bill Reardon's right-hand man and now I am the one in charge." He expects the contest to be "a tough battle. North Quincy has players that are fast and tough."

Carey says he still remembers the "heartbreak" when his Presidents' squad lost 14-7 on Thanksgiving Day 1993. Carey was a defensive back, and despite the lingering disappointment, he still considers Turkey Day his favorite holiday. "I have been around this traditional event for most of my life. In my senior year I knew most of the Raider players."

For this game he explains "It is my job to keep my players healthy and put the kids in the right spots." Coach Carey has exuded pride for his young men all year as the players have continued to improve through the grueling schedule.

Mentoring a team that is dominated by seniors, Carey will be expecting the culminative experience of his squad to be an important factor in the outcome. Led by senior captains Mark McKenna and Andrew Rooney, the Presidents count on its strong offensive line of seniors center Zac Carson, guards Patrick Nazzaro and McKenna, tackle Jalen Varela, and tight end Rooney, along with junior tackle Kevin Ferent, and backup from seniors Troy

Results From The 85 Games

Entering Thursday's 86th annual football game between the Quincy Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders, Quincy High School holds the edge with a 47-33-5 series record.

Last year, the Red Raiders defeated the Presidents 7-6 to win its second consecutive game in the storied series. NQ defeated Quincy 13-6 in 2016 snapping the Presidents' four-game winning streak.

Quincy had defeated North Quincy four straight times from 2012 to 2015. North Quincy was victories the three prior seasons (2009 - 2011) after the Presidents reeled off 10 straight wins (1999 - 2008).

The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs, while the 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 stalemate.

The series was last deadlocked at 7-7-3 going into the 1950 game.

Isaac and Jack Cook. Other seniors on offense are fullback T. J. Ortiz and receivers Colin Keaveny and Aidan O'Connell. Starting as underclassmen are sophomores quarterback Amarion Robinson and running back Isaiah Steinberg, and junior running back Tommy Le. Juniors Devin Desmond and Derek Little are effective receivers.

Quincy's ground game is usually its strength as Le and Steinberg will be running behind a stalwart offensive line that wears down the opposing defenses. Effective lead blocking is provided by Ortiz, who is occasionally given a rush to keep the defense off balance. Robinson has a variety of options when he passes with his key target being Rooney and other sure hands from wideouts Desmond, Little, Keaveny and O'Connell. Keaveny especially provides an inviting target in the end zone, where his exceptional height and superb hands are assets.

On defense Quincy counts on senior linemen J.J. Camara, Brian O'Connor and McKenna, with junior Devante Williams playing one tackle spot as well as handling kickoff duties for the Presidents. The linebackers are Le and Rooney. Senior Ryan Cefalo plays the roving monster back position. The defensive backs are Desmond, O'Connell, Robinson and Steinberg. Backup at linebacker and defensive back is provided by junior Shane Murphy. Rooney does the punting and placekicking for extra points and field goal tries.

North Quincy Head Coach Ryan Craig is also a veteran of this series having been a starter on the 1986-1988 Red Raider teams at running back and linebacker. He piled up enough yards on the ground to be the program's second all-time leader in that category.

Ryan's team also lost his senior year by a score of 29-21, partly due to a first half injury that took him out of the game while his squad was leading. "It still hurts and I feel sour about it until this day," said a pensive Craig. About the coming clash between the Quincy high schools, the Raiders' coach contends that "records don't matter. Both teams want to be city champs. For the seniors this will be the last time they play with their friends, and I remind them that each one that they have to play like every play is your last football play." He went on to say that "I am so proud of this group; they went through a lot in the offseason with the coaching changes and now through all these injuries."

North Quincy counts on its five senior captains for leadership, but fills out its platoons with juniors, sophomores, and at times freshmen. The expected senior offensive starters are quarterback captain Tim Layden, running backs captain Win Tran and Eric Hellmuth, center captain Joshua Dangora, guard Dimitri Dimitriou, and tackle captain Ryan Kelson. Other spots are filled by juniors guard Mike Levine and tackle Matt Scanlon, and sophomore backs/receivers Liam Hines, Tyler Le and Jamal Maximilien. Junior Raymond Chau may play some tight end.

It is uncertain as to whether or not senior captain all-around back Andrew Airosus will be able to suit up due to injury. He has been the Raiders' leading receiver with 225 yards on 24 receptions as well as a key member of the defensive secondary. Tran is the leading rusher with 649 yards on 130 carries followed by Hellmuth and Hines.

The defensive starters are projected to be: Dangora, Kelson, juniors Michael Gordon, Joshua Jackson and Levine on the line; senior Alex Atanassov and junior captain Jackson Zhau at linebackers, with Hellmuth, Hines, Le, Maximilien and possibly Layden as defensive backs. Senior Mike Ladas provides needed support at cornerback. If either Atanassov or Zhau cannot go, then sophomore Sean Jackson is expected to step up at linebacker. Levine leads his team in tackle with 63, followed by Joshua Jackson-59 and Atanassov-58.

Senior punter and kicker Kieran O'Driscoll often dictates field position with his booming kickoffs into the end zone for touchbacks, and his usually high and deep punts often pin the opponents deep in their own territory. Depending on the strength and direction of the wind on this fourth Thursday of November, O'Driscoll has the ability to drill 50+ yard field goals.

Primary backups for both units are likely to be senior Jonathan Knowles at receiver and defensive end, juniors Shane O'Connell at defensive back and receiver, Andrew Gott at receiver and backup QB, and lineman Kevin Dinh, as well as sophomores Alex Demeritt as a kick returner and receiver and Brendan Hines at DB. Also, O'Driscoll could fill in at critical times to back up the defensive line.

To no one's surprise, the likely key to the game will be the performances of the respective quarterbacks, Layden for the Raiders and Robinson for the Presidents. Both are outstanding runners, although the former has been the more effective passer. He has set the all-time North Quincy passing record with over 2,200 career yards and counting, and his 1,031 yards this year make him the first Raider QB to reach that milestone in the past 10 years. Among his 82 completions four have resulted in touchdowns.

Robinson, on the other hand, has continued to improve throughout this campaign. His mobility helps him stay active in and outside of the pocket, often delivering accurate throws on the run.

Put the turkey in the oven and get yourself down to Veterans' Memorial Stadium by 10 a.m.

North Quincy Perfect Seasons In 1966, 1992

North Quincy has twice entered the Thanksgiving Day game with a perfect season on the line: 1966 and 1992.

Ken McPhee had a role in both. On the 1966 squad, he was a starting guard. He was the head coach of the 1992 team.

The 1966 team, coached by Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and shut out Quincy, 8-0.

The 1992 team had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy, 20-0.

QATV Live Audio Of Q-NQ Football Game

Thursday's Thanksgiving football game between the Quincy Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders can be heard live on QATV-8.

Live audio coverage will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a pre-game show, followed by game coverage starting at 10 a.m. The game will be shown on QATV-8 several times Thanksgiving weekend.

The game can be seen Thanksgiving Day, at 4 p.m., 8 p.m. and midnight. Additional times include: Friday, Nov. 23 at noon and 8 p.m; Saturday, Nov. 24th at noon and 10 p.m.; Sunday, Nov. 25 at 8 p.m.

1970 Quincy Team Undefeated

Quincy's 1970 team, coached by Hank Conroy, had a spotless 9-0 record.

The Presidents defeated North Quincy that year, 16-6, and won the Greater Boston League title.

Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service Tuesday

The annual Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service will take place at Quincy Point Congregational Church on Tuesday, Nov. 20th at 7:30 p.m.

St. Joseph's Parish will co-host with QPCC and special music of the season will be sung during the service by choirs of both churches. The homilist will be Rev. Kimberly Murphy from QPCC.

The collection taken will go to St. Joseph's Food Pantry, as they serve the needy of the Quincy Point area. As is the tradition, a Community Service Award is presented to an individual who has been of great service to the community. This year's award will be presented to Joseph T. Desmond, Jr.

Desmond is active in many Quincy community service opportunities and serves his parish community of St. Joseph as well. Through the Boy Scouts, he participates in several annual service events, including the Houghs Neck Chowdafest, the Strawberry Festival, lobster dinners, and many other Eagle Scout projects that fellow scouts have organized. He has helped with a trail marker project at Black's Creek in Quincy, cleaning up the Crusher in Quincy, and many more.

Desmond has also served as an historical interpreter at the Quincy Church of the Presidents, leading tourists throughout the historical church and into the basement crypt to view the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

Desmond has also been available to help at St. Joseph's Church. He is an altar server as well as lector and has assisted with religious education in the past.

More recently, he brought together his Boy Scout work and his St. Joseph's service by undertaking his Eagle Scout project at St. Joseph's. The project involved the renovation of a garden area and the installation of a Rosary pathway. Working with local merchants, he obtained all of the necessary landscaping materials, the know-how and the flowers to create a new worship area that not only beautifies the grounds but also helps to promote prayer.

Refreshments will be served, in the church hall, following the service. All are welcome attend.

There will be bus service provided for residents of 1000 Southern Artery. Bus service will be as follows: Pick up: 1000 Southern Artery, East Wing at 6:50 p.m. and North Wing at 7 p.m. Return bus at 9 p.m.

Community Chanukah Celebration Dec. 2

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills and its Religious School will sponsor a Community Chanukah Celebration and Open House on Sunday, Dec. 2nd, from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the synagogue, 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.) in Milton.

The Chanukah Celebration will feature a program to highlight the Bet Hamikdash and ancient Jerusalem when the Temple was destroyed. It will include understanding the gates around Jerusalem, the olive groves where the fresh olive oil needed to be made, lighting the olive oil, and creating a picture on canvas using charcoal and olive oil.

Other Chanukah activities for children and light refreshments will be available, and the entire community is invited to enjoy this festive holiday celebration. Chanukah is an eight-day celebration of freedom, commemorating an ancient Jewish victory over tyranny and oppression against overwhelming odds. It is observed this year from the evening of Dec. 2nd through Dec. 10.

In addition, visitors are invited to meet Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, learn about the congregation's programs and activities, tour our building, and get information about our Religious School and joining our synagogue family. RSVPs are appreciated.

To RSVP or for more information, call 617-698-3394 or email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org.

There is free parking available, with overflow parking on nearby Pleasant Street. No parking is allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

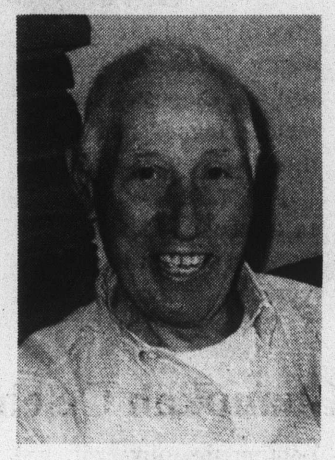
OBITUARIES

Luigi Rossi, 88



LUIGI ROSSI

A funeral Mass for Luigi "Louie" Rossi, age 88, of Quincy, was celebrated at noon Wednesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Rossi died peacefully Nov. 17 surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Ceprano, Italy, to the late Loreto and Rosa (Palleschi) Rossi. He was raised and educated there and immigrated to the United States in August of 1948 and had lived in Quincy for seventy years.

Mr. Rossi was employed as a laborer in the construction industry for forty-seven years and retired in 1997. He was a longtime member of Local 133. He was an avid gardener and enjoyed working around his home. Mr. Rossi was dedicated to his family and especially to his cherished grandchildren.

Beloved husband for sixty-one years of S. Genevieve (Stec) Rossi. Devoted father of Paul Rossi and his late wife Andria of North Attleboro, Robert Rossi and his wife Patricia of Sparta, New Jersey, Frederick Rossi and his wife Gina of Weymouth, Jennifer Shaw and her husband Robert of Weymouth. Loving grandfather of Michael Rossi, David Rossi, Katherine Rossi and Elizabeth Shaw. One of four siblings, he was predeceased by Adelina Rossi, Armando Rossi and Giovanna Ignagni. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy. Funeral from the funeral home at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, Memorial Contributions, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284-9168.

The Rossi family would like to thank the dedicated staffs at both the Dana Farber Cancer Clinic in South Weymouth and the South Shore Hospice for their outstanding care and comfort.

Patricia J. Sheldone, 52

PATRICIA J. SHELDONE

A funeral Mass for Patricia J. (McManus) Sheldone, 52, of Quincy was celebrated Tuesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Sheldone died unexpectedly at her home on Nov. 8.

Born in Boston, she was the daughter of the late James and Margaret (Roach) McManus. Mrs. Sheldone was a 1984 graduate of Quincy High School and the owner of A Mother's Touch Daycare, her own home business in Connecticut. She loved and was loved by many, but most important, were her three sons. Her greatest joys came from raising her three boys and watching them grow up.

Mrs. Sheldone was the beloved wife of the late Philip J. Sheldone. Devoted mother of Anthony Sheldone and his fiancée Caitlin Fruzzetti of Quincy, Tyler Sheldone of Quincy, and Attillio Sheldone of Braintree. Paul F. McCormack

A funeral Mass for Paul Francis McCormack, formerly of Squantum, was celebrated at 10:15 a.m. Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Weymouth.

Mr. McCormack died Nov. 16 at Alliance Health Care.

Beloved husband of the late Margaret "Jean" (Urquhart) McCormack. Devoted father of Joanne Flanagan and her husband William of Weymouth, Michael McCormack and his wife Diane of Salisbury, Stephen McCormack and his wife Julie of Quincy, Robert McCormack and his wife Susan of Weymouth, Paula MacLeod and her husband John of Weymouth, and Paul McCormack and his wife Kerry of East Bridgewater. Proud and cherished "Grampy" of 19 grandchildren and 5 great grandchildren. Dear brother of Nancy Mahoney of Norwell and the late Claire Donelan, Joseph, Mark, and Daniel McCormack. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. McCormack was raised in Meeting House Hill in Dorchester and was a longtime Squantum resident. Over the past year, after leaving North Quincy, he lived briefly at Allerton House in Weymouth. Mr. McCormack was very proud of his Dorchester roots; he enjoyed playing football and baseball at Ronan Park. He played in the Boston Park League for the Hamilton Club as a pitcher/outfielder at the age of 15. He organized the very successful Meeting House Hill reunions.

Mr. McCormack served in the Marine Corps during the Korean Conflict. He was a longtime member of Robert I. Nickerson Post #382. He served as an usher at Star of the Sea Church for over fifty years until its closure.

A teamster for over 35 years, he was employed by Navajo Freight Lines and ABF Freight Systems. Mr. McCormack was a member of the Local 504, 25, 42, and 653. He thoroughly enjoyed playing cards at the Kennedy Senior Center every Wednesday.

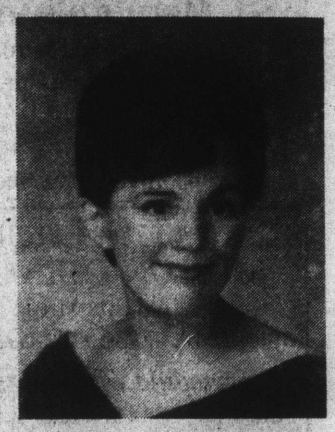
His family would like to thank the staff at Allerton House, Alliance Health Care, and Old Colony Hospice for their care and support of Mr. McCormack over the past year. He will be greatly missed by his family to whom he was so devoted.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Tuesday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A celebration of life service will be held there at 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 309 Waverly Rd., Waltham, MA 02452.

Regina M. Griffin, 74



REGINA M. GRIFFIN

A funeral Mass for Regina M. (Brennan) Griffin, 74, of Hanover, was celebrated Nov. 17 in St. Mary of the Sacred Heart Church, Hanover.

Mrs. Griffin died Nov. 13.

She was born and raised in Quincy. She graduated from Quincy (North) High School and Bridgewater State University. Mrs. Griffin had a passion for education and she loved children, which led her to a career as an elementary school teacher. She also helped run a family printing business for many years. Later, she became a court reporter in the Massachusetts Superior Court system for almost 30 years.

Mrs. Griffin was a beloved wife, mother and grandmother. She believed in living life with "quiet courage." She adored her family, who she taught to live with love, joy and kindness. She had a quick wit, tremendous faith, indomitable strength and an irrepressible optimism. She loved to be outdoors. She enjoyed her gardens, her pool and long walks in the woods near her house. She had a passion for the arts, which she expressed through song, painting and playing the bassoon and clarinet. Mrs. Griffin was, and will always be, the heart and soul of her family. She always put family first and we are all the better for having known such a loving and selfless person.

She was the daughter of the late Joseph and Johanna Brennan and is survived by her husband Daniel E. Griffin III; her children Christine M. Griffin and husband Stevan A. Brasel of Dover, Susan P. Griffin of Rockland, and Daniel E. Griffin IV and wife Eleonore K. Griffin of Cambridge; her grandchildren Vivian M. Brasel and Daniel E. Griffin V; and her siblings Mary Parker of NH, Dianne Sylvester of NH, Kathleen Cataldo of Attleboro, Peter Brennan of Plymouth, and the late Geraldine Higgins, Dolores Brennan, Joseph Brennan, Dennis Brennan and Debra Brennan. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Stetson Meadows Cemetery, Norwell.

Koch To Start Zoning Code Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch will start the process of reviewing Quincy's zoning code after the City Council unanimously approved a resolution seeking just that.

Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, told councillors on Nov. 13 the mayor supports a review of Quincy's zoning law and would introduce an appropriation to hire a consultant for that purpose.

"Without question we will be supportive of this and will be introducing an appropriation to make it happen," Walker said.

"It's been since 2011 since we last codified the zoning code…that was a very extensive process. We got a lot done. Prior to that, it had been 30 or 40 years [since] we took a wholesale look at the zoning ordinance."

City Council President Brad Croall had introduced a resolution that evening seeking a review of the zoning code, which would also include an analysis of the city's housing stock. Croall noted more than 4,000 residential units had been permitted since the last codification of the zoning code in 2011, and said the zoning rules should be updated to reflect those changes.

"I think it was Wayne Gretzky who made the quote famous, 'Don't skate to where the puck is, skate to where it's going.' I think that's essentially what your zoning bylaws should reflect," Croall said.

"There is tremendous appetite to continue to grow the city. It's my humble opinion that we need to put the neighborhoods in the best position possible to maintain that character, maintain that integrity and maintain that special uniqueness that each neighborhood has throughout the city."

Croall's colleagues supported his call for a review of the zoning code.

"I think this is a very worthy initiative, especially as we in the city are seeing development like we haven't seen in decades," said Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, adding the review should also look at ways to make the city more affordable for more families.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the city should look to create more housing that is affordable for current residents of the city.

"The issues relative to where development is happening and who it's happening for are very significant. When I say who it's happening for – luxury buildings compared to workforce housing," Palmucci said.

"I think our priorities are changing as a city – and perhaps as a council – when it comes to incentivizing and showing a need and a strong preference for affordable and workforce housing in the city of Quincy. When you look at what's being built, it's luxury. It's $2,800 for a two-bedroom apartment."

Flags For Veterans Island Tree Lighting Dec. 1 In Memory Of Robert Noble

The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post, will hold its annual tree lighting ceremony Saturday, Dec. 1 at 5 p.m. at Flags for Veterans Island, School and Pleasant Streets, Quincy.

This year's ceremony will be in memory of Robert Noble, World War II veteran and ex-POW, who was active for many years in veterans and civic causes. Mr. Noble passed away Aug. 7. He was 92 years old.

Mr. Noble was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Army Air Corps, 87th Infantry "Golden Acorn" Division, U.S. Air Force Reserve, Ex-Prisoner of War and a Bronze Star recipient.

The public is welcome to attend the tree lighting ceremony.

Santa is expected to attend and there will be cookies, candy cakes and hot chocolate.

NQHS Sports Proposed To Move To South Shore League

ing to the subcommittee's minutes, Shaw said that the non-league games would give North Quincy's coaches and administrators the opportunity to observe and gather information on South League teams and how joining the league would affect transportation to and from games, the playing atmosphere ad degree of competition.

Presently the South Shore League includes high schools from Abington, Carver, Cohasset, East Bridgewater, Hull, Mashpee, Middleboro, Norwell, Randolp and Rockland.

Gutro said that changing leagues would affect all North Quincy High's sports teams and that the whole school would have to change leagues, not just certain teams.

In response to a question from committee member Paul Bregoli about the MIAA process of changing leagues, the meeting's minutes state that Shaw explained the MIAA must be notified of the intent to change leagues. The MIAA would then have to vote on the school leaving the Patriot League, requiring a two-thirds vote. The South Shore League officials would then have to vote on accepting the school.

Quincy High School Athletic Director Kevin Mahoney stated Marshfield High School's petition to enter the Patriot League has allowed the Presidents to move into the Fisher Division and that Quincy High could petition to remain in this division permanently.

Gutro reported Quincy High Principal Lawrence Taglieri stated the school is competitive in the Fisher Division of the Patriot League and that it would be difficult to be competitive in the Keenan Division, especially for football, with Marshfield in the league. During the season, Quincy High plays Fisher Division teams twice and Keenan teams once.

The Red Raiders competed for many years in the Atlantic Coast and Old Colony Leagues. Several years ago, North Quincy moved into the Patriot League.

Both athletic directors said participation in most of this fall's sports teams has increased.

At the middle school level, more than 200 students competed in cross country and just over 160 students participated in tennis. This winter, there will be swimming, wrestling, and volleyball offered for middle school.

Niamkey noted there is growing interest among middle school students to participate in high school tennis.

George Burke Attending 75th Quincy-NQ Game

Quincy attorney George Burke, a 1950 graduate of Quincy High School, will attend his 75th consecutive Thanksgiving Day football game between the Quincy Presidents and North Quincy Red Raiders.

Burke said this is a record for consecutive games attended. He was inducted into the Quincy High School Football, Baseball and Basketball Halls of Fame. He is also a member of the Thayer Academy Basketball Hall of Fame, UMass Amherst Basketball Hall of Fame and the New England Basketb all Hall of Fame.

Burke donated $100,000 to build the fitness center at Quincy High School and is widely used by students of the school.

The Clergy Corner

What Do We Have To Be Grateful For? . . . A Lot!

By DAVID GODFREY

"Glory, honor, praise and pure oblations unto God the Lord belong: Come into His presence with thanksgiving, come before Him with a song"

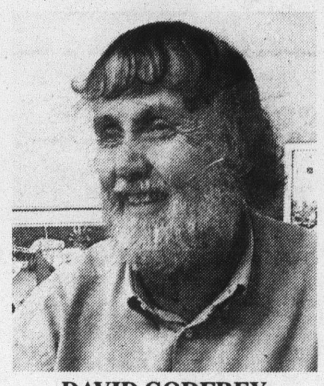
(Christian Science Hymnal).

Thanksgiving is one of my favorite holidays. It provides a pause in life's hustle and bustle, and an opportunity to remember how God has blessed me over the past year. The world tends to keep our attention focused on the negative events happening. As a result, we too often forget the bumper crop of good that God is constantly providing us.

Remember the story of Jesus feeding the multitude, when it looked like there was almost nothing to eat? Talk about a thanksgiving dinner! "And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude. And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full. And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, beside women and children" (Matt 14:19-21).

Feeding the multitude was not only showing God's constant care for His children, but also that supply is not dependent on the perhaps meager provisions we have on hand. Mary Baker Eddy, a New England woman who was healed through prayer after a severe fall on an icy street and later discovered what she named Christian Science, writes: "In the scientific relation of God to man, we find that whatever blesses one blesses all, as Jesus showed with the loaves and the fishes, — Spirit, not matter, being the source of supply" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures).

Giving thanks to God is important, because it lifts our thought off our limited perspective to our abundantly giving Father. He's our friend, provider, care giver, protector . . . our EVERYTHING! The Bible states: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning" (James 1:17-18). That sort of uninterrupted consistency and love only comes from God, and it provides a security we can trust.



DAVID GODFREY

Support, Thank Those Who Have Quit Smoking

This Thanksgiving, I'd like to remind readers to thank a co-worker, friend or family member who has quit smoking, vaping, or using other nicotine products. Many users say quitting is the hardest thing they have ever done and any amount of recognition can help someone stay quit.

Tobacco is the number one cause of preventable death and disease in Massachusetts. Nicotine is the very addictive substance in tobacco products as well as in e-cigarettes and vapes. As a result, repeated tobacco and nicotine use is not a habit, it's an addiction that should be treated as a chronic relapsing condition.

It takes most people with a nicotine addiction several tries to quit for good. So reach out to those who have conquered this addiction. Let them know you are proud of how hard they're working to quit. Thank them for improving their health and the health of the people around them.

If you smoke, vape or use any nicotine product and have tried to quit in the past, keep trying.

Tobacco and nicotine users of all kinds can call the MA Smokers Helpline at 1-800-QUIT-NOW (1-800-784-8669) to talk with a free quit coach or enroll online through KeepTryingMA.org. The Helpline is open 24 hours each day, seven days a week (excluding Thanksgiving and Christmas). They can receive a four-week supply of free nicotine replacement help from the patch, gum or lozenge.

Online supports include quit planning tools, peer support and motivational text messages.

Smokers who get support and use stop-smoking medicines are nearly three times as likely to quit for good as those who try to quit on their own.

Quitting is hard—give thanks to someone in your life for quitting or for trying to quit. Every text message, phone call, or encouraging word makes a difference.

Budsy Pettinelli, Richard Drake Great Men

It should be noted that Quincy High School basketball lost two of its greatest men. On Oct. 2, we lost Guido "Budsy" Pettinelli at the age of 92 and on Oct. 8 we lost Richard Drake at the age of 86.

For many years Budsy Pettinelli's life was dedicated to Quincy High School basketball. He played in 1942 for the Quincy High School basketball team. He spent many hours raising money for the Quincy High School basketball team and he also ran the Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame in which I was his assistant.

Budsy Pettinelli was a great citizen of Quincy and we owe him many thanks for all he gave to this city.

Richard Drake was the last remaining member of the starting five state basketballs championship team in 1951. He was named All Team New England in high school. All members of that starting five team are deceased.

These two great legends of Quincy High School basketball will be sorely missed.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep your feelings to yourself as you work through an awkward circumstance. Complaining is useless, and also unwise since your words could come back to haunt you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A sudden flash of Bovine practicality shows you how you might be able to turn your artistic pursuits into a profitable venture. A spouse or partner offers some sage advice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be prepared with several "Plan Bs" that you might have to use as backups just in case you encounter some troublesome complications with your carefully constructed schedule.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might think you'll never have a free moment again with the demands of the workplace piling on. Cheer up. The pressure eases as holiday time nears. An old friend brings good news.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Leonine pride might make it difficult to offer an apology to a co-worker you unintentionally offended. But a quick and sincere "I'm sorry" could prevent problems down the line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to tackle those backed-up chores that have kept you from moving into other and potentially more worthwhile projects. A personal matter needs your attention.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You usually have no problem rushing to the defense of someone you perceive as being treated unjustly. But perceptions could be deceiving this week. Check the facts before you act.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before you point fingers at who might be to blame for the unexpected change in your plans, take a few moments to reflect on how this turn of events might be a blessing in disguise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You seek out advice in the first part of the week. But be careful not to let counsel from others overshadow your own sense of perception. Things become clearer by the week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The trusted colleagues you relied on earlier continue to offer support with your project. But you take more control, and by the week's end, you should be in full command.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Rely on your practical side while exploring investment possibilities. Caution is still your watchword in these matters. Your social life takes a gratifying turn by the week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An already confusing situation appears to grow murkier during the first part of the week. But it all starts to clear by the week's end. Plan to spend the weekend with someone special.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a passion for life that inspires others to follow your example. You could be a motivational speaker.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Zac Efron, who showed his musical skills in last year's "The Greatest Showman," has completed shooting the comedy "Beach Bum," with Matthew McConaughey, Isla Fisher and Jonah Hill, for a March 22 release. Efron plays serial killer Ted Bundy in "Extremely Wicked, Shockingly Evil and Vile," with Lily Collins, Jim Parsons and John Malkovich (now in post-production), and is headed for "Blood Moon," with Kate Hudson and Craig Robinson. It may get a name change, as there have been four previous films with the same title.

Mel Gibson, worth an estimated $425 million, is making up for the time lost when he was in trouble with four upcoming films. He's filmed "Professor and the Madman," with Sean Penn, Jeremy Irvine and Natalie Dormer; the crime thriller "Dragged Across Concrete," with Vince Vaughn and Don Johnson; the sci-fi action film "Boss Level," with Naomi Watts, Frank Grillo, Ken Jeong and Rob Gronkowski; and the thriller "Waldo" (for next summer) with Charlie Hunnam. Time seems to heal all wounds.

Italian film star Roberto Benigni won a best-actor Oscar for "Life is Beautiful" (1997), climbing over movie stars and seats to get the award from Sophia Loren (wouldn't you?), then took on the title role, at 50, of "Pinocchio" (which bombed) in 2002. Benigni now plans to try again, this time (at 66) as Geppetto, which shoots in Italy next year. He was last billed behind Woody Allen and Alec Baldwin in Allen's 2012 film "To Rome With Love."

Emily Blunt, soon to delight in "Mary Poppins Returns" (in theaters Dec. 19), is boarding Dwayne Johnson's "Jungle Cruise," with Jack Whitehall and Paul Giamatti (which doesn't arrive until 2020), while husband John Krasinski is shooting season two of Amazon's "Jack Ryan" TV series.

Warner Brothers and Bradley Cooper, who made "A Star Is Born," and 20th Century Fox, which made "Bohemian Rhapsody," have submitted their films for the Golden Globes in the drama category instead of the musical/comedy category, preferring not to be lumped with "Mary Poppins Returns," "Mamma Mia, Here We Go Again," Natalie Portman's "Vox Lux" and comedies.

Did you know that "Bohemian Rhapsody's" Queen composed and performed the score for the 1980 film "Flash Gordon," with Sam Jones (as Flash), Max Von Sydow and former James Bond Timothy Dalton? "Flash Gordon" was a movie serial from 1936-1938 with Olympic gold medal swimmer Buster Crabbe, and a SyFy series in 2007-08. Now they want to remake it in IMAX and 3D. Sam Jones was discovered by producer Dino DeLaurentis when he saw him on "The Dating Game." The film barely broke even.

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Schuco Stuffed Bears --- Are the Schuco stuffed bears made by the famous German Schuco company that made the very collectible toy cars? The German company started making clockwork and other mechanical tin toys in 1912 as Schreyer & Co. in Nuremberg, Germany. The name was changed to Schuco in 1921. The company designed and made many clever toys that moved.

Teddy bears were added during the 1920s, and some were miniature bears that held a bottle inside. The famous "Yes/No" bear moved its head when you moved its tail up and down or sidewise. The business faced many reorganizations, and new companies formed in Germany and the U.S. until 1972, when it declared bankruptcy. It was later acquired and is now part of Simba Dickie Group, a major toy company.

The Schuco company in the U.S. made teddy bears in the 1920s with black button eyes. A few years later, the bears had jointed arms, jointed legs and flat feet, and by 1925, some of them could walk. An early 1930s Schuco Yes/No stuffed spaniel in nice condition with cut-glass eyes recently sold at a Bertoia Auctions auction for $900, although many Schuco toys sell today for less than $300.

Q: I inherited a carved wooden cane with a hidden sword in it. The cane is about 37 1/2 inches long and the blade is about 18 1/2 inches. The carved handle head looks Egyptian, and there are carved designs down the entire cane. It has a metal tip and a metal piece with a button to release the blade. I can't find any markings on it. Any information including approximate value would be helpful.

A: Canes were popular accessories for the well-dressed man from the 1700s to the early 1900s. Gadget canes, which are canes that have special features or conceal items, are popular with collectors. Canes have been made that conceal swords and other weapons, flasks, lighters, fans, perfume bottles, pool cues, tools and other items. The cane's value is determined by the material of the head, intricate hand carving and special features. A carved sword cane with overall leaf and vine carving sold for $360 recently, but several more common sword canes went for $25-$55.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was way back in the 19th century that American author and philosopher Henry David Thoreau made the following sage observation: "Men have become the tools of their tools."

* If you were asked to name the U.S. state that is geographically closest to the continent of Africa, you might be tempted to say Florida. You'd be wrong, though; the closest state is actually Maine.

* If you're like most parents, at some point you've been shocked by how quickly your kids outgrow things -- especially shoes. What may be an annoyance in a developed country is a major problem in undeveloped areas of the world; Kenton Lee is working on changing that. As a volunteer in an orphanage in Kenya, he noticed that many children had the toes cut out of their shoes just so they could fit in their growing feet. After returning home, Lee developed an adjustable sandal that can grow with a child, increasing up to five sizes using a system of snaps. Although the shoe is only available to nonprofits that send them to organizations in need, domestic demand is increasing. If you're a parent sick of buying seemingly endless pairs of new shoes, you'll be glad to hear that Lee and his team are working on a commercial version.

* It was beloved British author (and, of course, creator of Sherlock Holmes), Sir Arthur Conan Doyle who introduced the sport of skiing to Switzerland, thereby transforming that snowy country into a premier tourist destination.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "We have a cookie-making party every year, and we serve a nice lunch before launching into the cookies. This year, we decided to be very festive and used cookie cutters for napkin rings. They were raved about!" -- B.L. in New Jersey

* Jazz up your cookie game with these add-ins: butterscotch morsels, coconut flakes, toasted pine nuts, sea salt, malted milk balls, caramel chunks, salted or honey-roasted peanuts, sour candies, hot chocolate mix, instant coffee granules, crushed cookies or graham crackers.

* "World's Best Mitten Tip: Here's how my mom keeps us in mittens for more than five minutes during the winter. Measure a piece of string or yarn that is as long as your arms' length -- with arms stretched out to the sides, fingertip to fingertip, plus 12 inches or so. Secure a mitten to each end of the string -- you might have to make a small hole if your mittens are not woven. Now thread them through the sleeves of your favorite coat so that the mittens hang from the arm holes. Secure the middle point of the string to the coat's tag. Now, when you put your coat on, your mittens are there at your hands. If you don't want to wear them, you can tuck them back up in the sleeve. You will not lose them and they stay together." -- M.R. in Minnesota

* Bring back the life of a washable marker that's been dried out. Run the tip under a slow stream of tap water for 60 seconds, then wrap the tip in plastic and cap it. Let sit for an hour.

Send your tips to Now Here's a Tip, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, FL 32803.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

By His Excellency, JOHN HANCOCK, Esquire,

Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts,

A PROCLAMATION,

For a Day of THANKSGIVING.

It being our indispensable duty as a people, in a public and religious manner, to acknowledge the preserving and Governing providence of Almighty God, and more especially to celebrate the Divine Goodness in the various blessings conferred upon us in the course of the year past.

I have therefore thought fit, with the advice and consent of the Council, to appoint, and do hereby appoint THURSDAY the Twenty-Fifth Day of NOVEMBER next, to be religiously observed as a Day of THANKSGIVING throughout this Commonwealth; hereby calling upon Ministers and people of all denominations, in their several assemblies, to unite with grateful hearts in celebrating the Praises of Almighty GOD, of His great goodness and bounty vouchsafed [given] to a sinful and unworthy people; particularly for the great and signal interpositions of His Providence in behalf of the United States in the course of the late contest, and that after being rescued from the dangers and calamities of war; peace has been restored to us, and that our public affairs are in so promising and happy a situation; for granting to us a plentiful harvest in the great abundance of the fruits of the earth; for the general health enjoyed throughout this State during the course of the year, and preventing epidemical and mortal distempers from spreading among us; reviving our trade, navigation and fishery and protecting the same from the insults of Pirates and other disasters; for directing and succeeding our public Councils, and above all for continuing to us the light of the blessed Gospel, and securing to us our religious and civil liberties and privileges.

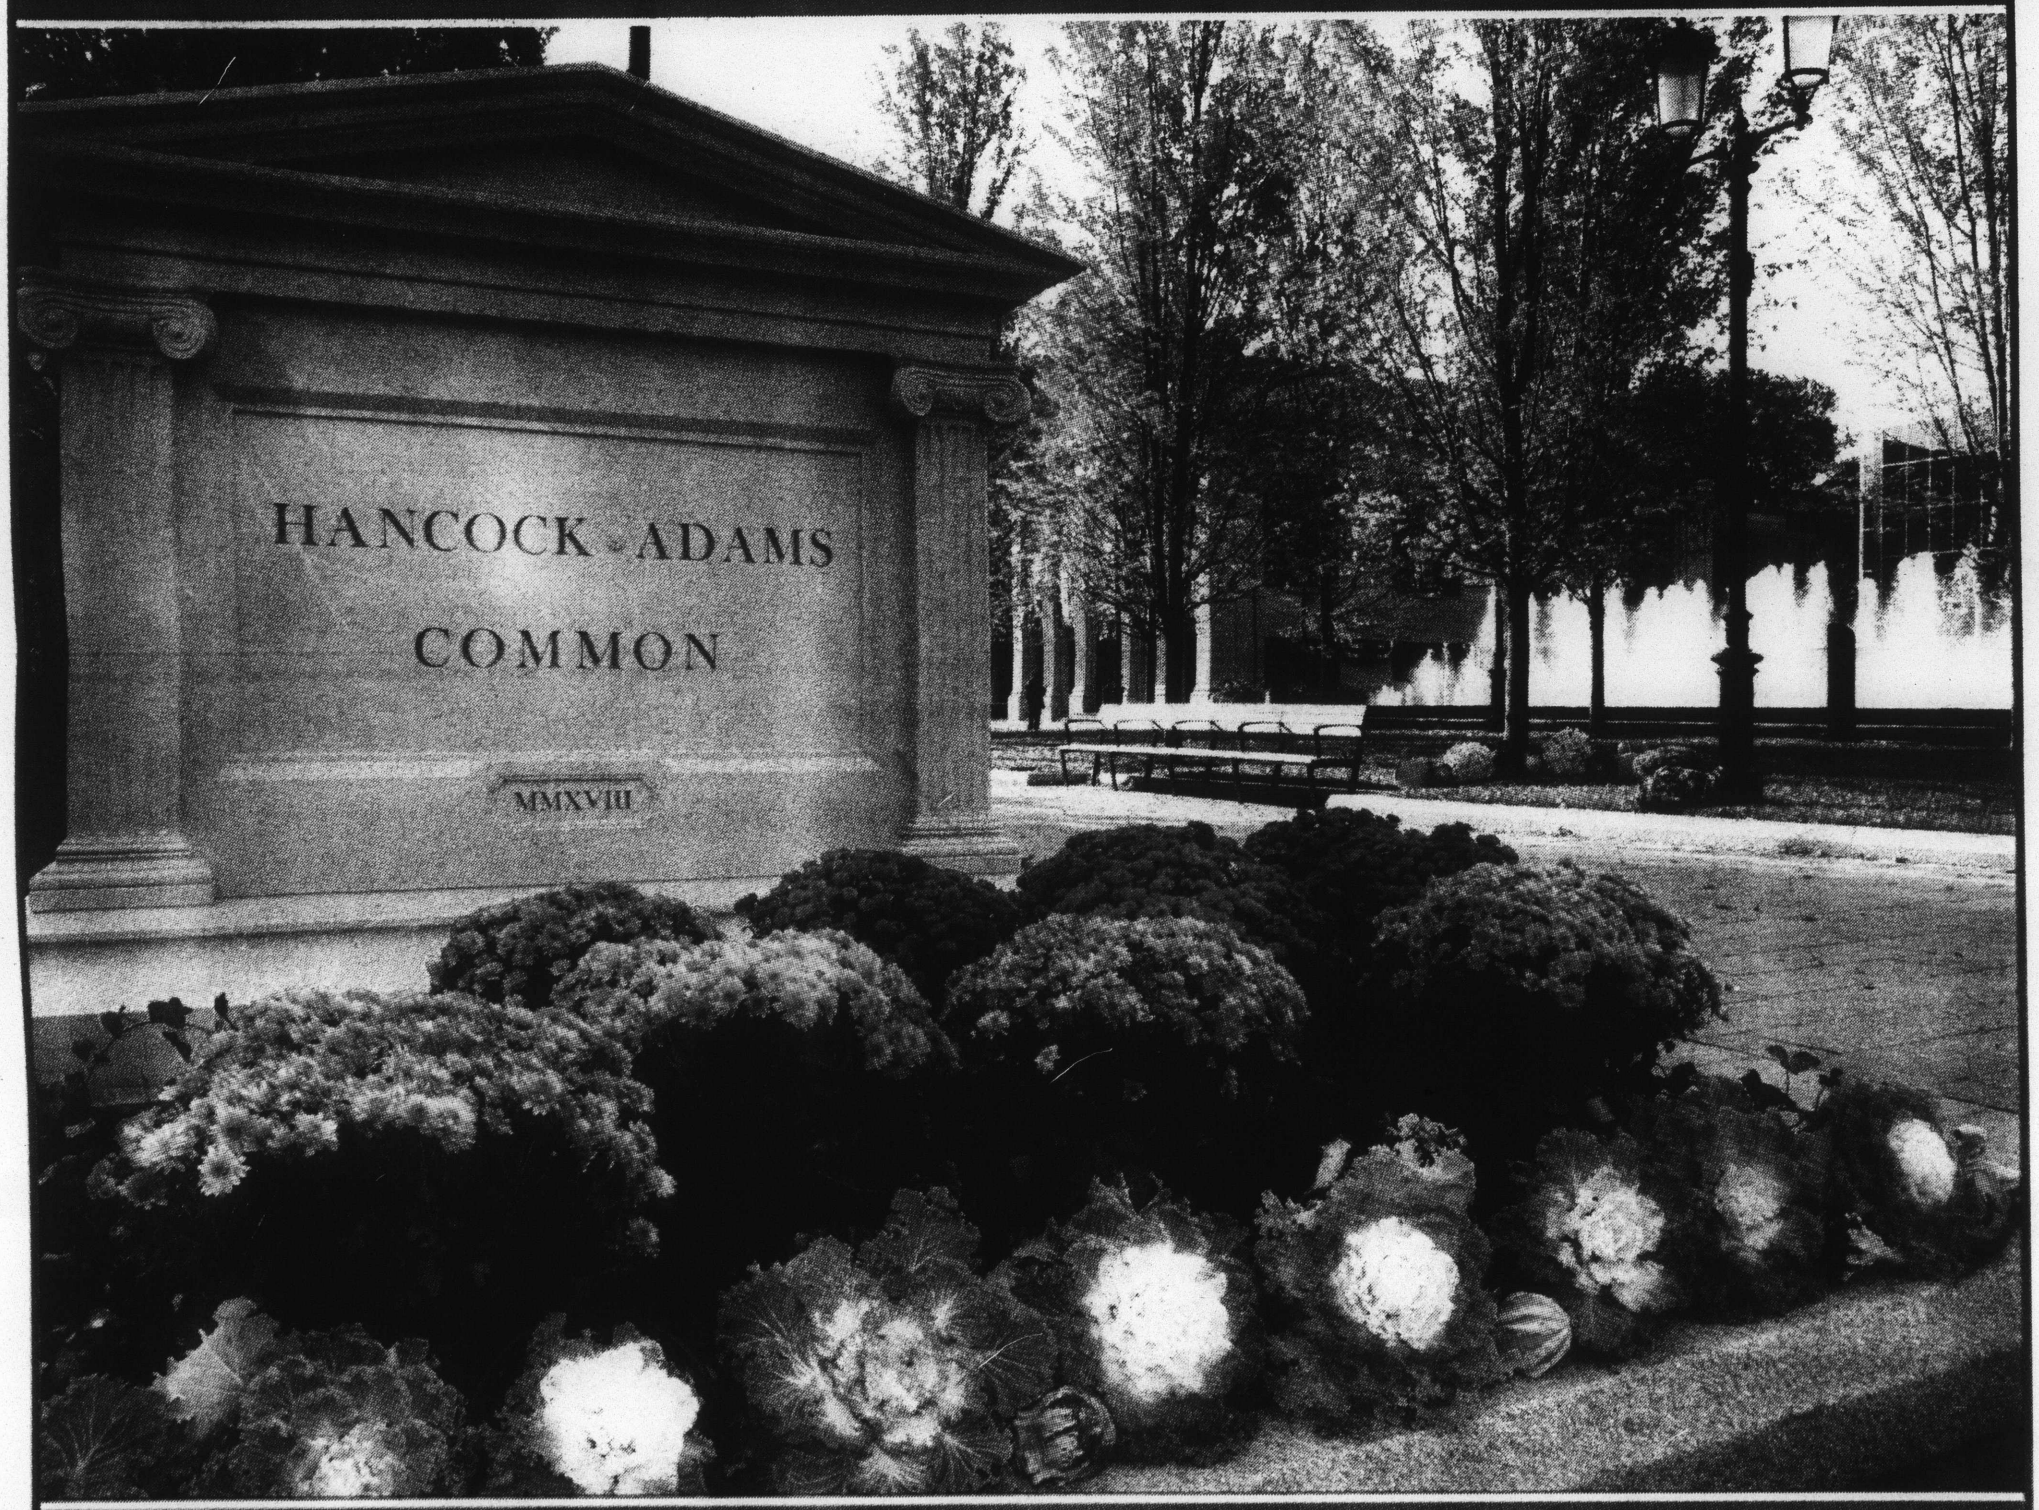
And to join with their praises their earnest and humble supplications to Almighty GOD, for the pardon of our past ingratitude and other transgressions; and that He would grant that all instances of the Divine goodness may have an effectual influence for working a general reformation in all orders of persons among us; that so we may be that happy people, whose GOD is the LORD, and that ALL nations may bow to the scepter of our LORD and SAVIOR JESUS CHRIST, and that the whole Earth may be filled with His Glory.

GIVEN at the Council-Chamber in Boston, the 28th day of October, in the Year of our Lord, one Thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, and in the ninth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

JOHN HANCOCK.

By his Excellency's Command,
JOHN AVERY, Jun. Secretary
GOD save the Commonwealth of MASSACHUSETTS.

Happy Thanksgiving



We thank God for all of the gifts bestowed on us and ask for His continued blessings over our city and for our families and loved ones.

With gratitude,
Mayor Tom & Christine Koch

Helping Hands Stepping Up This Holiday Season

What Charities Need, How Public Can Help

By SCOTT JACKSON

With Thanksgiving over, the holiday season is in full swing.

For many, it is a time to celebrate and be with loved ones, a time to give and get gifts, a time to be merry.

It's also a time to give back to those in need, and many local charities are asking the community to do just that.

Local organizations expect to help more needy residents this December than in years past. They assist individuals and families in myriad ways, providing food, clothing, toys, shelter, and other services. Those organizations are in need of help through donations, whether they be food, toys or cash. Many of them also rely on volunteers and are in need of help – not just in December, but all 12 months of the year.

Here is a list of some local organizations, what they need, and how the public can get involved and help out neighbors in need.

The Salvation Army is offering its Christmas assistance program to children and families this year as it has in years past, providing families with food and children with toys.

The Salvation Army's Quincy Corps expects to provide food to 300 families this Christmas, Captain Amber Maynor said.

The Quincy Corps is in particular need of toys this holiday season, she stated.

"We are always looking for toys," Maynor said. "With that many kids, we want to be able to give them a few toys each."

Toys they are looking for include musical toys, Leap-

Penn's Hill Residential Parking Rules Start Dec. 3

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new residential parking program in the Penn's Hill neighborhood will begin Monday, Dec. 3, the same day the long-closed pedestrian entrance to the Quincy Adams MBTA station on Independence Avenue opens.

Chris Cassani, Quincy's director of traffic and parking, met with residents to discuss the new parking rules during a community Nov. 20. About 50 people attended the meeting inside the First Presbyterian Church.

The new rules will apply in an area spanning from Water Street south to the Braintree town line, and from the MBTA tracks east to Franklin Street. Signs will be posted on those streets this week, before the parking program begins.

Kendrick Avenue and several neighborhood roads to the east of Franklin Street had originally been included in the area in which the new rules would apply, but Cassani said those streets have been removed from the affected area. City officials opted against enforcing the new rules on those streets because they do not believe T commuters would park so far away from Quincy Adams, based on what happens at the city's other three train stations.

"We don't see people parking this far away – an eight- or nine- or 10-minute or 12-minute walk away – from any of our other train stations," Cassani said.

He also noted it takes about four or five minutes to get from the gate on In-

Community Leaders To Ring Bell For Salvation Army

9 AM - 4 PM Today (Thursday) And Thursday, Dec. 6 Near City Hall

The first of two days for the 22nd annual Community Leader Kettle to benefit The Salvation Army Quincy Corps will take place near Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., today (Thursday) Nov. 29.

The kettle will be set up in the Hancock-Adams Common near the John Adams Statue.

The second day for the community leader kettle will be held Thursday, Dec. 6 at the same location.

Hours for the kettle on both days are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

More than 50 civic and city leaders are volunteering their time to ring the bell at the community leader kettle. The kettle to benefit The Salvation Army was established 22 years ago by the late Henry W. Bosworth, Jr., founder and longtime publisher of The Quincy Sun.

Mr. Bosworth, who coordinated the kettle for many years, passed away in February 2009. He was a longtime member of the Quincy Salvation Army Advisory Board. For the last 10 years, the kettle has been coordinated by Mr. Bosworth's son, Robert, who is now the publisher of The Quincy Sun and also a member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Over the past 21 years, the kettle has raised $80,023 – including $8,147 last year – to benefit The Salvation Army and its mission of helping the needy during the holiday season and year-round. This includes toys and other holiday support for those in need, along with funding for food pantries, social services, and education programs.

In recent years, a "Christmas in July" kettle set up in the summer outside The Quincy Sun has also been manned by community leaders. The July kettle has raised $9,249 bringing total raised by the two community leader kettles to $89,275 for The Salvation Army Quincy Corps.

Capt. Amber Maynor and Capt. Kyle Maynor, officers of The Salvation Army Quincy Corps on Baxter Street in Quincy, said the Red Christmas Kettle campaign continues to be the strongest form of fundraising for the Salvation Army in Quincy. Donations are used year round to support the less fortunate. This

City Mourns Loss Of Eagle Scout, QHS Senior Lucien Theberge

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy community is morning the loss of Lucien Theberge, an 18-year-old Quincy High School senior who is being remembered for giving back to his hometown.

Mr. Theberge was killed Friday morning in a car crash on Interstate 93 in New Hampshire. A 16-year-old riding in the car with him was seriously injured in the crash.

Mr. Theberge was an Eagle Scout and a member of the National Honor Society, robotics program and tennis team at Quincy High School. He had been a newscarrier for The Quincy Sun for the past seven years, worked at Curry Hardware for nearly three years and recently began an internship a Dive Technologies in Quincy.

"He's just an incredible public servant at such a young age," Mr. Theberge's father, Ray, said Monday.

Mayor Thomas Koch said helping others was Mr. Theberge's passion.

"Luc was a tremendous young man with a great passion for helping others and a great love for his community," the mayor said in a statement. "His volunteerism, his thoughtfulness and his work ethic at such a young age were all signs of a truly unlimited potential as a citizen of this city. Luc's father, Ray, and their entire family will remain in my prayers."

Lawrence Taglieri, the principal at Quincy High School, said Mr. Theberge was an outstanding classmate and student.

"It certainly affected our school. Our thoughts are with the Theberge family," Taglieri said Monday. "He was an excellent student – an engineering major. He had great relationships with his peers, was a terrific classmate and had an unbelievable connection with staff."

The school opened its doors Saturday for any students and staff that wanted to come together, Taglieri said, and many did just that. Guidance counselors were also available on Monday when classes resumed after the Thanksgiving break. Taglieri said fellow students have started a memorial for their classmate outside the engineering department.

Mr. Theberge, a member of Boy Scout Troop 42, received the Eagle Scout award after he constructed a new outdoor classroom at the Charles A. Bernazzani School. The Michelle Theberge Memorial Outdoor Classroom was named in honor of Mr. Theberge's late mother, who her son credited with instilling in him the values of community service and dedication. The outdoor classroom was ded-

FROM ANCIENT TIMES TO THE PRESENT

Turquoise, the birthstone for the month of December, has been prized for its blue-sky color and healing powers by the ancient Egyptians, Chinese, Tibetans, Persians, and Native Americans. Its name is derived from the French term "pierre torques," which means "Turkish stone," reflecting the fact that turquoise most likely first made it to European shores in the thirteenth century from Turkey. Carved by Chinese artisans for over 3,000 years and embraced as the national gemstone of Tibet, turquoise has long been favored with a guarantee of health, good fortune, and protection from evil. While turquoise is most often associated with the exemplary jewelry of Southwest Native Americans, it is also favored by today's jewelry designers in contemporary styles.

Should you go back to a 30-year mortgage?

People are thinking about mortgages differently. Right now we're seeing borrowers who went with shorter terms going back to a 30-year loan. Some are tapping their equity for home improvements, college tuition or to consolidate other debt at a locked-in guaranteed low rate. Others just want a more comfortable monthly payment, less stress and more cash flow. It works because mortgage rates are still so low. And If you want, you can always pay the new 30-year loan off more aggressively, but you don't have to. Would a new 30-year mortgage make sense for you? year's kettle campaign goal is $133,000.

"These donations are used all year long to support the costs of our social services and other programs such as music, feeding, and youth character development programs," the Maynors said. "The Salvation Army's current brand is 'Doing the Most Good.' While that is our ambition and passion to meet as many needs as we can, our local motto here in Quincy is 'Fighting for good, for God.' We are a church who loves God and loves others, out of the abundance of love God has shown us.

"We are on a mission to compact the darkness the world has thrown upon us, looking to show love in practical ways. We are still fighting and still need of individuals to join us to help meet humans needs. It takes everyone together, an army, to tackle the task. We hope that you consider joining us this season, in helping us reach not only our monetary goal for the Red Kettle Campaign, but the goal to change lives through these donations.

Here is the line-up of volunteers manning the Community Leader kettle:

Rev. Dr. Jack Connell Named Eastern Nazarene College President

By SCOTT JACKSON

Eastern Nazarene College's Board of Trustees has tabbed an administrator from a Christian liberal arts school in New York as the next president of the Quincy-based college.

The Rev. Dr. Jack Connell, currently the provost and dean of the faculty at Houghton College in Houghton, N.Y., has been named the 14th president of ENC. Dr. Russell Long, chairman of ENC's Board of Trustees, announced the hiring of Connell on Nov. 19.

"We have made prayer a priority during the search for our next president, and frequently we have been reminded that God has been working behind the scenes," Long said in a statement. "While we were searching, God was preparing Dr. Connell for this assignment. A former president of Roberts Wesleyan made the comment that he believed God had saved Jack for this assignment. We feel that confirmation as well in that he is uniquely prepared for the multiple challenges we face."

Long said the selection of Connell followed an exhaustive, national search led by a committee of trustees, faculty and staff from the college that featured a talented and competitive pool of candidates. Long said Connell's career in both higher education and ministry, and his vision for ENC's future, resonated with the search committee.

Connell will begin his tenure at ENC immediately as president-elect and transition more fully into his role in the coming months as he transfers his current duties to new leadership at Houghton College. He currently resides in Houghton, N.Y., with his wife, Wendy. They have four adult children: David, Rebekah, Jonathan and Michael.

"My heart has been captured by the mission of ENC, and I am deeply honored to be selected by the Board of Trustees as ENC's next president," Connell said. I believe there are amazing opportunities in front of us, and I look forward to engaging with the entire community as we move boldly and hopefully into a bright future.

"Wendy and I look forward to moving to the Quincy area next summer and ask for your prayers in this time of transition for us all."

ENC, a Christian liberal arts college, was founded 118 years ago in Saratoga Springs, N.Y, and moved to Quincy in 1919. The school has an enrollment of more than 1,000 students and offers 41 majors.

The school's trustees, Long said, believe ENC will be well positioned for future growth as it celebrates 100 years of academic excellence and a rich legacy of leadership and service at its current Quincy campus under Connell's leadership,

Connell had served as the provost and dean of the faculty at Houghton College since 2016. Leading over 100 faculty and staff members, Connell served as the chief academic officer and chief enrollment officer on the president's leadership team. He was instrumental in the development of new academic programs, the growth of Houghton Online, and the launch of new extension site programs, Long said.

From 2008 to 2016, Connell spearheaded major initiatives in enrollment, advancement, and strategic planning at Roberts Wesleyan College & Northeastern Seminary in Rochester, N.Y., as an executive vice president. Among his many accomplishments there, Long said, Connell led the largest comprehensive fundraising campaign in the college's history, a campaign that raised more than $40 million dollars for scholarships, endowment, and capital projects.

Connell served as a senior pastor of the Crosswinds Wesleyan Church in Canandaigua, N.Y., from 1995 to 2006 and the Lyncourt Wesleyan Church in Syracuse, N.Y., from 1989 to 1994. Under his spiritual guidance, the Crosswinds congregation became one of the largest churches in the denomination with average weekend attendance growing from 200 to 1400," Long said.

Connell holds a Doctor of Education in higher education leadership from the University of Rochester Warner School of Education; a Doctor of Ministry in leadership and Biblical preaching and a Master of Divinity from the Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, KY.; and a Bachelor of Science in business administration from Houghton College.

He also served on numerous boards including 13 years on the Houghton College Board of Trustees.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920s real photo postcard view of the old Pfaffman Oval, now known as Veterans' Memorial Stadium on Hancock Street. The Southern Artery had not yet been built. The field was named for members of the Pfaffman family who had extensive nurseries along what is now Fenno Street and also served as Park Commissioners in the late 19th century. This view is from the yard of the old Eastern Mass car barn. The chimney of the old MDC pumping station in Merrymount Park is in the right distance. The Pfaffman nurseries were just beyond it. During the 1930s the WPA built the red brick wall around the field along with concrete spectator stands. In 1938, the upgraded facility was dedicated as Quincy Memorial Stadium. To many it is still known as the 'stadium' although in 1951 city officials changed the name to honor Quincy's veterans. The game being played here was probably Quincy High since North Quincy had not yet opened.

Wollaston Garden Club Greens Sale Saturday

Members of the Wollaston Garden Club of Quincy have begun their work making bows, collecting pine cones, wiring shells, and painting floral sprays for the many unique wreaths, swags, and holiday arrangements which will be available for sale at their annual Holiday Greens Sale on Saturday, Dec. 1 from 9 a.m. to noon. The sale will be at the Wollaston Congregational Church, corner of Lincoln and Winthrop Avenues in Wollaston.

There will be packages of greens filled with a nice variety of evergreens and holly, and both small seasonal floral arrangements and large outdoor containers designed for winter interest.

Many lovely wreaths and swags, decorated by WGC designers, will also be on sale; garden club wreaths are always unique, and fairly priced. Each year, the club looks for new ideas for novelty and gift items; you will find several different items suitable for gift-giving or stocking-stuffing, at the sale, all reasonably priced. Arrive early in the sale for the best selection.

Proceeds support the Club's work on civic beautification in Quincy, and other local community, youth, education and conservation projects.

Gov. Hancock's Thanksgiving Proclamation

I was wowed to see the Proclamation for a day of Thanksgiving to God by Governor John Hancock in the latest edition of the Quincy Sun!

My late husband, Don Kusser, used to bring a copy of this, other proclamations, and American schoolbooks to talk about on his QATV show, "The Constitution: Then and Now." There were a lot of references to God in the early days of our country. This is what is meant by the phrase "Make America Great Again": to bring back the Christian-Judeo roots that the Founders based everything in this country on.

Our enemies are doing their best to erase all semblance of religion from the land. We must not let that happen. I think Don put some bees into a few bonnets (or top hats!) to inspire the publication of this proclamation. I applaud the Quincy Sun for including it.

All: read it and smile.

Science Saturday – Sciencetellers

Join us on Saturday, Dec. 8th at 10 a.m. for a science filled visit to the Wild West when the Sciencetellers present the Mystery of the Golden Piano. Is it a story id it science? It's both!

Grab your spurs and journey with us to the Wild West, where a legendary bank-robbing outlaw is back in town, about to strike again! After the Sheriff mysteriously vanishes, two young kids saddle up to foil the great heist and put a rotten cowboy back behind bars!

The Sciencetellers use awesome science experiments to bring key parts of the story to life. Volunteers from the audience will:

- Make the colors of the wild western sunset appear by using special pH indicators.
- Create the sound of "fireworks" by setting off a chain of chemical reactions with common household items.
- Witness the effects of inertia and gravity on a runaway train.
- And much, much more!

After each experiment, the audience makes a hypothesis. Then we change a variable and repeat the experiment to see the new result!

This program is for children ages 4 and older accompanied by an adult. Join us on the second Saturday of each month as we explore different science topics.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler, ages 3-5, any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 13th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

Get ready to get counting this month with numbers and math! We'll have simple activities to learn about numbers, measurement, geometry and other math skills. Match numbers, play with a cash register, and more!

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the second Thursday of each month, this month on Dec. 13th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be reading The Invention of Hugo Cabret by Brian Selznick.

Orphan, clock keeper and thief, Hugo lives in the walls of a busy Paris train station, where his survival depends on secrets and anonymity. But when his world suddenly interlocks with an eccentric, bookish girl and a bitter old man who runs a toy booth in the station, Hugo's undercover life, and his most precious secret, are put in jeopardy. A cryptic drawing, a treasured notebook, a stolen key, a mechanical man, and a hidden message from Hugo's dead father form the backbone of this intricate, tender, and spellbinding mystery.

Pick up a copy of The Invention of Hugo Cabret at the main library children's desk to read before our meeting.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Dec. 11th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing Graphic Novels. Take a look through our graphic novel collection. You could pick part of a series, like Tintin. You could pick a single story, like Rapunzel's Revenge. We have graphic novel versions of text novels, like the Percy Jackson books or The Hobbit. We have manga and even nonfiction. So long as it's in graphic novel format, grab it, read it and come talk about it in December.

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out what we'll be doing next and join us then.

Saturday Storytime

Join us for a family storytime full of Wintry stories, songs, rhymes, and more for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, Dec. 15th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 to 15 are invited to join us on Tuesday, Dec. 18th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play. If this is your first time joining the group please arrive early, about 6:45, to create your character so we'll be ready to play when everyone else arrives.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Childrens Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore – Elf

Join us at the Adams Shore Branch on Wednesday, Dec. 19th at 3 p.m. for a showing of Elf.

After inadvertently wreaking havoc on the elf community due to his ungainly size, a man raised as an elf at the North Pole is sent to New York in search of his true identity.

Maria Droste Counseling Agency Presents 2018 Awards

The Maria Droste Counseling Agency recently presented its 2018 awards at a special event hosted by the management and staff of Brookdale Senior Living at their Quincy facility, Riverbay.

Among the guests attending the event were friends and family of the award recipients.

The agency recognizes each year special community supporters. The Maria Droste Counseling Agency relies heavily on the generosity and sponsorship of Quincy's humanitarians, activists and philanthropists. Most often they are those special persons who strongly support not only the agency's mission but other charitable activities city-wide.

This year's recipients are two men whose support of the community is long-standing and widely-spread.

The first recipient is Dr. Allan Yacubian. Dr. Yacubian is a retired Quincy dentist who has spent selfless hours working to help bring many projects to completion. His efforts have benefitted persons of all ages in a myriad of diverse areas.

The second recipient is Mark Carey. Carey is a communications specialist for the City of Quincy. He has shared his special talent by assisting many social Quincy agencies by helping them get their individual messages to the broadest possible audiences.

The agency's foundation is built on the belief that each person has the right to a quality life and continually works to enable each person to experience their worth and dignity as they move forward to a healthier lifestyle. Since the agency's opening in 1992, the staff and volunteer professionals have proved to be a critical support to individuals, couples and family groups on an adjustable fee scale based on the client's ability to pay. The sliding fee scale is made possible by the generosity of supporting people in the community, not unlike those given awards this year.

Discover Quincy Holiday Pop-Up Shop Opens Friday

Discover Quincy will open the Holiday Pop Up Shop at the former Payless Shoe Store, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center, on Friday, Nov. 30.

The pop-up shop will be open daily beginning Friday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Saturday, Dec. 22.

Local artists will sell their work at the temporary retail location during the holiday season. Many Quincy area artists will be selling unique, handmade works including art, ceramics, fiber, glass, jewelry, metalwork, mixed media, photography, woodwork and more.

"We also partner with some established retailers like Caryn's Corner, Coffee Break Cafe, Ginger Betty's Bakery, Purefections, and Rogers Jewelry providing them a secondary location for customers to pick up gifts during the holidays," said Margaret Laforest, vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Quincy is known for our community pride and the non-profits and neighborhood association merchandise is always popular. We will have items from Quincy and North Quincy High School, Houghs Neck Community Council, Merrymount Association, Ward 2 Civic Association, Quincy Art Association, Quincy Historical Society and more.

"I grew up shopping in Quincy Center at stores like Child World, Coleman's, Remick's and this shop brings great energy back to our downtown," Laforest continued. "People share how much they like supporting local artisans and doing their shopping in downtown. This shop is an all volunteer operation.

"You will get to meet the artisans as they process your sales. The retail location was donated by LBC Boston with support from Key Realty. We are excited to be back in Payless this year as we will be able to watch the LBC project go up during the month of December.

We are grateful for their commitment to arts and culture in our community," she added.

The public is welcome to attend an opening artists reception on Friday, Nov. 30 from 4 to 6:30 p.m.

"Park in the Ross Lot and walk to Hancock Street via Cliveden Street or the Ross Walkway and we are easily accessible," Laforest said. "Parking is also available in the Hannon Lot after 4 p.m.

For more information, call 617-639-1117 or email Margaret at mlaforest@discoverquincy.com

Tree Lighting Dec. 7 At Safford Park

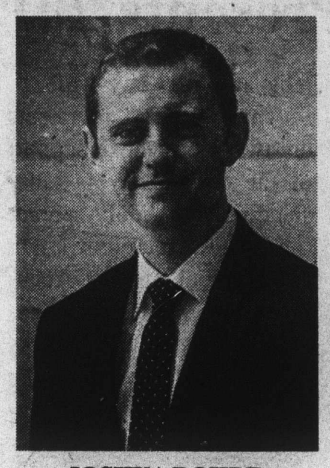
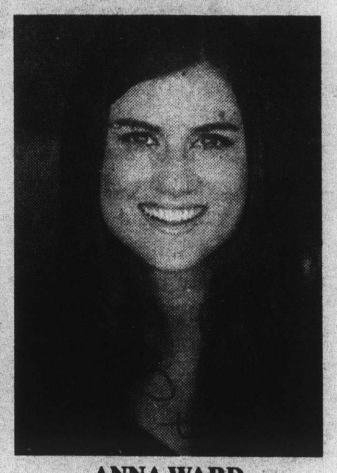
Quincy Choral Society Presents 'A Nordic Winter' Concert Dec. 9



JOSHUA ROHDE



ANNA WARD

Under the direction of Joshua Rohde, Quincy Choral Society will begin its 38th season with a concert featuring works by Norwegian composers Kim Andre Arnesen and Ola Gjeilo.

The major work of this concert is Arnesen's "Magnificat" written for soprano soloist, chorus, piano, and strings. The soprano soloist will be Anna Ward. The chorus will also perform Gjeilo's "The Rose," a work based on a poem by Christina Rossetti, as well as other works by these composers. Holiday favorites will include "The Twelve Days of Christmas" arranged by John Rutter, "Funky Dreidl" by Robert Applebaum, and a Christmas sing-along.

The performance will be held at St. Mary of the Hills Church, 29 St. Mary Rd., Milton, on Sunday, Dec. 9 at 4 p.m. The church is handicapped accessible.

Tickets are $20.00 and will be available at the door.

Joshua Rohde was appointed music director of Quincy Choral Society in September 2016. Dr. Rohde is director of Choral Activities at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, where he conducts all four of the university's choral ensembles – Men's Glee Club, Women's Alden Voices, Festival Chorus, and the Vocal Performance Lab. Dr. Rohde's work encompasses multiple music genres, including new music by living composers. His dissertation was on living Scottish composer Sir James MacMillan. Notable world premieres of new music include his work with several Pulitzer Prize winning composers. As a soloist, he has played cello concerti performing works by Elgar, Haydn, Boccherini, and Shostakovich, and he regularly works as a continuo cellist playing the choral-orchestral works of Bach.

Anna Ward is a passionate and versatile vocalist based in Boston. Ward has been featured with Arts Emerson, Raylynmor Opera, Lorelei Ensemble, Boston Chamber Orchestra, Yale Choral Artists, and Equilibrium Ensemble. On the recital stage, Ward is a dynamic interpreter of song and oratorio repertoire. She has performed the soprano roles in Vivaldi's Gloria, Bach's St. Matthew Passion, Handel's Messiah, Haydn's Nelsonmesse, and Mozart's Vesperae Solennes de Confessore and Grand Mass in C Minor. She is a regular guest soprano with Copley Singers, Trinity Church in Copley Square, Boston University's Marsh Chapel Choir, and King's Chapel Choir and is a weekly cantor at St. Cecila's Roman Catholic Church in Boston's Back Bay.

Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has served as the accompanist for Quincy Choral Society since 1993. Ms. Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University. She is Minister of Music at First Parish, Norwell, Music Director for the Pierce Players of Milton Public Schools and for Derby Summer Arts, and teaches and accompanies for Freelance Players, Quincy High School, and North Quincy High School.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, at Carnegie Hall as part of the Masterworks Series, and most recently in Montreal and Quebec. In September, the Chorus participated in the Dedication of the Hancock - Adams Common.

WHAT'S COOKING with Marie & Susie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Ellie's Breakfast Cookie

By MARIE

My granddaughter, Ellie, is always trying to make a good healthy delicious treat! And so it was recently when she made what she called a breakfast cookie with only a few ingredients.

ELLIE'S BREAKFAST COOKIE

Preheat oven to 350 – prepare a cookie sheet with parchment paper

RECIPE

2 ripe bananas
1 cup uncooked oatmeal
Strawberry Jam for top of cookie

Mash the bananas until very smooth and mushy.

Add the oatmeal and mix until well blended.

With an ice cream scoop drop mixture on to prepared cookie sheet.

With a teaspoon make a small indent on the cookie top and add a little strawberry jam to each one. (You can bake these cookies without the jam but the strawberry jam was a great addition.)

Cool on a wire rack.

We ate them warm right out of the oven and they were delicious!.

This recipe makes 8 cookies and recipe can be doubled.

Pumpkin Donuts

By SUSIE

Pumpkin Doughnuts:

3 tablespoons grass fed butter
½ cup coconut sugar
1 cup organic pumpkin purée
3 organic eggs
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup brown rice flour
½ cup cassava flour
1 cup almond flour

For the Maple Glaze:

4 tablespoons grass fed butter ,½ cup maple syrup, 11/4 cups confectioners' sugar (I make my own with the coconut sugar)

Directions:

Preheat your oven to 350°.

Cream together the butter and sugar, add pumpkin, then eggs. Mix well.

In a separate bowl, mix together the baking soda, pumpkin pie spice and flours. Add the dry ingredients to the wet and mix well.

Spray your doughnut pan with nonstick cooking spray. Fill with your batter.

Bake for 10 to 14 minutes.

Remove the doughnuts from the oven and let cool on a cooling rack.

In a sauté pan over medium heat, melt the butter and whisk in the maple syrup. Once the butter has melted, remove from the heat and whisk in the confectioners' sugar.

Dip each doughnut face down into the glaze and place on parchment paper.

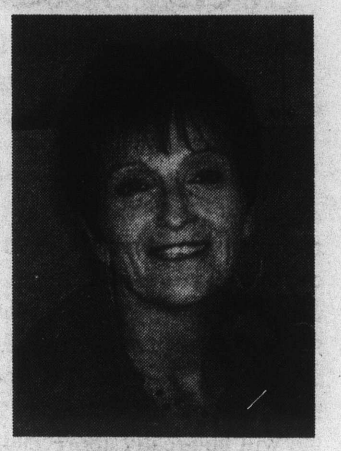
Seasonal Affective Disorder: Symptoms & Treatment

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Seasonal affective disorder, or SAD, is a classification of depression that appears during the same season each year. You may have SAD if you experienced depression during the last two winters but felt considerably improved in the spring and summer. SAD is occasionally called winter depression or seasonal depression.



RUTH JONES

Anyone can experience SAD, but it's more likely to occur in:

- Women.
- People who live far from the equator, where winter daylight hours are very brief.
- People between the ages of 15 and 55. The risk of getting SAD for the first time decreases as you age.
- People who have a close relative with SAD.

Researchers aren't sure what causes SAD. But they think it may be triggered by a lack of sunlight. The thought is that this lack of sunlight may:

- Disrupt your "biological clock," which controls your sleep-wake pattern and other circadian rhythms. Circadian rhythms are the 24-hour cycles of physical and mental changes that are driven by your body's "biological clock." They are influenced both by issues inside your body and by things in your environment, especially light. Your circadian rhythms affect your sleep-wake cycle, your body temperature, and other significant body functions.
- Cause dilemmas with serotonin, a neurotransmitter that affects mood. Neurotransmitters are chemicals produced by the nerve cells in the brain that convey messages back and forth across the space between the cells (synapse). When the normal balance of these neurotransmitters is disrupted, headache, depression, or other mental health problems may develop. The neurotransmitters that are thought to play a role in mental functioning are serotonin, norepinephrine, dopamine, and gamma-aminobutyric acid (GABA).

If you experience SAD, you may:

- Feel sad, grumpy, moody, or anxious.
- Lose interest in your routine activities.
- Eat more and crave carbohydrates, such as bread and pasta.
- Gain weight.
- Sleep more but still feel tired.
- Have difficulty concentrating.

Symptoms of SAD come and go at about the same time each year. The majority of people with SAD start to have symptoms in September or October and feel better by April or May. It can sometimes be hard to differentiate between SAD and other varieties of depression because many of the symptoms are similar. To diagnose SAD, your doctor will inquire if:

- You have been depressed during the same season and have gotten better when the seasons changed for at least 2 years in a row.
- You have symptoms that often occur with SAD, such as being very hungry (especially craving carbohydrates), gaining weight, and sleeping more than usual.
- A close relative-a parent, brother, or sister-has had SAD.

Your health care provider may order blood tests to rule out other conditions that can cause comparable symptoms, such as low thyroid (hypothyroidism). Your doctor may also conduct a mental health assessment to get a better idea of your emotional health status.

Light therapy is the chief treatment for SAD. Medicines and counseling may also be beneficial. Experts think light therapy works by resetting your biological clock. It helps a good number of people who have SAD, and is simple to use. There are two types of light therapy:

- Bright light treatment. For this treatment, you place the light box at a certain distance from you on a desk or table, and then you sit in front of it while you read, eat breakfast, or work at a computer.
- Dawn simulation. For this treatment, a dim light goes on in the morning while you sleep, and it gets brighter over time, like a sunrise.

Light boxes use fluorescent lights that are brighter than indoor lights but not as bright as sunlight. Ultraviolet lights, full-spectrum lights, tanning lamps, and heat lamps are not appropriate and should not be used. Light therapy is usually prescribed for a time span of 30 minutes up to 2 hours a day. The strength of the light and the length of time you have been doing the therapy, dictates the amount of therapy time. You may start to feel better within a week or so after you start light therapy, however it is necessary to stay with it and use it every day until the season changes. If you fail to do this, your depression could come back.

Antidepressant medicines have been successfully used to treat patients suffering from SAD. They may be used alone or in combination with light therapy. The most common ones prescribed for SAD include:

- Selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs), such as paroxetine (Paxil) and sertraline (Zoloft). SSRIs are usually tried first.
- Other antidepressants, such as bupropion (Wellbutrin) and venlafaxine (Effexor).

If your doctor orders an antidepressant, be certain to take it the way it was prescribed. Stopping the medicine suddenly, could cause side effects or exacerbate your depression. When you are ready to discontinue the medicine, your doctor can assist you with slowly reducing the dose to avoid problems.

Counseling may also have a role in treating seasonal affective disorder. Particular modes of counseling, such as cognitive-behavioral therapy and interpersonal therapy, can aide in learning more about SAD, how to manage symptoms, and how to help prevent future episodes.

There are many things one can do to help ward off the effects of seasonal affective disorder Regular exercise is one of the best things you can do for yourself. Obtaining more sunlight may help too, so it is beneficial to get outside to exercise when the sun is shining. Being active during the daylight hours, especially early in the day, may help you have more energy and feel less depressed.

Moderate exercise is safe for most people. But it's always a good idea to talk to your doctor before you start an exercise program.

dependence Avenue to train platform at Quincy Adams.

"There is a pretty lengthy either elevator ride or a walk down many, many flights of stairs that you have to take," Cassani said. "So the convenience of it is real and obvious for the folks who live around here, but for someone who thinks that they're going to park 10 or 12 minutes away and jump on a train, they're going to find that they're going down eight flights of stairs or an elevator that may or may not work and takes a long time to arrive."

The ordinance establishing the new parking program did include those roads to the east of Franklin Street, Cassani noted, which gives his department the ability to begin enforcing the new rules there if necessary.

The new rules will be in effect on weekdays between 10 p.m. and 2 p.m., starting on Sunday nights.

During that time, a permit will be required to park on the street. Mayor Thomas Koch had originally proposed charging a $35 annual fee for the permit, but city councillors voted to issue the permits at no costs to residents. Residents' guests can obtain a permit to park in the area during the restricted hours for free; a guest could get a permit even if the resident he or she is visiting does not have a parking pass, Cassani said. The guest passes are valid for up to two weeks.

Councillors also changed the way permits for businesses will be issued. A business can obtain up to five passes, which are transferable among employees, for $85 and additional passes for $17 each.

Permits can be obtained online at buymypermitonline.com/quincy.

Those found breaking the new rules are subject to a $50 fine for the first two tickets, a $100 fine for the third and fourth violation, and could be towed for the fifth and subsequent offenses. Koch's original proposal included a $25 fine for each of the first three offenses, which would then increase to $50 for any subsequent offense, but councillors voted to stiffen those penalties.

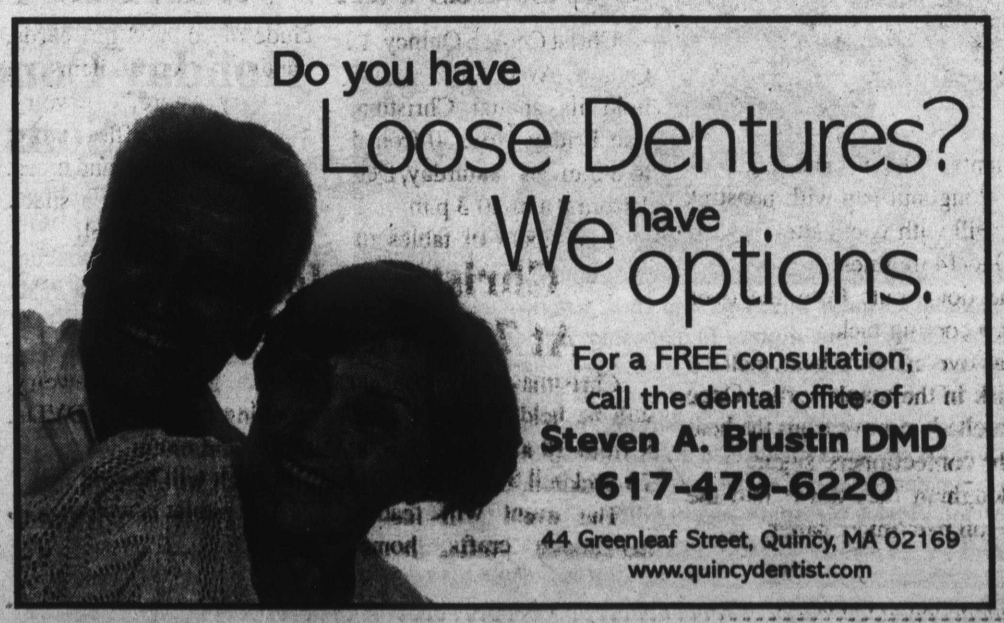
The first weeks of the program are seen as an educational process for residents and commuters alike, Cassani said.

"The point of this, especially for the first couple of weeks, is not to generate revenue from you folks who live there by issuing tickets and guilting you into getting a permit. We look at is as an education process, certainly for you folks and also for commuters," he said.

There will also be a grace period between Dec. 21 and Jan. 1 of this year because of Christmas.

The city currently does not allow anyone to park overnight on city streets without a $20 overnight parking sticker, though that rule is not always enforced. Cassani called that blanket prohibition impractical and said it could be phased out over the course of 2019 as the city begins to apply the new parking rules that will come into effect in the Penn's Hill neighborhood to other areas around MBTA stations. The City Council would first have to approve including a particular neighborhood in the new parking program before the rules could be enforced there.

Cassani said other changes to parking regulations could be coming as well. As an example, he suggested parking could be restricted to one side of the road on certain streets that are difficult for residents and first responders to navigate when vehicles are parked on both sides.



Local Non-Profit Hosts Dinners, Delivers Hot Meals On Frigid Thanksgiving

Father Bill's, Volunteers Provide 650 Meals To Local Residents In Need

Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS) provided approximately 650 Thanksgiving meals to local residents in need on Thursday, hosting community meals in Quincy and Brockton and hand-delivering meals to individuals and families on the South Shore.

Approximately 350 people attended the community meals, which were open to the public. The Quincy meal was held at Christ Episcopal Church, and the Brockton meal was held at the dining hall inside the MainSpring House. In addition, the agency on Thursday coordinated the delivery of hot meals and desserts to more than 280 individuals and families who were unable to get out to the community meals. A dedicated group of approximately 150 volunteers staffed the community meals and meal-delivery operation.

Meals were delivered to residents in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Brockton, Hull, Marshfield, Hingham, Norwell, and Randolph.

"We're seeing our community at its best, with everyone working together to bring warmth, nourishment, and comfort to our most vulnerable neighbors on what may end up being the coldest Thanksgiving on record," John Yazwinski, FBMS President & CEO, said. "We're thankful that we have a compassionate network of supporters, volunteers, staff, and donors who believe that nobody should be homeless, hungry, or alone this holiday season."

In Quincy, Hingham Congregational Church donated 60 turkeys that were prepared earlier this week by students enrolled in Quincy High School's culinary arts program. Other food was generously donated by various organizations and individual donors.

APPROXIMATELY 150 GUESTS attended Father Bill's & MainSpring's Thanksgiving dinner, held for the past three decades at Christ Church in Quincy.

PATRICK HENDON of Quincy, a senior in Boston College High School's Models of Leadership class, together with 22 of his classmates, collected, sorted and delivered turkeys and the fixings for Thanksgiving dinners to more than 200 low income families living in the Boston Housing Authority. Beginning in early November, the school started a food drive where students, faculty and parents brought in non-perishable food to school and piled it on window sills in the classrooms and on tables in the Hunter-Fahey Commons. Then through Mite Box collections, to which students, faculty and parents contributed, the school raised enough money to pay for the turkeys. On Nov. 19, Hendon and his classmates, collected and sorted all the food and piled it onto the BHA truck for delivery to the needy families. Social Security Matters

U.K. Pension Affects Social Security Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: Today I had my interview for Social Security and was told that because I receive a government retirement pension from the United Kingdom, my Social Security check will be reduced by up to 55%. My question is, how can this be so? My U. K. pension was not a voluntary contribution but a mandatory deduction withheld from my paycheck just like for my U.S. Social Security. Is there any way to get around this drawback? Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated as I am not financially well off and was depending on both checks and not still having to work after retirement. Signed: Perturbed

Dear Perturbed: If you worked and earned enough separately in both countries to be independently eligible for benefits from each, your U.S. Social Security benefit will be reduced by Social Security's Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP). WEP was enacted by Congress in 1983 to equalize benefits between those who collect only Social Security, and dually entitled workers who collect both Social Security and a pension from an employer which did not participate in or contribute to Social Security. The United States has Social Security "totalization agreements" with many other countries, and here is an excerpt from the Agreement between the US and the UK:

"A U.K. pension may affect your U.S. benefit. If you qualify for Social Security benefits from both the United States and the United Kingdom and did not need the agreement to qualify for either benefit, the amount of your U.S. benefit may be reduced. This is a result of a provision in U.S. law that can affect the way your benefit is figured if you also receive a pension based on work that was not covered by U.S. Social Security."

The "agreement" referred to is the "totalization" agreement between the United States and United Kingdom which provides for coordination of benefits between the countries. The bilateral agreement is helpful when someone has some time working in both countries but not enough in either to qualify for full benefits. In that case the agreement allows for totaling credits earned in both so that a person has enough total credits to be eligible for benefits. But when someone is independently eligible for full benefits in both countries, the Windfall Elimination Provision applies and will reduce Social Security benefits by up to 50% of your U.K. pension amount, or up to the maximum reduction for the year you became eligible for U.S. benefits.

I'm afraid there is no way around this, unless you have more than 20 years of U.S. employment, which contributed to the U.S. Social Security system. The WEP reduction to your U.S. Social Security is less if you have more than 20 years of SS-covered "substantial earnings" and WEP goes away if you have more than 30 years of SS-covered employment with substantial earnings. But if you have less than 30 years of SS-covered substantial earnings, WEP will reduce your U.S. Social Security benefit. For additional information, here is a link to an article I previously published on how WEP works: https://socialsecurityreport.org/ask-rusty-wep-windfall-elimination-provision/.

frog learning, Fisher-Price, blankets and blocks for children up to age 2; trucks, dolls, Play-Doh, FurReal Pets, Paw Patrol, games and Lego friends for children between ages 3 and 5; L.O.L. Surprise dolls, Nerf guns, Legos, Polly Pocket, Hatchimals, Pikmi Pops, Hot Wheels, books, superhero action figures and arts and crafts for children ages 6 to 8; and Legos, board games, books, slime and art kits, remote-controlled vehicles; head phones, balls, jewelry, STEM-related items and bath and body gifts for children ages 9 to 13.

The unwrapped gifts can be dropped off at the Salvation Army's Quincy location, 6 Baxter St., through Dec. 17.

The Quincy Corps is also accepting donations of food, plus winter gear such as boots, mittens and gloves.

The Quincy Corps visits area nursing homes all year on a monthly basis, Maynor said, and will visit 600 residents living in four nursing homes during the Christmas season. Each resident receives a gift such as socks or teddy bears. The Salvation Army's brass band also appears at some nursing homes, delighting residents inside with song.

Bell ringers can be seen collecting money for the Salvation in various Quincy locations for the group's annual Red Kettle Campaign, which started Nov. 13. Maynor said the Quincy Corps hopes to raise $133,000 this year. Money raised through the Red Kettle Campaign supports the Salvation Army's programs throughout the year.

"Every dollar helps," Maynor said.

Father Bill's and MainSpring
617-376-2255

Residents looking to help out Father Bill's & MainSpring this year can visit helpfbms.org/holidays to find out the various ways to assist your neighbors in need.

FBMS hosts a "shopping day" at Father Bill's Place before Christmas where shelter guests can select items they or their families need. The popular items for the shopping day include winter clothing – such as hooded sweatshirts, thermals, and sweatpants (sizes 2XL and 3XL particularly) – sports apparel, heavy-duty hats and gloves, and bath gift sets.

Razors, deodorant, toothbrushes and toothpaste are year-round needs for Father Bill's & MainSpring.

All items must be new.

FBSM also encourages monetary donations and donations of gift cards during the holiday season. Donations can be dropped off or mailed to Father Bill's & MainSpring, 430 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02301.

Volunteers are also needed at the organization's locations in Quincy and Brockton. Anyone interested in volunteering – or hosting a gift drive – should contact Mary Ann Mendes at 508-427-6448 ext. 2237 or email volunteer@helpfbms.org.

Father Bill's & MainSpring serves nearly 6,000 households annually, including more than 900 individuals at Father Bill's Place in Quincy. The agency also operates approximately 500 permanent supportive housing units across Southern Massachusetts, including 310 units in the Quincy area alone, 45 of which are for families.

For more information, visit helpfbms.org.

Interfaith Social Services
105 Adams St.
617-773-6203

Interfaith Social Services serves more than 31,000 people in Quincy and the South Shore each year, according to Rick Doane, its executive director. Doane thanked residents of Quincy and other communities for supporting the organization, now in its 71st year.

"Quincy and all the communities really sustain us," he said.

The organization is one of 11 diaper banks in the state, and is in need of diapers year round to distribute to the families it serves.

"Diapers: That's one of things we need more donations of," Doane said. "We are one of only 11 diaper banks in the state and there is no federal assistance program for diapers. Our clients really appreciate them."

ISS primarily needs size four and five diapers, Doane said, because children stay in those sizes for the longest period of time.

Interfaith is also in need of hygiene products, including toiletries and feminine hygiene products, among others.

Interfaith provided Thanksgiving dinners to 1,000 families this year – up 20 percent from 2017 – and Doane expects his organization will provide gifts to 700 children this Christmas. He said ISS could use more gift cards for the older children it provides gifts to – ages 10, 11 and 12 – including gift cards for iTunes and GameStop.

ISS relies on volunteers year-round. Doane said the organization is looking for residents who can volunteer for three hours a week for the whole year.

"What we're looking for is people who can make a three-hour a week commitment – long-term volunteers," he said.

Doane noted Interfaith's food pantry is now open Wednesday evenings throughout the year, providing an opportunity for volunteers to staff it after work those nights.

Sanger Center for Compassion
282 Billings Rd.
617-847-6967

The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion expects to provide Christmas meals to more than 250 families this year, according to the Rev. David Wooster, the program's executive director.

Each family receives four bags of groceries and a turkey, Wooster explained, which can provide food for three to five days, because families often need help when children are home from school over the winter break.

The Sanger Center also provides gifts to children under 16. Individuals and families can sign up to sponsor a child, and are provided with a list of items to donate to that particular child. Each child receives new toys, a new book and new hat, mitten, scarf and an article of clothing.

"They literally go shopping for them like they were their own grandkids or kids," Wooster said.

In addition to sponsoring families, Wooster said donors could pick up individual items to donate to the Sanger Center.

Toys and gifts should be donated to the Sanger Center by Dec. 18 to ensure they can be delivered before Christmas.

The Sanger Center is also in need of food items this year, particularly turkey and ham, stuffing, gravy or gravy mix, cranberry sauce, dessert mixes and juices, though the organization accepts any food items.

Like other organizations, the Sanger Center is in need of volunteers this holiday season. The organization's volunteer help with a number of tasks including making deliveries of food and gifts, preparing food bags, sorting and organizing donated food, and preparing Christmas gift packages for families by selecting items from its inventory of donated goods.

Food bags will be prepared between Dec. 7 and 14, and delivered between Dec. 17 and 21.

Those looking to donate or volunteer at the Sanger Center this holiday season can email holidays@sangercenter.org. For more information, call 617-847-6967 or visit sangercenter.org.

Quincy Community Action Programs
617-479-8181

Quincy Community Action Programs serves more than 21,000 unduplicated clients on an annual basis in an array of ways, said Sarah Holroyd, the organization's director of development and marketing.

QCAP distributed 600 full turkey dinners, including side dishes and other ingredients, this Thanksgiving. The organization will distribute an additional 500 December holiday food orders, including hams, Holroyd said.

QCAP's Southwest Community Food Center is accepting food and monetary donations.

"At this time of year, every dollar donated to the food center can be stretched, allowing QCAP to buy food at the food bank for a low price per pound and efficiently distribute food to people in need over the holidays," Holroyd said.

QCAP is also in need of essential non-food items, such as diapers, shampoos, toilet paper and dish soap, which families need on a year-round basis.

Approximately 800 children – including those whose families receive food assistance and those in QCAP's Head Start program – will receive gifts this holiday season. Individuals and companies can get involved by donating gifts or setting up "gift trees" in their communities or at their businesses.

If interested in making a donation to the food center or gift drive, please contact Melinda Alexander at 617-471-0796.

QCAP also accepts donations of new winter gear – coats, hats and gloves – for the children who participate in the Head Start program and their parents.

As we head into an early winter, QCAP hopes to lessen the impact of the recent cuts to fuel assistance, Holroyd said; by providing clients with food, QCAP helps them free up their resources to pay for rent and heat. QCAP offers heating assistance to residents of Quincy, Braintree, Milton, and Weymouth, and those in need can call 617-657-5301.

The organization is also in need of volunteers to assist in its many activities.

"QCAP volunteers are integral to providing our services and we encourage people to reach out if interested. There are opportunities to volunteer at the food center, provide volunteer income tax assistance to our clients, and more," Holroyd said.

For more information, visit qcap.org or call 617-479-8181.

DOVE

DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) expects to serve more than 150 families through its holiday assistance program this year, said Jessica Cohen, the organization's senior manager for residential services.

DOVE offers three options for residents looking to donate to the organization this December. Residents can adopt a family who provides a wish list of items they are in need of to DOVE. Residents can also adopt the shelter itself, Cohen said, and donate items like cleaning supplies, office supplies and linens DOVE uses on a year-round basis. DOVE is also in need of gift cards for supermarkets like Shaw's and Stop & Shop, stores like Walmart and Target, and gas cards, which are distributed on year-round basis.

"Residents can chose any of those options," Cohen said.

DOVE is also in need of volunteers during the holiday season, Cohen said. Volunteers are needed primarily to help deliver items to its shelter and sort them once there. Volunteers also help transport, sort and organize goods for clients.

For more information, visit dovema.org or call 617-770-4065. DOVE also has a special email account, dove.elfteam@gmail.com, for inquiries regarding its holiday assistance programs.

South Shore YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will help hundreds of families through its holiday assistance program this year, said Valerie Sturtevant, the organization's community marketing manager.

"Each year, the community works together to ensure that families are fed, warm and feeling the spirit of the holiday season," she said. "To ease the anxiety and stress that many families feel at this time of year, the South Shore YMCA and the Germantown Neighborhood Center are seeking donations of gift cards, food, personal hygiene and household products, clothing, winter coats of all sizes and blankets, as well as financial contributions.

"Because the Y is a charity, your contributions have a direct and lasting impact and can bring a light of hope to those who need it most throughout Germantown and Quincy, both during the holidays and all year round.

To learn more or to donate, visit ssymca.org or contact Claire Brennan at the SSYMCA's Germantown Neighborhood Center at cbrennan@ssymca.org or 617-376-1384.

Norfolk County Registry of Deeds
649 High St., Dedham

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds will be collecting food and toys this holiday season.

The annual food drive began Nov. 19 and will continue through Dec. 28. Nonperishable food items can be brought directly to the Registry of Deeds, which is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. A donation bin will be set-up in the registry's lobby and food can be dropped off between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Suggested donations include canned goods, breakfast cereals, pasta, sauces, toiletries and paper products.

For those unable to visit the registry's office, a list of local food pantries is available online at norfolkdeeds.org.

The registry is also participating in the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program for the 13th year. A marked donation bin will be available in the registry's lobby through noon on Dec. 12 for residents to drop off toys for the program.

The Toys for Tots program collects new, unwrapped toys. The program does not accept realistic looking weapons or items with food. For more information, including other drop-off locations, see toysfortots.org.

Social Security Matters

U.K. Pension Affects Social Security Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: Today I had my interview for Social Security and was told that because I receive a government retirement pension from the United Kingdom, my Social Security check will be reduced by up to 55%. My question is, how can this be so? My U. K. pension was not a voluntary contribution but a mandatory deduction withheld from my paycheck just like for my U.S. Social Security. Is there any way to get around this drawback? Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated as I am not financially well off and was depending on both checks and not still having to work after retirement. Signed: Perturbed

Dear Perturbed: If you worked and earned enough separately in both countries to be independently eligible for benefits from each, your U.S. Social Security benefit will be reduced by Social Security's Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP). WEP was enacted by Congress in 1983 to equalize benefits between those who collect only Social Security, and dually entitled workers who collect both Social Security and a pension from an employer which did not participate in or contribute to Social Security. The United States has Social Security "totalization agreements" with many other countries, and here is an excerpt from the Agreement between the US and the UK:

"A U.K. pension may affect your U.S. benefit. If you qualify for Social Security benefits from both the United States and the United Kingdom and did not need the agreement to qualify for either benefit, the amount of your U.S. benefit may be reduced. This is a result of a provision in U.S. law that can affect the way your benefit is figured if you also receive a pension based on work that was not covered by U.S. Social Security."

The "agreement" referred to is the "totalization" agreement between the United States and United Kingdom which provides for coordination of benefits between the countries. The bilateral agreement is helpful when someone has some time working in both countries but not enough in either to qualify for full benefits. In that case the agreement allows for totaling credits earned in both so that a person has enough total credits to be eligible for benefits. But when someone is independently eligible for full benefits in both countries, the Windfall Elimination Provision applies and will reduce Social Security benefits by up to 50% of your U.K. pension amount, or up to the maximum reduction for the year you became eligible for U.S. benefits.

I'm afraid there is no way around this, unless you have more than 20 years of U.S. employment, which contributed to the U.S. Social Security system. The WEP reduction to your U.S. Social Security is less if you have more than 20 years of SS-covered "substantial earnings" and WEP goes away if you have more than 30 years of SS-covered employment with substantial earnings. But if you have less than 30 years of SS-covered substantial earnings, WEP will reduce your U.S. Social Security benefit. For additional information, here is a link to an article I previously published on how WEP works: https://socialsecurityreport.org/ask-rusty-wep-windfall-elimination-provision/.

frog learning, Fisher-Price, blankets and blocks for children up to age 2; trucks, dolls, Play-Doh, FurReal Pets, Paw Patrol, games and Lego friends for children between ages 3 and 5; L.O.L. Surprise dolls, Nerf guns, Legos, Polly Pocket, Hatchimals, Pikmi Pops, Hot Wheels, books, superhero action figures and arts and crafts for children ages 6 to 8; and Legos, board games, books, slime and art kits, remote-controlled vehicles; head phones, balls, jewelry, STEM-related items and bath and body gifts for children ages 9 to 13.

The unwrapped gifts can be dropped off at the Salvation Army's Quincy location, 6 Baxter St., through Dec. 17.

The Quincy Corps is also accepting donations of food, plus winter gear such as boots, mittens and gloves.

The Quincy Corps visits area nursing homes all year on a monthly basis, Maynor said, and will visit 600 residents living in four nursing homes during the Christmas season. Each resident receives a gift such as socks or teddy bears. The Salvation Army's brass band also appears at some nursing homes, delighting residents inside with song.

Bell ringers can be seen collecting money for the Salvation in various Quincy locations for the group's annual Red Kettle Campaign, which started Nov. 13. Maynor said the Quincy Corps hopes to raise $133,000 this year. Money raised through the Red Kettle Campaign supports the Salvation Army's programs throughout the year.

"Every dollar helps," Maynor said.

Father Bill's and MainSpring
617-376-2255

Residents looking to help out Father Bill's & MainSpring this year can visit helpfbms.org/holidays to find out the various ways to assist your neighbors in need.

FBMS hosts a "shopping day" at Father Bill's Place before Christmas where shelter guests can select items they or their families need. The popular items for the shopping day include winter clothing – such as hooded sweatshirts, thermals, and sweatpants (sizes 2XL and 3XL particularly) – sports apparel, heavy-duty hats and gloves, and bath gift sets.

Razors, deodorant, toothbrushes and toothpaste are year-round needs for Father Bill's & MainSpring.

All items must be new.

FBSM also encourages monetary donations and donations of gift cards during the holiday season. Donations can be dropped off or mailed to Father Bill's & MainSpring, 430 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02301.

Volunteers are also needed at the organization's locations in Quincy and Brockton. Anyone interested in volunteering – or hosting a gift drive – should contact Mary Ann Mendes at 508-427-6448 ext. 2237 or email volunteer@helpfbms.org.

Father Bill's & MainSpring serves nearly 6,000 households annually, including more than 900 individuals at Father Bill's Place in Quincy. The agency also operates approximately 500 permanent supportive housing units across Southern Massachusetts, including 310 units in the Quincy area alone, 45 of which are for families.

For more information, visit helpfbms.org.

Interfaith Social Services
105 Adams St.
617-773-6203

Interfaith Social Services serves more than 31,000 people in Quincy and the South Shore each year, according to Rick Doane, its executive director. Doane thanked residents of Quincy and other communities for supporting the organization, now in its 71st year.

"Quincy and all the communities really sustain us," he said.

The organization is one of 11 diaper banks in the state, and is in need of diapers year round to distribute to the families it serves.

"Diapers: That's one of things we need more donations of," Doane said. "We are one of only 11 diaper banks in the state and there is no federal assistance program for diapers. Our clients really appreciate them."

ISS primarily needs size four and five diapers, Doane said, because children stay in those sizes for the longest period of time.

Interfaith is also in need of hygiene products, including toiletries and feminine hygiene products, among others.

Interfaith provided Thanksgiving dinners to 1,000 families this year – up 20 percent from 2017 – and Doane expects his organization will provide gifts to 700 children this Christmas. He said ISS could use more gift cards for the older children it provides gifts to – ages 10, 11 and 12 – including gift cards for iTunes and GameStop.

ISS relies on volunteers year-round. Doane said the organization is looking for residents who can volunteer for three hours a week for the whole year.

"What we're looking for is people who can make a three-hour a week commitment – long-term volunteers," he said.

Doane noted Interfaith's food pantry is now open Wednesday evenings throughout the year, providing an opportunity for volunteers to staff it after work those nights.

For more information, visit interfaithsocialservices.org or call 617-773-6203.

Sanger Center for Compassion
282 Billings Rd.
617-847-6967

The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion expects to provide Christmas meals to more than 250 families this year, according to the Rev. David Wooster, the program's executive director.

Each family receives four bags of groceries and a turkey, Wooster explained, which can provide food for three to five days, because families often need help when children are home from school over the winter break.

The Sanger Center also provides gifts to children under 16. Individuals and families can sign up to sponsor a child, and are provided with a list of items to donate to that particular child. Each child receives new toys, a new book and new hat, mitten, scarf and an article of clothing.

"They literally go shopping for them like they were their own grandkids or kids," Wooster said.

In addition to sponsoring families, Wooster said donors could pick up individual items to donate to the Sanger Center.

Toys and gifts should be donated to the Sanger Center by Dec. 18 to ensure they can be delivered before Christmas.

The Sanger Center is also in need of food items this year, particularly turkey and ham, stuffing, gravy or gravy mix, cranberry sauce, dessert mixes and juices, though the organization accepts any food items.

Like other organizations, the Sanger Center is in need of volunteers this holiday season. The organization's volunteer help with a number of tasks including making deliveries of food and gifts, preparing food bags, sorting and organizing donated food, and preparing Christmas gift packages for families by selecting items from its inventory of donated goods.

Food bags will be prepared between Dec. 7 and 14, and delivered between Dec. 17 and 21.

Those looking to donate or volunteer at the Sanger Center this holiday season can email holidays@sangercenter.org. For more information, call 617-847-6967 or visit sangercenter.org.

Quincy Community Action Programs
617-479-8181

Quincy Community Action Programs serves more than 21,000 unduplicated clients on an annual basis in an array of ways, said Sarah Holroyd, the organization's director of development and marketing.

QCAP distributed 600 full turkey dinners, including side dishes and other ingredients, this Thanksgiving. The organization will distribute an additional 500 December holiday food orders, including hams, Holroyd said.

QCAP's Southwest Community Food Center is accepting food and monetary donations.

"At this time of year, every dollar donated to the food center can be stretched, allowing QCAP to buy food at the food bank for a low price per pound and efficiently distribute food to people in need over the holidays," Holroyd said.

QCAP is also in need of essential non-food items, such as diapers, shampoos, toilet paper and dish soap, which families need on a year-round basis.

Approximately 800 children – including those whose families receive food assistance and those in QCAP's Head Start program – will receive gifts this holiday season. Individuals and companies can get involved by donating gifts or setting up "gift trees" in their communities or at their businesses.

If interested in making a donation to the food center or gift drive, please contact Melinda Alexander at 617-471-0796.

QCAP also accepts donations of new winter gear – coats, hats and gloves – for the children who participate in the Head Start program and their parents.

As we head into an early winter, QCAP hopes to lessen the impact of the recent cuts to fuel assistance, Holroyd said; by providing clients with food, QCAP helps them free up their resources to pay for rent and heat. QCAP offers heating assistance to residents of Quincy, Braintree, Milton, and Weymouth, and those in need can call 617-657-5301.

The organization is also in need of volunteers to assist in its many activities.

"QCAP volunteers are integral to providing our services and we encourage people to reach out if interested. There are opportunities to volunteer at the food center, provide volunteer income tax assistance to our clients, and more," Holroyd said.

For more information, visit qcap.org or call 617-479-8181.

DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) expects to serve more than 150 families through its holiday assistance program this year, said Jessica Cohen, the organization's senior manager for residential services.

DOVE offers three options for residents looking to donate to the organization this December. Residents can adopt a family who provides a wish list of items they are in need of to DOVE. Residents can also adopt the shelter itself, Cohen said, and donate items like cleaning supplies, office supplies and linens DOVE uses on a year-round basis. DOVE is also in need of gift cards for supermarkets like Shaw's and Stop & Shop, stores like Walmart and Target, and gas cards, which are distributed on year-round basis.

"Residents can chose any of those options," Cohen said.

DOVE is also in need of volunteers during the holiday season, Cohen said. Volunteers are needed primarily to help deliver items to its shelter and sort them once there. Volunteers also help transport, sort and organize goods for clients.

For more information, visit dovema.org or call 617-770-4065. DOVE also has a special email account, dove.elfteam@gmail.com, for inquiries regarding its holiday assistance programs.

South Shore YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will help hundreds of families through its holiday assistance program this year, said Valerie Sturtevant, the organization's community marketing manager.

"Each year, the community works together to ensure that families are fed, warm and feeling the spirit of the holiday season," she said. "To ease the anxiety and stress that many families feel at this time of year, the South Shore YMCA and the Germantown Neighborhood Center are seeking donations of gift cards, food, personal hygiene and household products, clothing, winter coats of all sizes and blankets, as well as financial contributions.

"Because the Y is a charity, your contributions have a direct and lasting impact and can bring a light of hope to those who need it most throughout Germantown and Quincy, both during the holidays and all year round.

To learn more or to donate, visit ssymca.org or contact Claire Brennan at the SSYMCA's Germantown Neighborhood Center at cbrennan@ssymca.org or 617-376-1384.

Norfolk County Registry of Deeds
649 High St., Dedham

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds will be collecting food and toys this holiday season.

The annual food drive began Nov. 19 and will continue through Dec. 28. Non-perishable food items can be brought directly to the Registry of Deeds, which is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. A donation bin will be set-up in the registry's lobby and food can be dropped off between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Suggested donations include canned goods, breakfast cereals, pasta, sauces, toiletries and paper products.

For those unable to visit the registry's office, a list of local food pantries is available online at norfolkdeeds.org.

The registry is also participating in the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program for the 13th year. A marked donation bin will be available in the registry's lobby through noon on Dec. 12 for residents to drop off toys for the program.

The Toys for Tots program collects new, unwrapped toys. The program does not accept realistic looking weapons or items with food. For more information, including other drop-off locations, see toysfortots.org.

27 Quincy Girl Scouts Earn Silver, Bronze Awards

By LINDSAY CARINCI

Twenty-seven Quincy Girl Scouts were awarded either their Girl Scout Silver or Bronze Award at a ceremony Nov. 18.

Ten Quincy Girl Scouts earned their Silver Award, which is the second highest award a girl can earn in Scouting and represents a girl's accomplishments in Girl Scouting and in her community as she grows and works to improve her life and the lives of others.

Just like with the Bronze award, Cadettes must first complete a Cadette Journey and create a Take Action project that improves their neighborhood or local community. After girls complete the Cadette journey, the suggested minimum time for earning their Girl Scout Silver Award is 50 hours for an individual girl or each girl on the small team.

Girls earn the award by focusing on an issue they care about; building a team; exploring their community; picking, planning, and putting their Take Action project into action; demonstrating an understanding of sustainability and the wider world; and sharing what they have learned with others. Ten girls took on and completed this great task.

Mairead Curran, Norah Cronin and Ava Hunt from Troop 75054 decided to share their love of dancing with their project called "Dance and Movement." They wanted to provide a free dance workshop. They contacted a local agency, advertised and reached out to recruit anyone that may not have the opportunity to dance.

The girls each took a part of the day and developed a routine and taught a structured dance lesson. Each attendee was able to participate and learn about hip hop, ballet and tap. At the end, the girls combined their sessions for a powerful final dance. The attendees were each given a printed syllabus to refer to and practice their dances at home.

Ava, Norah and Mairead also created a survey and questionnaire that asked people how they felt about dance and movement. The survey was sent to local teachers, nurses and community members. The survey had many people respond. The data clearly showed that most people felt better after they participated in some kind of movement. The girls really enjoyed the personal narratives that many people included about the importance they found in getting up and staying fit.

Katherine Malefatto, Kailey Ross and Gerelle San Jose, also from Troop 75054, preserved the history of the Germantown Yacht Club with their project called "Germantown Yacht Club." The Germantown Yacht Club was the first all woman's yacht club in the United States, founded in Quincy in the late 1960s. The girls reviewed and organized over 30 years of historical paperwork, pictures and other memorabilia.

They wrote a history of the yacht club. They created a slideshow and tri-fold poster board display and developed a website that includes the history, summary of all officers of the club for all years the club was active, and display of historical documents and pictures. They donated all the materials, the slideshow and poster board to the Quincy Historical Society who will maintain the information permanently.

Isabella Carinci, Jayda Berry and Angel Brenahan, from Troop 85042 decided that the local elementary school could greatly benefit from a nature trail, their project was called "Clifford Nature Trail." They noticed the woods next to their former school was unused so they met with the principal and asked if they would be able to transform the overgrown mess into a usable trail.

The principal thought it was a great idea. The girls knew it needed to be educational for the school to be able to use it so they met with a teacher from each grade and got feedback on what they thought would work best for their students. Armed with the teachers' feedback they created worksheets for each grade that they put in a binder for teachers to use when they take their students through the trail.

Sabrina Egan, also from Troop 85042, addressed the issue of species in New England becoming endangered due to deforestation and pollution with her project called "What's Going On In Your Own Backyard." She researched a few different animals, how they live their daily lives and how they are affected by deforestation and pollution. She did presentations at both the Thomas Crane and Adam Shore libraries, to educate school aged children, about this issue. She created a poster board with research and pictures, of animals, to display. She engaged the children with crafts and coloring pages. She also spent a Saturday morning, on Georges Island, speaking to visitors, about her project and the issue.

Librarians Julie Rines and Laurie Seegraber gave her assistance especially Miss Laurie, from Adams Shore Library. Shelly Dien, the Energy and Sustainability Director of Quincy, recommended websites for her research. A family member put her in touch with Peter Gamache, an environmental police officer. He reached out to someone at DCR and that put her in contact with others at DCR which led to a trip to George's Island.

Seventeen Quincy Girl Scouts earned The Girl Scout Bronze Award, which is the highest honor and recognition a Junior Girl Scout can earn. The Girls demonstrate planning skills and leadership through badge work and community service. It culminates with a service project that makes a positive impact on her community. The project requires the girls first complete a Junior Journey and then requires a minimum of 20 hours, for each girl. With those hours they build their team, explore their community, choose and plan their project, put their plan in motion, and spread the word to educate and inspire others. This award was first offered in 2002.

Ella Halley, Jenna Christian, Elizabeth Coote, from Troop 68282, built a little free library at Clifford Marshall Elementary School with their project called "Butterfly Little Free Library at Clifford Marshall Elementary School." Their hope is to inspire children to read by providing free access to books. As Girl Scouts and alums of Clifford Marshall, the elementary school where each of us learned to read. They were excited to have the opportunity to encourage education and the love of reading.

Gretchen Himmer, Kyrie Blue, Alyssa Hopps, Katherine Gweth, Joyce Zheng, Elizabeth Gonzalez, And Tarene Cunningham, also from Troop 68282, also built a little free library. Their project was at Snug Harbor Elementary School, and was called "Little Free Library at Snug Harbor Elementary School." Their goal is to inspire the love of reading, build community, and increase access to books for all readers.

And the last group also from Troop 68282, consisted of Madelyn Yang, Angelina Rumble, Maggie Webber, Hannah Spratt, Victoria Reid, Violet Liu, and Zoe Buckley picked their project, named "Butterfly Garden at Wollaston Elementary School" to support and stop the declining butterfly population and other pollinating insects. All of these species are being exterminated by use of pesticides, and people do not realize how important the ecosystem is. The girls learned about different host plants and nectar plants that attract butterflies. The girls had a fun time designing the garden and planting the flowers.

The girls had a great appreciation of flowers and the pollinators they attract.

All these Girls made a commitment, worked hard and completed their goal of helping and educating the community. These awards are not easily earned and these girls should be celebrated for their abilities and wear their awards with honor and pride.

MONTILIO'S BAKING COMPANY won the award for best commercial float winner.

By SCOTT JACKSON

Thousands lined a three-mile stretch of Hancock Street Sunday as the 66th annual Quincy Christmas Parade marched through the heart of the city, capping off a three-day long celebration to start the holiday season.

Members of the Weymouth Police Department – including the department's honor guard and motorcycle units – led the parade in memory of Sgt. Michael Chesna, who was killed in the line of duty this July.

The participants in Sunday's parade were all decked out to this year's theme, "Do you hear what I hear." Participating floats, bands and color guards were honored during an awards ceremony at North Quincy High School following the conclusion of the parade.

The Koch Club won the Father Thomas Tierney Grand Prize award for best overall non-commercial float. In winning the award, the club received a trophy and $2,000 cash.

The Quincy Catholic Academy won first place non-commercial float, with the YMCA taking second and North Quincy High School third. Those groups received cash awards of $1,500, $1,000 and $750, respectively.

REI Roofing won the George White Award for best Quincy commercial float. Montilio's Baking Company won the award for best commercial float winner. Stop & Shop was named the best specialty float winner. All three received trophies for their effort.

In the Thomas M. McDonald All-American State Commander Color Guard Awards, the Weymouth Police Department took home first place, followed by the Quincy Police Department in second and the Morrisette American Legion Post 294 in third.

The New Bedford High School band first place in the overall band competition, finishing with a score of 94.3. Acton-Boxborough was second with a score of 93.2. There was a tie for third place between the Quincy-North High School band and Somerset Berkley High School; both finished with scores of 93.0.

Somerset Berkley swept the Div. I results, finishing with best music score, best percussion score and best color guard. Immaculate Heart of Mary High School finished second in the division with an overall score of 84.1 and Joseph Case High School was third with a score of 83.0.

New Bedford swept the Div. II results, netting the awards for best music score, best percussion score and best color guard. Burlington High School finished the second best score in the division (90.4) followed by David Prouty High School (85.9) in third.

Acton-Boxborough took home best music score, best percussion score and best color guard in the Div. III competition. The Quincy-North Quincy band finished second in the division, with no band in third place.

Ski, Snowboard Lessons Available

The Quincy Recreation Department has limited openings for its ski or snowboard instruction program to be conducted at the Blue Hills Ski Area.

Registration can be done online at QuincyRec.com or in person at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway.

The program is open to Quincy youngsters age 8 through high school and features a one hour and 15 minute lesson for beginners to advanced, use of the ski tow, supervision, and transportation to and from the ski area each Tuesday for five weeks.

The staff of the Recreation Department supervises the transportation and the lesson instruction is provided by certified instructors from the Blue Hills Ski School.

This program will be conducted on Tuesdays, beginning Jan. 8, and will continue for five weekly lessons. The cost of this program is $215 and is payable at the time of registration. The Blue Hills Ski Area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost.

Arrangements for rental equipment will be done by the Recreation Department at the time of registration. Five-week rental of skis (with boots and poles) or a snowboard (with boots) is $85. Helmets are required and can also be rented for $30 for the five week program.

Gift certificates are available for this program.

The program leaves from the office of the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway at 3:30 p.m. and returns at 7 p.m. If necessary, canceled classes are made up on the next available Tuesday.

As part of the instructional lesson program the ski area also provides a free one day lift ticket pass for the use of the student at a day and time of their convenience.

Recreation Director Barry Welch encourages all would-be participants to register early for this popular program. In order to insure the proper staff to participant teaching ratio the Blue Hills Ski Area imposes very strict registration deadlines. Registration will continue at the Recreation office and online only until Dec. 21st.

Welch emphasized that following the recommendation of the ski industry and child safety advocates the Recreation Department and the ski area require the use of helmets for all level of participants.

Quincy Teen Remembered For Volunteerism, Work Ethic

icated in December 2015.

"I was originally inspired to do this project when I was a student here," Luc Theberge said at the dedication. "I saw the need to have an outdoor learning space where we could come together, either just to read or to do ecology teaching.

"Also, I like the idea of the permanence of this project. Being able to drive by and see it and know that it was my project was fulfilling."

Luc Theberge received a commendation from the Quincy City Council for his Eagle Scout project that month.

"It was a very special way for him to honor his mom, and as a mother it was so touching," Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes said at the time. "He's a very special young man. I hope my sons could aspire to be such great young men as Luc and some of the other scouts I know he serves with."

The City Council remembered Mr. Theberge at its meeting Monday night.

"This is a tragic loss not only for this family… but also for the entire community – the Quincy High School community and the community of Quincy," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said. "I have no doubt in my mind that Luc would have gone on to do amazing things with his life moving forward, because he had done so many other amazing things in the short time he was with us."

Luc Theberge earned numerous other scouting awards, including the National Outdoor Achievement and Venturing Ranger awards.

Ray Theberge said his son had applied for early admission into Worcester Polytechnic Institute, where he planned to study mechanical engineering.

"He was very involved in high school robotics," Ray Theberge said. "He was also a coach and mentor for middle school robotics."

Ray also described his son as an avid outdoorsmen who had climbed each of the 48 4,000 footers – mountains at least 4,000 feet tall – in New Hampshire. Theberge said his son and a fellow scout, who was trying to do the same, were headed to the White Mountains to go mountain climbing the morning of the crash.

"He was trying to help others," Ray Theberge said.

In addition to his father, Mr. Theberge is also survived by his brother, Jonathan, and sister, Cecilia, of Quincy; grandmother Fernande Doiron and her husband George of Maine, and grandfather John Perry of Quincy; nephew Ryan Theberge; and several aunts and uncles.

New Hampshire State Police responded to the crash shortly after 6:30 a.m. on Friday after receiving a report a vehicle had gone off Interstate 93 north at mile marker 72 in New Hampton.

The initial investigation indicated Mr. Theberge made an abrupt turn to the left and then drove right, police said, impacting a guardrail and then became airborne before landing on its side amongst several trees.

The cause of the crash is under investigation.

One lane of the interstate was shutdown for three-and-a-half hours Friday following the crash, and the entire northbound section of the highway was closed briefly so the medical helicopter could land. State troopers were assisted on scene by three local fire departments and local police.

Quincy Sun Publisher Robert Bosworth said Luc was the third member of the Theberge family to be a Quincy Sun newscarrier. His older brother and sister also delivered the paper and together they were part of the Sun's "extended family" for nearly 15 years.

"Luc was a dedicated newscarrier for seven years. He was dependable, reliable and courteous. On behalf of the newspaper I would like to extend our sincerest sympathies to the Theberge family and thank them for sharing Luc with us. He was a remarkable young man who won't be forgotten," Bosworth said.

QHS Culinary Arts Cooks 60 Turkeys, Bakes 45 Pies For Fr. Bill's Thanksgiving Dinner

Quincy High School's culinary arts program cooked 60 turkeys and baked 45 pies for local residents served at Father Bill's & MainSpring's Thanksgiving community dinner held at Christ Church in Quincy.

Mark Kelly, QHS' culinary instructor, said, "It's great to give back, and it's a great lesson for the kids to learn how to cut a turkey and feed the people who need it."

QHS junior Niyah Cardoso said, "I like how we're helping people get a meal."

In total, Father Bill's & MainSpring provided about 650 meals on Thanksgiving, hosting two community meals, one in Quincy and one in Brockton, and hand-delivering meals to households in the Quincy area. The Hingham Congregational Church donated the turkeys that were cooked by QHS students.

O'Donnell Hosts Computer Seminar For Norfolk County Bar Assn.

As part of an ongoing commitment to providing outreach to different Norfolk County Registry of Deeds stakeholders, Register of Deeds William O'Donnell recently hosted a computer seminar for members of the Bar Association of Norfolk County.

At the seminar, attendees received a tutorial on navigating the Registry's online land records. Instruction was provided on how to access land documents such as deeds, mortgages, Homesteads and mortgage discharges. The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds computer system has more than 8.5 million land document images available for viewing, dating back to 1793.

"Those attending the Nov. 14th seminar learned how easy it is to look up land related documents," O'Donnell said. "With this knowledge, real estate and conveyancing attorneys can do this research from the convenience of their law offices resulting in better service to their clients."

O'Donnell added:

"I want to thank Pamela Salpoglou, president of the Bar Association of Norfolk County who was the driving force behind setting up the seminar. I also want to thank the Bar Association members who took time from their busy schedules to attend the seminar. The Registry values its relationships with the real estate and legal communities. Sharing information, we are all able to better serve the general public and clients and make all our jobs easier."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High Street in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, Nov. 18, at approximately 7:10 p.m., officers James Goldrick, Veronica Acevedo, William O'Neill and E.T. Smith were dispatched to Roche Brothers Supermarket on Falls Boulevard for an unwanted male who was asked to leave earlier and had returned.

Upon arrival, the officers were directed to the male, who was about 30 years old. The male was wearing a new gray backpack with the tags still attacked. The officers informed the male that he was not wanted back on the premises due to inappropriate behavior earlier.

As the officers led the male out, a loss prevention officer from Walmart introduced himself and said he was investigating the male for a shoplifting incident that occurred between 5 and 5:25 p.m. At this time, the male began yelling, "They let me go." When asked what that meant, the male said the door checkers at Walmart said, "Thanks for shopping at Walmart."

The male then began to yell that he was being harassed by the police and store employees, adding that he didn't do anything. These outbursts caused shoppers and bystanders to take notice of his actions.

The Walmart loss prevention officer said the male attempted to exit Walmart with a gray backpack, air mattress and a tent. The door checker asked the male for his receipt. The male did not produce one and just kept walking out of the store. The door checker immediately notified loss prevention and, after reviewing the security video, it was clear the male stole the items. The male was seen on video stuffing some other merchandise into the backpack (possibly cans of soda). Still photographs from the video were made and brought to the officers' location at Roche Brothers.

LT. DAN MINTON

The male was told he was under arrest for shoplifting. As the officers attempted to handcuff him, he made his arms rigid and put them on to of his head (not behind his back as instructed) while screaming the police were harassing him.

After a brief struggle, the officers were able to handcuff the male while he yelled out repeatedly the police were using excessive force. He was telling anybody nearby the officers threw him on the ground for no reason and injured him, even though he was never placed on the ground. He then told one officer he was good friends with a local government official and, "He will have your job."

While making these outbursts as he was led to the cruiser, shoppers and motorists stopped to see what was happening and avoided coming close to the male. As the officers attempted to place him in the cruiser, the male refused to sit in the seat by placing his buttocks on the floor of the cruiser and then used his legs as leverage.

As a result of his actions, the prisoner transport wagon was called. While waiting, the male continued to yell about excessive force, false arrest and that he would not have to steal camping gear because he has a house and a job.

The male, a 33-year-old Braintree resident, was charged with shoplifting, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. The male called his father to come bail him out. The father called back and told officers he would not be bailing his son out and that he planned on seeking a Section 25 order to involuntarily commit him for alcohol/substance abuse.

NQ Feasts On Turnovers To Win City Football Crown

Red Raiders Over Presidents 33-8 For Third Straight Thanksgiving Day Victory

By BRUCE MARQUIS

In the victors' most lopsided victory in this 86-year intra-city rivalry, the North Quincy High School Red Raiders outscored the Quincy High School Presidents 33-8 Thanksgiving Day morning before a frigid Veterans' Memorial Stadium crowd of 1,500 bundled up fans.

Seven Quincy turnovers in this historic clash made it seem as if the Presidents were playing in arctic temperatures, which they were, and their opponents, with no turnovers, were playing in a calm 60 degrees.

Nevertheless, the actual temperature at game time was 20 degrees and the wind chill factor near zero. The wind and cold certainly had a substantial impact on the game.

North Quincy ended the season at 5-6, while Quincy dropped to 3-8. The series remains in the Presidents' favor 47-34-5, although the Red Raiders have prevailed in 6 of the last 11 meetings including the last three holiday games.

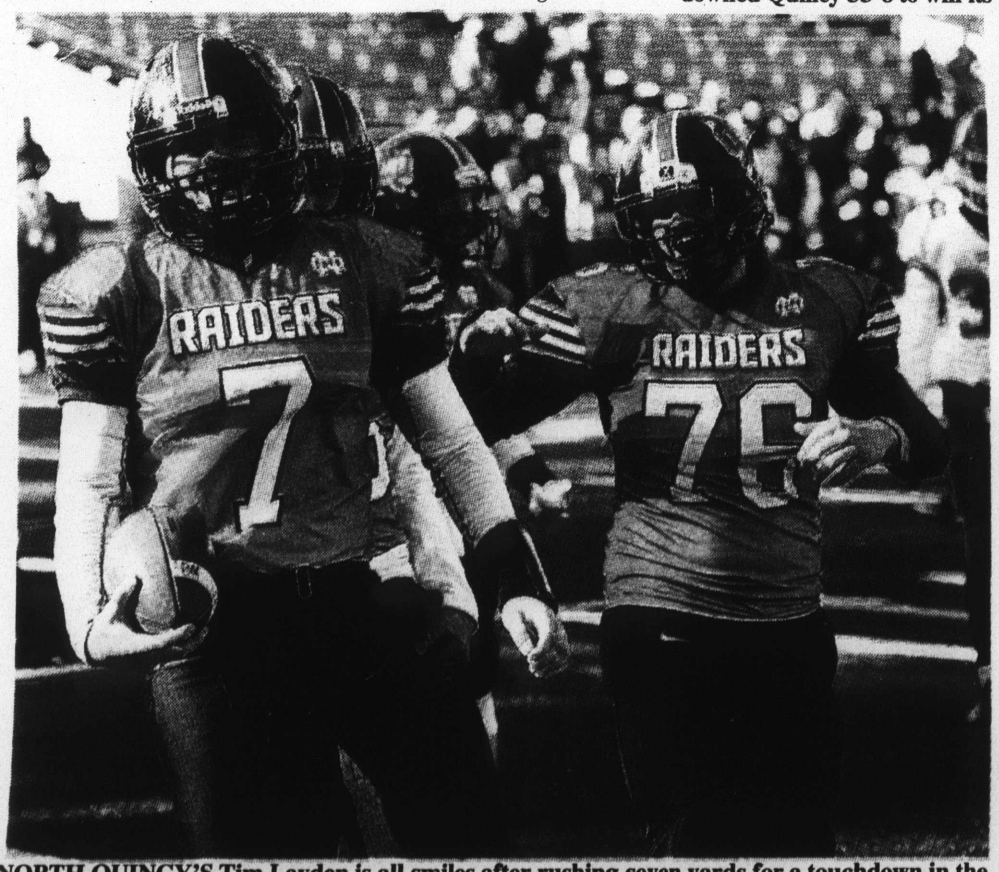
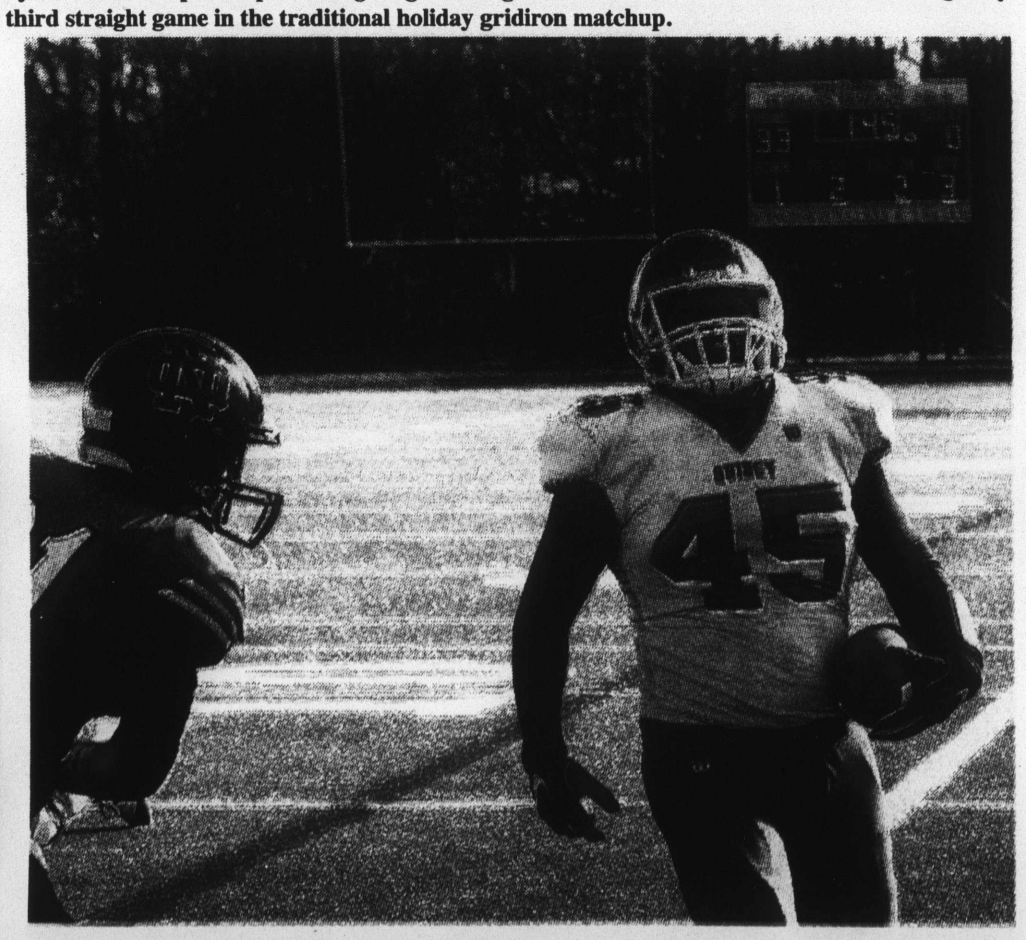
North Quincy downed Quincy 33-8 to win its third straight game in the traditional holiday gridiron matchup.



NORTH QUINCY'S Tim Layden is all smiles after rushing seven yards for a touchdown in the Red Raiders' 33-8 win over the Quincy Presidents in the 86th annual city football championship Thanksgiving Day morning at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Teammates celebrating the QB's touchdown include #76 Matt Scanlon.



QUINCY'S THOMAS LE scored the Presidents' lone touchdown on a 3-yard run in the third quarter. Le advanced the ball to the three-yard line the previous play on a 35-yard run.

RED RAIDERS celebrate recovering a blocked punt for a touchdown in North Quincy's 33-8 win over Quincy in the 86th annual city football championship at Veterans' Memorial Stadium on Thanksgiving Day morning. The punt was blocked by Joshua Dangora and recovered by Alex Atanassov for the first touchdown of his high school career. North Quincy's Jackson Zhao (left, #50) and Matt Scanlon (#76) lead the celebration back to the Red Raider sideline as Quincy's Mark McKenna (foreground) can only look over to the Presidents' sideline.

to begin the game after deferring its primary choice until the second half. Starting at its own 25-yard line, Quincy gained only 2 yards on 3 rushes. On third down the game began to turn when the Presidents' blocking back, T.J. Ortiz, went down with a broken ankle, a huge loss for his squad's running game and an emotional downer for his teammates. When they attempted a punt by senior captain Andrew Rooney, it was blocked by Raider senior end Jonathan Knowles and recovered at the 23-yard line.

Three plays netted only 5 yards, and a 35-yard field goal try into the strong wind by senior kicker Kieran O'Driscoll fell short to the right. Quincy had ducked an early bullet, but their luck would not hold up for long.

Taking back possession of the ball at its own 19-yard line, the Presidents picked up their initial first down on a 22-yard pass from senior Colin Keaveny to Rooney. The tall signal caller had entered the game after the starting QB, sophomore Amarion Robinson, had experienced an ankle sprain during the first series. But on third down and 7 to go for a first down, Red Raiders' senior captain Tim Layden intercepted a Keaveny throw at the Quincy 45, running down the left sideline into the north end zone. After a successful conversion kick by O'Driscoll, North led 7-0 and would not look back.

Layden had played sparingly at linebacker and safety during the first 10 games, as it is common to protect quarterbacks from possible injury if playing D. Nevertheless, playing virtually every important play at linebacker this day, the captain's presence made everyone else on his side of the field better.

Quincy lost possession on its next series when a fumble was recovered by North Quincy sophomore back Tyler Le at the Quincy 44. Not able to move the ball, the Raiders punted to the Presidents' 10-yard line. From there Quincy moved into their arch-rival's territory for the first time, primarily on runs of 13, 16, 3, and 9 yards by sophomore phenom Isaiah Steinberg. But on third and 10 to go for a first down, Robinson, who had returned to action as the signal caller, was intercepted by Le.

Four plays later the Red Raiders were in the end zone again as senior captain running back Win Tran took a handoff and darted 36 yards through the Quincy line and secondary. The extra point kick was blocked but North led 13-0.

This holiday was not Halloween, but turnover problems continued to haunt the Presidents. They suffered another interception on the next series of downs, when sophomore back Liam Hines grabbed a Robinson throw and returned it to the visitors' 33-yard line. Five successive rushes concluded with an 11-yard blast up the middle by Tran behind his talented offensive line and was aided by most of his teammates helping to push him across the goal line. A two-point conversion pass by Layden was knocked down and his team led 19-0.

Quincy's first five possessions had produced a blocked punt, one loss of a fumble, and three intercepted passes. It could not possibly get worse, but it did.

On its ensuing possession the Presidents lost 4 yards on three plays and were forced into a punting situation. As Rooney waited to punt from his own end zone, an errant snap caused him to scramble to his right and attempt to kick the frozen, hard pigskin. His punt was blocked by senor captain defensive tackle Joshua Dangora, then recovered by senior middle linebacker Alex Atanassov for the Raiders' fourth touchdown of the first half. The conversion kick was good for a 26-0 score.

To put yet another nail in Quincy's coffin, Atanassov intercepted a pass on the Presidents' eighth and last possession of the first 22 minutes. A kneel-down by Layden sent the teams into their warmer dressing rooms for half-time.

The combined Quincy-North Quincy band played valiantly at halftime, featuring Knowles playing the baritone saxophone in his red #42 game jersey and uniform sans helmet. One has to wonder if many frozen lips were left on the brass instruments. The cheerleaders also did their best in the extremely uncomfortable environment. Then the rival gladiators resumed play after a 30-minute break that seemed longer for the chilled spectators.

Making it clear that they did not take their lead for granted, the Red Raiders accepted the second half kickoff as sophomore back Jamal Maximilien took it back his own 30-yard line. Layden and Tran covered 70 yards on 9 carries, finishing the drive off with a 7-yard scamper by Layden through the left side of the Quincy defense behind the blocks of Dangora, junior senior captain guard Ryan Kelson and tackle Atanassov. Junior guards Mike Levine and Matt Scanlan walled off the pursuit coming from the left. O'Driscoll drilled another point-after with the aid of his accurate long snapper Layden and the hold of sure-handed senior back Eric Hellmuth. That ended the North's scoring and put the red and black up 33-0.

With Keaveny back in at quarterback on the Presidents' next possession, Quincy's offense marched 75 yards down the field to score on a 3-yard scamper by junior running back Tommy Le. Le set up the score with a 35-yard charge off the left side of his offensive line. A two-point conversion pass to junior end Derek Little made the final score of 33-8.

This was the most points the Red Raiders had ever scored against the Presidents in 85 previous meetings and its largest margin of victory – 25. Its previous best was on Thanksgiving Day 1971 when it defeated its arch-rivals 30-12. Quincy's best outcome was in 1969 when it blanked North 53-0. The series still stands in the Presidents' favor 47-34-5, a 13-game lead that has only shrunk by one over the past 11 seasons.

A highlight of the day was the insertion of Raider all-around back Andrew Airosus on the last series of the contest. The senior captain had missed the last several games of the campaign with an injury, but still was his team's leading receiver. Another was the spirited play of junior captain linebacker Jackson Zhau, who was all over the field making tackles.

Ryan Craig, the Red Raiders first year head coach, was obviously thrilled with his team's performance on this difficult day to play on the gridiron.

"Our kids came out and played hard," Craig said. "This was the team we saw at the beginning of the season before the injuries kicked in. The defense was flying around today and made my first win on Thanksgiving very satisfying." With their strong junior and very strong sophomore and freshman classes, the Red Raiders' future looks bright indeed.

Quincy's head coach Kevin Carey, also in his rookie season in that role, was obviously disappointed in his squad's performance. He emphasized that a team cannot have seven turnovers and expect to compete effectively. Continuing to express his season-long pride in his players, Carey explained that the conditions limited his offense and the well-coached North Quincy eleven was able to "take away what we wanted to do." Losing Ortiz early did not help his cause.

The NQ seniors can boast that they "never lost" to their cross-town rivals, since as varsity players they prevailed the past three seasons, and for those who played on the freshmen squad in 2015 - Atanassov, Dangora, tackle Dimitri Dimitriou, Hellmuth, Kelson, Knowles, Layden and Tran - they won all four seasons. Other North Quincy seniors were Airosus, back Mike Ladas, O'Driscoll, and lineman Nick Hallak,

For their Quincy senior counterparts, who played with pride and courage throughout an extremely grueling schedule, their efforts have been appreciated by all true football fans anywhere in the city. The heart of this year's squad were the seniors: defensive end and back J. J. Camara, linebacker Ryan Cefalo, center Zac Carson, lineman Jack Cook, back Nick Hewer, back Sean Hill, lineman Troy Isaac, back Derrick Jordan, Keaveny, end Chris Leo, McKenna, back Xavier Molina, lineman Patrick Nazzaro, back Benson Nguyen, back Aidan O'Connell, lineman and long snapper Brian O'Connor, Ortiz, back Hunter Ploof, Rooney and tackle Jalen Varela.

With a returning offensive backfield of Le, Robinson and Steinberg (they also play defense), the Presidents may have an improved offense for the 2019 season if they are able to successfully rebuild their offensive line. Dropping down to the Fisher Division of the Patriot League may help some as well.

All told this will not be a Thanksgiving Day soon forgotten anywhere in the Granite City.

THE GAME Standout Players For NQ, Quincy

By BRUCE MARQUIS

Here are The Quincy Sun's selection of standout players for both North Quincy and Quincy at this year's Thanksgiving Day football game.

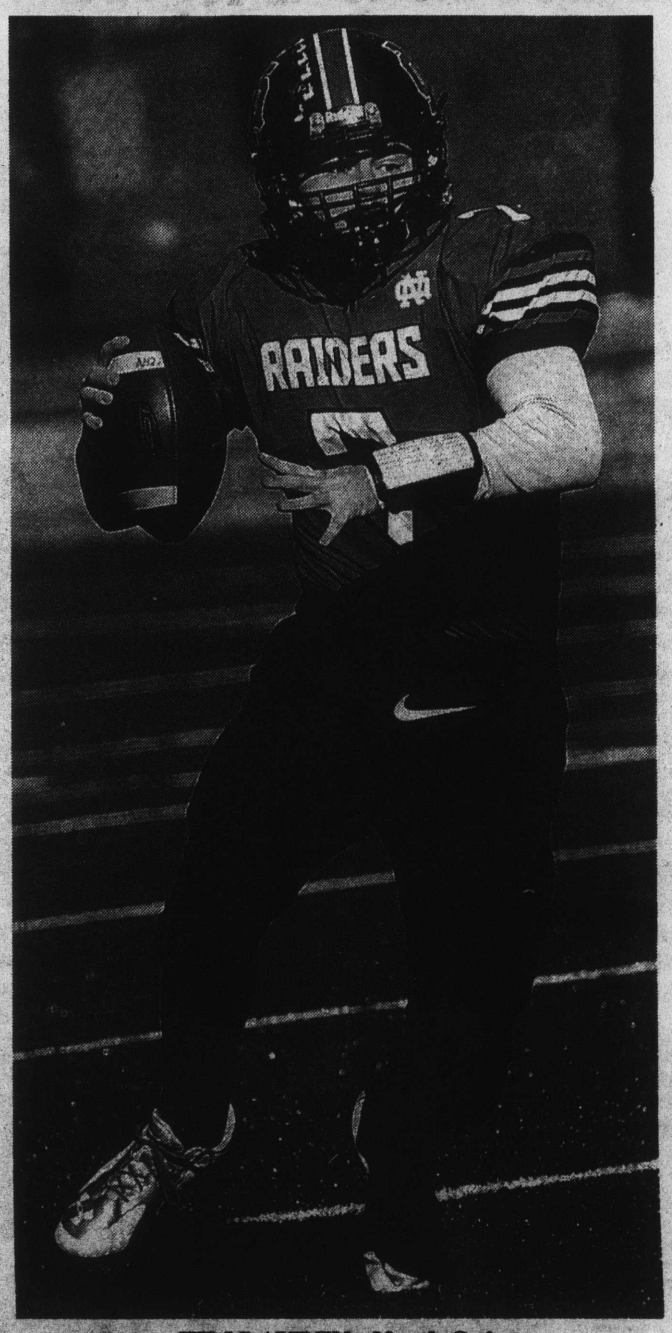
QUINCY

Outstanding defensive player: Senior captain Mark McKenna. Playing right defensive end for most of the game, McKenna made 11 tackles and forced the North Quincy defense to run away from him. Excellent in pursuit, he uses his size - 6' 2" and 225 pounds to his advantage. Playing left guard on offense, McKenna accounted for the key blocks on several of Quincy's longest gains, including Tommy Le's 35-yard scamper, leading to Quincy's only score, again over the left side of the line.

Outstanding offensive player: Junior running back Tommy Le scored his team's only touchdown on a 3-yard dash around left end. This followed his 35-yard burst off tackle as he then bounced off to the outside and ran all the way to North Quincy's three yard line before he was forced out-of-bounds. Some his rushes were stopped by his first cousin, Raider sophomore safety Tyler Le. On defense, Le was a force in the middle from his linebacker position and was second only to McKenna in tackles.

Next season should be a break-out year for the powerful back, especially if he continues to be teamed with the speedy Isaiah Steinberg, and may catch some passes out of the backfield from Amarion Robinson.

NORTH QUINCY



TIM LAYDEN - North Quincy

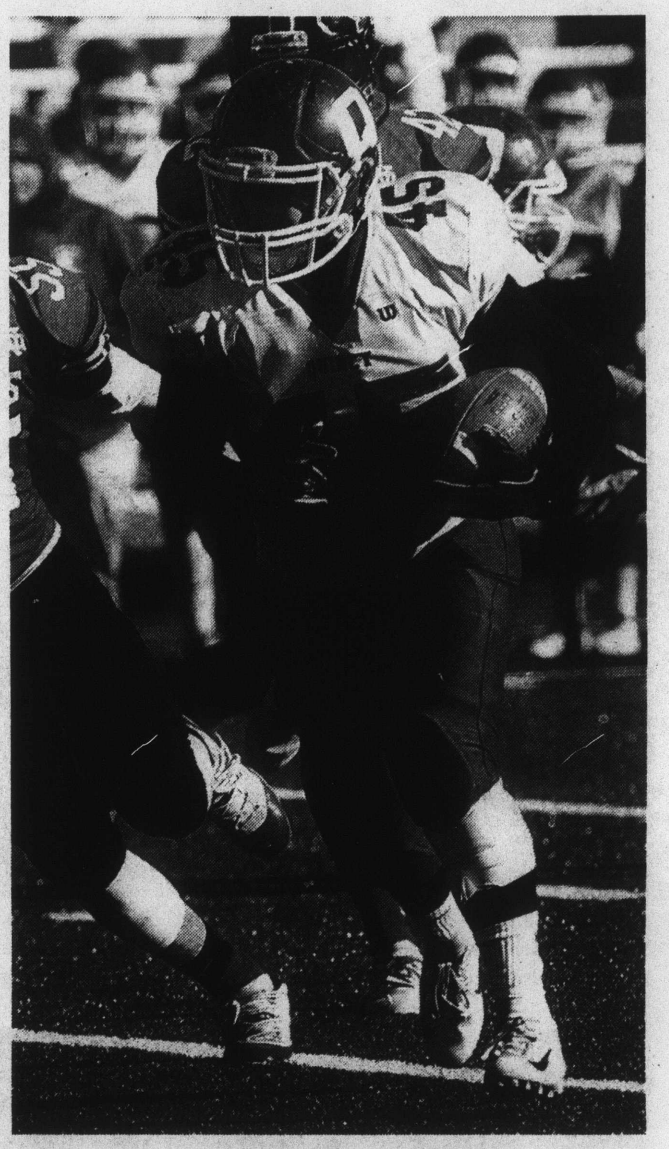
Outstanding defensive player: Senior Alex Atanassov had a career day for the North Quincy Red Raiders on Thanksgiving. An extremely mobile and hard hitting linebacker, AA "Battery" overcame a broken thumb and two dislocated fingers on the other hand to return to action for this special day. Joined by fellow backers junior captain Jackson Zhau and senior captain Tim Layden, Atanassov led his team's strongest linebacker corps since the season's third game. He recovered two fumbles, one for a touchdownwhen senior captain Joshua Dangora's blocked a punt in the end zone, intercepted a Quincy pass to end the first half, and led his squad with 10 tackles. One important observer of his football career contends that "AA" was the most improved player in his class over the four-year period.

Outstanding offensive player: Someone recently said that "when Tran plays, the Raiders win!" Last Thursday was a "win win situation" for his Red Raiders as Win Tran helped control the clock with 118 yards on 21 rushes, including touchdown runs of 36 and 11 yards. Although somewhat diminitire for a power back, Tran is considered the strongest player on the team with powerful legs and arms almost as capable. He runs with tremendous resolve and often refuses to go down even when 4 or 5 defenders are hanging onto him. He played this game with a painful shoulder that has bothered him for 3 years, and the remnants of a sprained ankle that had hampered him since midseason. Tran was expected to be a defensive end as well, but the limits imposed by his injuries limited his action to the offense.

PLAYER OF THE GAME

Senior captain Tim Layden is a clear choice as Player of the Game. The Raiders' all-time leading career passer with over 2,300 yards gained, Layden continued his deft ball-handling as signal caller, made several awe-inspiring runs, two for key first downs and one for a 7-yard TD blast. But it was on defense that Layden's contribution was in some ways more impactful. Having played only occasionally at linebacker and safety on D, he started this Thanksgiving at outside linebacker making a huge difference in the strength of his teams ability to stop the Presidents.

On Quincy's first play from scrimmage he blasted Steinberg out-of-bounds for a two yard loss setting the tone of what was to come,



THOMAS LE - Quincy

he intercepted a Quincy pass and ran it back 45 yards for the games first score. and he hit Steinberg later in the game so hard the Presidents' star running back was forced out of the contest. Layden was also the long snapper for extra points, field goal tries and punts. As a three-year starter at QB, Layden's success as a defender brings into question the long-held practice of restricting quarterbacks to only play on offense.

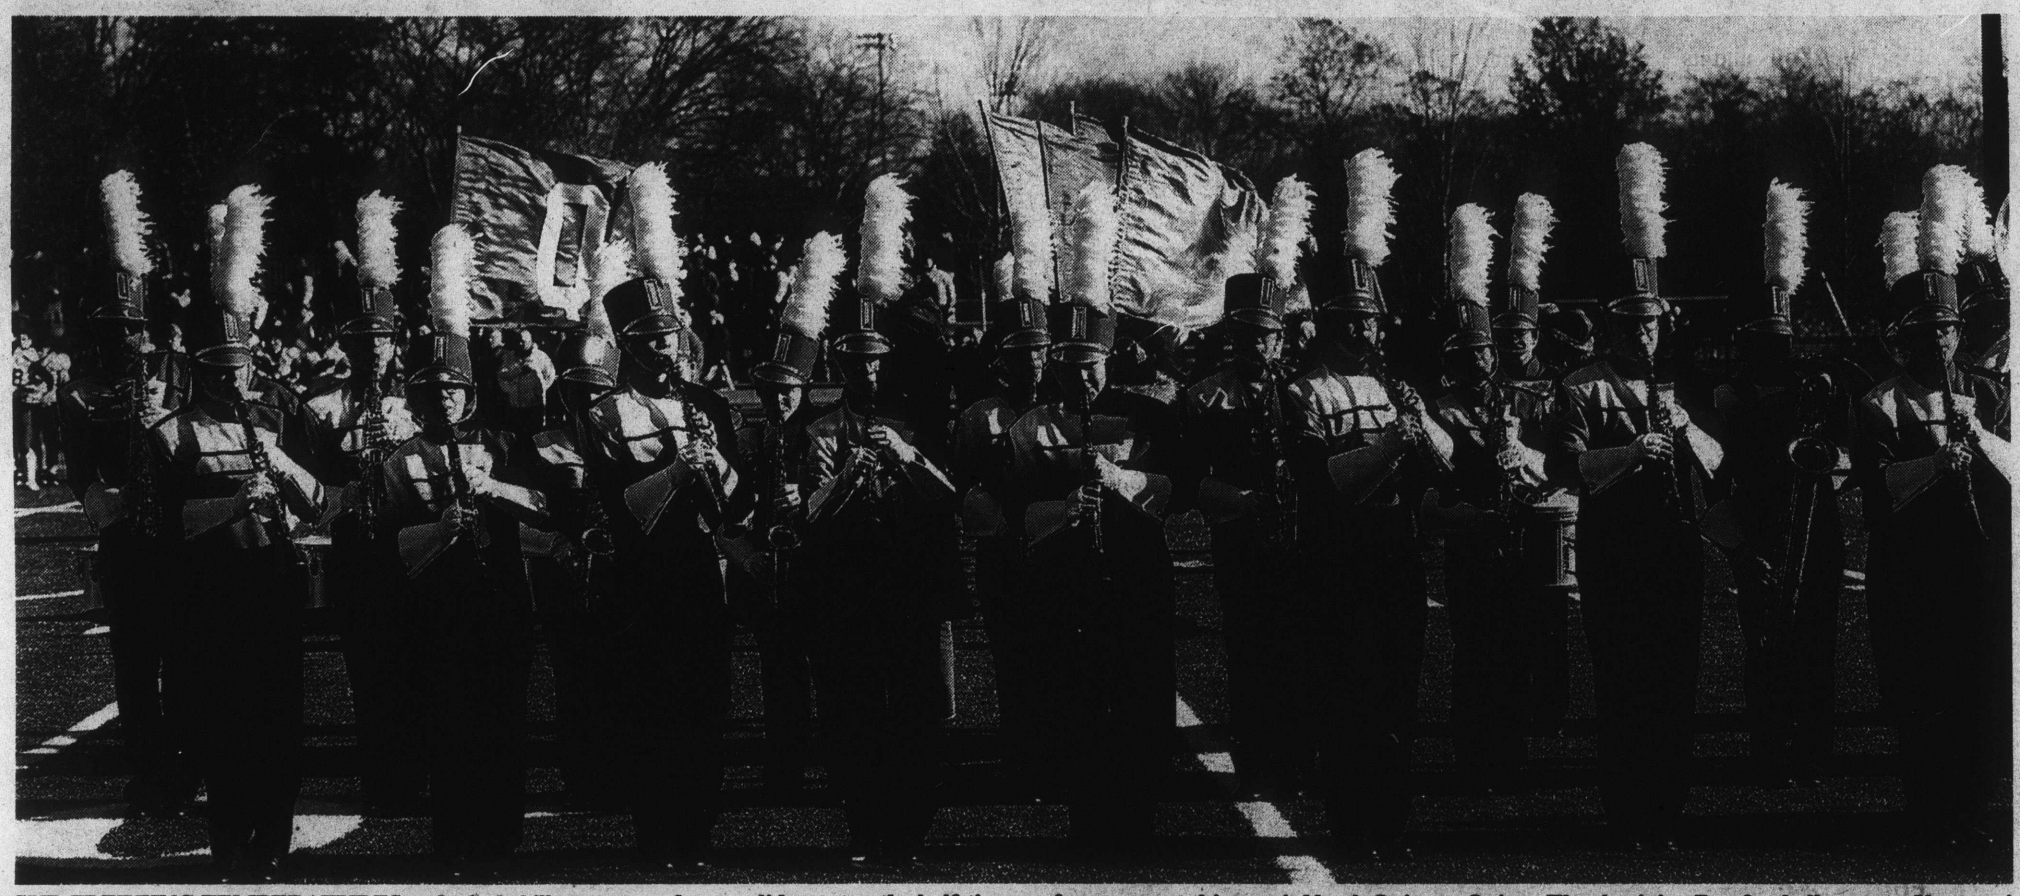
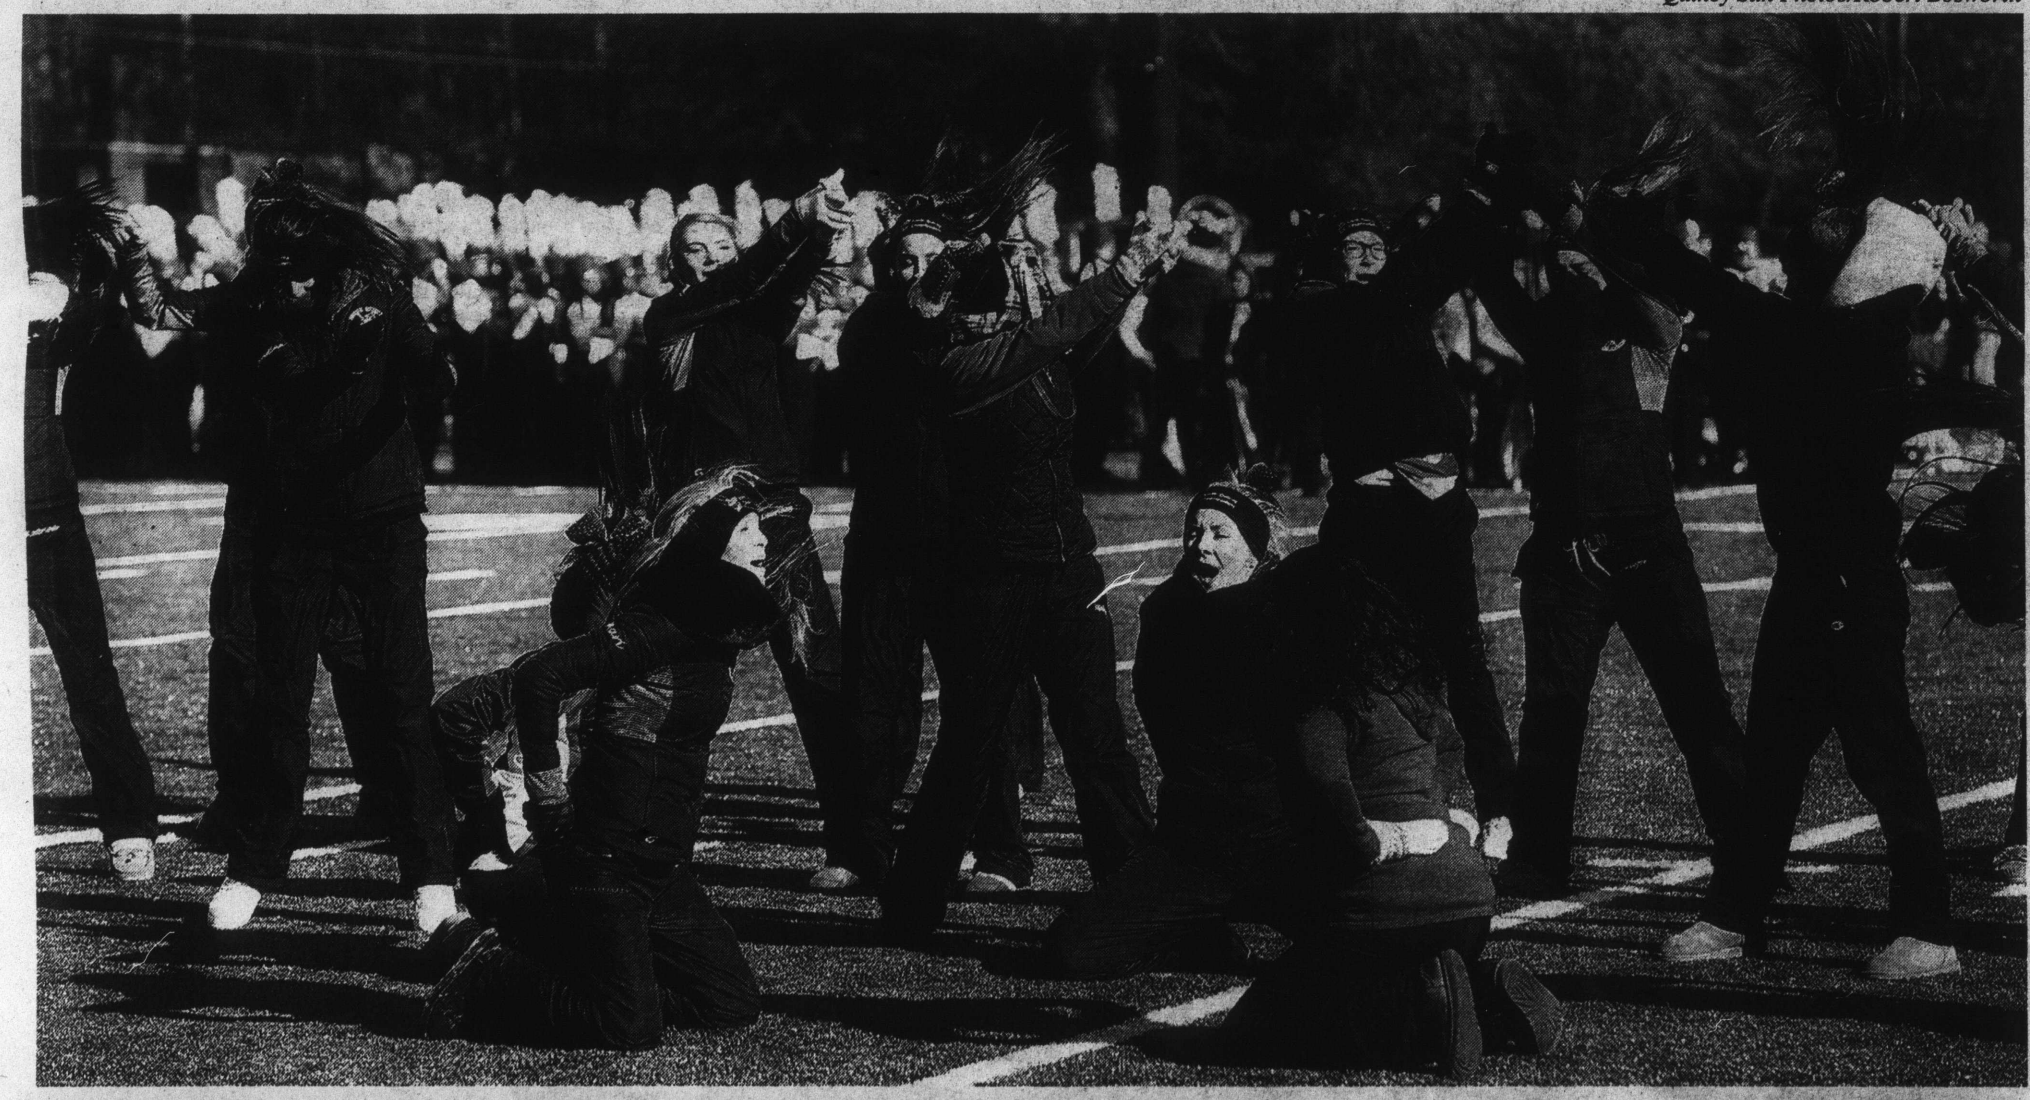
Despite The Big Chill, The Band And Cheers Went On





SUB-FREEZING TEMPERATURES and wind chills near zero degrees did not stop the half-time performances at this year's North Quincy - Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Shown above are members of the combined North Quincy - Quincy High School marching band performing as the wind picks up at the stadium. Chilly temperatures and strong winds forced the North Quincy (middle photo) and Quincy (bottom photo) cheerleaders to modify their routines. No stunts were performed due to the weather conditions.

Community Chanukah Celebration Sunday

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills and its Religious School will sponsor a Community Chanukah Celebration and Open House on Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the synagogue, 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.) in Milton.

The Chanukah Celebration will feature a program to highlight the Bet Hamikdash and ancient Jerusalem when the Temple was destroyed. It will include understanding the gates around Jerusalem, the olive groves where the fresh olive oil needed to be made, lighting the olive oil, and creating a picture on canvas using charcoal and olive oil.

Other Chanukah activities for children and light refreshments will be available, and the entire community is invited to enjoy this festive holiday celebration. Chanukah is an eight-day celebration of freedom, commemorating an ancient Jewish victory over tyranny and oppression against overwhelming odds. It is observed this year from the evening of Dec. 2nd through Dec. 10.

In addition, visitors are invited to meet Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, learn about the congregation's programs and activities, tour our building, and get information about our Religious School and joining our synagogue family. RSVPs are appreciated.

To RSVP or for more information, call 617-698-3394 or email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Council Remembers Cindy Manning

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday honored Cynthia C. "Cindy" Manning, a retired city employee who died Saturday at the age of 70.

Mrs. Manning had worked for the city for 30 years and was most recently the secretary for the Board of License Commissioners. She retired in June 2017.

Mrs. Manning is survived by her husband, Eugene, daughter Jennifer Manning, the City Council's clerk of committees, daughter Stacey Lodge and her husband Christopher, and two grandchildren.

"Unfortunately...she didn't quite get to enjoy her retirement as I think her and her family – her husband, Eugene, and everyone else – expected," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said. "She leaves behind a family that will miss her tremendously. Our very own clerk of committees, Jen Manning, was very close with her mom.

"I just ask that the council and those folks watching at home keep Cindy Manning and her family in their thoughts and prayers."

Leo P. Cardarelli, Sr., 90

A funeral Mass for Leo P. Cardarelli, Sr., age 90, a lifelong Quincy resident, was celebrated Nov. 24 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Cardarelli died unexpectedly Nov. 17 at the VA Hospital in West Roxbury, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born and raised in Quincy to the late Julio and Helen (Fraser) Cardarelli. He left Quincy High School at the age of sixteen in 1944 to join the Merchant Marine Service during World War II. He served on three voyages to Europe and later, his ship was diverted from a convoy to Russia to a port in France in order to bring ammunition which was badly needed by U.S. troops during the Battle of the Bulge in 1944-1945.

He enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps in August of 1945 and participated in the occupation of China for thirty-three months where he assisted with the surrender of Japanese forces.

Mr. Cardarelli was employed as a sales manager in the Quincy office of the W.C. Canniff & Sons Monument Company for over twenty years. He was still working at the time of his passing. It was not uncommon for Mr. Cardarelli to provide personal financial assistance to families of veterans by discounting his commission. Previously, he served as the director of sales at Blue Hill Cemetery in Braintree for thirty-three years. As a younger man, he enjoyed golf and played softball and baseball for many years.

LEO P. CARDARELLI, Sr.

His lifelong passion was in helping veterans. For over sixty years Mr. Cardarelli was an active advocate for veterans and their families. He was past state commandant two times and life member of the Marine Corps League, four times past commandant of the William R. Caddy Marine Corps League Detachment #124 in Quincy. He was a member of the 1st and 6th Marine Division Associations, the China-Burma-India Association, China Marine Association, the VFW Bryant Post #613, the Morrisette American Legion Post #294 and the Quincy DAV.

He was a driving force in 1961-1962 to have the name of Treasure Island on Wollaston Beach changed to the PFC William R. Caddy Memorial Park. Mr. Cardarelli was well known for organizing the first William R. Caddy Golf Classic in 1990, which still continues and provides funds to help needy veterans. He was also responsible for negotiating a ninety-nine year lease at $1 per year for the permanent home of the Caddy Detachment in North Quincy.

During his career, Mr. Cardarelli marched with veterans in various parades including Quincy's Christmas Parade. He participated with the Toys for Tots program and assisted veterans at the Brockton VA Hospital.

Former husband of the late Theresa (Browne) Cardarelli and Patricia (Scholar) Cardarelli of Quincy. Devoted father of Peter Cardarelli and his wife Katarina of Dorchester, Dennis Cardarelli of Quincy, twins Michael Cardarelli and his wife Samm of Scottsdale, Arizona and Mark Cardarelli of Dorchester, Scott DeMarco of Somersworth, NH, Regina Cameron of Weymouth, Leo Cardarelli, Jr. and his wife Edith of Fitchburg, Christopher Cardarelli of Stoughton, Andrew Cardarelli and his wife Maureen of Carver, Joseph Cardarelli and his fiancée Ali Solimini of Quincy, the late Gerard Cardarelli and the late Pamela DeMarco. Loving grandfather of eleven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Interment with Military Honors at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to VA Boston Heath Care, ATTN: Voluntary Services, 940 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02301.

Lucien F. Theberge, 18

A funeral Mass for Lucien F. Theberge, age 18, will be celebrated Saturday at 10 a.m. in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Theberge died Nov. 23 after injuries he sustained in a car accident.

Born in Weymouth on Sept.1, 2000, he grew up in Quincy. He attended Quincy High School where he was a senior and a member of the National Honor Society. Mr. Theberge was a devoted student and well respected by the faculty, administration, and students of the Bernazzani and Central Middle schools as well. He was a committed member of the HYPER robotics team, as well as the tennis team at Quincy High School.

Mr. Theberge was a dedicated and accomplished member of Boy Scout Troop 42. Among the many awards he received, he earned the prestigious rank of Eagle Scout, National Outdoor Achievement Medal, and the Venturing Ranger award. Mr. Theberge enjoyed nature and backpacking in the White Mountains. With his father and fellow Scouts beside him, he was able to climb all 48 of the 4,000+ foot tall mountains in the White Mountains National Forest.

Mr. Theberge had a strong work ethic. He delivered the Quincy Sun for the past seven years. He also worked at Curry Hardware and B&D Realty for almost three years, and had recently started an internship at Dive Technologies in Quincy that he was very excited about.

He leaves behind his father, Ray Theberge, his brother, Jonathan Theberge and sister, Cecilia Theberge of Quincy. Luc was predeceased by his mother, Michelle (Perry) Theberge in 2013, and his maternal grandmother Lucille (Tourigny) Perry in 2015. He will also be sadly missed by his paternal grandmother Fernande (Lagasse) Doiron and her husband George Doiron of Jay, Maine, and his maternal grandfather John Perry of Quincy. He is also survived by his aunts and uncles, Gisele (Theberge) Guerrette and Maurice Guerrette of Auburn, Maine, Pauline (Theberge) Taylor and Todd Taylor of Lewiston, Maine, Irene (Perry) Kneeland and George Kneeland of Bridgewater, MA, Maureen (Perry) Simpson and Fred Simpson of Concord, NH, and his uncle Michael Perry of Quincy. He was the dedicated uncle to his nephew, Ryan J. Theberge.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Friday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. Family and friends will gather in the funeral home beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Anna Maria Santarpia, 84

A funeral Mass for Anna Maria (Milone) Santarpia, age 84, of Braintree, was celebrated Wednesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Santarpia died peacefully Nov. 23 at Royal Braintree Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, in the comfort of her loving family.

She was born in Italy to the late Giovanni "Papa" and Maria Josephine "Ma" (Avitable) Milone. She was raised and educated there and lived most of her life in Torino, Italy. Mrs. Santarpia had lived in Braintree for the past twenty years.

Mrs. Santarpia was employed as a seamstress in the garment industry, both in Italy and locally in Braintree. She enjoyed sports, especially baseball and soccer, and was an avid fan of the Boston Red Sox. Mrs. Santarpia was a devoted homemaker and loved to cook. She was dedicated to her family, especially her sons and granddaughters.

ANNA MARIA SANTARPIA

Beloved wife of the late Carmine Santarpia. Devoted mother of Giovanni "John" Milone and his wife Susan of Quincy, Pino C. Santarpia of Boston. Loving grandmother of Lauren E. Milone of Weymouth, Emily M. Martin and her husband Matthew of Quincy. One of seven siblings, she was the dear sister of Rosa Recupero of Bridgewater, Teresa Rossetti of Stoneham, Ainello "Neil" Milone, Antonio "Tony" Milone, both of Weymouth, and was predeceased by Angelo A. Milone and Luigi "Louie" Milone. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to The Boston Home, 2049 Dorchester Ave., Boston, MA 02124. The Boston Home, where Mrs. Santarpia's son, Pino, resides, specializes in caring for patients with multiple sclerosis.

Murray Canale, 81

Funeral service and interment for Murray "Rocco" Canale, 81, of Quincy was will be private.

Mr. Canale died unexpectedly Nov. 21.

He was born on June 4, 1937 and raised in Braintree by his mother Iva (Keith) Canale and father Louis Canale before serving as military police in the U.S. Navy.

Mr. Canale married his late wife Ann (Leone) Canale and they raised their children, Stephen, Debra, Mark, and Denise along with his grandchildren, Rocco D. and Holly, in their Quincy home. He is also survived by his sister Pauline, nephews Scott and Michael, 12 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. He was also the brother of the late Gerald and Frank Canale.

Mr. Canale enjoyed boating and woodworking in his limited spare time. He revered the outdoors and appreciated nature. Selfless and dedicated, his engraving expertise is reflected in countless monuments across the state.

But even beyond his labors and perseverance, he was warm and humble toward others. Beloved and admired by his family, adored by his friends and well respected in the community.

We have all lost a very strong-minded, generous, most loving person to God, where he will suffer no more and the Angels will sing his Grace forever and ever. We will always remember Mr. Canale as a one-of-a-kind man with a heart of gold.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Ronald A. Fletcher, 77

A funeral Mass for Ronald A. Fletcher .77, of Quincy, will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mr. Fletcher died Nov. 23.

He was an x-ray technologist at Carney Hospital in Dorchester, and later an MRI technologist with Shields Health Care. He was a USMC veteran, Vietnam era.

Son of the late Guy Nathan and Marie (Steidle) Fletcher. Beloved husband of Rose M. Fletcher of Quincy. Devoted father of Ron Fletcher and his wife Frances Graham of Milton, and Kara Larson and her husband Adam of Hingham. Loving grandfather of Claudia and Calvin Larson, and Dean Fletcher. Brother of Guy "Skip" Fletcher of Carver. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Two-Alarm Fire At Quincy Point Industrial Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

Firefighters on Saturday extinguished a two-alarm fire at an industrial plant in Quincy Point.

The fire at Twin Rivers Technologies, located at 780 Washington St., was reported around 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Deputy Fire Chief Jack Cadegan said Tuesday.

Engine 3, which is located a short distance away on Washington Street, was the first company on scene. Cadegan said the company encountered heavy fire on the right-hand side of the building facing the Fore River.

Cadegan said the fire began inside one of the plant's fractionators, a device that heats liquids to 350 degrees Fahrenheit in order to separate it. The fire started after a non-petroleum oil leaked from a fractionator and ignited, Cadegan said.

The firefighters on scene initially used water in an attempt to extinguish the blaze; the plant's sprinkler system was also activated. Cadegan said the water contained the fire to the one fractionator, but was not putting out the fire.

After learning the fractionator contained a large amount of oil – up to 1,000 gallons – firefighters began using two foams lines, and stopped putting water into the fire after those foam lines proved effective. Using the foam, Cadegan said firefighters were able to extinguish the fire relatively quickly.

Firefighters were on scene for about two hours. No injuries were reported and the fire was contained to the one fractionator.

Cadegan said a fire such as Saturday's can be difficult because it was in an industrial setting; he was particularly concerned about high-pressure steam lines being compromised and endangering personnel on scene. He credited the firefighters for their effort to contain the blaze.

"I couldn't ask for a better job from the firefighters," Cadegan said. "I have nothing but praise for their actions that night."

The deputy chief also credited the Quincy Police Department, Brewster Ambulance and Twin Rivers for their assistance. He noted a group of volunteers from the community brought drinks and snacks for the firefighters Saturday; the group, he said, does so on a regular basis.

QC Granite Building Momentum

Quincy College Granite men's basketball team has started its sophomore National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) season with six games on the road. Now 2-5 on the season the team is building momentum with a nearly all new squad of players on the court.

On Nov. 10th, Granite faced Quinsigamond Community College and despite a solid effort by Coach Doug Scott's team they came up short by a score of 82 - 78. Quincy College Granite was led by sophomore standout and NJCAA offensive leader Walter Dew-Hollis of Dorchester, who led the game with 20 points.

Quincy College Granite Men's Basketball Head Coach Douglas Scott said:

"The Nov. 10th game versus Quinsigamond Community College, though a loss in final score, was probably the team's best effort to date as Quincy College Granite strives to maintain consistency. I am grateful to the offensive efforts of Quincy College Granite captain Jon DeVeiga of Boston with 17 points and freshman Darrius Hyppolite of Dorchester with 13 points respectively. We will continue to build our team as the season continues. I'm hopeful that we will continue to gain momentum on the season."

On Nov. 15th, Quincy College Granite traveled to Ben Franklin Technical Institute of Technology where despite Darrius Hyppolite's 17 points, Quincy College Granite fell to a veteran Ben Franklin squad by a score of 84 - 69. On the court, leadership from freshman Abu Kaba of Brockton and the strong defense of Charles Alexander of Boston supported Quincy College Granite effort.

In their final match before the Thanksgiving holiday, Quincy College Granite met University of Connecticut- Avery Point on Nov. 17th with an impressive win for the Granite; final score 96 - 69.

Quincy College Granite men's basketball captain Jon DeVeiga led the offensive effort with 28 points on the game. Weymouth's Cam Mason had his best game scoring 19 points. Darrius Hyppolite, Abu Kaba and Trahe Qualls also led the offensive charge as the entire team celebrated a hard fought victory before a week off in their early NJCAA Region 21 schedule.

Granite goes back to work this week against the Eastern Nazarene JV team Wednesday Nov. 28th before they return to NJCAA Region 21 play on Saturday, Dec. 1st against Massachusetts Bay Community College.

Quincy College Granite home games are free and open to the public.

Quincy Student Attends Justice Gathering

WILLIAM FARRELL of Quincy, a junior at Boston College High School, joined nearly 2,000 other attendees at the 21st annual Ignatian Family Teach-In for Justice in Washington, D.C., from Nov. 3-5. Farrell was accompanied by four other BC High classmates, and faculty members Margaret Felice of Dorchester, Father Jim Croghan SJ of BC High, Ruth Evee of Randolph, and Michael McGonagle of Rockland, Vice Principal for Ignatian Mission and Identity at BC High. The Teach-In, commemorating the 28th anniversary of the six Jesuits and their 2 companions, who were martyred in El Salvador on Nov. 16, 1989, is a three-day learning and prayer experience, and is designed to connect students and faculty from Jesuit institutions around the U.S., Canada, Mexico and El Salvador to dialogue and strategize about ways to confront issues of injustice, poverty and oppression both nationally and internationally. The trip concluded with advocacy. The BC High group joined the delegations from Boston College, St. Ignatius Parish and Newton Country Day School to meet with staff at the offices of Sen. Elizabeth Warren and Cong. Joseph Kennedy to learn more about what they are doing to work for justice and to urge them to prioritize poverty, oppression and injustice issues. Shown here at Sen. Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Arian penchant for impatience shows, as you consider passing a problem-prone project on to someone else. Best advice: Stay with it and work out those snarls yourself.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Even patient Bovines can be frustrated when carefully made plans go awry. But crank up that "stick-to-it-ivity" you do so well, and you'll soon find that your schedule is back in sync.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your aspect favors using more resourceful means in dealing with a workplace situation. Some discreet checking around could help shed light on the root cause of the problem.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You show an unusually strong streak of stubbornness in rejecting suggestions from friends and/or family members early in the week. But you become more receptive by the week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat might find a gentler approach more effective when dealing with those who resist needed changes. Remember, the word "persuasion" starts with the sound "purr."

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A disappointing experience with someone you felt you could trust can be painful. But there just might be more to this situation than you're aware of. Press for an explanation.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Changing your views about something you believe in isn't easy. But you might reconsider as the facts come in. Keep your mind open, even if you're uneasy about what you might learn.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some serious shifting of gears to get your project back on track. But cheer up. Your hard work starts to produce some positive results by the week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unsettling mood at the start of the week soon lifts and gives way to a more positive attitude as you find fun and friendship beginning to dominate your aspect.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A delay in firming up holiday plans could work to your advantage. Use this time to scout out possibilities that might be more in line with what those close to you would prefer.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some people might question some of the new friends you've welcomed into your life. But your ability to see beyond the obvious helps you recognize how special they are.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Financial matters can be especially tricky this week. It's best to follow a conservative investment path for now, and wait for a more fortuitous time to take a bolder approach.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth, your humor and your genuine concern for others make you someone people love to keep close to their lives.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- "Breaking Bad," considered one of the best series of all time, is becoming a film franchise for 20th Century Fox. Creator and executive producer Vince Gilligan will direct the original cast, which also will include characters from the prequel "Better Call Saul." The series starring Brian Cranston ran from 2008-2013 and won 16 Emmy Awards.

Does Sylvester Stallone sleep? In addition to the just released "Creed II," which reunites him with Michael B. Jordan, and "Back Trace," with Matthew Modine and Christopher McDonald (due Dec. 14), he's creating "Rambo V: Last Blood" (coming in 2019) and starring in "Escape Plan 3: Devil's Station," with Dave Bautista and Curtis "50 Cent" Jackson.

"The Theory of Everything" Oscar-winner Eddie Redmayne will play Tom Hayden (activist, founder of Students for a Democratic Society and former husband of Jane Fonda, when she was an activist). Aaron Sorkin wrote and will direct Redmayne and Sasha Baron Cohen, who plays Abby Hoffman.

The Christmas push begins Nov. 30 with the new animated holiday film "Elliott: The Littlest Reindeer," about a reindeer who sets out to replace the retiring Blitzen in Santa's reindeer crew. Voices include Josh Hutcherson, John Cleese, Martin Short, Jeff Dunham and Samantha Bee.

A different kind of holiday offering drops Dec. 7. "Ben Is Back" is about a yule homecoming, with Julia Roberts as the mother of Lucas Hedges, who is fighting substance abuse. Peter Hedges, who wrote "What's Eating Gilbert Grape" and "About a Boy," among other films, directs Julia, Courtney B. Vance and his son, Lucas.

Former star of TV series "Hercules," Kevin Sorbo, who seemed to disappear from TV and films, is costarring with his wife, Sam, and Patrick Muldoon, as they tell the story of a 9-year-old girl and her 11-year-old brother as they try to save a secret beach and reunite a dolphin with its family.

The CBS series "Alice" (1976-85), which starred Linda Lavin, who took over for Ellen Burstyn in her Oscar-winning role in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" (1974), is being rebooted by Fox TV. "Juno" Oscar-winning screenwriter Diablo Cody and Liz Astrof of "2 Broke Girls" will write and exec produce the series.

The landmark CBS Television City is up for sale for a mere $700 million. Among the shows that taped there were "All In the Family," "The Carol Burnett Show," the soap operas "The Young and the Restless" and "The Bold and the Beautiful," as well as "Sonny & Cher," "The Price Is Right" and currently "The Late, Late Show With James Corden" and HBO's "Real Time With Bill Maher," to name some. Are we going to get malled again? ... there goes the neighborhood!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Coffee Mill --- Morning coffee has been a necessity for centuries, and there have been numerous patents for coffee-making machines. The first American patent was given to Thomas Bruff Sr. in 1798. Coffee grinders, also called coffee mills, were needed to grind the coffee beans to cook with water to make coffee. The mills were hand-cranked until 1938, when the first electric models were made.

Most collectors search for early wall-mounted or box-type mills. They were made of wood or glass with a cast iron crank. Coffee-mill companies also used ceramics, plastic or attractive metals later in the 1900s. Most coffee mills had the name of the brand of coffee on the front or at least the word "coffee." "Koffee" is not a misspelling; it is the German word for coffee.

On the back or side of the coffee mill there usually is a serial number that can be dated with the help of information found online or in "The MacMillan Index of Antique Coffee Mills," a book by Joseph E. MacMillan. There also may be colorful pictures like the ones seen on a patriotic coffee mill, which was decorated with a flag and a picture of Theodore Roosevelt on his horse. It recently sold for $265 at a Hess auction.

Q: I have a pair of shoe roller skates with wooden wheels. There is a metal plate on the bottom with the number "5" and "Chicago Roller Skate Co., Ware Bros., Pat. Aug. 15, 1914, Made in U.S.A." What can you tell me about them?

A: Ralph and Walter Ware bought The Chicago Roller Skate Co. in 1905. Their brother, Robert, joined the business in 1909. Roller skating was a popular pastime, and Chicago had several roller rinks. Skates with wooden wheels were made to skate on the wood floor in roller rinks. The company also made racing skates, clamp-on skates for skating on sidewalks, parts for skates, lawn sprinklers and a few other products. Your shoe skates probably were made between 1914 and 1920. The company was bought by National Sporting Goods in the 1990s. Vintage shoe skates like yours sell for under $200.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Hungarian psychiatrist Thomas Stephen Szasz who made the following sage observation: "If you talk to God, you are praying. If God talks to you, you have schizophrenia."

* You might be surprised to learn that David Duchovny, best known for his role as Agent Fox Mulder in "The X-Files," was just a dissertation away from being awarded a doctorate in English literature.

* Did you know that the world's most popular fruit is the banana? It's true: In the United States, people consume more bananas than apples and oranges put together.

* In 2009, a Saudi couple who had spent their honeymoon in Malaysia encountered difficulty on the return flight home. It seems that the groom felt the bride was taking too long in the airport restroom, so he boarded the flight back to Saudi Arabia before she did. When he allowed the plane to leave without her, she insisted on an immediate divorce.

* Most people don't realize that in 1938, Time magazine featured Adolph Hitler on the cover as its Man of the Year.

* Removing one's wedding ring is considered to be a no-no by many. However, one superstition holds that doing so is perfectly acceptable -- as long as the ring is being used to ward off a witch.

* Ever wonder why magazine publisher Hugh Hefner chose a rabbit as the symbol of his Playboy magazine? Evidently, when the mogul was a small boy one of his treasured possessions was a blanket with bunnies all over it.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Add a few drops of water to votive cups before adding a candle. The wax will float on the water, and when the candle burns down, it won't get stuck in the votive glass.

* Experts say: For every foot high your tree, you should plan for 9 feet of garland. So, a 7-foot tree would need about 63 feet of garland.

* Dropped a glass ornament? They leave tiny shards, don't they? To get the tiniest bits up, rely on a slice of white bread. Use it to sweep up after the large pieces have been cleared. The soft bread catches it all!

* Got build-up on your battery terminal? Add two tablespoons of baking soda to a large mug of hot water, then stir vigorously. Pour over the corrosion to foam it away, then rinse, rinse, rinse.

* Put on a bracelet with no help, with the aid of a paperclip! Unfold one end to create a long loop. Hook one end on the loop, and hold the other end of the paperclip in your hand, with the bracelet end on your wrist. You have only to loop the bracelet around and hook it.

* Glass doors in the shower can be cleaned with a dryer sheet. Simply wet and rub. In fact, the texture almost gives a scrub.

Anthony Green Excels for Northeastern Basketball

NQHS Grad A Standout On Both Ends Of The Floor For Huskies

By TREVOR WENNERS

The sky is the limit for a highly-skilled athlete with a relentless work ethic.

If you do not believe that to be true; check in with Anthony Green.

The 6-foot-10, 252-pound senior center has established himself as a force to be reckoned with at the Division I level on both ends of the floor, as he has been a staple in the paint for the Northeastern University men's basketball program. He was a pivotal reason that the 2017-18 Huskies (23-10, 14-4 CAA) finished in a tie for the best regular-season record in the Colonial Athletic Association and advanced all the way to the championship game. He scored in double figures seven times, including compiling a career high of 16 points on two separate occasions.

Northeastern head coach Bill Coen has been thrilled with Green's growth and impact over the last three-plus years.

"He has not only grown on the court as a basketball player and become a starter on a CAA-championship team, but he has grown in the classroom and done a great job in all of his studies," Coen said. "He has grown as a leader in the locker room and on campus. We could not be prouder of Anthony and all of his growth."

It is easy to only think about Green as being a high-caliber Division I athlete, but that ignores the day-in and day-out work that the Quincy, Mass. native put in throughout his career. It is also important to keep in mind the countless sacrifices that Green's parents, Anthony and Cecelia, made throughout the process, dating all the way back to Anthony's childhood.

The down-to-earth Green pointed out a slew of people, who inspired and helped him during his basketball journey.

"My biggest inspiration would be my parents, and then my first AAU coach Walles Stokes," Green said. "My mom was always the one in the car driving me around everywhere and making sure I got to where I needed to be. My dad was working all the time to be able to fund whatever I wanted to do to get me to where I am today. Walles Stokes was the first one that saw that I had the chance to play basketball at some level, and he brought out the confidence in me that I really needed at that time."

Some aspects that were always in Green's favor on the court were his height, work ethic and team-first mindset. His potential started skyrocketing at North Quincy High from 2010-14, as he fine-tuned his low-post skills, shooting touch and grew into his body, while dominating the rebounding and shot-blocking game.

ANTHONY GREEN

Nothing was handed to the elite prospect by Red Raiders varsity head coach Kevin Barrett, as Green played freshman ball in 2010-11 and was on the junior varsity team as a sophomore. Ultimately, he was called up to the varsity squad during the MIAA Tournament in 2012, and anchored the Raiders to back-to-back Division 1 South Sectional finals in 2013 and 2014. As a senior, he averaged 12 points, nine rebounds and five blocks for a loaded 23-2 team, and the outstanding athlete ended his time in a Raiders' uniform with a triple-double, comprised of 15 points, 12 rebounds and 10 blocks in the sectional final against Catholic Memorial.

Green has nothing but positives to say about his time on Hancock Street.

"Coach Barrett was really big on getting me to the next level and making sure I had everything I needed to be successful," Green said. "The atmosphere at North Quincy really helped a lot, especially the team that we had during my years there."

Even after playing in some-packed gyms across the country for Northeastern, the historic Quincy-North Quincy rivalry still sticks out to Green.

"My favorite memory from NQ was playing Quincy in the quarterfinals of the South Sectional (a 64-56 win for NQ) during my senior year," Green said. "At that time, that was the most exciting atmosphere I had ever played in. That is something I cannot explain, the North Quincy gym was filled, people were lined up outside, and people were lined up on the sidelines and in the corner of the gym. I still have a picture on my phone of being at the free-throw line, and seeing the student section filling up the bleachers and the ground level. There was no standing room at all."

Green continued to grow during a post-graduate year in New Hampshire at Tilton under coach Marcus O'Neil in 2014-15. The Rams defeated Vermont Academy, 68-63, in the NEPSAC AA championship that season.

Green decided to stay local for college, choosing to become a Husky in the fall of 2015, which was the season after the men's basketball program qualified for the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 1991.

Green played sparingly during his rookie season, as the Huskies reached the semifinal round of the CAA Tournament. As a sophomore, Green really became an impact player, cracking the starting five in 19-of-31 games, scoring double figures six times and recording a pair of double-doubles. He logged 38 minutes with 11 points, 11 rebounds and five blocks in a thrilling 105-104 double-overtime triumph against Elon.

Green's impact on a game should never be measured strictly by staring at a box score, as he does all the little things that make the difference between winning and losing, such as altering shots with his length, coming up with timely rebounds, controlling the post game, hustling every play, creating extra possessions and setting hard screens.

"Anthony has been a pleasure to coach; he is a team-first guy," Coen said. "He wants to win and contribute in any way he can. He provides a backbone to our defense. He is a great rim protector and offensively he has the potential to change games with thunderous dunks. He is a big part of what we do and when he plays at his highest level we are the best team we can be."

The 2018-19 season is Green's final ride as a Husky, and he opened the season with a 10-point, eight-rebound effort during a 77-74 setback to cross-city rival Boston University on Nov. 6. Green, who is the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee member for the basketball team, is planning on continuing his playing career after he turns his tassel at graduation, either inside the U.S. or perhaps overseas. He plans on doing pre-draft workouts, meeting with agents and participating in showcases. Green is also pondering going to school for physical therapy, if he is unable to continue his basketball career.

At the center of Green's mind right now is his basketball family at NU, as the team is itching for another shot at the CAA Tournament title, after falling, 83-76, in overtime to the College of Charleston last March in South Carolina. The Huskies would earn an automatic berth into the big dance in March 2019 with a CAA Tournament title, which was exactly how the squad qualified for the NCAA Tournament in 2015.

"That has been the goal every since I got here, especially after last year where we were so close and lost," Green said. "We have not forgotten that feeling and every time we take the court, it is in the back of our heads that making it to the national tournament is our final goal for this year."

Council Honors MA Legion Commander Fred White

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday commended a lifelong Quincy resident who is now the commander of the American Legion in Massachusetts.

Councillors presented the commendation to Fred White during their meeting Monday. White is the 2018-19 commander of the American Legion Department of Massachusetts and a past commander of the Morrisette Post in Quincy.

White, a graduate of Quincy High School, served aboard the USS Cowell during the Korean War. The destroyer was awarded two battle stars during the war. White is known as a "tin-can sailor," a term bestowed upon those on destroyers, and is a member of the National Association of Destroyer Veterans.

Following his service in the Navy, White began working for the U.S. Postal Service. He worked his way up from a mail handler to superintendent of mail-processing equipment for Boston postal district. White is currently president of the Quincy Chapter 430 of the National Active and Retired Federal Employees Association.

Other local veterans attended the meeting to watch White receive his commendation. They were: George Nicholson, the city's director of veterans services; Jake Comer, past national commander of the American Legion; Richard Keane, Robert LaFleur and Robert Lewis, past commanders of the Morrisette Post and Quincy Veterans Council; William Corcoran and Thomas Eames, past commanders of the Morrisette Post; and Guy Ferris, a member of the Morrisette Post and finance officer for Squadron 294 of the Sons of the American Legion.

Councillor Noel DiBona, chairman of the council's veterans committee, credited White and his fellow veterans for giving back to the community.

"These fine men here have done a lot for other veterans and they try to continue to do that today here in the city of Quincy, throughout the state of Massachusetts and around the world," he said.

DiBona called White's commitment and dedication truly admirable.

"Your commitment and dedication to serving the citizens of the United States, Massachusetts and the city of Quincy as the former commander of the Morrisette Post 294 are truly admirable," DiBona said, reading from the commendation. "We thank you for your service and congratulate on such an honorable achievement and wish you continued success as you serve your term."

White thanked the councillors recognizing him and the American Legion.

"It's a privilege to be up here and I thank you all for recognizing not particularly what I do, but particularly what the American Legion does. The American Legion – the largest wartime veterans' organization in the world – does a lot for the good of the country," White said.

"It is a pleasure to be here, an honor, and I thank you for recognizing my service to this country."

SCOUT'S HONOR – More than 100 Boy Scouts and leaders salute as the casket of Lucien F. Theberge is carried into Saint John the Baptist Church in Quincy for the Eagle Scout's funeral Mass Dec. 1. Eagle Scout Remembered For Dedication, Leadership, Service

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A grief-stricken city came together Saturday to celebrate the life of Lucien F. "Luc" Theberge, an 18-year-old honor student at Quincy High School who was remembered for his devotion to family and friends, personifying the principals of scouting, and dedicated community service to Quincy and beyond.

An estimated 1,000 mourners filled Saint John the Baptist Church – including more than 100 Boy Scouts from Quincy and area towns who formed a ring of honor saluting as Luc's casket was carried in the church for his funeral Mass. A bagpiper played "Amazing Grace" as the casket was lifted from the hearse with the sun peaking through a partially mid-morning sky.

Luc died Nov. 23 from injuries he sustained in a car crash on Route 93 in New Hampshire. A 16-year-old passenger was also seriously injured. He and his friend were on their way to join family for a camping trip in the White Mountains.

His tragic death left a community in shock followed by an outpouring of condolences and sympathy for the Theberge family. Some 1,500 mourners attended Luc's nine-hour wake at the Keohane Funeral Home in Quincy last Friday evening. The family greeted the last guests at the funeral home at about midnight.

After the 90-minute funeral Mass Saturday, some 200 cars formed the funeral procession for Luc's burial at Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy.

Luc was an Eagle Scout and member of the National Honor Society, robotics program and tennis team at Quincy High School. He had been a newscarrier for

Leaders Ringing Bell For Salvation Army Thursday

The second and final day for the 22nd annual Community Leader Kettle to benefit The Salvation Army Quincy Corps will take place near Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., today (Thursday) Dec. 6.

The kettle will be set up in the Hancock-Adams Common near the John Adams Statue.

Hours for the kettle on Thursday are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The first kettle day was held last Thursday, Nov. 29.

More than 50 civic and city leaders are volunteering their time to ring the bell at the community leader kettle. The kettle to benefit The Salvation Army was established 22 years ago by the late Henry W. Bosworth, Jr., founder and longtime publisher of The Quincy Sun.

Mr. Bosworth, who coordinated the kettle for many years, passed away in February 2009. He was a longtime member of the Quincy Salvation Army Advisory Board. For the last 10 years, the kettle has been coordinated by Mr. Bosworth's son, Robert, who is now the publisher of The Quincy Sun and also a member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Over the past 21 years, the kettle has raised $80,023 – including $8,147 last year – to benefit The Salvation Army and its mission of helping the needy during

77th Pearl Harbor Remembrance Friday

The city will mark the 77th anniversary of the Attack on Pearl Harbor with a solemn ceremony Friday at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

The ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. at the World War II Monument inside the cemetery, which bears the names of the 255 Quincy residents killed during the war.

All are invited to attend, said George Nicholson, Quincy's director of veterans services.

The Dec. 7, 1941, attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbor, located on the Hawaiian island of Oahu, killed 2,402 American service members and civilians, and wounded 1,282. The United States declared war on Japan one day later following President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Infamy" speech. Days later the country declared war Germany and Italy, after those countries declared war on the U.S.

TAKING JEWELRY PERSONALLY

When jewelry is engraved with a name, date, or sentiment, this added element elevates the piece to the status of the gift of a lifetime. Not only do many watch designers leave room on the backs of watch cases for initials or inscriptions, but pendants, rings, bracelets, anklets, money clips and other pieces of fine jewelry lend themselves to engraving. Though originally designed for men, ID bracelets are now made for both him and her. While men may want to wear a chunky silver bracelet with their first names boldly engraved on front, women may opt for a more delicate design with a small ID plaque adorned with a tiny diamond. This is a feminine interpretation of a sporty style.

Signal your good intentions with an engraved gift of jewelry from Rogers Jewelry. Whether you say it with a ring, bracelet, anklet or pendant, you're sure to find what best expresses your feelings among the outstanding collection found in our displays. And since there is no substitute for first-rate quality products and services, you'll be glad you came to 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center to make your selections or to work with our designers to create a most individual piece of fine jewelry. Community Leaders Ringing Bell For Salvation Army Thursday the holiday season and year-round. This includes toys and other holiday support for those in need, along with funding for food pantries, social services, and education programs.

In recent years, a "Christmas in July" kettle set up in the summer outside The Quincy Sun has also been manned by community leaders. The July kettle has raised $9,249 bringing the total raised by the two community leader kettles to $89,275 for The Salvation Army Quincy Corps.

Capt. Amber Maynor and Capt. Kyle Maynor, officers of The Salvation Army Quincy Corps on Baxter Street in Quincy, said the Christmas Red Kettle campaign continues to be the strongest form of fundraising for the Salvation Army in Quincy. Donations are used year round to support the less fortunate. This year's kettle campaign goal is $133,000.

"These donations are used all year long to support the costs of our social services and other programs such as music, feeding, and youth character development programs," the Maynors said. "The Salvation Army's current brand is 'Doing the Most Good.' While that is our ambition and passion to meet as many needs as we can, our local motto here in Quincy is 'Fighting for good, for God.' We are a church who loves God and loves others, out of the abundance of love God has shown us.

"We are on a mission to compact the darkness the world has thrown upon us, looking to show love in practical ways. We are still fighting and still need of individuals to join us to help meet humans needs. It takes everyone together, an army, to tackle the task. We hope that you consider joining us this season, in helping us reach not only our monetary goal for the Red Kettle Campaign, but the goal to change lives through these donations.

Here is the line-up of volunteers manning the Community Leader Kettle:

THURSDAY, DEC. 6

9 a.m. – Margaret Laforest, executive director, Discover Quincy; Quincy Veterans Services Director George Nicholson and Graves Registration Officer George Bouchard.

10 a.m. – Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell, Councillor at-Large Anne Mahoney, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo and Quincy Sun Publisher and Salvation Army Advisory Board member Robert Bosworth.

11 a.m. – Kathy Hubley, Quincy School Committee; Sara Morrison, executive director, Quincy After School Child Care, Inc.; and Richard Gormley, vice president, small business sales manager Citizens Bank.

Noon – Paul Moody, commander, Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294; Joe Brill, membership officer, Squadron 294; Guy Ferris, finance officer, Squadron 294; Bob LaFleur, adjutant, Squadron 294 and PC Morrisette Legion Post; and Robert Lewis, past commander, Morrisette Legion Post.

Besides the Community Leader kettle, the Salvation Army has its familiar red kettles in 17 locations in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham. Locations include Hobby Lobby, Rogers Jewelry, Shaw's, South Shore Plaza, Star Market, Stop & Shop and Walmart.

Online Red Kettle donations can also be made at www.salvationarmyma.org/Quincy.

AARP Fraud Watch Update: December

By CINDY CAMPBELL
Communications Director
AARP Massachustts

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

• An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:

As we near the holiday season, online shopping increases, as does online scams. Only use trusted sites to make online transactions and be wary of steeply discounted items. Sometimes scammers will attempt to lure you into making a purchase with phony online sales. In addition, if you plan to buy or sell your own goods online, use a website or app that uses proper safety measures to ensure that you don't lose your money in the process.

SCAM ALERT #2:

Over 500,000 people take seasonal jobs during the holiday season. Scammers like to take advantage of seasonal workers by posing as potential employers on third-party websites. When prospective employees apply for these job listings, they will be asked to provide personal information such as their date of birth, address and Social Security number for "verification purposes." Scammers can then use this information to steal your identity. One big red flag to look out for is a job which offers a lot of money for very little work. If the position seems too good to be true, it is probably a scam. If you have questions about a job listing you see online, go directly to the business website or give them a call.

SCAM ALERT #3:

Many people travel during the holidays to visit with family and friends. Be cautious of false rental advertisements online. Do not use third party websites to book hotels and be particularly wary of home rentals. Verify listings through online consumer feedback before you close the deal. Some scammers will copy photos and details from real rental listings. They then accept pre-payment for booking the house or apartment. You may only discover that you have nowhere to stay on the day you're supposed to check in. Never give someone money before you see the place you are supposed to stay, and always verify the listing with hotels directly before booking any rooms.

SCAM ALERT #4:

During the winter season, we see an increase in scammers calling consumers and pretending to be a representative from their local utility provider. The fraudster will claim that your previous payments haven't cleared or that you owe them money. They will tell you that you need to pay the outstanding balance over the phone, or else your power, heat, or water will be turned off within the hour. The swindler will insist that you didn't pay the bill (even if you know you did), and will tell you to pay over the phone with a credit card or a cash transfer. Scammers are banking on your fear that your heat will be shut off during the cold winter season in order to collect your personal information. Hang up and call your utility provider directly to confirm your billing status.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Scenes From Yesterday

NORTH JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL, ATLANTIC, MASS.

THIS 1926 postcard is a view of North Junior High School in Atlantic just before it opened. Quincy had adopted the junior high program in the early 1920s and had to build four junior high schools and a new high school to accommodate its fast growing student population. Previously the grammar schools were grades 1 to 8 and the one high school was 9 to 12. This junior high school was grades 7 to 9 and began adding one high school grade each year in the early 1930s, with six grades here, two wings had been added to the building. In 1959, the seventh and eighth grades were moved to the new Atlantic Middle School leaving grades 9 - 12 here at North Quincy High School.

Valuations Down, Tax Rates Rising

Reacting to a drop in property valuations in Quincy, Mayor James A. Sheets has recommended higher tax rates of $12.05 per $1,000 for residential property and $26.59 per $1,000 for commercial, industrial and personal property for FY 1992 to the City Council.

Homeowners and business owners will have a chance to comment on the Mayor's tax classification recommendations at a public hearing Monday, Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers in City Hall. After Monday's hearing the Council is expected to set the new rates at its Dec. 16 meeting.

Under the Mayor's proposal, residential taxes make up 76.53 percent of total valuations while C.I.P.P. taxes make up 23.46 percent of the total valuations.

PEARL HARBOR SURVIVORS: 'WE'LL NEVER FORGET IT'

"I'll never forget it. It started at 7:55 a.m. Sunday morning," Earl Kuja recalled. The nation observed the 50th anniversary of the Japanese "sneak" attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

The attack was launched from six Japanese aircraft carriers. The attack resulted in 2,403 deaths, with nearly 1,200 wounded.

Kuja, a sergeant with the Army's 34th Combat Engineers stationed at the Schofield Barracks, was one of six Quincy residents who were members of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association.

"I was one of the lucky ones," Kuja said. "I made it, others didn't."

(Editor's Note: Four of the Japanese carriers that participated in the attack would be sunk by U.S. Naval forces at the Battle of Midway.)

Legalized Marijuana: A Big Mistake

It's the law. Grin and bear it. Nothing we can do about it now. Throw up your arms in frustration.

There are many emotions and reactions regarding this legalization.

My feelings are very negative.

Not only do we now have to worry about vehicle drivers impaired by alcohol, opiates, but now by marijuana.

And how about those people on the streets, in the buses, trains reeking with marijuana, and cognitively affected by it?

Voters who approved the legalization, including some of my friends and maybe relatives, are very shortsighted.

Sure, marijuana's instant gratification. Sure, marijuana gives supposedly a great high.

But haven't people read and care about the increased traffic accidents associated with marijuana in Colorado?

Don't people care about the erratic, unpredictable, sometimes violent, behavior taking marijuana as with any other drug taken irresponsibly?

Supporters say, "Adults will be responsible taking marijuana, and youths will be kept away from it." Oh, pleeeze. Didn't we apply the same argument with alcohol, prescription drugs? And we've seen that argument thrown out the window.

Massachusetts supposedly is in the forefront of many issues.

Legalizing gay marriage is a high point in the state. But legalizing marijuana is the pits...a dangerous mistake that everybody will suffer through for years to come.

Liberty Requires Eternal Vigilance

I decided to get more involved in local affairs (as opposed to state) and attended a Zoning Board of Appeals meeting on Nov. 27th at Quincy City Hall.

There were a number of projects that involved what you would expect at such a meeting, but there were two in particular to take note, which were the replacement of single-family homes and such structures with apartment and condominium complexes of at least a dozen units in the middle of residential living areas.

Living in Quincy for years, I have seen the systematic replacement of homes that "they" conveniently call "non-conforming structures," transforming family neighborhoods into potential city slums by self-motivated developers. What surprised me was pretty much the lack of participation from the general public.

I am a firm believer that the people not only get the government that they vote for (or don't), but the kind of government that they participate in (or don't). Liberty requires eternal vigilance.

Religion Important In Fabric Of Our Nation

I too liked the full-page reproduction of a Thanksgiving proclamation by Governor John Hancock. Could any political leader today proclaim a national holiday by mentioning "Jesus Christ" and "God' numerous times in an official government statement?

Try doing that today and watch liberals come out in droves attacking anyone who dare mention the Creator. Back during and following the American Revolution, God back then was not a dirty word. He was the basis of our government and all the individual rights therein.

Hancock was not a perfect man and neither were our founders but they did believe in a Higher Power who watched over us. America today is in not so good shape because we try and make ourselves gods.

Re-read the Declaration of Independence and see how depended we were upon God. John Adams said it long ago how our nation needs God's protection at all times. Read the writings of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson and see them agreeing with Adams. None of these patriots was a perfect man but they understood the importance of religious belief in the fabric of the new nation after its birth.

Two Quincy Residents Appearing In Broad Cove Chorale & Unicorn Singers Holiday Concerts

The Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers, featuring two Quincy residents, will present their 15th annual Christmas concert this weekend in support of Wellspring Multi-Service Center's Diane Edson Fund which provides emergency assistance to individuals and families in crisis.

This year's shows – A Snow Country Christmas – are especially well-suited for families eager to embrace the holiday spirit with the program telling the story of a young boy's first solo journey to snow country to spend Christmas with his beloved grandparents. The shows will evoke an old-fashioned Christmas, complete with surprising gifts, fireside gatherings and impressive snowfall. There will be songs for the audience to sing, as well as new and familiar favorites performed by the choruses.

Narrator Michael Theobald of Milton will return with readings that promise to transport audience members to a bygone time and place, sure to bring up fond memories for many.

Quincy residents performing in the choruses include: Joan Soble and Dana Ricciardi.

Performances will take place at the Lutheran House of Prayer, 916 Main St., in Hingham on Saturday, Dec. 8th at 8 p.m., and at First Parish Unitarian located on the Green in Cohasset at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 9th.

Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 at the door. Sponsors who wish to further benefit Wellspring are welcome and encouraged for $30 per ticket.

Visit http://www.bcc-us.org or call Kathy Reardon at 781-749-0162 for more information and/or to purchase tickets. Proceeds benefit Wellspring Multi-Service Center's Diane Edson Fund helping families in crisis.

NQHS Presents 'The Lion, The Witch And The Wardrobe'

Dec. 14, Dec. 15, Dec. 16 In Peter J. Chrisom Auditorium

By SARAH RIXHAM

This holiday season, the North Quincy High School Drama Club will be showcasing the popular Narnian tale, "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe."

The play follows the young World War II escapees Peter (Quinn LaMotte '22), Susan (Veronica Byrne '19), Edmund (Liam Carey '22), and Lucy Pevensie (Grace Hickey '22) along their adventure through an old wardrobe into the magical land of Narnia.

Their encounters with the mystical creatures and characters of this whimsical world including the faun Tumnus (Aidan Mordas '19), Mr. and Mrs. Beaver (Ben DeBisschop '20 & Jaelyn Egan '21), and the wise lion Aslan (Aiden Houlihan '19) in their battle against the evil White Witch (Melissa Myers '20), makes for an exciting and rewarding family-friendly experience.

The cast also includes the Unicorn (Steven Marin), the Centaur (Rio Six-Tiger '19), Fenris Ulf (Pablo Ochoa '20), the Dwarf (Audrey Duclos '20), Father Christmas (José Anciano '19), the Elf (Christopher Chan '22), and the White Stag (Gregory Deering '22).

Come join the cast and crew of "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe" in the Peter J. Chrisom Auditorium at North Quincy High School on Friday, Dec. 14th at 7 p.m, Saturday, Dec. 15th at 7 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 16th at 2 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at the door for $10 per adult, and $5 per student.

Symphonic Winds Concert Friday At Eastern Nazarene

The 40-member Symphonic Winds at Eastern Nazarene College will present their annual Winter Concert Friday, Dec. 7 in the Cove Fine Arts Auditorium.

Joining the Symphonic Winds this year will be members of the A Capella Choir.

The concert will feature a variety of music styles and genres including a few holiday suprises.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. The free concert is open to the public.

Following the concert, guests are welcome to join the performers for a reception in the rehearsal room on the second floor.

This year marks the 16th year that the wind ensemble will be under the direction of Professor Stephen Bell (G74). The ensemble includes several ENC students, Quincy and North Quincy High School students and adult members from 12 area communities.

The Symphonic Winds rehearses Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. each week and the ensemble will be actively recruiting new members for their second semester, beginning in January.

The A Capella Choir, now under the direction of Stephanie Beatrice, will be presenting their program at the winter concert for the first time.

The Cove Fine Arts Building is located on Wendell Avenue, directly across from the athletic fileds on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College. Parking is available in adjacent parking lots as well as some on-street parking.

Friends of Wollaston Beach will hold a toy drive in memory of Dick Herbert Monday, Dec. 10 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Hancock Tavern, 668 Hancock St.

This meeting is traditionally a social "open house" type event. Members and the public are invited to stop by and drop off a new, unwrapped toy to be distributed to needy children in Quincy.

The toy drive honors Dick Herbert, the group's late vice president, for his commitment and dedication to FWB.

'Night Of Giving' Dec. 12 At Common Market Restaurants

The Common Market Restaurants will hold its annual "Night of Giving" at their Cafe´ de Paris lounge Wednesday, Dec. 12 from 6 to 11 p.m.

Free hors d'oeuvres are available to customers who bring a wrapped present for a boy or a girl.

The restaurant also makes a donation to the charity and the bartenders donate a portion of their night's gratuities to the charities.

The Common Market partners with "My Brother's Keeper," a local charity, to assist families in the area and provides presents for families at Christmas time. Since the "Night of Giving" was started at The Common Market, customers have donated over 6,000 Christmas presents.

Graduation Requirements, College Readiness Focus On 'Our Quincy High'

By NICK BURROW
Executive Producers

This is the first rendition of "Our Quincy High" in the 2018-19 school year and we couldn't be more excited!

Being that the school year has just begun, this episode will take a look at some of the new teachers on our campus; as well as taking an in depth look into our community service department. Along with that, our amazing host Mr. Taglieri, the principal of Quincy High, will be joined by one of our guidance counselors, Ms.McGeady, to take a look at our graduation requirements, college readiness, and the life of a counselor this time of year.

With that said, Our Quincy High will air every day at 6 p.m. from now until Dec. 14th.

From all the crew on the Our Quincy High team we hope you enjoy the show!

Carney Hospital Hosting Holiday Giving Bake Sale

Carney Hospital will host its Annual Holiday Giving Bake Sale on Wednesday, Dec. 12, and Thursday, Dec. 13, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Annual Giving Bake Sale is hosted by the Behavioral Health Department and all proceeds go directly to providing our Behavioral Health inpatients with holiday gifts and fulfilling additional needs when they are discharged. Items for sale will include cupcakes, cookies and much more.

The sale will take place in the lobby of the main hospital.

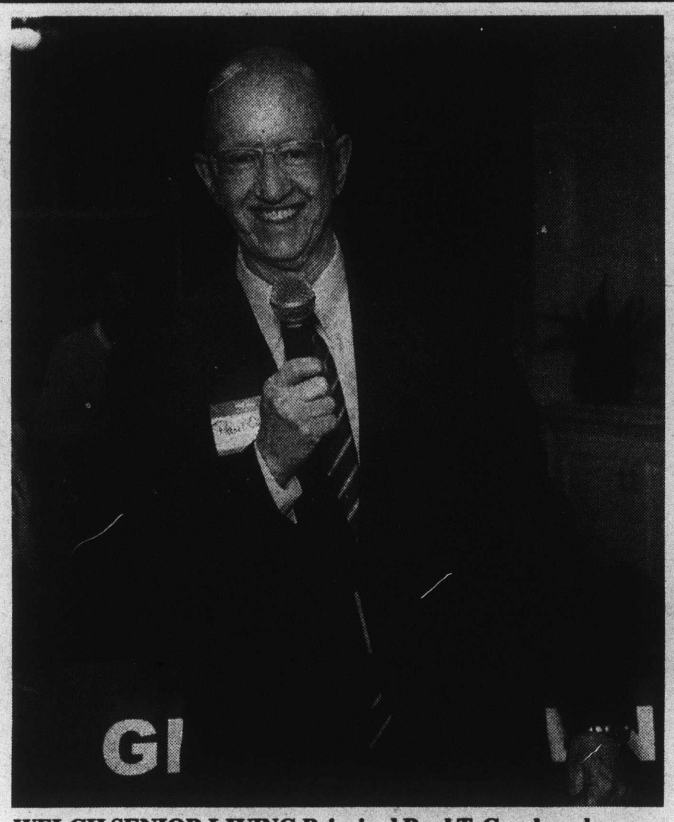
New Memory Care, Independent Living Expansion At Allerton House

Allerton House at Central Park recently held a ribbon cutting ceremony to announce the grand opening of the new Memory Care Neighborhood and Independent Living expansion at the Welch Senior Living community in Weymouth.

"We have always tried to be on the cutting edge," said Welch Senior Living Principal Paul T. Casale, referring to the fourth-generation family's nearly 70-year history in senior care and housing.

The Memory Care Neighborhood features 10 studio apartments and three companion suites. The Independent Living Expansion includes 10 new spacious 1- and 2-bedroom independent living apartments with full kitchens for individuals and couples that don't require personal care but would enjoy a host of amenities, hospitality services, and security.

The Alzheimer's Association reports that 5.7 million Americans are living with Alzheimer's disease.



WELCH SENIOR LIVING Principal Paul T. Casale welcomes guests to the Ribbon Cutting announcing the opening of the new Memory Care Neighborhood and Independent Living expansion at Allerton House in Weymouth.

QUINCY ELDER LAW Attorney Robert E. Romano, Esq., CFP, who leads estate planning workshops throughout the South Shore attended the recent ribbon cutting to mark the grand opening of the new Memory Care Neighborhood and Independent Living expansion at Welch Senior Living's Allerton House in Weymouth. With him is Lynda Chuckran, director, community relations, Welch Senior Living.

South Shore YMCA's 8th Annual Frozen 5K Road Race Jan. 6

On Sunday, Jan. 6, hundreds of runners and walkers will get a jump start on their resolutions and kick off the New Year by participating in the South Shore YMCA's 8th Annual Frozen 5K Road Race. Each person has his or her own reason for braving the cold and running or walking their 3.1 miles.

"From our members of all ages to those visiting their friends and family from out of town, we get runners from near and far who line up to race through the streets of our city each year," said Tom Healy, director of Sports and Recreation at the Quincy YMCA.

Funds raised by the race go directly to the South Shore YMCA's Annual Campaign. Each year the South Shore YMCA raises several million dollars to give away to families in need in the community. The Frozen 5K is one of several events designed to support that goal.

The results are manifested in the positive impacts seen throughout the year at the Y's various branches, in the early learning centers, at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, at the various day camps and elsewhere.

Events like the Frozen 5K raise funds to provide such assistance to thousands of local children, families, adults and seniors each year, with the overall goal of strengthening the communities the South Shore YMCA supports.

While prior registration is encouraged (runners 13 and up can register for $30 until Jan. 6; runners 12 and under for $15), walk-ups can be accepted the day of the race ($35 for runners 13 and up; still $15 for 12 and under).

Runners start and end the race at the Quincy Y on Coddington Street. As the race starts the Quincy Police provide safe passage across Route 3A as runners cruise up Sea Street to the Adams Shore Branch Library at the corner of Palmer Street and turn for home.

As an added benefit, this year, a celebration of the 5-Year Anniversary of the New Quincy YMCA will take place after the race from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Runners and the public are invited to join the South Shore YMCA to commemorate five years in their vibrant new building. This fun, family-friendly event will include food, activities, games, an indoor fun-run for kids, and more.

The celebration is free and open to the public.

Healy said the part he most looks forward to about the day is how both events will help to bring the community closer together.

"Our community helps to make us who we are," he said. "Through their race entry fee, our 5K runners can feel good knowing that they're supporting our Annual Campaign while getting fit, and that afterward, everyone will be welcomed back inside to warm up and celebrate with us."

Almond And Tomato Pesto

By MARIE

Pesto sauce seems to have become very popular these days.

Today's recipe was given to me by my son, Dom. This recipe differs from the usual pesto sauce recipe.

ALMOND AND TOMATO PESTO
(Dom's Recipe)

4 garlic cloves
½ teaspoon of sea salt
½ cup of fresh basil, chopped very fine
1 cup of blanched almonds
¼ cup of virgin olive oil
¼ cup ripe cherry tomatoes, skinned and seeded, then cut in small pieces

In a blender blend the garlic with a few pinches of salt.

Once the garlic is finely crushed, gradually add the basil and the almonds a few at a time and use a gentle circular motion. Add the olive oil as needed to make the mixture easier to crush.

Finally add the chopped tomatoes and continue crushing until it becomes a beautiful thick paste. The color should be orange-brownish, nutty and with specks of green and red.

This can be served over pasta.

Baked Apple Crisp

By SUSIE

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is not just a cliché. They really are associated with reducing the risk of certain chronic diseases, including heart disease (because of their high fiber and pectin) diabetes, even asthma and certain cancers (specifically colon and liver.)

Apples ranked second for highest antioxidant activity. However, they ranked highest for the proportion of free phenolic compounds which make them more easily absorbed in the blood stream. Much of their antioxidants are actually in the peel of the apple (catechin, procyanidins, chlorogenic acid to name a few) so don't peel your apples.

It is very important to only look for organic apples. Apples are one of the most pesticide contaminated fruits there are. Even if you wash them, many pesticides are "lipophilic" which means they enter the flesh of the fruit (or vegetable) so all the washing in the world won't reduce all of them, but does help some.

Make sure you always refrigerate to ensure crispness. A bowl of apples look pretty, but in a couple of days, they will lose their crispness.

Here is a great recipe for a baked apple crisp. It is grain free, and refined sugar free, as well as dairy free, although I like to substitute grass fed butter instead of the coconut oil in the crumb topping. Enjoy!

Baked Apple Crisp
(Dairy-Free, Grain-Free, Egg-Free)

FILLING: 7 apples, peeled, cored, sliced into thin pieces
1/4 cup orange juice (juice of 2-3 oranges)
2 tbs. raw honey (melted to liquid)
1 tbs. pure maple syrup
2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg

In a large bowl, mix together apples, orange juice, honey, maple syrup, cinnamon and nutmeg.

Pour into a pie dish and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Remove from the oven to sprinkle crumble on top.

CRUMBLE TOPPING: Mix together
1 cup almond flour/meal
2 tbs. finely ground pecans
4 tbs. raw honey (melted to liquid)
2 tbs. coconut oil or spread (softened).

Sprinkle on apples and bake at 350 for about 20 minutes.

December Events At Kennedy Center

The Quincy Council on Aging announces the following events and activities during December at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Dr. Comfort Diabetic Shoe Clinic

Tuesday, Dec. 11th in the morning at the Kennedy Center.

Attention adults with foot problems and diabetes. Is Medicare your primary insurance? If so, you are eligible to receive a pair of diabetic shoes and inserts free to you if you are diabetic. Other insurances may cover this as well.

Bring your Medicare card and any other supplemental insurance cards as well the day of your appointment. You must register and pick up a doctor's order form at the Kennedy Center to be completed by a doctor prior to your appointment.

Any further questions, call Amy Baxter, Pro Medical 603-944-1311.

Real ID Workshop

Monday, Dec. 17th at 10:30a.m. at the Kennedy Center.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles will offer a free workshop on license renewal and REAL ID at the Kennedy Center. Topics include: The difference between "Standard ID" and "REAL ID" driver's licenses and ID cards.

They will also discuss how to renew a Massachusetts Driver's license or Massachusetts ID card.

The federal and state requirements for renewing both will be covered.

Registration is required. Call 617-376-1506.

Sketching with Bob Farrell

Six week session Jan. 7th - Feb. 25th at 1:30 p.m.

Join Bob Farrell for sketching classes at the Kennedy Center. Students will be guided toward the goal of seeing with an artist's eye to capture their environment.

The emphasis on this course will be having fun, developing a new life enhancing daily habit and focusing on the process of drawing rather than the product.

Students are asked to bring a pen and with blank paper into class. Cost is $45 per person due at time of registration.

HHS Dept. Releases New Physical Activity Guidelines

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

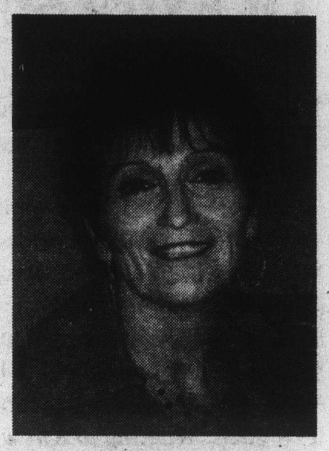
Being physically active is one of the most significant factors that people can accomplish to enhance their health.

Since 2008, the Physical Activity Guidelines for Americans has been the standard for providing research-based physical activity recommendations for all Americans.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' recently published the second edition of the Physical Activity Guidelines for Americans. This edition provides evidence-based sanctions for youth ages 3 through 17 and adults to safely acquire the physical activity necessary in order to stay healthy.

There are new fundamental guidelines for children ages 3 through 5 and updated guidelines for youth ages 6 through 17, adults, older adults, women during pregnancy and the postpartum period, adults with chronic health ailments, and adults with disabilities.

Despite the overwhelming facts of the health benefits of physical activity, only about 1 in 5 adults and adolescents meet the recommendations in the Physical Activity Guidelines. The United States currently demonstrates poor adherence to the guidelines with only 26 percent of men, 19 percent of women, and 20 percent of adolescents meeting the recommendations. These low levels of physical activity among Americans can have a multitude of negative health and financial consequences for the country, with virtually $117 billion dollars in annual healthcare expenses and 10 percent of all premature deaths attributable to failure to attain levels of aerobic physical activity suggested in the guidelines. Adults require 150 minutes of moderate-to-vigorous aerobic activity each week, with muscle strengthening exercises on two days during the week to stay fit and healthy. Youth ages 6 through 17 require 60 minutes of moderate-to-vigorous physical activity each day.



RUTH JONES

The new guidelines demonstrate that, based on the scientific research, most people noticeably improve their health just by simply moving, anytime, wherever, and by any measures that get you active. When we move more, we have improved cardiovascular health, improved strength and are less vulnerable to disease, plus, we usually feel better. The updated guidelines include strategies that most people can employ to help them keep fit and include more physical activity into their daily lives.

This updated edition, based on an inclusive scientific review, reveals the latest data regarding immediate and continuing health benefits from physical activity, as well as new substantiations that physical activity can help manage many of the chronic conditions that afflict Americans.

The American Heart Association has been an avid proponent of physical activity as an established method of decreasing a person's chances of heart disease and living a healthier life. This organization has committed to developing initiatives and advocating for polices that promote easy access to physical activity for everyone, regardless of where they live. In 2008, the American Heart Association adopted the Physical Activity Guidelines and again have lead the call for health groups across the nation to consider these guidelines as beneficial to both public health and as a valuable tool for clinicians.

Some of the significant updates in the new guidelines:

• The previous guidelines stated that only 10-minute sessions of physical activity counted toward meeting the guidelines. This requirement has been removed since all activity counts.

• There are immediate health benefits, attainable from a single session of activity, including decreased anxiety and blood pressure, improved quality of sleep, and improved sensitivity to insulin.

• There are additional long-term benefits from physical activity, including enhanced brain health, reduced risk of eight types of cancer (previously two), diminished risk for fall-related injuries in older adults, and decreased risk of excessive weight gain.

• Physical activity helps manage more chronic health conditions. It can decrease pain for those with osteoarthritis, reduce disease progression for hypertension and type 2 diabetes, reduce symptoms of anxiety and depression, and enhance cognition for those with dementia, multiple sclerosis, ADHD, and Parkinson's disease.

• There are new key guidelines for preschool children to be active throughout the day to enhance growth and development.

Key Guidelines for Preschool-Aged Children

Preschool-aged children (ages 3 through 5 years) should be physically active throughout the day to enhance growth and development. Adult caregivers of preschool-aged children should foster active play that includes a variety of activity types.

Key Guidelines for School-Aged Children and Adolescents

It is crucial to provide opportunities and encouragement young people to participate in a variety of physical activities that are age appropriate and enjoyable. Children and adolescents ages 6 through 17 years should engage in 60 minutes or more of moderate-to-vigorous physical activity daily:

• Aerobic: Most of the 60 minutes or more per day should be either moderate- or vigorous-intensity aerobic physical activity and should include vigorous-intensity physical activity on at least 3 days a week.

• Muscle-strengthening: As part of their 60 minutes or more of daily physical activity, children and adolescents should include muscle-strengthening physical activity on at least 3 days a week.

• Bone-strengthening: As part of their 60 minutes or more of daily physical activity, children and adolescents should include bone-strengthening physical activity on at least 3 days a week.

Regular physical activity is one of the most important things people can do to improve their health. Moving more and sitting less have tremendous benefits for everyone, regardless of age, sex, race, ethnicity, or current fitness level.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

United Methodist Church Craft Fair Saturday

Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold its annual Yuletide Craft Fair Saturday, Dec. 8 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

CINDY MANNING (third from left) was honored during her last meeting as the secretary for the Board of License Commissioners in June 2017: she had served in that role for more than 20 years. Mrs. Manning died Nov. 24 at the age of 70. Drew Scheele, the board's chairman, opened the board's Nov. 27 meeting in memory of her, calling Mrs. Manning "a tremendous asset to us." LB Meeting Held In Memory Of Former Secretary Cindy Manning

New Owners For NQ Restaurant

By SCOTT JACKSON

A restaurant on Billings Road will change hands, though the new owners do not plan on making changes to operations.

The Board of License Commissioners on Nov. 27 approved the transfer of the liquor license held by East Ocean Restaurant, 21 Billings Rd., to the new ownership. Yu Yun Jiang will serve as the new manager of the restaurant.

Ka-yung Wong, the attorney representing the new owners, said operations inside the restaurant, which specializes in Chinese food, would not change.

"Basically my clients are buying the business assets of the current operator," he said. "It's a turn-key transaction – they're not going to change anything."

The transfer of the liquor license does require approval from the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the chairman of the licensing board, said the restaurant could continue to sell alcohol using the old license until the ABCC approves the transfer.

In other business Nov. 27, the board granted The Pour Yard, located at 210 Washington St., approval to open its outdoor patio on Dec. 8 and 13 of this year and March 16 and 17 of next year.

Owner Mark DiBona said the bar is hosting events for Toys for Tots this month and a pub-crawl to raise funds for multiple sclerosis in March. Guests will be allowed to use the patio on those dates, weather permitting.

Quincy allows bars to operate their patios between Patriots Day and Columbus Day, Scheele noted, and those establishments can seek permission to use their outdoor space outside those dates from the licensing board.

The board also approved a request for a common victualler license for Center Ice, located inside Quincy Youth Arena at 60 Murphy Memorial Drive. Kristina and James Galligan will now be managing the snack bar inside the arena.

Scheele opened the meeting in memory of Cynthia C. "Cindy" Manning, the board's longtime secretary. Mrs. Manning, who retired in June 2017, died Nov. 24 at the age of 70.

"Cindy was a secretary for the licensing board for over 20 years," Scheele said. "When I first came on she walked me through the ropes and was just a tremendous asset to us. I know I speak for all of us when I say we're going to miss her a lot.

"She had recently retired and she deserved better. It was a really sad, sad day when we found out."

Christmas Joy Bazaar At 73 Bicknell St. Saturday

Christmas Joy Bazaar will be held Saturday, Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 73 Bicknell St., Quincy.

The event will feature hamdmade crafts, homemade goodies, jewelry, stocking stuffers, DVDs, raffles and more.

Lunch will be sold.

The public is welcome to attend.

Tree Lighting Friday At Safford Park

The Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association, The Wollaston School PTO, and Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain will host the 17th Annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony at Safford Park Friday, Dec. 7th beginning at 6 p.m.

There will be a singalong and hot chocolate at Safford Park, with a special appearance by Santa to help illuminate Clara Yeomans's tree - a beautiful centerpiece at the park.

Social Security Matters

Financial Advisor Spoke Of Extra Spouse Benefit

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I have applied for and been approved to start collecting my Social Security this month (at age 66). My wife will turn 62 in March 2019 and is planning to apply for benefits then. In a group meeting with a financial advisor he mentioned a spousal benefit of $500/month in addition to her own monthly benefit. Can you enlighten me on the proper name for this benefit and how do I apply for it? Signed: Wanting to Know

Dear Wanting: I can only speculate on what the financial advisor in that group meeting was referring to, but it may have been one of the following:

When she is 62 your wife can claim her own Social Security and, if her benefit on her own work record is considerably less than yours, she may also be entitled to a "spousal benefit." If she were to claim Social Security at her full retirement age her spousal benefit would be 50% of your benefit amount. But if she takes it at age 62, it will be something less – about 34% of yours. If she is entitled to the spousal benefit, she gets that larger amount as her full Social Security benefit. The spousal benefit is an amount which is added to your wife's own benefit to bring her up to what she's due as your spouse. In this sense, it is extra benefit on top of your wife's benefit, but only up to the total amount she's entitled to as your spouse. Your wife doesn't need to apply separately to receive the spousal benefit because, if you are already collecting benefits when she files at age 62, she will be automatically deemed to be filing for any spousal benefit she is due from your record.

If at the time of your group meeting with the financial advisor you had not yet claimed your Social Security, he may have been referring to something called a "restricted application for spousal benefits only." You qualify for the restricted application (RA) because you were born before the January 1, 1954 cut-off date after which it was eliminated. If your wife claims her own Social Security first, you can file the "restricted application for spousal benefits only" and collect 50% of your wife's full retirement age (FRA) benefit amount while allowing your own Social Security benefit to grow. That growth would be 8% per year of delay (0.667% per month), and at age 70 your benefit would be 32% more than it is at age 66. But there's a catch - you can only do this if you have not yet claimed your own benefits. Thus, the only way the RA could work for you now would be for you to withdraw your current benefit application, wait until your wife files at age 62, and then file the "restricted application for spousal benefits only" to get 50% of her FRA amount. If you withdraw your application now you will need to pay back any benefits, which have already been paid, essentially wiping the slate clean with Social Security, and this can only be done within one year of when you first applied. But doing that will give you an extra spouse benefit while your own benefit grows. Again, I can only speculate on what the financial advisor in that group meeting was referring to, but the above seem most probable.

Average Tax Bill For Single-Family Home Rising $119

The tax bill for the average single-family home will be $5,855.83 next year following those votes.

The residential tax rate will decrease this year from $13.34 per $1,000 of assessed value in FY18 to $12.55. The residential rate has decreased each year since FY14, when it was $14.86.

While the tax rate is decreasing, property values continue to go up. The average single-family home in the city now has an assessed value of $466,600 up from $429,900 at this time last year, said Colleen Healy, the chairwoman of Quincy's Board of Assessors. Home values have risen each year since FY14, when the average single-family home was valued at $315,800.

The tax rate for commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) will also decrease this year. The new CIPP rate will be $25.18, down from $27.05. The difference between residential and commercial tax rates is the highest allowed under state law.

The council took a number of votes related to the tax rate during Monday's meeting, all introduced by Koch.

In a 9-0 vote, councillors approved a measure determining residential property owners would pay 74.51 percent of the tax levy – residential properties comprise 85.43 percent of the total assessed value of all land in the city, Healy said. The remaining 25.49 percent of the tax levy will be borne by commercial taxpayers.

In a 5-4, vote councillors approved a residential factor of 87.2102. Ian Cain, Brad Croall, Noel DiBona and Anne Mahoney voted against the measure. All four of those councillors had said more needs to be done to help keep property taxes in check.

Had one more councillor voted against the residential factor, the council would have approved a single tax rate of $14.39 for residential and commercial properties, said Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff. If the single tax rate were approved, the average tax bill for a single-family home would have increased by another $1,000 on top of the $119 increase.

Councillors also unanimously approved appropriating $1.09 million in surplus money from prior fiscal years' purchase orders towards the tax levy to reduce property tax bills. That money came from a total of 641 purchase orders dating back as far as FY14, according to city economist Eric Mason.

In a 6-3 vote, councillors appropriated $1.39 million in free cash towards the tax levy, also to reduce property tax bills. DiBona, Mahoney and Brian Palmucci voted against the measure – DiBona and Mahoney initially voted for it but changed their votes later on in the meeting.

The city had $4.7 million in free cash available prior to Monday's vote, said Mark Cavanagh, the director of municipal finance. Half of that money will be allocated to various reserve accounts per the city's financial policy, Cavanagh said, leaving just under $1 million in free cash available following the vote to appropriate free cash towards the tax levy.

Mahoney questioned why Koch would not recommend using more free cash to further reduce property tax bills and bring the $119 increase down to $97, the increase taxpayers saw in the previous fiscal year.

"Taxpayers are really feeling the pinch and the economy is about to change," she said.

Cavanagh said the $119 increase would be below the state average and among the lowest on the South Shore; he said the average increase statewide would be $150 to $200 in the current fiscal year, and the South Shore average between $220 and $250. Cavanagh said the city could use more free cash to lower the tax rate, but would hurt its reserve accounts by doing so.

"Could you go lower? I guess if you put everything into it in an individual year, you might be able to get down below $50 or less. But when you do that in an individual year, you're kind of hurting yourself for future years," Cavanagh said. "We want to try to build up those reserves."

Mason, in response to a follow up question from Mahoney, said it would take $896,000 in additional free cash to bring the $119 tax increase down to $97.

Croall, the council president, noted the city could have additional free cash certified by the state next spring. Croall said he would support using more free cash to further reduce tax bills now, but understands the mayor – not the council – would have to propose doing so.

"That sounds pretty good to me," Croall said of allocating more free cash towards the levy. "I know we can't move that policy, we can advocate and express our feelings…but that to me would be a lot more appetizing."

DiBona said home values have grown astronomically.

"These assessed values of our homes are astronomically huge," he said. "It's unbelievable, because I'm seeing 2015, $334,000. You're coming in tonight at $466,000. That's a $132,000 jump on the taxpayers of the city."

Healy, the city assessor, said the market determines those home values.

"That's a jump in the valuation…which is established as a reflection of the current real estate market," she said.

The city also realized about $6.5 million in new growth this year, Healy said. That includes residential developments – such as the 492-unit project in Crown Colony – and commercial developments including Boston Scientific, FedEx, the new self-storage facility on Washington Street and the hotel under construction on Arlington Street.

The increase in this year's property tax bills comes on the heels of an $11.29 million increase in Quincy's budget from fiscal year 2018 to the current fiscal year, fiscal year 2019. The budget increased from $299.42 million to $310.71 million between those two years.

Mason said the total tax levy – the amount the city will collect in property taxes – will increase by $4 million in the current fiscal year to $229 million. Mason said the city saw great growth in local receipts this year, which offset the property tax increase.

"We saw great growth in local receipts. Our motor vehicle excise tax came in phenomenal, so did permits and fees," he said. "Those can offset increases."

Cain, the chairman of the council's finance committee, said his colleagues could make cuts in the spring while reviewing the mayor's budget proposal to keep property taxes down.

"We do have a position here where we can affect change structurally – not through free cash – and that's through the budget. Every year, we have the opportunity to make cuts within the budget...and if we do decide to cut certain percentages of the budget, we can then affect what might be the tax classification for the following fall/winter," Cain said.

DOVE Executive Director Sue Chandler Receives Eastern Bank Community Advocacy Service Award

Over 180 people recently gathered together at Lombardo's in Randolph to honor Sue Chandler, executive director at DOVE, as she received Eastern Bank's 2018 Community Advocacy Award in recognition of her many contributions to advancing women through her leadership at DOVE.

DOVE provides hope, healing, safety, and social change for survivors of domestic violence on the South Shore and Norfolk County. This recognition also came with a $5,000 donation to DOVE.

Chandler was named executive director of DOVE Feb. 1, 2010. She brings over two decades of nonprofit leadership and management to her role.

Chandler earned her undergraduate degree at Bowdoin College in Maine, Master of Public Health and Master of Social Work degrees at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, and completed a Certificate Program in Nonprofit Management and Leadership through the Boston University School of Management Executive Leadership Program in 2011. Immediately prior to her appointment at DOVE, she was the Director of the Community Advocacy Program (CAP) of CCHERS, Inc., a partnership of community health center-based domestic violence programs in Boston.

During Chandler's tenure, DOVE has grown from a budget of $700,000 to over $2 million, and a staff of 10 to now 38. Since 2010, the team at DOVE has worked hard to strengthen the organization's infrastructure, Board of Directors, programming, and services, including:

• Establishing more affirming and welcoming services for LGBQT survivors and survivors for whom English is a 2nd language,

• Growing a partnership with 8 local police departments to provide on-site services and consultation to front-line officers regarding domestic violence calls,

• Cultivating a robust legal team, with five staff attorneys providing representation regarding restraining orders, family and probate court matters, and immigration for survivors of domestic abuse,

• Establishing services for children exposed to violence in the home, and

• Expanding its Teen Dating Violence Prevention program, YouthSpeak, into 16 area high schools and two middle schools, and providing education to over 3,000 high school students annually.

"We have seen survivors be increasingly bold in recent years, as they speak up, often at great personal expense, about issues of sexual harassment and misconduct, sexual assault, and domestic violence," Chandler said. "We honor their strength and courage.

"Alongside these survivors, we are being challenged to be more bold, addressing systemic barriers and oppression, as we support survivors to achieve safety."

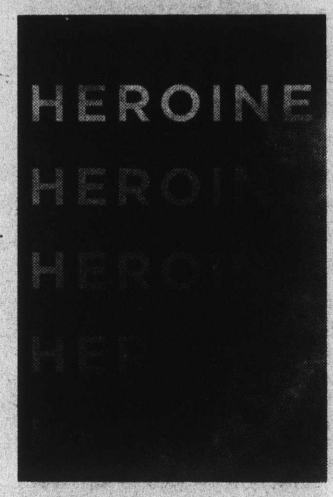
Chandler and DOVE are fully committed to promoting and fostering individual health and well-being as well as communities that embrace diversity, equity, and justice.

This celebration of Eastern's Community Advocacy Award coincides with the Bank's 200th anniversary year, when it is focusing its community service, philanthropy, and advocacy efforts toward helping eliminate barriers around issues that disproportionately impact women and girls in health care, education, the workplace, and in society generally, in honor of the Bank's first customers who were predominantly women.

'The Fine Print' Book Review

'Heroine' By Mindy McGinnis

By BETH VACCA



Opioids. This crisis needs to be discussed with our children. It is real and it is big and you'd be hard pressed to find someone who has not been affected.

As the mother of teenage boys I can practically feel the eye roll when I start a discussion on the subject. The subject is real to them as they knew someone in our community who died of an overdose.

I was honest with them even when the familiar euphemisms were rolled out. Died "unexpectedly", "tragically" or "suddenly." I try to convey to them that no one is safe. That addiction is not discriminate.

"Heroine" by Mindy McGinnis is a first step in trying to make real the question of who may be at risk. The short answer? You.

Our "heroine" is the all- star catcher on the high school girls softball team. They are on the road to win states, an important hurdle if Mickey wants to play Division 3 softball next fall. Her best friend, Carolina, is the starting pitcher and has already signed with a Division 1 school.

The two friends are in a car accident and are both seriously injured. Mickey's hip is ripped apart and is put back together with screws and Carolina's pitching arm is broken. They are both set on a long road of recovery and physical therapy.

While both girls are in severe pain and are both under extreme pressure to heal by the time the softball season starts Mickey's road led to an addiction to painkillers, lying, stealing and eventually heroin while Carolina's did not.

McGinnis gives us no concrete facts as to why the girls paths diverge which, I believe, is the point. What keeps one girl on the straight and narrow and what drives the other to a place she thought she would never be? We are not given the answer because there isn't one.

Frustrating. Maddening. Frightening.

McGinnis allows us to walk Mickey's walk. We can empathize with her need to please, to live up to expectations and to get back to the physical condition she was in before her accident. Her justifications seem plausible. We see how short the walk is from one unprescribed pain killer to being unable to turn back.

As a mom, however, I am frightened by the descriptions of the release from the grip of anxiety and pain. With the descriptions of the pure joy Mickey gets as she shoots heroin into her arm or leg.

If I am being honest, I am still unsure if I will encourage my boys to read this book. I will however, wholeheartedly recommend this book to every parent I know.

I will continue to look past the inevitable eye roll and continue to discuss this subject with my children.

We have an excellent DARE program here in Quincy. Our kids are being taught about this crisis. This book is a gritty reminder for diligence. Don't forget to read .... The Fine Print.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
GATEWAY TO THE BODY
Regular brushing and flossing take on added importance when you consider that there is a direct connection between dental (and gingival) health and overall health. The fact that many health professionals refer to the oral cavity as "the gateway to the body" is reflected by research showing that the same bacteria that cause tooth decay and gum disease may also play a role in heart disease and stroke. There is also evidence that tooth loss before the age of 35 may be a risk factor for Alzheimer's disease. Furthermore, research shows that oral bacteria can be aspirated into the lungs to cause respiratory diseases such as pneumonia. For these reasons and others, it is important to maintain good oral health.
We know how important it is to you that the people who take care of your dental needs be well-informed, knowledgeable, highly skilled, and caring and compassionate. Our promise to you is that our office will provide you with dental care of the highest quality, based on sound medical modalities, using the most appropriate procedures, and utilizing extremely qualified staff members. Keep on top of your dental health by calling us at 617 479-6220 for comfortable, comprehensive dental care for you and your family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.
P.S. Research shows that men with gum disease were 49% more likely to develop kidney cancer, 54% more likely to develop pancreatic cancer, and 30% more likely to develop blood cancers.

Wollaston Apts. Get ZBA OK

15 Units Planned At 9 Brook St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved a proposal to build a 15-unit apartment building in Wollaston Center, despite the objections of some local residents.

The ZBA approved the proposal for the 15-unit building at 9 Brook St., a short distance from the Wollaston MBTA station, on Nov. 27. The Planning Board must also approve the project.

William Phelan, the attorney representing Zong Zou, the Quincy resident behind the proposed apartment building, said the 15-unit building could help revitalize the neighborhood.

"It's a rather run-down area – business district – in Quincy," Phelan said. "I know the city is hopeful that whole area, extending up Newport Ave to the corner of Beale Street, will all be beautified and improved, and we're hoping that this project is one of the projects that kind of gets that ball rolling."

The building is home to the Crown Royal Bakery and a redemption center. Zou plans to demolish the redemption center, but keep the bakery and build three stories of apartments above it. Phelan said the bakery would remain during construction, if possible.

The 15 apartments would include six studios, three one-bedroom units, three two-bedroom units and three two-bedroom units with a den. Each studio would contain about 500 square feet of space, the one-bedrooms would have about 800 square feet, the two-bedrooms 900 square feet and the units with a den about 1,000 square feet.

Nine parking spaces would be provided on site in a parking lot at the corner of Brook Street and Arlington Street.

Two residents, both of Winthrop Avenue, spoke in favor of the project at the Zoning Board of Appeals hearing. They said the project would help improve the neighborhood.

"Being in an area where the train station is going to be remodeled, it will beautify the neighborhood, and having these apartments will also beautify it," said Alexis Johnson. "It will make the neighborhood look that much better."

Six residents spoke against the proposal at the hearing.

Eileen Dargon, a Brook Street resident, said traffic in the neighborhood is tough already.

"The congestion and the traffic – it's horrible," she said.

Janet Braun, a Milton Street resident, was concerned about parking.

"Why does this place want nine parking spots for 15 units?" she said.

James Coughlin, president of the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association, said he wanted to see the area developed but project before the board was too big.

"Obviously, I want this area developed, just like every other area that needs to be developed," Coughlin said. I don't think this is the right project. It's a little too big for the parking that's available to it.

"I'd love it if everyone used the T, but they don't. Everyone is going to have a parking spot that's on the street."

Board members said the building would help improve the neighborhood.

Martin Aikens, the board's chairman, said it would attract people without cars looking to commute into Boston.

"I think this is going to be a good project. I really do," Aikens said. "The people that are going to go in there are the people that are going to take the T and want to go work in Boston. That's the only ones that are going to rent it."

"The building that currently exists is just lousy looking," said John Himmel. "I think this will be an improvement."

STAFF FROM THE Germantown Neighborhood Center, the South Shore YMCA, the Quincy Police Department and Friends Of Quincy Firefighters IAFF Local 792 gathered Dec. 1 at Walmart on Falls Boulevard for their annual toy drive to support South Shore YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center and Quincy families. Thanks to all those who donated, hundreds of toys were collected, helping to make the season brighter for those in need throughout the community.

Intervale St. Condos Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

The chairman of the city's zoning board and the owners of several local businesses said they were concerned about a proposed 14-unit condominium building on Intervale Street in South Quincy, because the new residences would be located inside an industrial area.

The Zoning Board of Appeals on Nov. 27 heard a request from William Phelan for a variance to construct the 14-unit building at 149 Intervale St. The board continued the public hearing on the matter to Jan. 8.

Planning Board approval is also needed for the project.

Phelan is seeking permission to demolish the five-story home on site and construct the new four-story building. Twelve of the units would include one bedroom, with two two-bedroom units.

The project site is located in an industrial zoning district. Martin Aikens, the ZBA's chairman, said he was concerned owners of the new condominiums would complain to police and city officials about noise coming from businesses in the area, based on what's happened at other residential developments in industrial areas.

"Until you turn it all around – which you're not going to do – it's an industrial zone. This is going to cause problems with a lot of people. The people in that building are going to have problems," Aikens said. "We see it every time this happens and we do one of these buildings."

In response, Phelan said the property in question already has a multi-family home on site, and the new building would likely have better soundproofing than the current structure.

"I do sympathize with the fact that maybe a business might get a complaint or two, but they would get a complaint or two from the people that live there already," Phelan said. "This building would probably be better soundproofed than what the existing building is."

The owners of area businesses echoed the same concern about noise complaints that Aikens did.

"I think if we put 14 condos in there, it's going to cause a huge nuisance," said Jim Schlager, whose family owns a towing and automotive-repair business on Centre Street. "I really feel it's an industrial neighborhood. I think putting 14 units there, it's going to be 28 headaches for everybody."

Schlager's father, James, said he would support commercial development on site, but not the 14 condos.

"If you're going to put industrial there, be my guest. I'll even help you," he said. "But if you put residential, I'm going to fight you."

John Montillio, owner of Monti Granite on Centre Street, said the condos would be out of place in an industrial neighborhood.

"It's a beautiful building for Marina Bay," he said. "I harbor no malice, it's just that it's going to be a catastrophe. There is three blocks that are heavy industry – we're not talking about UPS coming in with packages."

After the public hearing, Aikens suggested the continuance until January so he could meet with the Planning Department to review his concerns about residential developments in industrial areas. Board members agreed to continue the hearing until then.

Foreclosure Assistance Programs Available In Norfolk County

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds homeowners who are in the midst of struggling to pay their mortgage or are facing a foreclosure that there are consumer programs available to help them out.

"While the eastern Massachusetts economy remains on a solid footing, some of our neighbors face economic hardship," O'Donnell said. "To help those having difficulty paying their mortgage, my office has partnered with reputable agencies by promoting their services when it comes to mortgage modification and foreclosure issues."

O'Donnell said consumers can contact either the Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 or NeighborWorks Southern Mass at (508) 587-0950. Another option is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

"These agencies provide a range of assistance from helping with the mortgage modification process to providing legal services to stave off a foreclosure as well as offering several forms of credit counseling. Additional information can be found on the Registry's website, www.norfolkdeeds.org under the Support tab," O'Donnell said.

The register also had a cautionary warning for consumers.

"Please make sure you utilize the right source for your needs such as a non-profit or state agency as cited above. Unfortunately, foreclosure rescues and mortgage modification relief are becoming a growing scam. Some unscrupulous private companies look to charge consumers outrageous prices for services and make unrealistic promises to them."

During the third quarter of 2018, foreclosure activity was mixed, according to O'Donnell. The total number of foreclosure deeds recorded was 63, a small three percent increase year over year. The numbers were more sobering with Notice to Foreclose Mortgage filings, the first step in the foreclosure process.

There were 127 Notice to Foreclose Mortgages recorded during the quarter, a 24.5 percent increase year over year.

"The statistics listed above reinforce the fact that foreclosure activity remains a source of concern," O'Donnell said. "We at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds are proud of our commitment to helping those facing a mortgage delinquency or foreclosure by directing them to the appropriate agency that can hopefully put them back on the road to financial recovery.

"I urge people who feel that they need such services to contact the agencies referenced above," O'Donnell added.

Ceiling Fan Sizes, Vinyl Floor Over Tile?

Can ceiling fans help me save money? Also, how do I know what size to buy? Louise

Many folks just think of using a ceiling fan to cool in the warmer weather. However, each fan has a switch to reverse the blades so you can circulate warm air in the winter. Both features can certainly help you with cooling and heating costs. In fact, ceiling fans only cost pennies to run as compared to air conditioners which can send your monthly electric bill up, up, up, in the summer months.

Simply put, choose a small fan for a small room and a large fan for a large room. If you choose a small fan for a large room, the motor works too hard diminishing the fan's longevity. And a large fan in a small room is overwhelming.

Here is a guide from Delmar Fans based on the square footage of your room. To calculate square footage, multiply the length of the room by the width of the room. (And remember, you need at least an eight foot ceiling height.)

ROOM SIZE	RECOMMMENDED BLADE SPAN
<75 square feet	29-36 inches
76-144 square feet	36-44 inches
144-225 square feet	44-54 inches
225-400 square feet	50-72 inches
400 + square feet	54-72 inches or 2 smaller fans

My bathroom floor is outdated. Can I place a vinyl floor over tile? Ross

Yes, as long as the tiles are in good shape and without wide grout lines (i.e., greater than ¼ inch) between them, go for it. Installing vinyl floors over tile can save you both time and money, too!

An underlayment is required over the tile to help prevent the grout lines from showing through the vinyl – we call this telegraphing. You can choose either glue-down vinyl or interlocking (also called click) vinyl planks or vinyl tiles over your existing tile floor.

I highly recommend vinyl floors for kitchens and baths. Today's high-quality vinyl resembles stone, slate, hardwoods ... and often can trick an unsuspecting guest. It has happened in my own kitchen with folks touching the floor to verify that it really is vinyl and not stone.

Snow Thrower Usage Safety Tips

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) encourages home and business owners to ready their snow throwers and other winter equipment before snow flurries and winter storms arrive.

Clearing driveways, sidewalks and parking lots is no small job and you rely on your outdoor power equipment to make these big jobs easy, but it's also important to keep safety in mind when using snow throwers, often referred to as snow blowers.

OPEI offers the following questions to get ready for old man winter:

GETTING READY

Have you read your owner's manual? Read up for safe handling procedures.

If you lost your manual, you can look it up online (and store a copy on your computer so you have the manual available to reference in the future). Review how to operate the controls. You should be able to shut off your equipment quickly.

Have you checked your equipment since storing it? Make sure all equipment is completely powered off when checking it over. If you forgot to drain the fuel last winter before storing your snow thrower, drain the gas tank now. Adjust any cables and check the auger—again when the equipment is powered off.

Did you put your equipment where you can get to it easily? Move your equipment to a convenient and accessible location, so you can get to it easily when you need it.

Have you purchased the right fuel? Due to power outages, gas stations may be closed after a storm so have some on hand. Be sure to use the correct fuel, as recommended by your equipment's manufacturer (for more information on fueling properly see www.LookBeforeYouPump.com). Place gasoline in a fuel container and label it with the date purchased and the ethanol content of the fuel. Use fresh fuel in your snow thrower as fuel that is more than 30 days old can phase separate and cause operating problems. Make sure fuel is stored safely and out of the reach of children.

Are you fueling safely? Before you start the engine fill up the fuel tank on your snow thrower outside while the engine is cold. Never add fuel to a running or hot engine.

Are batteries charged? If using a battery/electric-powered snow-thrower, make sure batteries are fully charged, in case electricity goes out during a winter storm.

Is the area you intend to clear free of obstructions or hidden obstacles? Snow can hide objects. Doormats, hoses, balls, toys, boards, wires, and other debris should be removed from the areas you intend to clear. When run over by a snow thrower, these objects may harm the machine or people.

Are you dressed properly for winter weather? Locate your safety gear now, and place it in an accessible closet or location in your home. Plan to wear safety glasses, gloves and footwear that can handle cold and slippery surfaces.

OPERATING SNOW THROWERS SAFELY – Questions to Ask

Do you have a clean out tool or stick? NEVER put your hands inside the auger or chute. Use a clean out tool (or stick) to unclog snow or debris from your snow thrower.

Do you turn off your snow thrower if you need to clear a clog? Always turn off your snow thrower and wait for all moving parts to come to a complete stop before clearing any clogs or debris.

Do you use your snow thrower in visible conditions? Never operate the snow thrower without good visibility or light.

Can you aim your snow thrower with care? Never throw snow toward people or cars. Do not allow anyone to stand in front of your snow thrower. Keep children or pets away from your snow thrower when it is operating.

Will you use extreme caution on slopes and hills? Do not attempt to clear steep slopes and use caution when changing directions on slopes or inclines.

Do you know where your cord is? If you have an electric-powered snow thrower, be aware of where the power cord is at all times. Avoid tripping. Do not run over the power cord.

Will you keep pets and children inside? Kids and pets may love to play in the white stuff, but it's best to keep them inside your home and under supervision while you are using your snow thrower to clear a path or drive. Do not allow them to play in the snow as it is tossed out of the snow thrower's chute.

More safety tips and information are available at www.opei.org.

QCAP To Host First-Time Home Buyer Workshop

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will host a set of comprehensive workshops designed for first time home buyers.

The Quincy Sun for the past seven years, worked at Curry Hardware for nearly three years and recently began an internship at Dive Technologies in Quincy.

At his funeral Mass Luc was eulogized by his father, Ray Theberge, scout master and close friend Raymond Cheung and the Rev. Matthew Williams, pastor of Saint John's Church. Each offered a heart-felt remembrance of an exceptional young man who touched the lives of so many at such at young age.

"We are here to celebrate the life of an amazing 18-year-old man who blessed us with his presence in our lives," Ray Theberge said. "He truly was a gift to each and every one of us. Our lives have been altered by knowing him and living life with him.

"Always remember the joy that Luc brought in our lives. Many of you have seen the use of yellow ribbons since Luc's passing. Yellow is a symbol of the sunshine that Luc brought to our lives and our community. His beaming big smile and personality would light up every room he was present in." He then thanked Luc's friends for placing yellow ribbons on trees lining the street near the Theberge home on Puritan Drive.

Ray Theberge reflected on his son's life for nearly 20 minutes; his words a loving testament to a son who was wiser beyond his years who embraced life to the fullest.

"At a very young age, Luc learned that every day is a gift," Ray said. "Every day we need to wake up and say 'Amen. The Lord has given me another day.' But it's not a gift to squander. He's given you another you another chance to make an impact. To make a difference in at least one other person's life, hopefully more."

Ray Theberge continued: "No one in this church is an island. Our lives are eternally intertwined because of Lucien. God never meant us to be alone. Let us come together and be even closer from this crisis. While we are tempted to wallow in depression: why now, why so young, what could have been – I'm confident that our mortal brains will never come to understand the why of this situation and only torment ourselves by continuing to ask but rather let's turn our thoughts and focus on the gift of Lucien as a role model for us and what gifts we have before us today."

Academically, Ray said his son was "one of a kind." At QHS, his advanced placement classes included physics 1 and 2, history, economics and computer science. In his sophomore year, when Luc thought he wouldn't be able to take two years of high school physics, he asked his father how he could fix that. He needed to take a pre-requisite chemistry course at Quincy College during the summer.

"What kid wants to do that," Ray asked as the mourners laughed. "Luc did," Ray answered softly.

Luc also took a pre-calculus course at Quincy College before his junior year in high school. He wanted to secure as many college credits as possible before starting his freshman year at Worcester Polytechnic Institute where he was already accepted. Next fall he would have begun studying mechanical engineering and robotics.

Luc was also signed up for the ROTC program at WPI so he could graduate college as an officer in the U.S. Air Force and serve his country.

"He was so excited," Ray said, "so looking forward to attending WPI." After attending the Frontier Summer Camp program and studying robotics for two weeks, he told his dad: "This school was made for me."

Ray said, "Luc loved being a part of robotics because it included all the aspects of engineering that he enjoyed: mechanical, electrical, software, etc. but equally so because of the team building. Not surprisingly, there are many connections from scouting to robotics. A lot of the same personal goals are in place. And for the past three years whenever January came around, everything came to a halt because it was build season. It was seven days a week and he loved it.

"We grew as a team," that's what Luc posted on his Facebook page after he and his fellow classmates completed building a robot that he said he could not have been more proud of. He also thanked his teachers for helping to challenge him to be the best student he could be.

Many of those teachers and administrators attended Luc's funeral. Others, besides a throng of family and friends, included elected officials, community and business leaders and classmates.

Ray said his son was a remarkable Boy Scout. He noted only four percent earn the rank of Eagle Scout, less than one percent earn the Ranger Award and less than one percent earn the National Outdoor Achievement Medal. Very few earn all three. But Luc did.

"He truly was one in a million," Ray said. "He loved the outdoors."

Ray said Luc learned at a young age that many of life's obstacles are self-imposed. "He learned how to remove and overcome them." Some favorite memories were camping overnight in the mountains. When he was still a young boy, Luc had already camped out over 200 nights, hiked over 600 miles, performed over 300 hours of community service and taken over 150 hours of leadership training.

Ray said his son embodied the scout law. "I know he was an inspiration to many of you today. Luc was trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent."

He said Luc was dedicated to family, too. "He was the baby brother to John and Celia but he was more than that. He was a role model. A source of reason."

Luc was also a servant to his community. He participated in cleanups, fundraising and mentoring. "There are very few youth in Quincy who can say they know the mayor, the superintendent of schools and their city councillor, for all the right reasons, on a first-name basis," Ray said, the crowd acknowledging with a gentle laugh.

"Luc stood for values like family and service and personal responsibility and respect for each other," he continued. "He was friendly and looked you in the eye and shook your hand with a self-confidence that lit you up with his beaming smile. He never let peer pressure or fashion or social trends sway him from doing what was right or best for others. He was amazing at reaching out and engaging others."

Ray said Luc was "keenly aware of the importance of leadership. His head, his heart and his mind were always looking for things he could do to help others."

His son's legacy, Ray said, "at such an incredibly young age is that he not only touched so many lives but also physically moved you to be here today. Some of you are neighbors or family or from scouting or robotics. Many of you knew Luc from school. There are also many here from public service, Eastern Bank, the Quincy Sun, Curry Hardware . . . He treated everyone with respect, a respect that left an impression.

"This incredible breadth and depth of people that he connected with in his young 18 years and more is more than the vast majority of adults that I know.

"Luc belonged not only to the Theberge family but he belonged to the community and to the world.

"I ask each of you to keep Lucien in your lives not only in your heart but also in your mind. Let his example guide you in your life every day. When you think about standing still or not reaching out to a stranger . . . or being impatient . . . ask yourself 'is this what Luc would do?' And then he will remain alive not only in your heart but in your mind and through your actions.

"Raise your expectations of yourself as high as he did. He will live on and his legacy will be great."

In his 15-minute homily, Fr. Matthew Williams said Luc embodied the scout law and scout oath. He then asked the 200 scouts and leaders and former scouts present to stand and recite the law.

Fr. Williams said Luc was one of a kind. He then noted what Luc's older sister Celia said of her younger brother.

"He was my younger brother but I looked up to him."

Fr. Williams characterized Luc as a "mountain" who was always striving to reach new heights.

"There are 48 mountains in New Hampshire's White Mountains that exceed 4,000 feet. He climbed every one of them. Luc was a mountain. We looked up to him and he stood out. He was a mountain but he was not only a mountain he was the one leading up to the summit of the mountain. He was a leader."

Fr. Williams said Luc's life "was to the heights. And it wasn't just climbing to the summit of mountains although that was true it spoke to the heart of Luc. He was created in greatness and lived life to the greatest as best he could. He sought to live a life of excellence, loving God, neighbor and country - to the heights. It seemed most things that he did, he went all in. His heart was shaped by the virtues of scouting. The inwardness of it was reflected in the way he lived his life: to the heights.

"He was a leader and people followed him and people looked up to him, right up to that summit: to the heights."

Fr. Williams drew a parallel of how scouts who be-

School Tech Program Prepares Students For 21st Century Careers

By TOM GORMAN

High School seniors Ryan Fiasconaro and Tiffany Li feel they have an advantage over other neighboring districts' seniors when it comes to skills they will carry with them into college and the work world.

Fiasconaro, a North Quincy High School student, and Li, a student at Quincy High School, are among the 1,403 Quincy Public Schools Career Vocational and Technical Education (CVTE) students. The program offers 22 "career pathways" that combines classroom education, hands-on training, and on-the-job experience.

CVTE Executive Director Keith Segalla said the program offers academic rigor, civic obligation, and technical proficiency that "opens multiple career paths" for students whether they are going on to college, getting a job, or entering the military. There are 22 programs offered including those in engineering, early education/childcare, information technology, health care and various trades.

"Graduates of Quincy Public Schools Career Vocational and Technical Education program will be skilled and contributing members of our 21st century global community," Segalla told the school committee recently during a presentation of the program's 2018-19 improvement plan.

Fiasconaro is a film and television production student. This course was added two years ago at North Quincy High.

Among the skills he learned are screenwriting, annunciation, editing, acting, lighting, and operating cameras and other technical equipment.

Regarding one of his videos, which is a drama,

Pretty Prize-Winning Christmas Poster

THIS POSTER created by Lily Chen, a fifth grade student at the Montclair Elementary School, was the first-place winner in the Quincy Christmas Poster Contest for grades 4-5. Commenting on Lily's poster, the judges said: "Beautiful rendering of a magical scene. This drawing has great design, and a lovely story. It glows with warmth. It could be a successful holiday card. Especially love the tree in all, very mature and well done! This is the second consecutive year that Lily was a first-place winner in the poster contest. She also submitted the winning poster last year as a fourth grader. More poster photos on Page 18 and Page 19.

Colonial Federal Savings Bank 'Share The Warmth' Drive

Collecting New Hats, Gloves, Socks For Salvation Army

Whether this winter is snowy or not, it will be cold. And there are men, women and children in our local communities who would truly appreciate your generous gift of a new warm hat or a good new pair of gloves or socks.

Which is why Colonial Federal Savings Bank is sponsoring the 4th Annual "Share The Warmth" drive to collect new hats, gloves and socks for a pre-Christmas donation to the Salvation Army.

"As a neighborhood bank, we're always looking for ways to help people in the community," said Susan Shea, Colonial Federal treasurer and chief operating officer. "This seemed like a fun, easy way for people to help others - something that would make both the givers and the recipients happy."

Donation boxes are available now through Tuesday, Dec. 11th in the Colonial Federal offices in Quincy, Weymouth and Holbrook.

Practical and/or fashionable warm new hats, gloves and socks are needed for men, women and children. Cash/check donations are also welcome. For questions or to arrange to make a cash/check donation, call Peggy or Kerry at Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 617-471-0750.

With full-service offices in Quincy, East Weymouth and Holbrook, Colonial Federal has been the South Shore's "neighborhood bank" since 1889. All deposits are insured by the FDIC. The phone number connecting all offices is 617-471-0750.

QUINCY AND NORTH QUINCY teams at the 2018 Peer Leadership Conference.

DA Morrissey Stokes Good Kind Of Rivalry

Quincy and North Quincy High schools both sent student teams to Norfolk Dist. Atty. Michael W. Morrissey's 2018 Peer Leadership Conference at Gillette Stadium at the end of November – and Quincy High walked away with a $1,500 check to support substance abuse education and prevention programs during the year to come.

"Having a core of motivated peer leaders is an important part of keeping high school cultures healthy and strong," Morrissey said following the Nov. 20 event. "The Peer Leadership Conference begins a year-long program of activities meant to encourage local peer leaders through education and reinforcement – to provide tools that they can then bring back to their high schools."

Last year, Quincy High edged North in the "Team Rival" competition as to which student body could participate in more of the events offered by the DA's office on distracted driving, substance abuse and other topics – earning all 100 possible points and the $1,500 check that comes with a perfect score.

The 250 peer leaders attending the conference came from 20 high schools across Norfolk County; they heard stories about other teens who had done inspiring work in their school communities – including anti-bullying and no-text-and-drive campaigns – but also heard from adults who made profound mistakes in their teens. Cory Palazzi, a former standout athlete, took the stage in the wheelchair he has used since a 2013 opiate overdose left him permanently disabled and spoke about his advocacy work; which is detailed on his web site, www.coryscause.com. Cory Scanlon spoke to a completely silent crowd about the night of teen drinking that ended with his two best friends dead in the car he was driving – and eventually a 4-year jail sentence for him.

"It is important for peer leaders to recognize what is really at stake in preventing substance abuse, drunk and distracted driving, and other destructive behaviors," Morrissey said. "Having a group of peer leaders in any school making the right choices creates space for the kids who may be more apt to follow than lead, but would be just as happy to join someone making good choices."

The events for this year, in addition to the Peer Leadership Conference, are to create a public service announcement video highlighting the substance use treatment and support resources available in each community, to perform community service projects involving substance abuse treatment and prevention, and getting fellow students to go through Arbella Insurance's online "Distractology" program, which demonstrates the real impact of texting and other distractions while driving. Students participating in the challenges can also count that work toward their school's community service graduation requirements. Information about this program, open to all public high schools in Norfolk County, can be found on the TEAM RIVAL Scoreboard located on www.norfolkda.com.

The conference was funded by the award of a Drunk Driving Trust Fund Prevention Education and Training Grant – for the fifth consecutive year.

New Look For NQHS Girls Hoop

By PAUL BREGOLI
Head Coach
NQHS Girls Basketball

It will be a new look Red Raider girls' basketball team with only two returning starters and four freshmen on the varsity roster.

Senior captains Mary Kate McAleavey and Samantha Smith are the most experienced returnees. Senior captain Maria Zraizaa will also bring some experience to the team having played in 11 games last season.The three seniors are expected to hold down three of the starting positions with junior Amanda Hellmuth and freshman point guard Kiera Sleiman rounding out the starting five.

"Samantha has looked very good in preseason showing excellent leadership and an added confidence to her game," head coach Paul Bregoli said. "Her shot has improved greatly as has her overall game. McAleavey is just a great athlete and should be, along with Samantha, as our go to players. Mary Kate has great quickness and should improve upon her 7 point a game average from last season. Maria is our biggest player and has also improved. She should give us a rebounding presence underneath. Amanda has earned a starting spot with her all around solid play at both ands of the court. She has good quickness and is a pretty good shooter. Kiera has surprised the coaching staff with her poise and toughness on the court. She handles the ball well and can also shoot it a little."

The Red Raiders will be undersized but will try to make up for their lack of height with hustle and quickness.

Lindsey Keenan is also a returning varsity player who brings toughness and a great feel for the game. She scored nearly a hundred points last season and should be a threat offensively this season. Five other juniors will also be on this year's team. Center Phoebe Johnston, who is coming back from a broken foot, will give depth up front. Ashley Caldwell will also provide some depth and contribute in the rebounding department.

Sydney Taylor, who missed a good deal of last season due to injury, will be expected to provide an outside threat. Isabella Thong will also see some time up front. Thong is a very good rebounder.

Alexa Radzik will provide much needed offense from the outside. Olivia Murray will be a defensive stopper with her quickness and hustle.

Gianni Dardy is the fourth senior. Only in her second season of organized basketball, Dardy is a terrific athlete who should see time as her game develops. The team is rounded out with three other freshman.

Jamie McAleavey, Mary Kate's sister, is a good shooter and defender. Alex Abrahamovich is another promising point guard who handles well and is quick. Stephanie Huang is another off guard who has a good shot and who also handles the ball well.

"The season will be an interesting one," Bregoli said. "I will say this is a very coachable group of kids. They work hard in practice and have shown improvement in a short period of time. Teams who take us lightly will be surprised."

Returning to coach the JV team is Christina Deiorio, a 1,000 point scorer at Cardinal Spellman and a captain at Curry College. Lauren Sleeth also returns as a volunteer assistant joined by Gerry Forde. Shannan Griffith, another Curry grad will also be on the staff as an assistant

After their opener, North will travel to Hingham on the following Tuesday for their Patriot League opener.

NQ Girls Basketball Alumni Game Dec. 30

The North Quincy Girls Basketball Team will host an alumni basketball game on Sunday, Dec. 30 at 6 p.m. at the Walter "Cap"Bryan gymnasium at North Quincy High School.

All alumni are encouraged to attend to help support this year's varsity team and their fundraising efforts.

Besides the game, a free throw shooting, 3 point shooting, skills competition and knockout competition will also be held.

Allison Fitzgerald On Assumption Swim Team

The Assumption College Department of Athletics announces that Allison Fitzgerald, of Quincy, has been named to the 2018-19 Assumption College Women's Swimming and Diving team.

Fitzgerald, Class of 2021, is competing during the Greyhounds' winter season.

Bryson Twins Raise Bar In Cross Country, Track

Emily, Julia Standouts At Brandeis

EMILY BRYSON

By TREVOR WENNERS

Cross country and track stars Emily and Julia Bryson were always looking out for each other.

The emotional swings can be difficult, as the highs give an athlete the greatest joy but the lows can be overwhelming. An athlete can train perfectly, but a slight mishap on the course can lead to a gut-wrenching setback. Luckily, for Emily and Julia, the two never had to face these situations alone.

Most people admire the Bryson twins for their accomplishments in Brandeis' uniforms in cross country and track, but the process to become elite Division III runners was a long and grueling one that required countless hours. The journey led to a connection between two sisters that will never die.

The Quincy natives started running around the block with their father, Jim Bryson, as elementary school kids and met their eventual high school coach Geoff Hennessy at the Quincy Track Club. Little did they know that one day they would be raising their hands together as All-Americans on the NCAA Championship stage. The family-centered event just seemed natural, as slowly they started running faster than their dad, opening the door for illustrious running careers that shredded record books at North Quincy High and Brandeis.

"Emily and I have really been through so much together," Julia said. "I often think about moments like watching Emily become a national champion or becoming All-Americans together, and those would have never happened or would not have been as special if we did not train together. Even in the lowest moments; it is nice to have someone that is always there for you."

Emily added, "We were never overly competitive with each other, but instead we pushed each other to be better athletes and people. My dad would send us out to different landmarks, and then we would come back to him. Geoff taught us everything we know about track, including pacing, racing tactics and recovery. He instilled in us the importance of hard work."

One could write a novel with all the record-setting performances and accomplishments of the Bryson sisters' careers. Let's take a quick glimpse at some of their top moments.

Emily took home the indoor national title in the 3,000-meter run during the 2018 campaign with a program-record time of 9:33.99. Additionally, she posted a school-record time of 4:46.63 in the mile run on Feb. 9, 2018. In cross country, she led the pack at the 2015 University Athletic Association (UAA) Championship in front of familiar surroundings at Franklin Park in Boston.

As a senior at NQ, she finished second in the 2-mile run at the All-State meet, and her distance medley relay team earned an indoor Division 1 State title. On the cross country side, she earned a fourth-place finish at All-States in 2014.

Julia was the 1,200-meter leg on the distance medley relay team with Emily, which set a program record (11:42.97) and earned All-American nods with a third-place effort at the 2018 NCAA Championships. During her high school stint, Julia made a quantum leap from 72nd overall to 10th at the All-State cross country meet as a senior at Franklin Park. As a junior, she placed 13th at the Division 2 Eastern Massachusetts race, allowing her to qualify for her first-ever All-State competition.

Julia and Emily have always been pillars in the classroom and community, earning numerous academic honors, such as United States Track and Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCCA) All-Academic recognition in July 2018. This achievement requires a 3.30 GPA or higher, while also earning a top-50 national ranking individually or a top-35 national mark in a relay event among Division III institutions. Julia is majoring in business with a double minor in French and francophone studies and economics, while Emily is hoping to get a job working at a clinical research study and furthering her education.

"They both believe in giving back," Hennessy said. "That is why they spent years helping with mentally-challenged kids during the summer or coaching the little ones at Quincy Track Club."

The outstanding athletes are looking to end their track careers in style during the 2018-19 indoor and outdoor seasons, as the indoor season was slated to start Dec 1. The women are carrying a great deal of momentum, as Emily placed fifth overall at the NCAA Championship in cross country back on Nov. 17, and Julia placed 64th with the fourth-fastest time in her career. The Judges qualified as a team for the national championship for the first time since 2013.

Even after their collegiate careers are done; the love for running will never waver. That passion and appreciation for the sport can be traced back to those running events around the neighborhood. Those are the fond memories that will stick around forever and be talked about at holiday dinners, creating an everlasting bond among the Bryson family.

"Our dad would take us around our neighborhood," Julia recalled. "We would just stay by his side refusing to stop as long as the other one did not, and our relationship always had that friendly motivating competition growing up. One of the biggest pushes for me is that growing up our dad always told us just to have fun running. I was never pushed hard as a young kid and just ran because I loved it."

Ciara Forde Excels Athletically, Academically At Simmons

By TREVOR WENNERS

Ciara Forde definitely has the mindset of a stellar Division III student-athlete.

The Division III philosophy emphasizes the importance of balancing athletics and academics, as the ultimate goal is building strong student-athletes, who compete at a high level on the athletic field and in the classroom. The approach prides itself on ensuring that student-athletes are ready to make a considerable impact in their field of study upon graduation. After all, the word "student" does come first.

Forde, who hails from Quincy, excelled in both disciplines, as the young woman compiled 32 goals and 11 assists for 75 points, along with eight game-winning tallies during a highly-renown, four-year stint on the Simmons College women's soccer team. She capped off her career by being named to the Google Cloud Academic All-District NCAA Division III District 1 Women's Soccer First Team by CoSIDA on Nov. 8.

Opening the textbooks has never been a problem for Forde, as she is equally driven in the classroom, maintaining a 3.9 GPA as a physical therapy major. She is enrolled in the six-year doctorate of physical therapy program, which overlaps an undergraduate's senior year with his or her first year of graduate school. Forde will embark on her first 12-week, full-time clinical experience in the summer of 2019 at an outpatient physical therapy location.

"Choosing to go to Simmons was one of the best decisions I have ever made," Forde said. "Simmons gave me the chance to thrive academically and put me on the path to a career that I love, while also giving me the opportunity to continue playing soccer."

The Sharks' shining moment during Forde's tenure was making it to the semifinals of the Great Northeast Athletic Conference Tournament in 2017. Forde and company were facing an uphill battle with a road quarterfinal game, but the sixth-seeded Sharks handled their business against third-seeded Emmanuel, 2-0, with Forde adding an insurance goal in the 90th minute. Simmons went 10-7-2 overall and 6-4-1 in the GNAC, as Forde tallied 10 goals and four assists.

Simmons qualified for the conference tournament during the 2015 and 2016 seasons, but the unit was not able to get over the hump in the quarterfinals. It must have felt good to finally knock down the playoff barrier.

"Being able to make it to the semifinals was definitely an exciting feat," Forde said. "Beating Emmanuel, one of our team's biggest rivals, in the quarterfinals is something that I will always remember. Being able to score as well was a bonus."

Forde was able to get her feet wet as a freshman, starting 16-of-19 games, and finishing with two goals and an assist for a Sharks' team that went 8-3 in the GNAC. The highly-skilled athlete notched her first collegiate goal during a 4-0 win at Rivier.

"In terms of playing at the collegiate level, the biggest adjustment that I had to make was adjusting to the speed of the game," Forde said. "However, playing on a club team and in high school helped me a lot in preparing me for the intensity that comes with playing at the college level."

Forde continued to work on her craft, and as a sophomore, the midfielder was awarded her first of three consecutive All-Conference Second Team honors, finishing with 18 points on seven goals and four assists. She tallied a five-point effort during a 7-0 shellacking of Rivier.

As a senior captain, Forde finished with career highs of 13 goals and 28 points, as Simmons qualified for the GNAC Tournament as the seventh seed and lost in the quarterfinals. Forde's senior year was nothing short of sensational, as she compiled four multi-goal games and two game winners in one-goal conference victories on the road. The first came in overtime during the 97th minute in a 2-1 win at Saint Joseph (Conn.), and then she accomplished the feat again in the 83rd minute during a 3-2 triumph against Saint Joseph's (Maine).

"Every year, I set new goals so I could continue to improve myself as a player," Forde said. "I made sure to always hold myself and my teammates to a high standard to make sure that everyone was working their hardest and playing their best at every practice and game."

Forde created quite a legacy for herself in a Simmons' uniform, but not so terribly long ago, she was doing the same thing in a Red Raiders' jersey at North Quincy High School. She suited up on the varsity girls' soccer team all four years, reaching the MIAA Tournament every season. She also powered the girls' lacrosse team to the South Sectional as a senior in 2015, pouring in 59 goals and 14 assists, as the Raiders reached the playoffs for the first time since 2007.

"Being able to go to North and play on the high school soccer team was one of the best experiences I have ever had," Forde said. "The teachers that I had at NQ were definitely one of a kind; all of them were so passionate about teaching students, as well as supporting students at athletic events. While playing was always competitive; it was also so much fun. I made some of my best friends playing on that team. I loved growing up in Quincy because there was always such a great sense of community, and I loved being so close to Boston."

AS A SENIOR captain of the Simmons College women's soccer team, Ciara Forde finished with career highs of 13 goals and 28 points.

Hughes Won't Seek Re-Election As GOP State Committee Chair

City Councillor Undecided About Seeking Another Term In Ward 5 Next Fall

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's Kirsten Hughes won't run for a new term as the chairwoman of the Massachusetts Republican Party next year, ending her six-year run in that post.

Hughes, an attorney who represents Ward 5 on the Quincy City Council, said she is proud of the work she has done during her time as the chairwoman of the state GOP.

"I feel like it's time for someone else to see what they can do," she said in a phone interview.

Hughes said leaving the party chairmanship would also allow her to spend more time with her family.

"My kids are getting a little older. The job includes a lot of nights and weekends, crisscrossing the state and traveling out of state," she said. "That's getting a little tougher to do."

Hughes was first elected GOP chairwoman in 2013 and re-elected in 2015 and 2017. She said the party has made a lot of gains during her tenure, including the election of Charlie Baker as governor in 2014 and his re-election last month.

During the 2006 and 2010 election cycles, Hughes worked with the state party; she served as the state GOP's field director in 2010. In 2008, Hughes was a field staffer for John McCain's presidential campaign before working for then Sen. Scott Brown's re-election campaign in 2012.

KIRSTEN HUGHES

Hughes was first elected to her City Council seat in 2011, and has been re-elected every two years since. Hughes said she has not decided whether or not she will seek a fifth term on the council next November.

"I haven't decided yet," she said. "One seat at a time."

Hughes said she would make a decision about running for re-election to the Ward 5 seat next year when her colleagues also start to think about their re-election bids.

Hughes has been linked to the open Norfolk County sheriff seat. Michael Bellotti, the longtime sheriff, left that post earlier this fall after being named acting president of Quincy College, and Braintree attorney Robert Harnais has served as acting sheriff since.

Baker, as governor, could appoint someone to the $150,000-a-year position. That person would be eligible to serve as sheriff until after a 2020 special election, the winner of which would serve out the final two years of Bellotti's six-year term.

Hughes said she would be interested in serving as sheriff, if the governor were to consider her for the job.

"I'm always interested in serving the community if that's what the governor felt was a good fit," she said.

Brendan Moss, Baker's press secretary, would not say if Hughes was under consideration for the post.

"The administration is in the process of carefully reviewing potential appointments," Moss said in a statement.

ZBA OKs Approves Robertson Street Condos

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved a developer's plan to build nine condominium units on Robertson Street in West Quincy

The ZBA on Nov. 27 granted a variance to Malcolm Barber of Quincy, allowing him to build the nine-unit building at 178 Robertson St. The project also requires approval from the Planning Board.

The site at 178 Robertson St. is currently vacant and is located in an industrial zoning area.

Christopher Carroll, Barber's attorney, said his client had originally sought to build 11 units on site but scaled it down to nine following meetings with city planning officials. Eighteen parking spaces – two per unit – will be provided in a first-floor garage, with an additional two guest spaces located outside the building.

Barber said each unit would have two bedrooms and two bathrooms, plus an office; the units originally had a third bedroom, but that was removed following meetings with planning officials. The units will range in size from 1,500 to 1,700 square feet.

Barber said he intends to sell the units as condominiums, but they could be rented out as apartments instead if the market changes.

The project site is located adjacent to a parking lot on Robertson Terrace, which is owned by the Home Depot on Willard Street. Carroll said there is an agreement in place with Home Depot to use that lot as a staging area during construction if the project moves forward.

Patricia Carolan, who owns a condo in the commercial building next door at 111 Willard St., said the proposal would be an improvement. She was concerned, however, about people parking in the lot at 111 Willard St., which she said was already tight enough.

"I love the building – don't get me wrong. What was there was a dilapidated eyesore with rats. The concern is the parking. Otherwise, we're happy," Carolan said.

Board members approved the variance in a unanimous vote.

"It's a nice building," said Martin Aikens, the board's chairman. "It really is."

"I understand the traffic concerns," added Charles O'Brien, "but a residence is different than a business with people coming and going."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, Nov. 24, at approximately 2:20 p.m., officers were dispatched to the area of 780 Washington St. (Twin Rivers) on a well-being check. Officers Robert Connell, John Goggin, Mike Dougan, Ryan Donnelly and Dan Parisi also responded to the call.

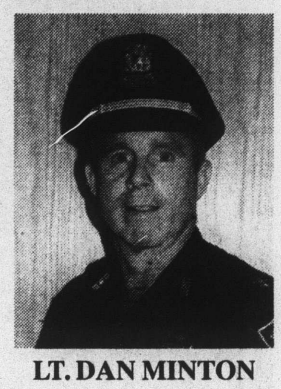
The caller, from Illinois and calling from there, reported that her 30-year-old daughter just had a fight with her boyfriend near Twin Rivers, and was now walking barefoot away from her boyfriend's white Peterbilt tractor trailer truck. The caller/mother provided a description of her daughter which was given out to responding units.

Moments later, Officer Connell arrived on scene and located the truck parked under the Fore River Bridge. The truck was idling on the side of the road without anyone visible in the cab of the truck.

Officer Goggin arrived on scene as Officer Connell climbed up to the passenger side window and knocked on the glass. A male poked his head from the sleep/cabin portion of the truck, and then hesitated before coming fully into the cab. This aroused concern for the officers' safety. He then rolled down the passenger side window and was asked to step out of the vehicle.

As the male/driver climbed out, Officer Connell immediately noticed a knife strapped to his ankle which was partially concealed inside his boot. The officer, for his safety, removed the knife and checked the driver for more weapons, but did not uncover any. After confirming the identity of the driver, he was asked where the female was and he responded that he just woke up and did not know. He offered that he just picked up a load of Tallow at Twin Rivers and that he and the female had an argument because she wanted to go home.

He said he couldn't leave right away because he needed to take a mandatory sleep break before driving again. The driver said he offered to buy the female a bus ticket, but she refused and walked away, last seen walking across the traffic circle at the end of the Fore River Bridge. The driver said he called the female's mother to try to get her back into the truck but was unsuccessful. He said that he went to sleep.



LT. DAN MINTON

Despite several officers searching the area, the female was not found which put into question the amount of time that actually lapsed. Officer Connell noticed the cabin of the truck appeared to be rocking so he climbed into the truck to be sure that the female was not being held against her will. As the officer entered the cabin, he noticed a torch lighter and a pipe, which he recognized through my training and experience to be items frequently used to consume illegal drugs. Next to those items was a black box which contained a corner plastic bag with a crystalline substance inside, two hypodermic syringes, a broken pipe and a hide-a-key box.

With a gloved-hand, the officer recovered the items and placed them into a brown evidence bag. Officer Connell secured the items inside his cruiser and then placed the driver under arrest for the drugs. The driver claimed the drugs were the female's. The officer then requested Communications notify the State Police Truck Team to conduct an investigation of the entire truck.

Trooper Lauria responded to the scene and put trailer out of service and placed a 24-hour suspension of the driver's commercial driver's license. Officer Dabilis also responded with his K-9 partner Karl and after a search of the truck cabin, he located two syringes with brown residue. Officer Dabilis also located particles of what appeared to be loose crystal meth throughout the cabin of the vehicle. He also found a plastic corner bag with residue and another glassine bag with similar residue inside.

With a gloved hand, Officer Connell seized these drugs as evidence. As the officers were clearing the scene after the truck was towed, the female's mother called Communications and advised them her daughter was at Father Bill's shelter. Officer Connell responded to Father Bill's and interviewed the female, who said that the driver approached her Thursday night (Nov. 22) and told her he was getting out of town on a delivery and asked her if she wanted to go. She said that they left Herrin, IL the same night and there were no problems until she became homesick and wanted to go home. Instead of having an argument, she said she simply walked away from the truck and ended up at a gas station, where an employee directed her to Father Bill's.

When asked, she said that she did not have any knowledge of the drugs in the vehicle or that he used drugs. She said they were just friends and were not in a dating relationship.

The driver, a 25-year-old Charleston, Missouri resident, was charged with possession of a controlled substance, class B and with his truck towed and his drugs seized, at least for now, he was not a threat on the road. In the long term, he may lose his CDL right to drive. Nice Work!

Lucien F. Theberge 'Was A Mountain'

come lost and dealing with the tragic loss of a young man who seemed destined for great things for the greater good.

"What do you do when you are on a trail and you get lost? What do you do when your leader gets sick? Or has fallen? What do you do in the midst of your journey to the heights?

"I imagine that you would have to regroup. You have to regroup and comfort each other. You have to have each other's back and be there for one another.

"How are we going to go forward of this difficult circumstance that we face this hour? Who needs to be carried, who needs to be supported, who needs to be nourished? Do they need to rest in order for us to finish off our journey?

"In many ways," Fr. Williams said, "life is like a mountain. And here we are in this hour and we are regrouping because one of our leaders has fallen. Scouts do what scouts do best. They are coming together to support one another, to regroup."

Fr. Williams then asked, "Isn't this really what church is? We're on a journey. Life is hard. Jesus never said life will be fair, life will be easy, life will be comfortable. He never said that. What he did say was 'I will be with you.' He was with Luc at the moment of the accident. He was with Ray at the moment the phone call came. He is with us here now. He did not promise that life would be fair. He promised 'I will be with you. Always."

Fr. Williams then asked, "how are we supposed to deal with this tragedy?" He answered: "We don't want to put God on trial. That would be a tragedy. We don't put God on trial. Why did you do this? No! No! God loves us. He gave us life," gesturing to the large crucifix suspended from the sanctuary ceiling. "Luc was created to live forever. Every one of us was born into the world to live forever.

"There was a time Luc didn't exist," Fr. Williams continued. "Then there was a time – the fruit of Ray and (late mother) Michelle that this unique, unrepeatable, masterpiece gift came into the world and the world hasn't been the same since.

"God created Luc to have life, to have abundance, to have life forever. God created Luc to be part of this beautiful family, to be part of your lives. God is love. God is love itself. Let's not put him on trial.

"God is for us, not against us. The Lord carries us through the gift of each other. We walk and support each other. We carry each other."

In his remembrance, Raymond Cheung recalled meeting Luc when he was just seven or eight years old and being impressed by the young boy.

"Even back then, you could tell: this kid is something else. This kid was special. His smile lit up every room he went into. He couldn't wait to get his own uniform first, in Cub Scouts then Boy Scouts in Troop 42.

LUC THEBERGE (left) with fellow scout Billy Barber at the Mayor's Boy Scout Breakfast at Granite Link Golf Club in 2016. Close friend and fellow Eagle Scout Raymond Cheung said of Luc at his funeral Mass last Saturday: "We know he was the clear leader in any group he was a part of: school, scouts, robotics. We know others would look up at the mountains and say 'I'm not sure I can do that' and he'd say 'watch me. I'll meet you up there.'" Photo Courtesy Lisa Aimola

Raymond said Luc was determined to succeed.

"He had a plan. He was going to be an Eagle Scout. Good luck stopping him."

Raymond reminded the mourners that Luc lost his mom Michelle nearly six years ago.

"I remember vividly being in this church. We talked about how Ray and Michelle were the quintessential team. And in so many ways Luc was the anchor, the captain.

"We know he was the clear leader in any group he was a part of: school, scouts, robotics. We know others would look up at the mountains and say 'I'm not sure I can do that" and he'd say 'watch me. I'll meet you up there.'

"Luc was wiser beyond his years. He was on his way to doing what he loved most: going on an adventure with his friends. He was our role model, our inspiration, our light in darkness, our big brother."

Raymond summed up his touching tribute to his friend this way:

"While there are some things you can't control or can't explain, can't prepare or can't understand, we can choose to live life like Lucien Theberge did. Choose to live with the recognition of every day is a blessing. Remember to always help another person at all times.

"Luc just loved to live. So let's live for him."

School Tech Program Prepares Students For 21st Century Careers

Fiasconaro explained he learned to create suspense and match actors' moves in a scene between camera shots.

Fiasconaro won a video award for a documentary he co-produced for the state National History Day competition, showcasing post-WWII student protests in Japan. He also produced a cooking show, live studio shows, and drama and comedy videos.

"Whether I have a small part in another student's film such as a cameraman, or directing my entire own production, I'm learning new things everyday about the aspects of film making," he told the committee, after showing clips of some of his productions.

Through the career and technical program, Fiasconaro earned his CareerSafe certification. This program, offered by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), provides training for students to recognize potential safety and health hazards in 16 national trades as students prepare for college or a career.

"These and other competencies will help me professionally and will put me ahead of other film students as I continue my education in college," he said. "As I continue my study of film production, I will use the skills I obtained at North Quincy High School to express myself creatively."

He is a member of North Quincy High's debate team, film club and drama club. Among his community work, Fiasconaro volunteered at the Quincy Asian Resources and participated in the Cleaner Greener campaign.

Li is a student in Quincy High's metal fabrication and joining technology program. She learned such skills as tungsten arc welding, shaping metal, plasma cutting, as well as shop safety and using personal protective gear.

Li explained that she learned her second language of English while a student at Merrymount Elementary School. She then attended Central Middle and is now a senior at Quincy High.

"Quincy Public Schools is the place where I have grown," she said during her presentation to the committee. "Quincy High School is where I grew into the person that I am and where I learned my passion for creating and being part of a team."

Li said she initially wanted to be an entrepreneur and a markup artist. The "phenomenal technical majors" offered at Quincy High during the freshman seminar impressed her. But, not wanting to be the "only girl in the class" she decided to take the culinary arts and accounting courses.

Her two female friends were in the welding class. She asked them if it was hard.

"I asked them because they are girls," Li said.

After observing them at work, Li chose to switch majors.

"They made it look so easy," she said. "I was really inspired. At that moment, I knew I had to try metal fabrication and joining technologies."

Her first lesson was cutting metal with a torch

"I thought it was the coolest thing in the world," said Li. "The sparks were like fireworks."

She soon learned that the class wasn't just about joining pieces of metal together, it was about creating things.

"There's an art to it," Li said.

Relating what her teacher told her, Li said that welding "isn't a trade, it's a skill."

She presented a metal rose that she created – a steel rod with metal petals. The petals were hammered into shapes then individually welded to the rod to create a flower.

Li showcased her protective gear including a helmet, safety glasses and gloves and showed the welding tools and techniques used.

Li has earned several certifications including those from the American Welding Society, OSHA, and in arc welding and cutting. She is a member of the school's SADD chapter and student council.

After high school, Li said she "has big plans." She will be applying to several colleges and her career goal is to be a project or construction manager.

"I want to be part of a project that I can say I helped build that," she said.

Li said credited the career and technical program for shaping her future.

"Quincy High has shown me a variety of careers," she said. "I wouldn't be the person I am today without my passion or without the Quincy High career and technical education."

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo said that Fiasconaro and Li are "incredible examples" of the CVTE program.

"Quincy is the best model of the CVTE program," she said.

According to Segalla, the program relies on its community partnerships – several local businesses and trade unions that offer students on-the-job work experience. Additionally, students can earn various local, state and federal certifications through the program.

Segalla noted that last year, Mayor Thomas Koch entered into a partnership with Cork County in Ireland as part of an economic and education exchange program. As a result, Quincy High 2018 graduate Cassidy Griffin, who was a culinary arts student, received a full two-year scholarship to study at the Cork Institute of Technology.

Quincy High CVTE Department Chair Rebecca McInnis and North Quincy High CVTE Chair Maryanne Collins outlined various academic and professional development goals that will enhance the program. The improvement plan was accepted by the committee.

Blue Christmas Breakfast At United Methodist Dec. 22

The Christmas season is often experienced as an emotionally difficult time. As the days shorten and become darker, feelings of sorrow and loneliness often overwhelm us. In a season of festivity, it may be quite difficult to share with others these feelings of darkness and sadness. While others are decorating, celebrating and going to parties, those who are struggling may feel vulnerable and lost.

Those who are grieving may be unsure as to how best to follow family traditions without the presence of their loved one. The absence of a family member, a relationship, or a friendship may be very painful. Financial insecurity due to unemployment or underemployment creates difficulty in decision-making regarding food, shelter and the giving of gifts.

Families may be separated due to military deployment or work obligations. This particular absence of a loved one carries with it the feelings of worry. The military family, in particular, will be concerned for the safety of their service member. The enjoyment of the season for many people cannot be easily found. You are not alone.

This year Quincy Community United Methodist Church will offer a Blue Christmas Breakfast, to be held downstairs in our fellowship hall. A special worship service will be incorporated as we share together the first meal following the Longest Night.

When a loved one passes, especially one with whom we have shared our meals, the first meal alone without their presence can be a very difficult time. Breakfast offered on Dec. 22nd at 9:30 a.m. will be an opportunity to share together that first meal following the longest night. Breakfast will also include a special worship service.

Come and worship Blue Christmas in a new way.

The church is located at 40 Beale St., next to CVS and across the street from the Wollaston Branch of the Thomas Crane Library. The building is handicap accessible at the front of the building on Beale Street, near the flagpole.

A paved pathway from the sidewalk leads directly to the building entrance. Easy access to the hall in which the breakfast will be held is through the back entrance from the church parking lot.

For those who are able, a free will offering will be appreciated. For more information, call the office at 617-773-3319.

$2.18 Million Set Aside For CPA Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday night unanimously approved setting aside more than $2.18 million in funding for Community Preservation Act projects.

Of that total, $108,950 was set aside for the CPA administrative account, $217,900 for affordable housing projects, $217,900 for historic preservation, $217,900 for open space, $708,294 for the budgetary reserve and $710,056 for debt service.

The Community Preservation Committee will determine which projects to allocate those funds to over the next several months. Council approval would then be required for each project.

The CPA fund is financed through a 1 percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempt from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing. The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community that has adopted the act.

LGBTQ Commission Approved

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday passed legislation establishing a new Quincy LGBTQ Commission, and Mayor Thomas Koch is expected to sign the measure into law.

Councillors unanimously approved the ordinance to establish the new commission at Monday's meeting. Councillor Nina Liang, who introduced the ordinance creating the commission last month, said the issue was near and dear to her and thanked her colleagues for their support.

"I'm really grateful for my colleagues in supporting this effort," she said following the council's vote to approve the commission. "I know this is something that we've all really tried to be supportive of over the years,"

The commission would include 11 members – including one member each from the council, the School Committee and the Quincy Police Department. The ordinance calls for the members of the commission to be LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual. transgender and queer) residents of the city, whenever possible, and states the commission should include at least one member from each of the city's six wards if possible.

The mayor would be responsible for appointing members of the commission, who would serve two-year terms. The commission members would elect a chairperson every two years; municipal representatives on the commission could not serve as its chairperson.

Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said the mayor was inclined to sign the legislation and appoint members to the new commission.

"He is inclined to sign it. He appreciates the council's work on it," Walker said following the council meeting. "He does have some reservations."

When asked to elaborate on those reservations, Walker said, "It feels that there is an implication that there is an issue that needs to be addressed that he does not believe exists. Our school departments do a great job, our police department does a terrific job [and] our city government does a terrific job of ensuring a diverse and open community. We're very happy about that.

"That being said, he is inclined to work with the council and inclined to appoint the commission."

Walker said he did not want to estimate how long it would take to fill out the new commission, but said it is something that could not be done overnight.

The duties of the commission would include regular public meetings, publication of an online newsletter or website to communicate with city residents, programing and events of interest to the LGBTQ community, working with the city's businesses and organizations to ensure a welcoming and inclusive environment, and providing a venue for LGBTQ residents to share ideas and provide on the commission's work and the work of the city.

During an ordinance committee hearing on the proposed commission earlier Monday evening, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who worked with Liang to craft the ordinance, had proposed amending it so the mayor and council would both have a hand in appointing members of the new commission.

"I think it's important that the commission be a commission of the city, not just necessarily of the mayor," Palmucci said. "I think when we tie it to any specific individual who happens to sit in the position, then their personal viewpoints and political viewpoints may interplay with the commission. I think it would be better if it was a little bit more removed."

Palmucci withdrew that amendment after Janet Petkun, an assistant city solicitor, said the mayor is responsible for appointing members of various city commissions under Quincy's charter.

"The charter does provide that it's the mayor does appoint to commissions," Petkun said. "It is something that has to be under the mayor's auspices. It is an advisory commission to the mayor."

Two of Palmucci's related amendments were incorporated into the final ordinance, however. The first changed the name of the body from the Mayor's LGBTQ Commission to the Quincy LGBTQ Commission, and the second called on the chairperson to share the commission's progress with both the mayoral administration and City Council, instead of just the administration.

Boston Cannons To Play Home Games At Vets' Memorial Stadium

Lacrosse Team, City Announce New Parternship

The Boston Cannons of Major League Lacrosse (MLL) and the City of Quincy announced a new partnership Tuesday that will bring Cannons home games to Veterans' Memorial Stadium beginning in the 2019 season.

As part of the agreement, the Cannons will make a significant investment to enhance the historic stadium, which is home to both Quincy and North Quincy High School athletics. The Cannons will play their first of eight home games at the stadium on June 1 vs. the Ohio Machine.

The Cannons have roots in Quincy and the South Shore. In 2013, Rob Hale, the president and CEO of Quincy-based Granite Telecommunications, purchased a majority ownership of the club after being a part of the ownership group since 2008. In 2016, the Cannons moved their executive offices to Quincy.

"The Boston Cannons organization is both excited and proud to call Quincy's Veterans' Memorial Stadium our new home," said Ian Frenette, president of the Boston Cannons. "With the expanding Major League Lacrosse schedule, it was an opportunity for us to assess the best possible home for our organization and we're thrilled to partner with the City of Quincy. Along with game days, moving to the stadium provides our organization a greater opportunity to grow the game of lacrosse throughout Greater Boston with increased youth clinics, camps, tournaments and presence."

Prior to the Cannons playing their first home game at Veterans' Memorial Stadium in June, the organization will invest in significant improvements in the stadium that will benefit all users of the venue from the youth to high school levels.

"The Boston Cannons will offer the city of Quincy a professional sports venue as well as contribute funds for improvements to Veterans' Memorial Stadium that will benefit our young athletes and spectators. Families and friends can share Saturday summer nights in the city enjoying this dynamic team," Mayor Thomas Koch said.

"Veterans' Memorial Stadium provides great convenience to our fans, located just eight miles from Boston and easily accessible by Interstate-93 and the MBTA Red Line. We think that lacrosse fans across Massachusetts are going to enjoy experiencing our games at the stadium," Frenette said. "Quincy has seen tremendous growth as a city under Mayor Koch's leadership and we're excited to be a part of that momentum while providing our fans with an amazing venue to watch the Cannons play."

Veterans Memorial Stadium can seat more than 5,000 and is used by Quincy High School and North Quincy High School football, as well as youth, club and high school soccer and lacrosse and other community organizations. The Cannons most recently called Harvard Stadium their home.

The Cannons will begin the 2019 season as part of Major League Lacrosse's new post-Memorial Day schedule with an expanded 16-game season (eight home, eight away), increased by two games from previous seasons.

Season tickets go on sale on Tuesday, Dec. 11 at 10 a.m.

Quincy College Granite Men's Hoop Wins Two Games

The Quincy College Granite men's basketball team picked up two key victories last week with a non-conference win over the Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) junior varsity team Nov. 28th and an impressive National Junior College Athletic Associate (NJCAA) conference win over Massachusetts Bay Community College Dec. 1.

Against ENC, Quincy College Granite was led by Walter Dew-Hollis of Dorchester with 25 points and freshman Darrius Hyppolite of Bridgewater with 20 points each. Quincy College Granite men's basketball coach Doug Scott saw his young team start to play better as a group and is starting to see the results he's been looking for. Also playing well for the Granite was captain Jonathan DeVeiga of Boston, Cameron Mason of Weymouth, Trahe Qualls of Dorchester and Bryan Desire of Boston. Quincy College Granite won 94-89 versus Eastern Nazarene College junior varsity team.

Quincy College Granite faced Massachusetts Bay Community College in an NJCAA conference matchup with Quincy College Granite coming out on top, 98-90. Granite was led by Bridgewater's Darrius Hyppolite with his best game of the season scoring 29 points, 12 rebounds, and 5 assists. Also shining for Quincy Granite was Bryan Desire with 23 points and 10 rebounds.

Coach Scott applauded the play of Weymouth's Cam Mason who has emerged as a starter with great hustle and solid defense. Abu Kaba of Brockton and Trahe Qualls continue to play strong defense for the Granite. This will surely be needed as Quincy College Granite face four challenging NJCAA Region 21 opponents away in the coming week, playing Bristol Community College, Roxbury College, Bunker Hill Community College and cross-town rival Massasoit Community College.

Quincy College Granite men's basketball returns home court at Lahue Gym at Eastern Nazarene College on Dec. 15th, the start of three home game stretch facing Holyoke Community College, Gateway Community College, and Springfield Technical Institute before the first half of the season concludes.

Quincy College Granite home games are free and open to the public. View the full schedule of Quincy College Granite games including home games played at Eastern Nazarene College's Lahue Gym: quincycollege.edu/granite.

Tree Lighting Saturday At Fore River Rotary

A tree lighting ceremony will be held Saturday, Dec. 8 at 5 p.m. at the Fore River Rotary.

The public is invited to attend. Utilize the Dee Road side of the rotary for viewing.

BID Hospital-Milton Receives National Award For Physician Engagement

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital- Milton (BID-Milton) was honored recently at a national patient experience conference for the close, collaborative relationship the hospital has with physicians on its medical staff.

BID-Milton was presented with the Pinnacle of Excellence Award for Physician Engagement at the Press Ganey National Client and Executive Leadership Conference in Orlando, FL. BID-Milton was one of only three hospitals in the nation to receive the prestigious award.

The hospital was honored for achievement in its overall physician engagement score based on Press Ganey physician engagement and safety surveys conducted with the medical staff in 2016 and 2017. Physician engagement is a broad measure of physician satisfaction and helps measure how well the medical staff and hospital work together and share a common mission and goals.

Questions on the physician survey that are used to determine engagement include: "I am proud to tell people I work for the organization," "I would recommend the organization to family and friends who need care," and "I would recommend this organization as a great place to work."

BID-Milton's overall physician engagement score improved from 2016 to 2017. The hospital also scored in the top seven percent nationally in physician overall alignment out of 1,200 healthcare organizations and 63,000 physicians surveyed.

"This is a huge accomplishment and the result of a lot of hard work and sustained commitment on the part of many individuals," said Ashley Yeats, MD, chief medical officer and vice president of clinical integration and healthcare quality for BID-Milton. "Physician engagement is an important contributor to quality of patient care. We are fortunate to have a medical staff that is committed to working with the hospital's staff to provide the best care possible. The close working relationships the hospital's employees have with the physicians and having the doctors feel like equal partners and invested in the hospital's future is vital to BID-Milton's continued success."

The award was presented last month to Dr. Yeats and BID-Milton at the Press Ganey Conference in Orlando, where healthcare professionals from across the country gathered to learn about best practices to advance safety, quality, high reliability and engagement in a patient-centered culture. BID-Milton staff attending the conference included Vanessa Martin, RN, Emergency Department; Emily Smith, RN, 2East; Amy Morrison, project manager; and Cheryl Freed-Loew, director of learning and development.

Press Ganey is the country's leading healthcare patient experience survey vendor, providing services to over 26,000 healthcare organizations nationally. BID-Milton uses Press Ganey for patient experience surveying of discharged inpatients, as well as Emergency Department, ambulatory care and Center for Specialty Care patients.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Careful, Lamb. Don't let your generous nature lead to some serious overspending as you contemplate your holiday gift-giving. Your social life kicks off into high gear by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A positive attitude helps you weather annoying but unavoidable changes in holiday plans. Aspects favor new friendships and reinforcement of existing relationships.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Demands on your energy level could be much higher than usual as you prepare for the upcoming holidays. Be sure to pace yourself. Friends and family will be happy to help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't allow a suddenly icy reaction from a friend or family member to continue without learning what caused it -- and what can be done to restore that once warm and caring relationship.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A relationship seems to be unraveling, mostly from a lack of attention. It might be a good idea to ease up on whatever else you're doing so you can spend more time working to mend it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) New facts emerge that not only help explain the recent rift with a trusted colleague, but also might provide a chance to wipe the slate clean and make a fresh start in your friendship.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's personal situation is, fortunately, resolved in time for you to get back into your hectic round of holiday preparations. An old friend might bring a new friend into your life.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Pace yourself in meeting holiday pressures and workplace demands to avoid winding up with a frayed temper and a Scorpian stinger that lashes out at puzzled kith, kin and colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A financial matter requires close attention. Also, news from a trusted source provides the means to help sort out a long-standing state of confusion and put it into perspective.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce family ties. Make it a priority to assess and resolve all outstanding problems. Start the upcoming holiday season with a full measure of love.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't be pressured into a so-called solid-gold investment. Wait until the holiday distractions are over. Then take a harder look at it. You might find that the "gold" is starting to flake off.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A former friend might be trying to heal the breach between you by using a mutual friend as an intermediary. Best advice: Keep an open mind despite any lingering bad feelings.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of saying the right thing at the right time. Your friendships are deep and lasting.

HOLLYWOOD -- After Matt Damon's last two films did poorly -- "Downsizing" ($76 million cost/$55 million gross) and "Suburbicon" ($25 million/$12 million) -- he had a small role in Steven Soderbergh's psychological horror film "Unsane," and then literally lit a fire under his career. For his latest film, "Ford v. Ferrari," with Christian Bale, he plays auto designer and race driver Carroll Shelby, associated with Ford's AC Cobra and Mustang, and allowed them to set his back on fire during the re-creation of a racing accident, filmed at a private Los Angeles airport. After that, we owe it to him to support this one. It arrives June 28.

Oh, the problems of the idle rich and famous. Allegedly, Katie Holmes has been confiding to friends that she's troubled about her 12-year-old daughter, Suri, whom she's parenting with Tom Cruise. Katie worries that she is becoming more like her father every day because Suri is adamant about following her own path, is very bossy and likes to prove her point with over-the-top gestures. Katie ended her marriage with Tom because she didn't want to raise Suri in Scientology, but despite Suri being close to Katie, Tom seems to have had a bigger influence on her, and that includes Scientology.

Meryl Streep, soon to be "Topsy" in "Mary Poppins Returns" (opening Dec. 19), is currently shooting "Little Women," as Aunt March, with Saoirse Ronan, Timothee Chalamet, Emma Watson, Laura Dern and Bob Odenkirk. Then she'll go right into Netflix's "The Laundromat," with Gary Oldman, Antonio Banderas, Alex Pettyfer, David Schwimmer and Will Forte. Streep was in a relationship with John Cazale, who played Fredo Corleone in "The Godfather" (1972), from 1976-1978, when he died of lung cancer. She then wed sculptor Don Gummer, and they have four children. Their daughter Mamie Gummer, now 35, is successfully following in her legendary mother's footsteps as an actress.

Her first film was the 1986 supernatural thriller "Separation," with Meryl, when she was 3 years old. Mamie also appeared with her dynamic mother in "Ricki & The Flash" (2015) and in the current release of "An Actor Prepares," with Jeremy Irons and Jack Huston. She's also appeared in "Evening" (2007), "Side Effects" (2013) and "Cake" (2014), as well as in a recurring role on the TV series "The Good Wife," "Robot Chicken" and HBO's "True Detective."

Sandra Bullock, who won an Oscar for "The Blind Side" (2009), experiences the post-apocalyptic horrors we all fear in Netflix's "The Bird Box," with Sarah Paulson, Tom Hollander and John Malkovich, due Dec. 21. Bullock opened her heart and donated $100,000 to help save animals that were affected by the recent California fires. You might say it was post-apocalyptic fire money.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Footrest Chair --- Footstools, also called footrests, are not a new idea, but there are many different types, shapes and sizes. The most popular style today is the small, short, four-legged rectangular stool, often padded and upholstered, which is placed in front of a chair. The footstool raises the legs of the person in the chair to help blood circulation and add comfort. A child might want to use a footstool because his or her feet do not hit the floor.

Early footstools also were used in ancient Egypt as a ladder to reach chairs on high platforms. Each century had a new shape for the footstool. During the 18th century, there were long and low footstools to put in front of the fireplace to be used by the family. Small round footstools upholstered with fabric or needlepoint to match the sofa were popular with short women in Victorian times. There also were many chairs that came with footstools that looked like extensions of the seat, or even some that could be pulled from under the seat where it was stored.

Modern designers liked seats made long enough to form a lounge chair with space for raised feet. And by the 1980s, there were long seating pieces that had hidden pullout pieces as footrests.

Vladimir Kagan (1927-2016), a talented designer, made a famous chair in the 1950s that had a sloping back, arms and a retractable footrest that was partially hidden. One of Kagan's walnut adjustable lounge chairs, 39 by 27 by 40 inches with a retractable footrest, was sold by Rago auctions for $6,875. It was manufactured by Kagan-Dreyfuss.

Q: I used to save beer coasters from bars. They've been in a box for years. Most are made of cardboard or thick paperboard. Are they worth anything?

A: Cardboard beer coasters were first made in Germany, a country known for its beer, in the 1880s. Beer coasters also are called beer mats, and the collecting hobby is called "tegestology," from the Latin word for mat. Collectors specialize in coasters advertising brands or picturing interesting subjects. There is a website, beercoast.com, where members keep an inventory of their collections and trade with other collectors. Most beer coasters sell online for 50 cents to less than $5. A few sell for more.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Kurt Vonnegut, one of the most influential writers of the 20th century, who made the following sage observation: "There is no reason why good cannot triumph as often as evil. The triumph of anything is a matter of organization. If there are such things as angels, I hope they are organized along the lines of the Mafia."

* If you received all of the gifts in the song "The Twelve Days of Christmas," you'd have 364 presents.

* The period between Thanksgiving and Christmas is an apt time to consider the word "crapulous," which means "sick from excessive eating or drinking."

* Ireland's Porterhouse Brewing Company has what might seem to be an unlikely hit on its hands: the Oyster Stout. During the brewing process, raw oysters are shucked directly into the conditioning tank. This unlikely combination is popular, though, selling out quickly whenever it's available.

* Those who study such things say that while shaving, a person removes about as much skin as hair.

* As the holidays approach and you're out shopping for gifts, you might want to keep this in mind: According to survey results, siblings are the worst holiday gift-givers, getting the lowest marks from 21 percent of respondents. However, they weren't far behind in-laws, who were rated the worst by 20 percent.

* Unless you're from Central Florida, you've probably never heard of the small town of Ocoee. So you might be surprised to learn that during World War II, Ocoee earned the distinction of sending more men, per capita, to serve in the military than any other town in the United States.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Dorson

* If you are serving hot rolls on a buffet, line the basket with aluminum foil before you line it with a towel. The foil will help reflect heat, keeping the rolls warmer longer.

* Metal skewers are great for a barbecue, but the tip also can be used to create fancy designs on an iced cake, just like a pencil.

* "If you get stuck in the snow, try using your car mats to get a little traction. Keep some kitty litter or sand in the trunk too just in case you run into trouble." -- D.C. in Michigan

* "Running the heater is expensive, especially when there's only one person in a house. I find that I can get by with a much cooler overall temperature by using my space heater for about 15 minutes in the bathroom and lounging on the couch and in bed with my electric blanket. Those two things cut down on the need to have the house toasty warm, and truly keep my heating bill in check." -- B.J. in Pennsylvania

* A pot of mulling spices on the stovetop will both fill your house with a lovely holiday smell and add a respectable amount of humidity. Simply keep a watch on the kettle or pot, and add water as necessary.

* "Here's a clothing tip on a very cold day: Today's running tights are fantastic under pants as a liner. They are warm, wicking and cut a flattering silhouette as well. Much better than old-fashioned thermals." -- M.E. in Montana

'We Will Never Forget' Pearl Harbor

By SCOTT JACKSON

A dozen Quincy residents, many of them veterans, gathered at Mount Wollaston Cemetery Dec. 7 for a brief, solemn ceremony commemorating the 77th anniversary of the Attack on Pearl Harbor.

The ceremony was held at the World War II Monument inside the cemetery, which honors the 255 Quincy servicemen killed during the war.

George Nicholson, Quincy's director of veterans' services, said Pearl Harbor has become synonymous with the word "infamy" following President Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech to Congress the next day.

"The Pearl Harbor attack was labeled by President Roosevelt as being a day of infamy, and, when you stop to think about it, in spite of all the horrendous acts that having taken place around the world since Pearl Harbor, none of them has had the label 'infamy' attached to them," Nicholson said at the opening of the ceremony.

"The word 'infamy' has become synonymous and identified almost solely with Pearl Harbor, and that's as it should be. Here in the city of Quincy we don't forget, we will never forget, and the city allows us to do this because we are who we are."

Mayor Thomas Koch said men and women throughout the United States came to-

Wollaston T Station Re-Opening On Track

New $33 Million Facility On Budget, Expected To Open Next August

By SCOTT JACKSON

The project to overhaul the MBTA station in Wollaston is on budget and the facility is expected to re-open next August as originally planned.

Other projects are also underway, or will soon be, at the city's other three Red Line stations.

The MBTA began its $33 million project to replace Wollaston station in January. A group of state and local officials – including Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito, then MBTA General Manager Luis Ramirez, Sen. John Keenan, Rep. Bruce Ayers and Mayor Thomas Koch – recently toured the facility to a get glimpse of the project up close.

Keenan, in an interview, said the project is on time and on budget.

"What we heard from the lieutenant governor and the general manager and the project team at the T is that the project is on schedule and it is on budget," he said. "The goal will be for an opening in August of 2019, which was the originally scheduled date."

Once complete, the station will have a new head house located on the parking lot side of the site at ground level, with a bridge over the inbound Red Line tracks providing access to the train platform from the new head house. The bridge includes elevators for handicapped access.

The station's platform was previously reached through a lobby under the station, which also serves a passthrough for pedestrians. The passthrough and lobby area will be maintained and renovated, with a new elevator for handicapped access from the lobby to the platform and a new ADA compliant ramp at the Newport Avenue entrance.

"When we walked through, we could really see how much they've gotten done," Keenan said. "The vestibule area – or the area where you cross from Newport Ave over to the Woodbine Ave side – you can see how that is going to look. They've got some structures in place on the Newport Ave side. You can see where the elevators are going to go up. You can see where the stairways are – one of the stairways is temporary but is in the place where the stairway will be. You can see where it will cross over the train tracks.

"Pretty substantial work has been done."

NOW AND FOREVER

While diamond remains the most popular choice of gemstone for engagement rings, couples are increasingly looking to customize their rings. One of the most exciting non-traditional looks is the "asymmetrical design," which eschews the usual horizontal lines and centered diamond placement in favor of more one-sided designs. Many brides with a preference for more understated styles are looking for diamond bands, especially those configured in a distinctive chevron shape. Another popular band design showcases a series of round or marquise diamonds aligned in a row instead of a classic center stone arrangement. In any case, oval diamonds are more popular than ever, with an elegant, elongated shape that offers an alternative to the classic round diamond.

Put stars in your loved one's eyes with a gift of diamonds from Rogers Jewelry. Let your choice of a beautiful diamond ring say how you feel. Our knowledgeable friendly sales staff at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center will be happy to help you choose from among many different styles in creative settings of imaginative design. And if shop till you drop isn't your idea of fun at this hectic time of year, we agree! We offer you a relaxing, fun, unharried time to choose special gifts for special people. PH: 617-773-3636.

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you – refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still so low, lower than fixed-rate equity loans, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Would a new 30-year loan be right for you? It's easy to find out. Apply online or call Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750. Colonial Federal, a bank with ideas.

AAA: Gasoline Prices Down Two Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down two cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's December 10 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.62 per gallon. The Massachusetts price is twenty cents higher than the national average for regular unleaded of $2.42. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 13 cents lower at $2.49.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 70 cents, from a low of $2.39 to a high of $3.09. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Protect Your Family From Scams

Guidelines From The Quincy Police Department

By Lt. DANIEL MINTON
Quincy Police Department

During this time of year when there are family get togethers, it is a great time to talk to elders about the wide array of scams out there now. The scams are escalating and according to the Federal Trade Commission:

• Scam losses were reported at $41 million in the last twelve months versus $26 million the prior year.

• 25 percent of people 70 and older report paying scammers in cash.

• People 70 and older who paid in cash report a median loss of $9,000. In comparison, people of all age groups report losing a median of $2,000 so far this year on scams.

• People who are retired and are scammed may not have the means to make up the loss, possibly resulting in financial devastation, embarrassment, stress and deteriorating health.

• Elders who are scammed often do not tell family because they feel that they will be viewed as incompetent, yet scammers victimize people of all ages.

So, here is a cheat sheet (if you will) that will help you to talk about the various scams:

INTERNAL REVENUE SCAM continues to grow. The caller claims to be from the IRS and states that you owe back taxes. He/she instructs you to go to a local store chain and purchase a debit card to make payment or face prosecution. A new twist: the number showing up on your caller ID shows it is from Washington. Remember, government agencies do not engage in debt collection over the telephone. It will be initiated by mail.

The threat is that you must forward money or the Police will come, or that you will be jailed if you don't wire money. Just hang up. They don't call people – they mail you letters with instructions

RECENT SCAM: Officer Bruce Tait reports that a 29-year-old female scammed out of $1,350. The victim said she received a telephone call from "Sergeant Alan Blake of the Department of Homeland Security." He said there were discrepancies on her I-94 Immigration form and he knew her name, DOB and Social Security number. He told her that she was being fined $2,500 for filing an incomplete form. He then instructed her to purchase Pay Pal cards and read the numbers over the phone.

When the victim told him she only had $1,400in the bank, he told her to buy two cards at $500 and one for $350. She did this and gave him the numbers on the card. The victim told a friend what occurred and she was advised to call the Police, but it was too late to stop her losses. Interestingly, the number on caller ID was a valid Homeland Security number, so the scammer knew how to fraudulently put this number on the caller's phone.

Always remember, federal and state agencies do not contact you by telephone to collect fines or monies owed to them. The first contact is by a letter, instructing you to call them to start proceedings. When in doubt, call your local Police Department.

DOCUMENTS: REQUEST FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION - TIME SENSITIVE MATERIAL ENCLOSED – 2ND ATTEMPT – WARNING - FINE FOR INTERFERING WITH DELIVERY OF THIS LETTER are all terms on an envelope that are intended to catch your attention so that you will open the letter. This is the first step into leading you into a scam. Once you look at the contents, it should be clear that there is no urgency (your factory warranty is expiring) or time-sensitive material enclosed.

You will see that there is very little factual information that the scammer has about you and whatever product that they are trying to get you to purchase warranty protection for. The "2nd attempt" implies urgency as does the "warning fine for interfering." Scammers use these ruses because they work and are profitable.

IMPORTANT VEHICLE NOTICE may come from a postcard, email or telephone solicitation. This is an offer to extend your auto warranty even if it has expired. This is a third-party warranty and has no association with your original warranty when/where you bought your car.

Historically, there have been problems with this type of offer. Even if it is a legitimate company, often times they do not pay for original parts and getting reimbursed is often difficult. In many cases, these companies are scammers, taking your money and then going out of business. The scammers try to scare you by listing the prices of major repairs, which most car owners do not encounter and secondly, may be covered by their manufacturer's warranty.

There are so many exceptions in the contract, making it difficult to collect on a repair. Many of these companies have horrific records with the Better Business Bureau and the chances of recouping your losses are bleak. This is not to be confused with the manufacturer's extended warranty, which may cost more than the third-party offer, but at least you know that the dealership is local and there is someone there to work with. If you are still considering a third party offer, as always, "Google" the company and put the word, "scam" after it – and then make your decision.

PET SCAM: A new online financial scam is aimed at animal lovers and it comes in different approaches. According to the Federal Trade Commission, online thieves are posting compassionate appeals on behalf of dogs and other pets that need loving homes. Many of the ads include very sad stories, often with photos, that would make any normal person want to save a neglected or abused animal.

The goal is to get a rational person to act on emotion.

Once a customer agrees to pay for the pet, which is usually a low entry price, there is often a series of payments that the customer will have to make. For example, there will be the initial cost of paying for the "required" shots and medical care prior to delivery. Once that payment is received, there will be additional charges for crating, shipping and inspection costs. Again, these usually are not high expenses, but once you get hooked in on the original payment, it adds up.

As you continue to pay for charges that actually make sense, at some point the reality sets in that there is no pet coming! There are so many fake emails ranging from requests for money to bogus investment opportunities and most of these are easy to detect. The difference in the case of animals in need is the emotional component and the scammers know this.

To avoid becoming a victim:

• Do not make money transfers – they cannot be refunded. If the scammer instructs you to send money via Western Union, MoneyGram or a similar service, your money could end up outside the U.S.. Remember, there are plenty of animals locally that could be helped by you.

• Investigate - Ask for the seller's name, address and phone number. Google is a great amateur investigator tool. Search the person's name to see if there is a history of scams or complaints. Simply add the word, "scam" after the name, address or phone number.

• Track the image - The FTC recommends right clicking on the photo of the pet and selecting "copy image location," "copy image address" or "properties." Copy the link into your browser. If the image shows up in an older listing, it's most likely a scam.

• Best action – Go to the local animal shelter, where an estimated 2.7 million pets in shelters go unadopted each year. If you really want to help a puppy or kitten in need, make an in-person visit to the shelter in your town.

Affordable Care Act

If you are shopping in the Health Insurance Marketplace, only shop at HealthCare.gov. People who try to sign you up elsewhere may be scammers. If you're overwhelmed, you can find free official helpers at HealthCare.gov. Official helpers will never ask for money or try to sell you a particular plan.

Another important tip: the government will not call to sell you health insurance. No one from the government will ask you to verify your Social Security number or bank information over the phone.

Private insurance

If you're looking for health insurance, make sure that's what you're buying. Be on the lookout for medical discount plans. They're not the same as health insurance, even though they sometimes pretend to be. Many of these plans are scams that don't deliver on the services promised. Others are just a way for identity thieves to get your personal information. Your state insurance commissioner's office can tell you if a plan isn't insurance and whether the seller is licensed in your state.

Report health care scams

If you think you may be a victim of a health care scam, report it to the FTC. If the scam is Medicare-related, report it at medicare.gov.

If you gave out personal information, then call your banks, credit card providers, health insurance company, and credit reporting agencies immediately. The FTC's website has more information on health care scams and medical identity theft.

NATIONAL GRID: residents are receiving calls from people claiming to be from National Grid. The caller says that he/she can reduce your bill and all they need is your account information. Think about it – they say they are from National Grid but they need your account number, which they would already have!

OIL BURNER SCAMS: Beware the call informing you that all homes must have their oil burner checked by a Woolworth's was later located on the left where Gambles Market and Matrix Shoes are shown. The large building, known as the Cliveden Building, was home to the Chamber of Commerce, the Community Fund and the Rotary Club. McGilvarys had a drug store on the street level with the awnings. Further down on the left can be seen signs for the State Theater and Salingers clothing store. On the right, in addition to Kane's, you can make out signs of the Quincy Loan Co., B&D Wallpaper and Robinson's Appliances. Signs protruding out over the sidewalk are not allowed in Quincy today.

State Inspector annually; claiming it's a new law. There is no such agency and there is no requirement for an inspection. This could lead to some unknown person coming out to your home and putting you at risk. They may want payment made in advance – another built in scam.

DRIVEWAY PAVING SCAMS: It's that time of year! A man knocks on your door and says he has extra asphalt and is willing to pave your driveway at a discounted price. His high pressure approach often confuses and intimidates residents.

You may not be getting a deal and could be scammed. If you agree to hire this man, here is what likely happens. Workers and equipment suddenly appear and begin "working" on your driveway. At some point, the conman claims a mistake was made and you owe thousands more than the original price. He threatens that if you refuse to pay, the "work" will cease. You may be escorted to the bank to withdraw money. When you realize the scam you try to cancel the check only to learn it was cashed within minutes of it being written.

A second scam is that the amount of asphalt applied comes up short and the scammer tells you that you need to pay for more asphalt to finish the job. There is also the scam of making a pavement in good faith and not receiving any work. Paving scams like this occur regularly in Massachusetts and increase during spring and summer. The perpetrators target senior citizens and are well known to police across the country. Criminal charges vary by state but are commonly filed.

Avoid victimization and consider the following suggestions:

- Beware of unsolicited offers to do paving work. Do not let the solicitors inside your home. Calmly but firmly tell the solicitors you are not interested and tell them to leave your property. If they refuse your instructions call the police.
- Educate yourself and your family. Search the internet for "paving scams."
- Ask to see proof of the solicitors' insurance. Conmen rarely have worker's compensation insurance and if one of them is injured at your home, the claim could be made against your homeowner's insurance.
- Call the police if you are even considering hiring such a company. Let us check them out. Call the police if they begin "working" without your consent for service. Be a good neighbor. Paving scams target senior citizens.

THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF HIGH SCHOOL SCHOLARS is not the same as "The National Honor Society." Many juniors in high school received an impressive packet with a card of "Membership Confirmation" and a congratulatory letter addressed to the student that they have been selected for this honor. The cost is $60.

Go to "Google" and type in "The National Society of High School Scholars scam" to see what others think before you send money.

DOWN UNDER SPORTS is a mail solicitation congratulating high school students for their accomplishments in a specific sport. The letter then states that you have been selected to represent the Eastern United States in a tournament in Australia. This is a questionable practice as seen online when you put the word "scam" after the company name. In reality, if your son or daughter gets this letter and is not playing at a top 20 college level, it should be clear that this is a scam.

DONATIONS: There are many causes out there and scammers will use two common techniques; the sympathy/ bonding approach to get you to give, or the high pressure/ bullying approach coercing you to give. Watch for these techniques and hang up on these scammers!

If you wish to give a donation, check out the non-profit organization (if it is indeed non-profit) online at sites such as "charitynavigator.org or charitywatch.org or have someone assist you.

BEST ACTIONS:

- Hang up on scammers or throw mail away.
- Ask lots of questions – they will hang up.
- If they call, ask for literature – they won't send it.
- Google the offer and/or the telephone number with the word "scam," "review" to see what others are reporting.

Survey: Merchants Cool To Sundays

Massachusetts may repeal its 300-year old "Blue Laws" that restrict business on Sundays but downtown Quincy merchants, as well as Mayor Francis X. McCauley, are far from enthusiastic about it.

"I don't want to see us turn into another California, going full blast seven days a week," said McCauley. "Sunday should be a day apart."

Almost all of the merchants contacted by The Quincy Sun in a mini-survey agreed whole-heartedly with the mayor.

"I am unhappy about the prospect," said Burt Cook, proprietor of Tags Discount Furniture and Sleep Shop. "It only means I have to work harder and I don't want to do that. I want to enjoy myself and Sunday is the only day I have left."

"Personally, I don't like the idea," said Bob Colman who owns Colman's Sporting Goods Stores in Quincy, Danvers, Canton and Woburn.

"It's too big a strain on manpower. I'd have to staff the place with inexperienced people on Sunday and service would not be as good," Colman continued. "It would not be fair to the customers."

MORRISSEY DENOUNCES FOREIGN SHIP SUBSIDIES

The Massachusetts House of Representatives at the urging of Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has asked the United States Congress to preserve operating subsidies for American-built ships and not to extend them to foreigners.

"The Unites States Senate," said Morrissey, "recently adopted a maritime bill that would be the first step toward displacing U.S. shipbuilding in favor of foreign-owned, foreign-manned, foreign-built fleets."

36 Quincy Girl Scouts Honored For Community Service Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council recently honored three dozen girl scouts from Quincy who have earned Gold, Silver and Bronze awards for their community service projects.

The 36 girl scouts received commendations from the City Council Nov. 26.

"Congratulations to all of you young ladies," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said. "Thank you for your commitment to the city, the dedication you've shown with all these projects and the leadership you've shown putting in the effort, the planning and the follow through.

"I get good ideas all the time and then I do nothing about them – they go right out of my head. You guys came up with good ideas and then you executed. That's the toughest part in life – following through and finishing a project, so kudos to you guys."

The girl scouts honored during the Nov. 26 meeting included Amy Trillcott of Troop 74120, who received the Gold Award.

Trillcott, a 2018 graduate of Quincy High School, organized seminars for fellow students at the school to help them gain an understanding of personal finance. Trillcott undertook her project after learning, through a survey, that many of her peers did not know about important financial matters such as budgeting, student loans and credit cards.

Eleven girl scouts received commendations after receiving the Silver Award for group or individual projects.

Brianna Joyce of Troop 85383 received the award for organizing free dance workshops at the library for underprivileged children so they could take lessons they would not be able to afford otherwise.

Isabella Carinci, Jayda Berry and Angel Bresnahan, all members of Troop 85042, received the award for working with staff at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School to transform the woods outside the school. The project included the removal of overgrowth there and the creation of a new trail and worksheets for teachers to use when bringing students for walks along the trail.

Norah Cronin, Mairead Curran and Ava Hunt, all members of Troop 75054, received the award for their project, which provided free ballet, tap and hip-hop dance lessons to celebrate, encourage and educate others on the importance of physical activity through dance.

Katherine Malefatto, Kailey Ross and Gerelle San Jose, likewise members of Troop 75054, received the award after creating a website, slideshow and poster board for display at the Quincy Historical Society to preserve the history of the Germantown Yacht Club.

Sabrina Egan, a member of Troop 85042, received the award for researching animals, how they live and are affected by deforestation and pollution. Egan gave presentations at the library and created coloring pages and crafts to educate children about those issues.

Twenty-four of the girl scouts receiving commendations earned Bronze Awards for their group projects.

Niamh Barrios, Celia Cronin, Ciara Golden, Charlotte McCarthy, Maia Popa, Mia Santosuosso and Isabelle Soto, members of Troop 75294, teamed up to research pertinent information about bees. As part of the project, they planted pollinator gardens and created videos with information about bees and how to protect the insects from environmental changes.

Ella Halley, Jenna Christian and Elizabeth Coote, members of Troop 68282, created a little free library at the Clifford Marshall School with the goal of inspiring and encouraging children to read by providing free access to books.

Gretchen Himmer, Kyrie Blue, Alyssa Hopps, Katherine Gweth, Joyce Zheng, Elizabeth Gonzalez and Tarene Cunningham, also members of Troop 68282, built a little free library at the Snug Harbor Elementary School to foster a love of reading, build a sense of community and increase access to books.

Madelyn Yang, Angelina Rumble, Maggie Webber, Hannah Spratt, Victoria Reid, Violet Liu and Zoe Buckley, likewise members of Troop 68282, created a butterfly garden at the Wollaston Elementary School to stop the decline in the butterfly population. They educated themselves on the use of pesticides and the ecosystem as part of their project.

Crane Library Bookstore Features Holiday Books Media Celebrating Season

The Crane Library Bookstore welcomes the holiday season with an assortment of holiday books and media celebrating Christmas, Chanukah and Kwanzaa, many of which are suitable for gift-giving.

Through year's end, DVDs and CDs featuring holiday themes and songs are featured, as well as music from every genre. All goods are in gently-used condition and unless otherwise marked, hard-cover books and DVDs sell for $2 and paperbacks and CDs for $1.

Children's books and media are priced even lower, as are mass-market paperback novels. Also featured are special sections for books and media in Chinese language, a large collection of coffee-table books, and a special section on local history.

The store is open on Thursday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and has its own separate entrance on Spear Street in the rear of the historic Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sponsored and managed by volunteers of The Friends of the Crane Library, net proceeds of the intimate bookstore are used to fund and support the library's many programs offered to the Quincy community.

Alex Fronduto Initiated Into Phi Kappa Phi

Alex Fronduto of Quincy was recently initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective all-discipline collegiate honor society.

Fronduto was initiated at MCPHS University.

10 Quincy Students Inducted Into BC High National Honor Society

Ten students from Quincy were recently inducted into the National Honor Society at Boston College High School.

The students, all juniors, are:

Zachary Hatfield, Christopher Hussey, Ethan Johnson, Thomas McCormack, Joshua McMillen, William McMillen, Aidan Murphy, Thomas Potts, Michael Richardson and Vishvakishore Venkatesan. They were among the 135 students inducted into the Robert J. Fulton, SJ chapter of the National Honor Society at the Hunter-Fahey Commons on Nov. 15.

The new members received congratulations and certificates from Jennifer Ehalt, Associate Director of Admissions, Dr. Charles Drane Assistant Principal and Thomas Smith, Academic Dean. Earlier, the inductees received gold NHS pins that were worn on their jacket lapels during the ceremony.

Winter Clothing Drive At Beth Shalom-Blue Hills

Dec. 20, Jan. 17 To Benefit Father Bill's Place

As part of its "Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program," Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will again be assembling 75 bag lunches at the synagogue for Father Bill's Place, a homeless shelter in Quincy, on Thursday, Dec. 20th, from 6 to 8 p.m. .

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will repeat this event on Thursday, Jan 17th, from 3 to 5 p.m.

All members of the community are invited to volunteer and participate in either or both of these two events, helping to provide a meal for those in need in our communities.

Father Bill's has been helping the most vulnerable neighbors and friends who don't have a home for over 30 years, serving individuals, veterans and families.

The Mitzvah Program of Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, operating under the Jewish tenet that "doing good deeds is an obligation," provides service to the community by both congregants and community members. It includes and welcomes other participants, including individuals, schools, houses of worship and community organizations.

To volunteer for the "Lunch Bag Assembly" or for more information about the synagogue's "Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program," call 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

The synagogue is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton.

There is no parking allowed on Lodge Street or Maitland Street.

Seafood Cream Sauce Over Rotini

By MARIE

I was having some of my children over for dinner recently and instead of making my usual pasta with sauce and meatballs (a favorite) I made a seafood sauce that they all loved and, of course, I served it with pasta.

The nice thing about this recipe is it all done in one skillet.

Seafood Cream Sauce Over Rotini

1 pound of haddock or large scallops
1 pound of fresh mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon of olive oil
2 and ½ cups whole milk or half and half.
3 tablespoons of flour
¼ cup sherry wine (optional, but the wine really added to the taste.)
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ cup parmesan cheese
½ pound of rotini pasta

Sauté the mushrooms in the olive oil, salt and pepper and set aside when done.

In a frying pan heat the butter and add the flour making a roux. Add the milk or half and half, making a cream sauce, stir until it thickens.

Add the sherry (if using) and mushrooms and cook for a couple of minutes until blended.

Lay the haddock in one piece on top of the cream sauce and the scallops.

Cook covered until the fish is done and the scallops are tender. I served this over ½ pound of rotini pasta which I had cooking while I was preparing the sauce, but any favorite pasta will do just fine.

Pumpkin Bars (Gluten Free)

By SUSIE

Sometimes, you don't want pie, and want a dessert that you can easily slice and store. This recipe fits the bill.

PUMPKIN BARS (gluten free)

Crust

2 1/2 c. Gluten Free cereal "O"s (I like Natures Path)
3 tbsp. coconut sugar
1/3 c. melted Ghee

Filling

2 organic eggs
1/2 c. coconut sugar
1 can organic Pumpkin
1 can evaporated coconut milk or regular organic evaporated milk
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt

Powdered sugar, for dusting

Directions

• Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease a 9" x 9" square baking pan.

• Crush cereal into fine crumbs inside a large resealable plastic bag using a rolling pin.

Combine cereal crumbs, melted ghee, sugar, and salt and blend until combined. Press crumb mixture into the bottom of the greased baking pan.

Bake until beginning to turn golden, about 7-8 minutes. Let cool while you make filling. Turn the oven temperature up to 425 degrees.

• Make filling. Beat all filling ingredients together until smooth. Pour filling into crust and bake 15 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees F. Bake about 35 minutes longer or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Let cool to room temperature then refrigerate until chilled.

• Sift powdered sugar over sliced squares before serving. Refrigerate until cooled and firm

Girl Scouts CookieFest

MORE THAN 1,200 people, including Quincy Girl Scouts, spent a sweet day at Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts' CookieFest at Bentley University in Waltham on Dec. 1. The festive event celebrated the start of the 2018-19 Girl Scout Cookie Season with activity booths, ice skating, and a keynote speech by American Ninja Warrior athlete Allyssa Beird. Aortic Dissection: Signs, Symptoms, Treatments

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

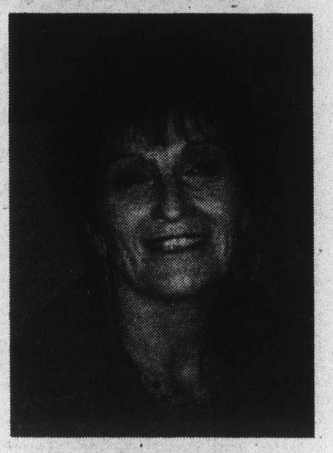
By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

An aortic dissection is a severe condition where the inner layer of the aorta, the large blood vessel branching off the heart, tears. Blood gushes through the tear, causing the inner and middle layers of the aorta to separate (dissect). If the blood-filled channel ruptures through the outside aortic wall, aortic dissection is frequently fatal.

Aortic dissection is somewhat uncommon. The condition most frequently occurs in males in their 60s and 70s. Symptoms of aortic dissection may mirror those of other diseases, often resulting in delays in diagnosis. Conversely, when an aortic dissection is detected early and treated promptly, the chance of survival significantly improves.

Typical signs and symptoms include:

- Sudden severe chest or upper back pain, often expressed as a tearing, ripping or shearing sensation, that radiates to the neck or down the back
- Sudden severe abdominal pain
- Loss of consciousness
- Shortness of breath
- Sudden difficulty speaking, loss of vision, weakness or paralysis of one side of your body, similar to symptoms of a stroke



RUTH JONES

- Weak pulse in one arm or thigh
- Leg pain
- Difficulty walking
- Leg paralysis

An aortic dissection occurs in a weakened area of the aortic wall. Chronic high blood pressure may exert pressure on the aortic tissue, making it more vulnerable to tearing. Some people are born with a condition associated with a weakened and enlarged aorta, such as Marfan syndrome, bicuspid aortic valve or other rarer conditions linked with weakening of the walls of the blood vessels. Aortic dissections are infrequently caused by traumatic injury to the chest area, such as during motor vehicle accidents.

Aortic dissections are divided into two groups, depending on which part of the aorta is affected:

- Type A. This more common and serious type involves a tear in the part of the aorta where it exits the heart or a tear in the upper aorta (ascending aorta), which may extend into the abdomen.
- Type B. This involves a tear in the lower aorta only (descending aorta), which may also extend into the abdomen.

Risk factors for aortic dissection include:

- Uncontrolled high blood pressure (hypertension)
- Hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis)
- Weakened and bulging artery (pre-existing aortic aneurysm)
- An aortic valve defect (bicuspid aortic valve)
- A narrowing of the aorta at birth (aortic coarctation)

Certain genetic diseases intensify the risk of developing an aortic dissection, including:

- Turner's syndrome. High blood pressure, heart problems and a number of other health conditions may result from this disorder.
- Marfan syndrome. This is a condition in which connective tissue, which supports various structures in the body, is weak. People with this disorder often have a family history of aneurysms of the aorta and other blood vessels or family history of aortic dissections.
- Connective tissue disorders. This includes Ehlers-Danlos syndrome, a group of connective tissue disorders characterized by skin that bruises or tears easily, loose joints and fragile blood vessels and Loeys-Dietz syndrome, with twisted arteries, especially in the neck.
- Inflammatory or infectious conditions. These may include giant cell arteritis, which is an inflammation of the arteries, and syphilis, a sexually transmitted infection.

Other possible risk factors include:

- Sex. Men have about double the incidence of aortic dissection.
- Age. The incidence of aortic dissection peaks in the 60s and 80s.
- Cocaine use. This drug may be a risk factor for aortic dissection because it temporarily raises blood pressure.
- Pregnancy. Infrequently, aortic dissections occur in otherwise healthy women during pregnancy.
- High-intensity weightlifting. This and other strenuous resistance training may increase the risk of aortic dissection by increasing blood pressure during the activity.

An aortic dissection can lead to:

- Death due to severe internal bleeding
- Organ damage, such as kidney failure or life-threatening intestinal impairment
- Stroke
- Aortic valve damage or rupture into the lining around the heart

To reduce the risk of an aortic dissection:

- Control blood pressure.
- Don't smoke.
- Maintain an ideal weight.
- Wear a seat belt to reduce the risk of traumatic injury to your chest area.

If a genetic condition that increases the risk of aortic dissection is present, the doctor may recommend medications, even if blood pressure is normal.

Doctors often suspect an aortic dissection if the following signs and symptoms are present:

- Sudden tearing or ripping chest pain
- Widening of the aorta on chest X-ray
- Blood pressure variance between right and left arms

Imaging procedures used in diagnosis include:

- Transesophageal echocardiogram (TEE). A TEE is a special type of echocardiogram in which an ultrasound probe is inserted through the esophagus. The ultrasound probe is placed close to the heart and the aorta, providing a clearer picture of your heart than would a regular echocardiogram.
- Computerized tomography (CT) scan. A CT of the chest is used to diagnose an aortic dissection, possibly with an injected contrast liquid that makes the heart, aorta and other blood vessels more visible on the CT pictures.
- Magnetic resonance angiogram (MRA). An MRI uses a magnetic field and pulses of radio wave energy to make pictures of the body.

An aortic dissection is a medical emergency requiring immediate treatment. Therapy may include surgery or medications, depending on the area of the aorta involved.

Treatment for type A aortic dissection may include:

- Surgery. Surgeons remove as much of the dissected aorta as possible, block the entry of blood into the aortic wall and reconstruct the aorta with a synthetic tube called a graft. If the aortic valve leaks as a result of the damaged aorta, it may be replaced at the same time.
- Medications. Some medications, such as beta blockers and nitroprusside.

Treatment of type B aortic dissection may include:

- Medications. The same medications that are used to treat type A aortic dissection may be used without surgery to treat type B aortic dissections.
- Surgery. The procedure is similar to that used to correct a type A aortic dissection. Sometimes stents may be placed in the aorta to repair complicated type B aortic dissections.

Art Films With QAA: Pollock Dec. 20 At Crane Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library continues to partner with the Quincy Art Association to show films about art and artists on the third Thursday of the month.

On Thursday, Dec. 20 at 1 p.m. and again at 6:45 p.m. the movie Pollock will be shown and discussed. This movie is a look back into the life of an extraordinary man, a man who has fittingly been called "an artist dedicated to concealment, a celebrity who nobody knew."

Directed by and starring Ed Harris and also starring Marcia Gay Harden, Pollock was theatrically released in 2000. It is 122 minutes long and is rated R for mature material, including very strong language and sexual references and situations.

Characters drink, smoke, abuse drugs, and engage in self-destructive behavior. Pollock's drunk driving with the passengers screaming is shown, though not the crash that killed him. Family members treat each other badly, which may be upsetting for some viewers. (review information from commonsensemedia.org).

QHS/NQHS Holiday Choral Concert Dec. 20

The choirs from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School will perform their annual holiday choral concert at the Thomas Crane Public Library on Thursday, Dec. 20 at 4 p.m.

Every year students from both schools come to the library and perform a wide variety of holiday songs. Celebrating multiple traditions, there is something in their collection for everyone.

The choirs at both high schools are directed by Timothy Carew, who has served 14 years with the Quincy Public Schools. Carew earned a bachelor of science degree from the University of New Hampshire and a master of music degree in vocal performance from New England Conservatory of Music. He studied vocal pedagogy at Longy School of Music, choral conducting at Westminster Choir College and music education at the University of Massachusetts, Boston. He holds a Massachusetts Educator's License in Music, grades Pre-K through 12.

Carew's primary vocal training has been with Kathleen Wilson at the University of New Hampshire, Susan Clickner of New England Conservatory and Sharon Daniels of Boston University. He has performed in musical theater, operetta, cabaret, recital, symphonic, oratorio and sacred music and served as tenor section leader at numerous Boston area churches, including St. Peters, Weston and Christ Church, Quincy.

Carew served on the voice faculty of Boston University Tanglewood Institute (Lenox), South Shore Conservatory (Hingham), and The Rivers Music School (Weston). Mr. Carew is a member of the National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) and the National Association for Music Education (NAFME).

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Paying Social Security Tax Doesn't Increase Benefit

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: If I started drawing Social Security benefits in May of 2007 at age 62 and continued to work and pay Social Security taxes to date, can I expect an adjustment in my benefits? Signed: Working Senior

Dear Working Senior: Not from simply paying the Social Security payroll tax, because paying your FICA taxes while you continue to work isn't what will cause an adjustment in your benefit amount. Everyone who works and earns (except certain public sector employees) must pay the Social Security payroll tax, even if you're collecting Social Security, and that has nothing to do with your personal Social Security benefit amount. Those Social Security FICA contributions you pay while you're working go into the Social Security Trust Fund, which is a special fund from which all Social Security benefits (and only Social Security benefits) are paid.

Your benefit amount at age 62 was based upon your lifetime work record at that time - specifically, the 35 inflation-adjusted years in which you had the highest earnings. If you continued to work after you claimed your Social Security benefits, and your earnings for any current year are more than in any of those 35 years used to originally compute your Social Security benefit, then you would get a small increase in your benefit amount. But remember that to determine if an increase is appropriate, your earlier years' earnings are adjusted for inflation. That means that your current earnings would need to be more than the inflation-adjusted earnings to cause a benefit increase.

Each year, Social Security looks at your earnings and determines whether your lifetime "average indexed monthly earnings" (AIME) number has changed, warranting a benefit increase. That annual review continues for as long as you are earning, and whenever you earn enough to replace one of those 35 years used to originally compute your AIME you will see an increase. But if your current earnings aren't high enough to replace one of those earlier years, your benefit amount will stay the same. Except, of course, for any Cost of Living Adjustments (COLA) which may be granted annually (2018 COLA was 2% and 2019 COLA will be 2.8%).

$5.3M Bond Approved For Kincaide Park Improvements

Council Votes 6-3 For Funding

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors have approved a $5.3 million bond to pay for improvements to Kincaide Park in South Quincy.

Councillors on Dec. 3 approved the bond request in a pair of 6-3 votes – the first vote to consider the matter and the second to approve it. Ian Cain, Brad Croall and Noel DiBona voted in opposition both times. Each of those three councillors said they had concerns about the price tag for the project.

A $27 million park improvement bond approved by the council in 2017 set aside $1 million for Kincaide Park; the bond will be paid for with hotel tax receipts, which Quincy collects when guests stay overnight in a hotel or motel in the city.

Based on community feedback, Mayor Thomas Koch proposed bigger changes for the field earlier this year, and proposed paying for them with the $5.3 million bond the council approved Dec. 3, which would be paid out of the general fund.

The council's finance committee voted 5-3 on Nov. 13 to give a positive recommendation to the $5.3 million bond, with the same three councillors opposed.

At the Dec. 3rd council meeting, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci invoked a council rule to put the bond order up for a final vote after Cain, the finance committee chairman, said he did not he plan to do so. Cain said he was waiting for Koch's office to provide additional information on alternative ways to fund the park project.

The council then voted 6-3 to put the item up for a final vote, which Cain called a disgrace.

"I just want to say this is a disgrace. The mere fact that you invoked that rule is undermining the purpose of committees and the purpose of the City Council itself," Cain said

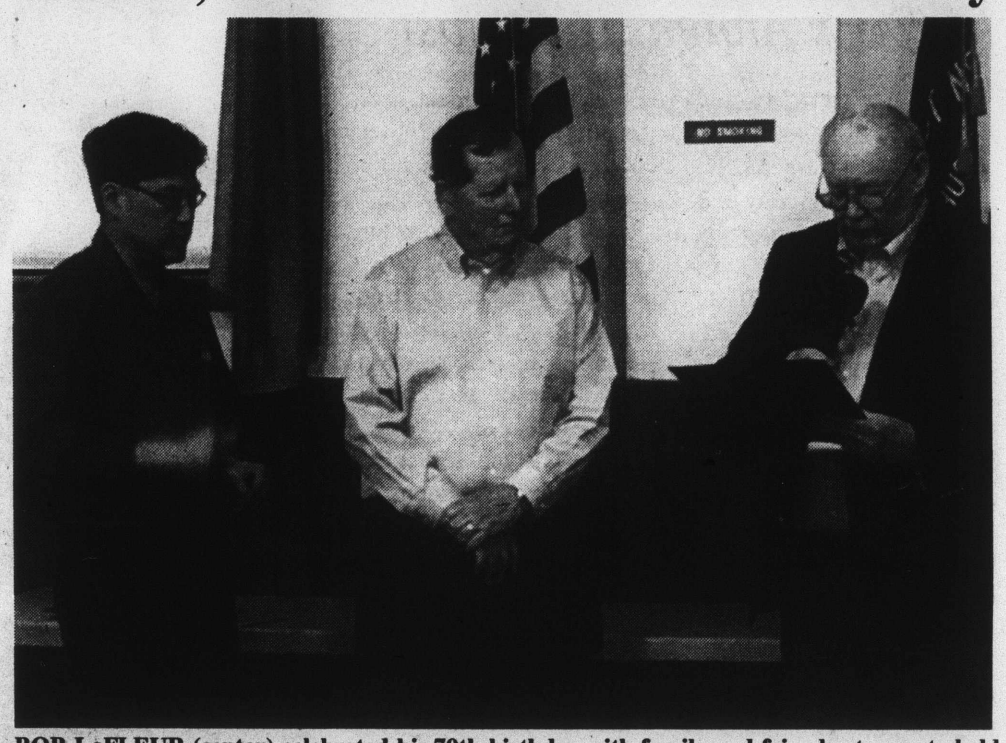
Following that initial vote, Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said the city has applied for $2 million in grants and could apply for several million dollars more in outside funding. Walker said half the project's total cost could wind up being paid for by grants; if not, the mayor would be open to using hotel tax money to pay part of the cost.

DiBona then made a motion to cut $4 million from the bond order under consideration, which Palmucci refused to accept as a friendly amendment. (DiBona on Nov. 13 made a motion to cut $4 million from the bond, which was rejected by a 5-3 vote.)

The council then passed the bond in the final 6-3 vote.

Plans for Kincaide Park – a 5.2-acre space on Water Street between the Sterling and Lincoln-Hancock schools – were unveiled in April. Those plans include a new FIFA-regulation soccer pitch, a splash pad, basketball courts, bocce courts, a sprint track and a trail for running and walking. The proposal also includes a new rope course, new play and exercise equipment, new lighting and drainage systems, new seating and the planting of 136 new trees.

Veteran, Activist Celebrates 70th Birthday



BOB LaFLEUR (center) celebrated his 70th birthday with family and friends at a party held recently at the Morrisette American Legion Post. He was presented citations from the Massachusetts House of Representatives and the state Senate. Bob also received a proclamation from Mayor Thomas Koch which read "Whereas, Bob has proudly represented the veterans of Quincy as Past Commander of Morrisette Legion Post, Quincy Veterans Council, DAV Cavanaugh Chapter #79; and Wheras; Bob remains an integral and active participant of these revered veterans' organizations and is the resident 'Taps' player at all Quincy veteran events. The mayor declared Nov. 18, 2018, "Bob LaFleur Day" in the City of Quincy. Presenting the citation and proclamation are state Rep. Planning Board OKs Oak Grove Ter. Development

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Planning Board approved a developer's plan to build a 13-unit residential building off Independence Avenue near the Braintree town line.

The board on Dec. 5 approved the request from 11 Oak Grove Ter. LLC, based out of Braintree, for site plan review and a special permit to construct the new building at the same address. The Zoning Board of Appeals previously approved the project in May.

Each unit inside the new building will include approximately 1,400 square feet of living space. Each will have two bedrooms and two bathrooms. The project also includes a total of 26 parking spaces on site, including ones in a first-floor garage and other exterior spaces.

The single-family home now on site would be demolished to make way for the new building.

A public hearing was held on the proposal during the Dec. 5 meeting, but no residents spoke.

Rob Stevens, Quincy's deputy planning director, noted the developer behind a residential project on a nearby parcel in Braintree was required to upgrade Oak Grove Terrace and Bennett Lane, both in Quincy, as part of the Braintree permitting process.

The developer of the Quincy project will be required to obtain copies of those plans, which Quincy officials must approve, Stevens said, and a certificate of occupancy for the building will not be granted until those roads are rebuilt.

"I do believe that the Braintree project will catch up and follow through on its existing commitment to build this road," Stevens said.

The developer of the Quincy project will also be required to create a code-compliant sidewalk on the 11 Oak Grove Ter. side of the roadway.

In other business, the board continued a planned public hearing on FoxRock Properties' plan for the former Quincy Medical Center site to a future date. The redevelopment of the hospital site had been scheduled for Dec. 5, but the developer sought a continuance prior to the meeting.

"The applicant, FoxRock, is in the process of redesigning the proposal to help address some of the concerns that have been expressed," Robert Harnais, an attorney representing the company, said in a letter to the board.

FoxRock Properties made its pitch to the Planning Board during a special meeting on Oct. 24. The project at that time included 598 residential units – split between 36 row houses, 17 townhouses and four six-story apartment buildings – on the 14.4-acre site at 114 Whitwell St. The plan also included 5,000 square feet of retail space and 802 parking spaces.

FoxRock planned to raze every building on the hospital site save for the administration building in front of the property, which would be renovated to create retail space.

The project got a chilly reception from area residents and five city councillors, many of them felt it would be too dense for the Hospital Hill neighborhood.

The Planning Board did not set a date for the continued hearing on the proposal. Harnais requested the hearing take place in January or early February.

In other business, the board continued until a future date a public hearing on George Lang's proposal to build a new residential building at 66 McGrath Hwy. and 70 Spear St. Lang is proposing to build a four-story, 42-unit building on site with a total of 63 parking spaces. The proposal has been scaled down since it first went before the Planning Board this summer as a six-story, 46-unit project.

Harnais, who is also representing Lang before the Planning Board, said outstanding issues remain with the project that the applicant will address.

DeCristofaro, Barrett Receive Good Scout Awards

Life Of Quincy Eagle Scout Also Remembered At Mayor's Annual Breakfast

By TOM GORMAN

The life of a Quincy Eagle scout was remembered and two prominent city residents honored during the 25th annual Quincy Mayor's Good Scout Breakfast.

Local business leaders and officials joined Mayor Thomas Koch Dec. 6 at Granite Links where Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and E.L. Barrett Company, Inc. of Quincy Vice President Ryan Barrett were each presented with the Good Scout Award. The award honors community leadership, service to youth, and philanthropic support in the city.

The event was presented in conjunction with The Spirit of Adventure Council Boy Scouts of America. The council serves Quincy and 75 other Massachusetts communities, supporting about 13,000 scouts and 5,000 volunteers.

"The goal of this event is to raise awareness and support for the scouting program and to provide enhancements needed to remain relevant in America's changing landscape," said Anthony Agnitti, Quincy Mayor's Good Scout Breakfast chairman.

A tribute was paid to Quincy Troop 42 Eagle Scout Lucien (Luc) Theberge. The 18-year-old Quincy High School senior was killed in a New Hampshire car crash Nov. 23. Koch said a scholarship in Luc's name is being considered by the Quincy Mayor's Breakfast Committee.

"After Luc died, we talked as a broken committee that we have to do something to honor him because he is so special," Koch said. "This type of person comes along only once in a lifetime."

The mayor said naming an award or scholarship in memory of Luc was discussed.

"We're leaning toward a scholarship, because that carries his name forward in a nice way," Koch said. "It's not just memorializing him, but helping a young kid get to their next level. I know there are a lot of people anxious to do something for him, so my guess is it won't be hard to raise some dollars for the cause."

In his address to the gathering, Koch noted watching the funeral of President George H.W. Bush and how he brought people together in his life and in his death.

"This nation doesn't go from the top down, this nation is made of great communities," he said. "Great communities are made of people like Luc Theberge."

Koch recalled meeting Luc for the first time when he came seeking support for his Eagle Scout project – building an outdoor classroom at the Bernazzani Elementary School.

"He was the leader for that project and brought the kids together," said Koch.

The mayor said Luc was "never shy, but respectful."

"He was looked up to by both kids and adults," said Koch. "He had it together, which is what you want in every good citizen. If we had more kids like Luc,

GOOD SCOUT AWARD recipient Dr. Richard DeCristofaro told the gathering that "Community service is a powerful program that connects scouting and Quincy Public Schools." Looking on is breakfast emcee Anthony Agnitti.

GOOD SCOUT AWARD recipient Ryan Barrett, vice president of E.L. Barrett Company, said that Quincy has many great mentors that provide an "overlapping guidance from one generation to the next."

the world would be a better place."

Luc was born in Weymouth and grew up in Quincy. He was a National Honor Society member and played on the tennis team at Quincy High School. As a member of Troop 42, he received the National Outdoor Achievement Medal and the Venturing Ranger Award. He hiked all 48, 4,000-foot plus summits in New Hampshire's White Mountains. He was a carrier for The Quincy Sun.

Koch also honored DeCristofaro and Barrett for their contributions to the community.

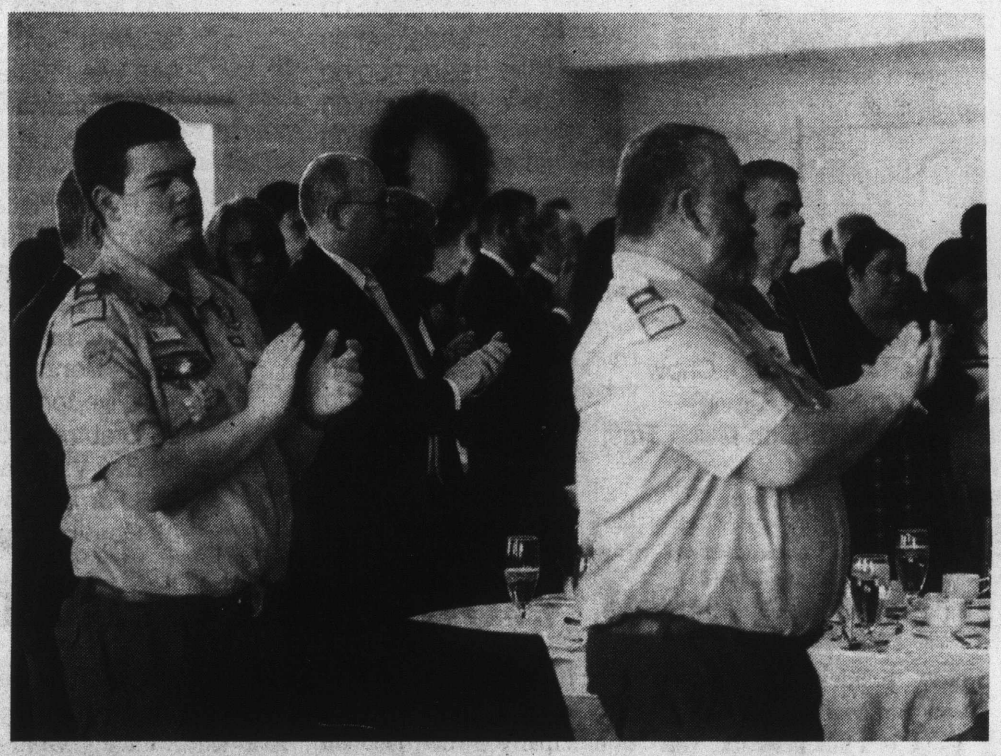
DeCristofaro was presented the award for "forging future leaders and impacting the lives of young children" through his years as a teacher and leader in the city's school system.

The superintendent said he "is proud to receive the award" and told the gathering that the Quincy school system has an important partnership with the scouts.

"Community service is a powerful program that connects scouting and Quincy Public Schools," he said. "Scouts define service as 'performing selfless acts for the betterment of others and through good turns. The scouts' personal growth and connection to the community is promoted through activities such as food drives, Cleaner Greener, Toys for Tots, and outreach to local veterans. Both the Scouts and Quincy Public Schools hold service to others in the highest esteem."

The superintendent also explained how the scouts provide "team building and training in outdoor emergency preparedness while the schools offer opportunities enriched in academics, athletics, and the arts through extended day programs."

DeCristofaro said the Boy Scouts are "guided by the ideals to do their best through developing skills, experience, and passion. Both the scouts and Quincy Public Schools share an understanding of the importance of STEM (Science Technology Engineering Math) and work to instill this in our youngest students, expand on it at the middle school level, and through over 20 Career, Vocational, and Technical Education programs, assist our students to develop real world skills and professional experiences within their passion."



A STANDING OVATION is given to the 2018 Good Scout Award recipients Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and Ryan Barrett.

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH pays tribute to Lucien Theberge, an Eagle Scout from Troop 42 who was killed last month in a car crash in New Hampshire.

He also said the district has an emphasis on citizenship and personal development and has leadership opportunities.

"The scouts and Quincy Public Schools both understand the importance of supportive structure in character development, the programs and activities are a source of pride and a key part of student achievement and success, hope for the future."

Barrett was honored for his work in helping establish the Quincy Young Professionals group that brought "many active professionals to the local business community that share a sense of community involvement."

Barrett expressed appreciation for the honor and said the 25th anniversary of the Good Scout Breakfast is a "testament to the continued tradition of the city of Quincy."

He spoke about growing up in Quincy and having "many great mentors," including his parents and wife, that helped set his path. Barrett said his father told him to "be a sponge."

"Take the best of each person I met, whether it be a mechanic, for his trade skills, or a local business owner management abilities, and to take their best attributes and make them my own," he said.

Barrett paid tribute to his lifelong best friend, Bruce Wood, for instilling the importance of community service.

"Bruce was able to teach me that you can be successful, but, also enjoy yourself at the same time," he said. "He taught me that it is not enough to live and work in the city, but, that you must give back to it, any way you know how."

Barrett said mentorship is the longstanding tradition of the Good Scout Breakfast.

"It is imperative that we maintain the traditions of our city for the next generation,' he said. "What makes Quincy great is the overlapping guidance from one generation to the next. Values and beliefs in this community are unwavering, generation after generation."

Barrett said maintaining mentorship for upcoming generations was the driving force for him to help develop the Quincy Young Professionals, a subgroup of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"Many of us who helped establish the group knew how lucky we each were that we had established leaders in front of us, who helped out along the way," he said. "We wanted to make sure that everyone had the opportunities that we were all so fortunate to have…I encourage each of you to do the same for someone in your life."

LOCAL COMMUNITY and business leaders, elected officials, and Boy Scouts attended the 25th annual Quincy Mayor's Good Scout Breakfast at Granite Links Golf Club.

Sen. Keenan Optimistic About Wollaston Center Changes

By SCOTT JACKSON

Sen. John Keenan said he is hopeful the city's efforts to revitalize Wollaston Center can move quickly.

The city hosted a community meeting on Wollaston Center Dec. 4. Keenan was unable to attend the meeting but an aide who attended the session said there was a sense of optimism among the 200 or so residents present that night.

"She thought it was a great meeting," Keenan said. "People seemed to be pretty excited about what could happen in Wollaston – not happy about what's there, but pretty excited about what could happen. So there was a lot of discussion about what kind of shops you need, what's the appropriate height, how much residential should be there mixed with commercial.

"But overall, I think people were excited about the idea."

Keenan, who grew up in Wollaston, said changes to area are a long time coming.

"It's the first step and hopefully the steps move quickly, because it's just been a long time that that has been in the condition it's in – and now you've got Papa Gino's in one corner with brown paper in the windows, you've got, where the pharmacy was across the street, that has paper in the windows. The theater is gone," Keenan said.

He said the area is ripe for development given the proximity of the Wollaston MBTA station, which is expected to re-open in August 2019 following an extensive rebuilding project, various MBTA bus lines and Wollaston Beach.

"I just hope it's done right. I think it's a great area," Keenan said. "It makes sense to have development in that area, particularly residential, because you can walk to the train. There is a bus network. You can walk to the beach. It will bring back some of the types of the shops that were there and some restaurants. I just hope that they do it so it's tasteful and fits in with the community – not too high."

The stretch of Newport Avenue between Beale Street and Brook Street should also be part of the conversation, he added, including the building at 307-311 Newport Ave., which was home to several storefronts and residences before it was damaged in a November 2015 fire.

"Newport Ave. too is a mess. It was part of the conversation the other night and I think will be part of the conversation going forward," Keenan said. "It's terrible...that building where there was a fire still has a chain-link fence around it. Stores are vacant. It just looks terrible."

One issue that has hindered redevelopment in the area is the number of property owners and a lack of municipally owned land on which development could take place. Because of that, Keenan said city officials could ultimately create an Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Wollaston Center, similar to the one in place in Quincy Center.

"There is multiple owners, so the city is looking at declaring it an urban development and revitalization district...and that will give them the ability, if necessary, to assemble some parcels," Keenan said. "That's been the biggest problem, particularly on the Newport Ave side...there are multiple property owners and many of them don't seem to be interested in doing anything."

While the city is planning for the revitalization of Wollaston Center, Keenan said the T might make the parking lot at the Wollaston station available for development. There are currently mixed-use projects in the pipeline for the North Quincy and Quincy Center stations, and Wollaston could be next, though nothing is imminent.

"Once you get through those two, I think Wollaston station becomes logical. I don't think there is any direct planning on it," Keenan said.

"As the city goes forward with its planning, it's contemplating that there could be development on the surface parking lot.... It's a big piece of land. You can build above it and still have access to the T. It's in the discussion locally, and the state I think just wants to get through with what they're trying to get through."

QCAP Hosting First-Time Home Buyer Workshops

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will host a set of comprehensive workshops designed for first time home buyers.

The First-Time Home Buyer Workshop will be held in two sessions: Thursday, Dec. 13th from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 15th from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Quincy Community Action Programs, 1509 Hancock St., Quincy.

This monthly workshop focuses on all aspects of the home buying process. Real estate professionals will present information on topics from mortgages to home insurance. Attendees must attend both sessions in order to receive a certificate of attendance. Participants may use their certificate to obtain a low rate loan through MassHousing or MassHousing Partnerships. Free individual counseling is also available.

Registration will be open until Tuesday, Dec. 13th. Space is limited. The cost is $30 per person and the fee is non-refundable.

For more information about the program or to register for the workshop, visit www.qcap.org or contact Dorothy Noronha at 617-657-5353 or dnoronha@qcap.org.

Future two-day workshops will be held on the dates below:

- Jan. 17 and Jan. 19 at Quincy Community Action Programs

Wreaths Across America At Mt. Wollaston Cemetery

By SCOTT JACKSON

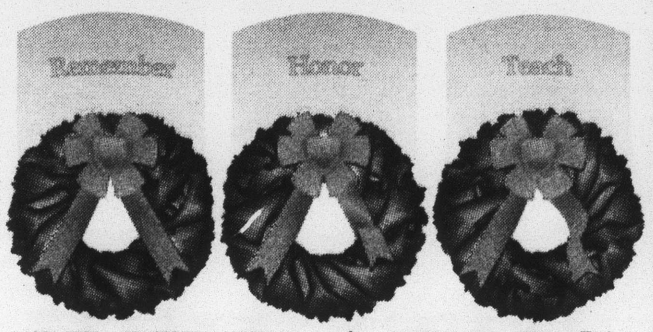
Hundreds of volunteers are expected at Mount Wollaston Cemetery on Saturday as part of the Wreaths Across America Day to place wreaths on the graves of the 3,200 veterans interred there.

Wreaths Across America is a nationwide program that includes more than 1,500 locations across the United States. Mount Wollaston Cemetery has been selected for the first time this year.

Local businesses and residents donated all the wreaths that will be placed on Saturday.

Volunteers looking to assist in placing the wreaths should arrive by 11 or 11:15 a.m. Saturday at the latest, according to George Bouchard, Quincy's graves registration officer. Volunteers should park at the Department of Public Works, which is located across Sea Street, or Quincy High School, if possible, Bouchard said.

A half-hour ceremony will take place at noon at the World War II monument on the Sea Street side of the cemetery. Mayor Thomas Koch, the local site coordinator and Bouchard will offer remarks at the ceremony. Active-duty military members representing each branch of the armed forces will also be on hand for the ceremony, and will place wreaths at part of it.



Chairs and tents will be available for the ceremony, along with light refreshments.

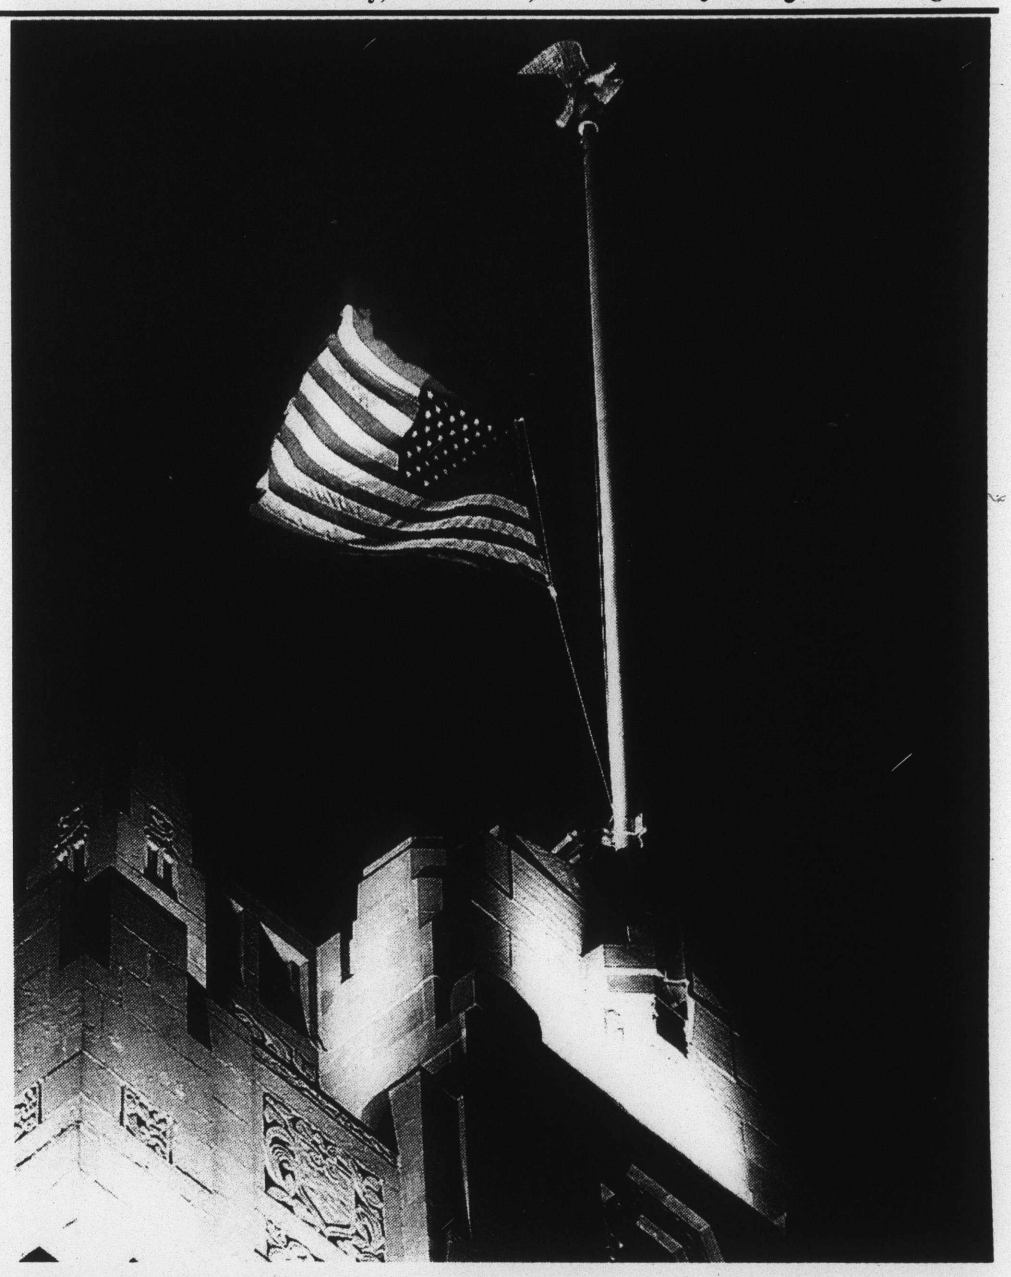
Following the ceremony, the volunteers will fan out to place the wreaths. The local site coordinator will instruct volunteers where to go.

"Hopefully we'll get it done in a couple hours," Bouchard said.

Bouchard said volunteers are also needed on Monday, Jan. 14, which is the nationwide cleanup day for the wreaths. The wreaths will be removed from Mount Wollaston Cemetery, and others across the country, that day.

The Wreaths Across America Day event in Quincy could branch out next year to Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy, Bouchard said, depending on how Saturday's event goes.

"If we reach our goal, we're going to expand it over to Pine Hill," he said. "That's our goal."



REMEMBERING A PRESIDENT – An American flag flies at half staff at night at the top of the Granite Trust Building in Quincy Center in memory of President George H. W. Bush who died Nov. 30 at the age of 94. President Bush, who was born in neighboring Milton, served one term as the nation's 41st president from 1989 to 1993. His son, George W. Bush, served two terms as the nation's 43rd President - the second father-and-son presidents in U.S. history. Quincy's John Adams, the 2nd president - and his son, John Quincy Adams, the 6th president, were the first father-son presidents. Norfolk County is the home to four presidents: the Adamses, George H.W. Bush and John F. Kennedy who was born in Brookline. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

Nickerson Post Sends Care Packages To Troops, Collects Toys For Tots

The Robert I. Nickerson American Legion Post #382 in Squantum recently finished its Christmas care packages to the troops in Afghanistan in time for Christmas.

"We are well ahead of the game," Post commander Jim Doherty said during the Post's Toys for Tots gathering at the post home for the local kids who don't have much during this holiday season. The Nickerson Post has been running many events throughout the year in support of local residents and community service and maintaining veterans islands and memorials in veterans honor in Squantum. The Post recently honored Joseph V. Fallon as their new honorary life member for all his years of service and being a post delicate for over 25 years.

'We Will Never Forget' Pearl Harbor

gether following Pearl Harbor to fight the Axis powers.

"I think there is probably no time in history where the response of the American people was so unified in spirit and mind in battling this evil at this time," the mayor said.

"It clearly was a case of fighting evil and there are so many stories of young men lying about their age to get in to serve to fight that evil – to protect that way of life that he enjoyed. And while they were doing that, the wives and women were going to work at factories and volunteering in the war effort.

"It was just an incredible time in the history of our nation, and then of course that generation, which has come to be known as the Greatest Generation, came home and literally built this country.

"It's good we remember. It's important that we're here."

Nicholson noted 2,455 people were killed in the attack on Pearl Harbor – 59 Japanese aviators, nine Japanese submariners, and 2,390 American servicemen and civilians. Of those killed in Pearl Harbor, 1,177 were serving aboard the USS Arizona, more than 900 of who remain entombed in the battleship's hull.

"For many, many years, nothing was ever done to try to identity them beyond names and their ranks," Nicholson said. "That since has changed. There is now an ongoing effort to give these 900 back their lives. To date, approximately 400 have had biographies developed. It's a work in progress to do the rest of them justice to give them – the lives they lived – the recognition that they deserve."

SPEAKERS AT THE city's observance of the 77th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor - Dec. 7, 1941 – included Mayor Thomas Koch (above) and George Nicholson, director, Quincy Veterans Services. A wreath was placed at the World War II Monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in memory of the more than 2,300 U.S. servicemen who were killed during the sneak attack on the U.S. naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

There are about 40 Pearl Harbor survivors alive today, he added, and 20 of them were expected to gather in Hawaii on Dec. 7 for the annual observance there. Five of those survivors served aboard the Arizona, though none were able to attend this year's ceremony.

Veterans Island Tree Lighting In Memory Of Bob Noble

TREE LIGHTING CEREMONY was held recently at Flags for Veterans Island in memory of World War II veteran and ex-POW Robert Noble. Mr. Noble was active for many years in veterans and civic causes. He passed away Aug. 7. He was 92 years old. Mr. Noble was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Army Air Corps, 87th Infantry "Golden Acorn" Division, U.S. Air Force Reserve, Ex-Prisoner of War and a Bronze Star recipient. The tree lighting was coordinated by the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post. The squadron maintains the island. Here members of the Noble family gather near a sign on the island that lists the tree lighting honorees. A wreath and two American flags were also placed near the sign. From left: grandaughter Julia White, son-in-law Roger White, daughter Andrea White, grandson Roger White, Jr., Mayor Tom Koch, son-in-law Charlie McLaughlin, daughter Nancy Noble, grandson and greatgrandson, Robert and Desmond Gardner; Paul Moody, commander, Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294; daughter Alicia Gardner, son Bob Noble, Jr., greatgrandson Andrew DeLisle, grandaughter Kathryn Noble, greatgrandson and grandaughter Nathan and Nancy DeLisle and grandaughter-in-law and greatgranddaughter Caroline and Quinn Gloria Gardner.

NQ Girls Basketball Bounces Charlestown

By PAUL BREGOLI

The North Quincy girls basketball team opened the 2018-19 season with a convincing win over Boston City League foe Charlestown 51-28 Friday at the Walter "Cap" Bryan gymnasium.

The Red Raiders struggled early to score before senior captain Mary Kate McAleavey hit a layup three minutes into the first quarter. North's defense was the catalyst for a run which reached 17 straight points in the first eight minutes. McAleavey led the attack with 9 points while senior captain Samantha Smith added 6 as the home team led 17-0 after one.

North substituted liberally in the second quarter but still held a 23-13 lead at the half. Junior Isabella Thong, freshmen Kiera Sleiman and Stephanie Huang did the scoring for the Red and Black while juniors Alexa Radzik and Olivia Murray were solid during the quarter.

McAleavey and Smith both helped boost North's lead to 41-20 at the end of three with McAleavey netting 12 points with Smith chipping in with 4. Junior Amanda Hellmuth added two free throws to round out the scoring. North continued to substitute in the fourth. Senior Gianni Dardy-Pires converted to offensive rebounds into points while freshman Jamie McAleavey chipped in with two layups. Ashley Caldwell hit a baseline jumper to complete the scoring.

Mary Kate McAleavey finished with a career high 21 points while Smith had 10 with 4 steals and 5 assists. Hellmuth, Dardy-Pires and Jamie McAleavey all finished with 4 apiece.

"Overall, I thought we played well with McAleavey and Smith providing us with great leadership as well as scoring," head coach Paul Bregoli said. "I thought Sleiman, despite only being a freshman, had a solid floor game and ran the offense well. We are a young, inexperienced team but I've seen a big improvement in their play since our first day.

"We play hard and we play together. We will continue to make progress and should be pretty good as we go along," Bregoli added.

The Red Raiders opened their Patriot League schedule on Tuesday against Hingham and then travel to Quincy on Friday in a 5:30 p.m. start. The Quincy and North Quincy boys basketball teams follow at 7 p.m.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to a legend – Members of the North Quincy High School girls basketball team signed and sent a card to Red Raider legend Mary Pratt who celebrated her 100th birthday Nov. 30. Pratt, a 1936 graduate of North Quincy High School, is a member of the school's Women's Athletic Hall of Fame, Boston University Hall of Fame and the Major League Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. She is a former pitcher who played from 1943 through 1947 in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League. Basketball players shown here (front row from left to right) Ashley Caldwell, Mary Kate McAleavey, Jamie McAleavey, Stephanie Huang and Alex Abrahomovich. Quincy College Granite Men's Basketball Making Strides Quincy College Granite men's basketball coach Doug Scott saw his young team come together for their best effort of the year in last week's 98 - 86 victory over Roxbury Community College.

This effort was led by Darrius Hyppolite from Bridgewater, who scored a career-high 38 points. Hyppolite is quickly becoming a player to watch as his play has improved steadily this season.

Also scoring for Quincy College Granite was Trahe Qualls of Dorchester with his first triple double of the year with 19 points, 13 rebounds, and 10 assists. Granite captain Jon DeVeiga of Boston followed with 20 points to round out the offensive showing.

Coach Scott praised the entire bench, especially the defensive efforts of Bryan Desire of Boston and Dion Bell of East Wareham.

Coming off this victory, Quincy College Granite faced Bristol Community College, where Granite played an even first half against the league leader despite missing a few players due to injuries, including point guard Walter Dew-Hollis from Dorchester. Faltering in the second half, Quincy College Granite lost 89-65 despite the strong play of team captain Jon DeVeiga and guards Trahe Qualls and Dion Bell.

The Quincy College Granite look forward to players returning from injured reserve entering a two-week stretch where they will play six tough NJCAA Region 21 opponents.

Next week the Granite will travel to Bunker Hill Community College and then Massasoit Community College before returning home for three games, starting Saturday, Dec. 15th. The home games held at Lahue Gym at Eastern Nazarene College will start by facing off against Holyoke Community College, then Gateway Community College, and finally Springfield Technical Institute, which will conclude the first half of the season.

Quincy College Granite's record now stands at five wins and six losses in NJCAA play.

Quincy College Granite home games are free and open to the public.

North Quincy High Reopens After Evacuation Monday

By SCOTT JACKSON

North Quincy High School re-opened Tuesday, one day after the building was evacuated when an expended smoke device was found inside the school's media center.

All students and staff were dismissed at 10:30 a.m. Monday after an expended micro-smoke device was found in the media center. The device was not expended inside the building, according to school officials.

Once the building was evacuated, Quincy police and school administrators performed an exhaustive sweep of the building that turned up no more additional devices.

"This sweep uncovered no more devices and the building is safe to re-open on the regular schedule for Tuesday," school officials said in a statement Monday.

Gardeners Mark 20th Anniversary Of Squantum Causeway Beautification

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum recently held a reception at the Nickerson Post in Squantum to commemorate the 20th Anniversary of the Causeway Beautification Project that the Garden Club, spearheaded by club member Sally Erickson, sponsored.

Twenty years ago there were 200 people who helped to plant the 5,000 daylily bulbs that beautified the Causeway leading to Squantum. Many of the original "planters" were in attendance at the recent reception.

There are some people who have tended their beds of daylilies for the past 20 years. They are Jane Shea, Jim and Marie Stamos, and Mary LaFlamme.

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

If anyone is interested in joining the Garden Club, which meets at the Nickerson Post at 9:30 a.m. on the second Wednesday of each month except the months of July and August, contact Membership Chairperson Mary LaFlamme at mplaflamme@gmail.com.

QUINCY AND STATE officials recently toured the Wollaston MBTA station, which is in the process of being rebuilt. The station is expected to re-open next August as initially planned. Pictured with various members of the project team are (front row, left to right): Frank Tramontozzi, an engineer for the city; Rep. Bruce Ayers; Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito; Mayor Thomas Koch; then MBTA general manager Luis Ramirez; and Sen. John Keenan.

The station opened in 1971 when Red Line service first came to Quincy, and not much about the facility changed prior to the current project, Keenan said.

"Not a whole lot changed at the station. The payphones are gone. They've got the kiosks where you can buy your Charlie Cards…but really the station looks the exact same," Keenan said.

Wollaston was the only Red Line that did not meet the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act, and its entrances were prone to flooding. The project now underway will address those issues, and make ingress and egress to and from the station smoother.

"Most of the entrance will be on the parking lot side. You'll come in, you'll go up and go over the tracks, then you'll go down into the middle of the platform. The elevator will bring you up to the middle of the platform in a different area too," Keenan said.

"When the trains come in, there will be two ways to come down and out of the station, which should ease the crowding that's been there in the past – everyone starts to funnel down one stairway…now there will be two ways, which will be great for flow of people coming off the train, and if there is ever an emergency situation you've got a much quicker way to get out of the station."

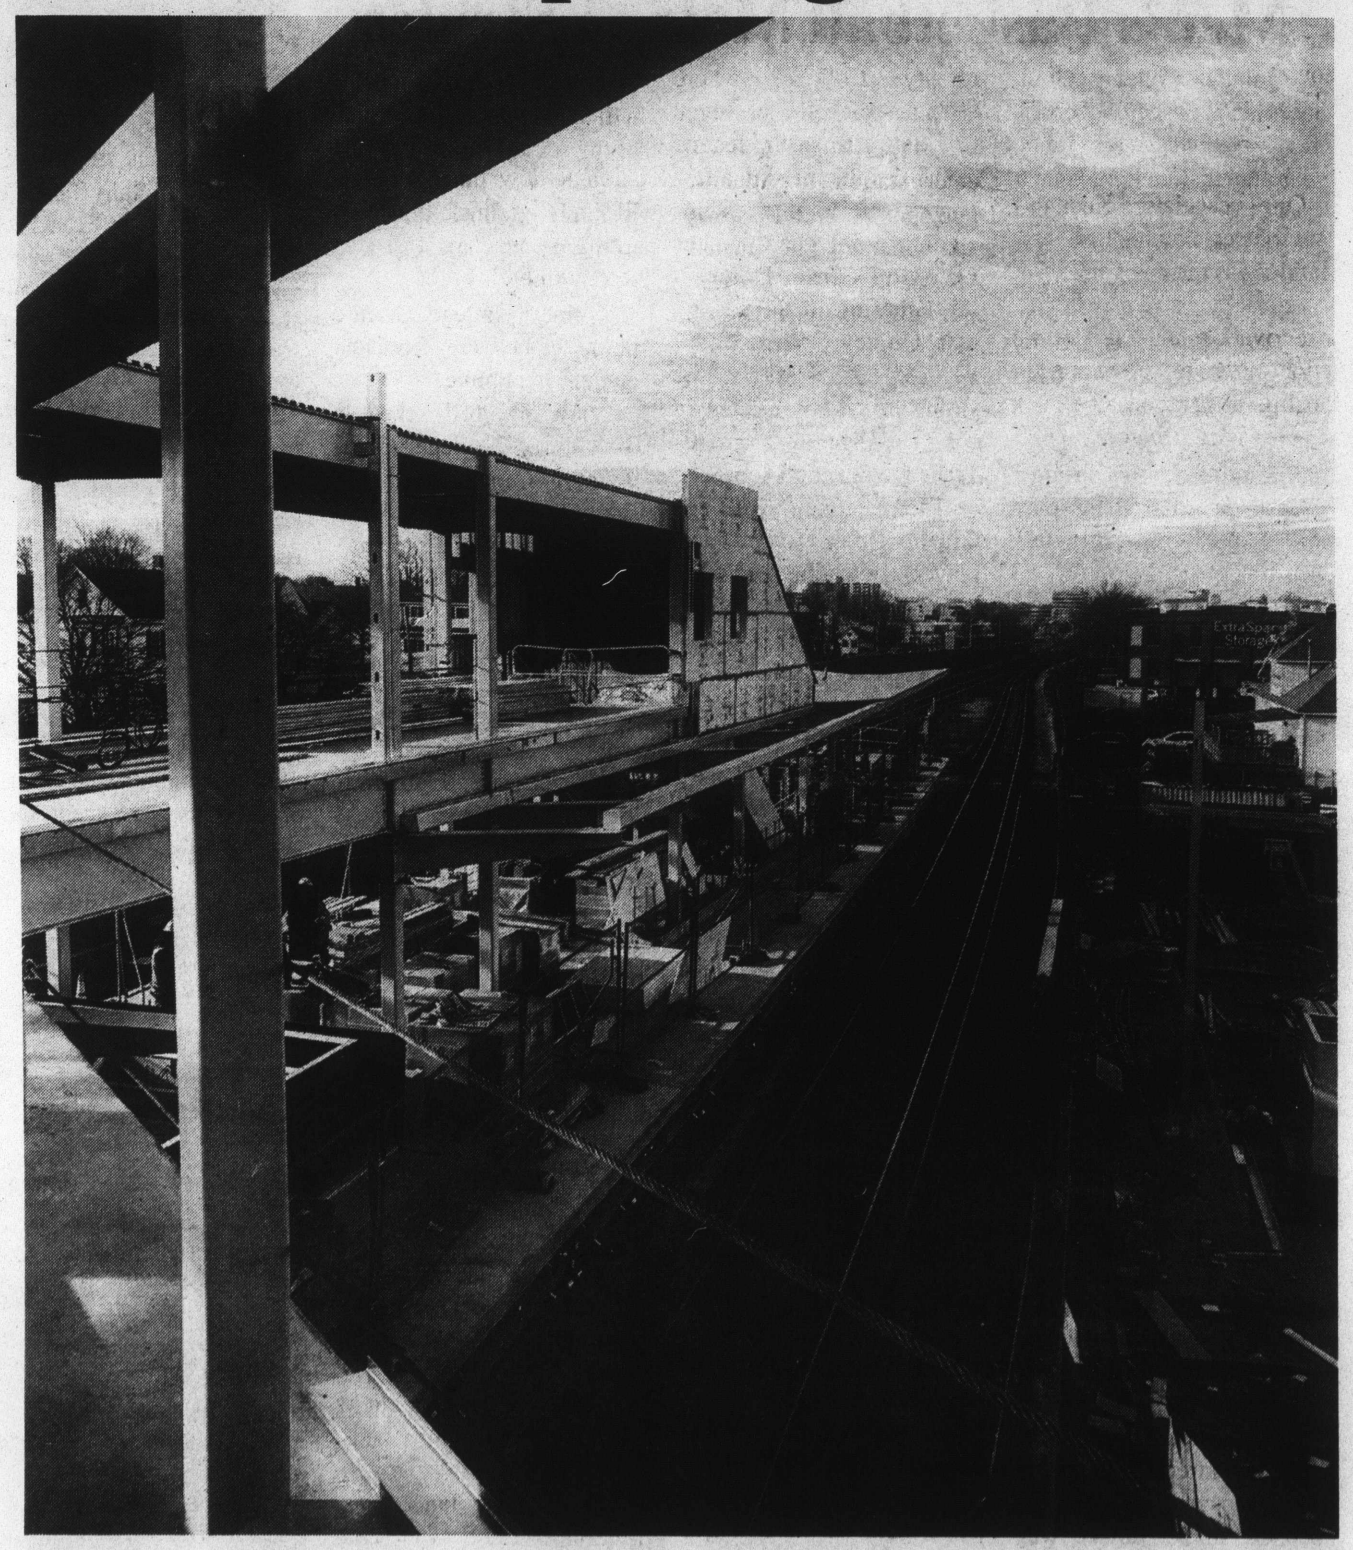
With the station closed for renovations, the MBTA has hired Yankee bus line to run shuttles in a loop between the North Quincy, Wollaston and Quincy Center stations. Keenan said the shuttle service has run well, and his office has not received a complaint about the shuttle buses in a number of weeks.

"Shuttle buses have run fairly well. We, at the outset, got a lot of people calling with some concerns about them. They had a lot of shuttle buses initially and the calls we got initially had to do more with people with carriages or people with disabilities trying to get on the buses, and that was resolved," Keenan said. "Then, as they got a better feel for how the program was working, they drew down on the number of buses and we got some calls from people saying the wait time seemed to have gone up, so we were in touch with the T and they adjusted.

"We haven't gotten a call from the T relative to the shuttle bus program, I don't think, in many weeks. If we got a snowstorm that could change overnight, but the shuttle bus system has worked pretty well."

"We put a lot of time into it," Keenan continued. "I can't tell you how many times I drove down Newport Ave with the timer on my phone and then did the loop and came down. I had a pretty good sense it was going to work. My suggestion to them was don't worry about Wollaston station to North Quincy station in the morning, it's going to be going down Hancock Street in the morning, and also going down Hancock Street at night, that's where you're going to get the traffic.

"People have gotten used to it. It's predicable. It's reliable. It's warm when it's cold out and it's cool when it's hot out. So it's worked pretty well.



VIEW FROM THE elevated walkway that will connect a new head house, located on the parking lot side of the Wollaston station, to the platform. Once complete, the project will provide elevator access to the platform for the first time.

"Yankee bus, my personal dealings with them have been very good and my office's dealings with them have been very good. Whenever we've had an issue they've been pretty responsive. I take the shuttle bus pretty frequently and I see them out there, and they seem to be doing a good job. And people have just adapted. People have been great. It's an inconvenience but they've just settled into it."

The senator also noted some people have been taking advantage of the shuttle system, which is free, to travel between Quincy's business districts.

"Some people are using the shuttle bus, interestingly, a little unrelated to the T," Keenan said. "They'll just get on the shuttle bus and go to Quincy Center because it's free and they don't have to pay. Rather than get on the platform and wait for a train and pay, they use the shuttle bus to get to Quincy Center. So that's been kind of interesting. Some students take it after school.

"It will be interesting when the shuttle bus program ends. We'll probably hear from some people saying 'can you do something similar – another bus system.'"

Keenan said it was unlikely the T could continue such a system after the station re-opens next summer because of the cost associated with it, but the transit agency could still make changes to the bus service already in place.

The closing of Wollaston station for the $33 million project was controversial when state officials first announced plans to do so, with some residents urging the T to keep the station open during construction. T officials, however, said keeping the station open would prolong the project and add to its costs.

One year later, Keenan said the decision to close the station was the right call.

"Initially, it was called a renovation and there was a lot of controversy about closing the station. I think people that have been watching it realize it wasn't a renovation – it was a complete and total reconstruction of the Wollaston train station, so I think the best decision was to close it and to get through it on time and on budget, which seems to be the case," Keenan said.

"Otherwise, this thing would have been going on for another two, two-and-a-half years and you wouldn't have predictable, reliable shuttle service, and you would probably have to throw the shuttle service into action periodically."

Wollaston is not the only station on the Braintree Branch of the Red Line that will see changes in the next several years. A mixed-use development is planned for North Quincy and the T is nearly done demolishing the garage at the Quincy Center station. The garages at Quincy Adams and Braintree will also be renovated.

The demolition of the Quincy Center garage, which was included in the same contract as the new Wollaston station, is nearly done.

"That's nearing completion," Keenan said of the Quincy Center work.

"We did have some issues with noise – some of the residents on Presidents Hill raised concerns about the jackhammering and we – the mayor's office and ourselves – worked with the T and the T scaled back the late night operation on jackhammering, which was great. The neighbors appreciated it and the work still continued along pretty quickly."

Last December, the MBTA awarded development rights at the Quincy Center station to Atlantic Development and Bozzuto Development. The firms' proposal to the MBTA featured 600 apartments, 225,000 square feet of office space, and at least 600 parking spaces. The developers planned to construct the project in three phases, with 300 apartments in each of the first two phases followed by the new office building in the final phase.

Koch and the City Council both approved the project that month, pursuant to a 1967 state law requiring both approve of any project taking place over the air rights above the MBTA tracks in the city; Atlantic's president, D.J. MacKinnon, told city councillors he would consider reducing the number of apartments on site ahead of the council's vote. The Quincy Planning Board has final say over the project.

Keenan, in the recent interview, said the plans for Quincy Center are still in the early stages.

"That came up when the lieutenant governor was here," Keenan said. "She asked what was next and the mayor said the Quincy Center garage is virtually demolished and that the process will start now with dealing with the development."

Atlantic and Bozzuto are also behind the plans for the mixed-use project at the North Quincy station, where they plan to build 610 apartments, 50,000 square feet of retail space and 1,600 parking spaces. The Planning Board approved that project in June 2017, and work on site could have started as early as this year.

Keenan said the developers are close to finalizing their contract with the T to develop the North Quincy station. The delay in the North Quincy project could be beneficial, he said, because the repaving of the parking lot at the Wollaston station – now underway – will likely be finished when parking spaces are lost at North Quincy.

"Timing-wise, it may work out better," Keenan said. "There was some concern that construction was going to start this October or November, and the Wollaston station parking lot would have been torn up and there are a few hundred spaces that are going to be lost at North Quincy during construction, so there would be questions, 'what are you going to do?'

"But it might work out that when the spaces are lost at North Quincy, the Wollaston parking lot will be open and available, and depending on the timing of the North Quincy one, [Wollaston] itself might be open."

The T began the project to renovate the Quincy Adams and Braintree garages last week. The T hopes to extend the lifespan of both garages, which opened in the 1980s, by 40 years.

T officials have said up to 300 spaces between the two garages – which have a combined 3,800 spaces – will be taken offline at any given point. The T added 88 spaces within the Quincy Adams property, and more than 300 outside the Braintree station, to mitigate the loss of spaces.

"There will be a juggling of parking spaces there as well, kind of on a weekly basis. But the MBTA resurfaced the surface parking lot at the Quincy Adams station, right on Burgin Parkway, so that will alleviate some of the parking issues," Keenan said. "And in Braintree, they're working with two offsite lots."

Last week also marked the opening of the Independence Avenue gate to the Quincy Adams station. Keenan said his office had yet to receive any feedback since the gate re-opened.

"It seems to be pretty quiet. I haven't gotten any feedback directly," he said. "I haven't talked to the mayor's office about it, but our office has been pretty quiet.

"I'm sure there will be ups and downs."

In addition to the work at the Red Line stations in Quincy and Braintree, the MBTA is in the processing of replacing its entire fleet of Red Line cars at a cost of $452 million. The T is also in the midst of a $186 million project to replace the signal system used on the line. Those improvements will allow Red Line trains to run on a more frequent basis, increasing the number of passengers that can be accommodated.

The T had a mock-up version the new Red Line car on display this summer at Boston's City Hall Plaza. Keenan said the new vehicles would be phased in over the next several years.

"It's going to be a phase in over the next three or four years of the cars," he said. "I don't want to say an end date because I'm not so sure the T has an absolute end date as to when they'll all be in service.

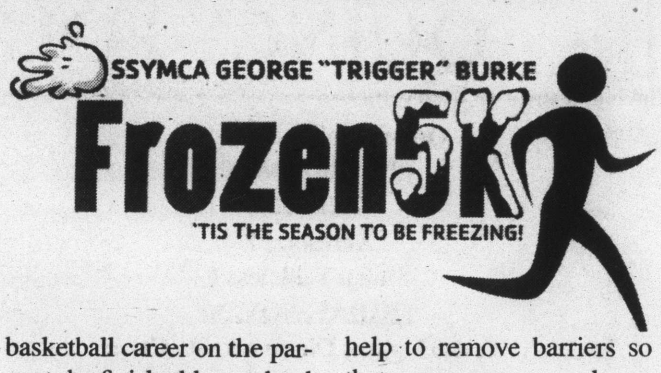
"And the signal work, part of the contract was awarded, I think, about a month ago…that work is proceeding."

The senator noted some of the Red Line trains that will be replaced are 40 years old.

"I don't think you can let them get that old again, otherwise you just go back to where we are now," Keenan said. "You can't let things get to that situation again."

YMCA Road Race Renamed 'George Burke Frozen 5K'

The South Shore YMCA's Frozen 5K road race has officially been renamed the "SSYMCA George "Trigger" Burke Frozen 5K." Burke and his family will be honored at the 2019 Frozen 5K on Jan. 6, 2019.



Burke has been a strong advocate for the South Shore Y over the years, and ultimately attributes this passion and the soft spot in his heart to the place that helped teach and instill his love for the sport which would forever change his life.

"When I was a young boy, I attended camp through the Quincy YMCA," said Burke. "I started playing basketball in that gym on Washington Street in the YMCA and ended up with the greatest team ever in the history of basketball. People ask me 'why do you give to the Y,' and it's simple. It's because they do so much good in our community."

A pro-level basketball player and esteemed lawyer, the former Quincy High, UMass and Boston Celtics player remains one of only a select few Minutemen to have his jersey number retired alongside names like Julius "Dr. J" Erving. Burke continued to rack up records while wearing green for his next team – the Boston Celtics. He's received a lengthy list of accolades over time including being named a second team All American, and first team All East, All New England, All Yankee Conference, and All Boston Garden.

After wrapping up his basketball career on the parquet, he finished law school and began his legal career. A former acting mayor of the City of Quincy and district attorney of Norfolk County, Burke went on to a successful law career.

He is recognized as a community leader and philanthropist throughout the Quincy and beyond and is still supporting causes that resonate with him in and around the city he loves.

"George is a community leader through and through," said Kathy Quigley, development director, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Branch. "He cares deeply about Quincy, and that every individual in our community has the opportunity to do better in their life. He's given so much of himself to so many, and his generous philanthropic efforts have touched more people than we'll ever know. George believes in the South Shore YMCA, and in the good we are doing in our community. He loves that people can use the Y as a catalyst to embrace their community, and that they receive opportunities here that they likely wouldn't elsewhere."

"The Y is a charity and generous donations like George "Trigger" Burke's help to remove barriers so that everyone can learn, grow and thrive," said Mary Orne, Vice President of Development, South Shore YMCA. "When you support the Y, your gift changes lives. No matter your level of involvement with the Y, you're helping to bring lasting change about for you and for those in your community."

To now have his name side-by-side with the Y and an event like the Frozen 5K means the world to Burke.

"It means everything to me because I believe that you've got to help others in life," Burke said. "You have to do things for others. You have to support those who have less than you. I have a little, and I made what I have right here in the city I love. It's only right to give it right back to the city and to organizations who help to do so much for our community like the South Shore Y."

The SSYMCA George "Trigger" Burke Frozen 5K will take place on Sunday, Jan. 6 at 9 a.m. To sign up for the road race, visit ssymca.org.

For details on sponsorship opportunities at the South Shore YMCA, contact Mary Orne at morne@ssymca.org or 781-264-9400 ext. 3506.

Elks 'Hoop Shoot' Contest

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" free throw contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls age 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate categories in both boys and girls divisions. Age groups are 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13. The contestant's age is determined by April 1, 2019.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws. The boys and girls in age group 8-9 will shoot from a line four feet in front of the regulation foul line.

The program will be supervised in neighbor gymnasiums by their Quincy Recreation Leaders assigned to their regular recreation programs in the area.

The program is free and contestants may participant even if not previously enrolled in the Recreation Program. Participants may choose any of the various times or sites to compete; however they may only compete in one Quincy qualifier.

The Quincy Lodge Hoop Shoot Chairman is Ed Miller, retired athletic director of Quincy Public Schools.

The first round of the Quincy Contest will be offered at the following gymnasiums at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, Dec. 15: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Beechwood Knoll, Central Middle, Merrymount, Montclair, Point Webster Middle, Snug Harbor and Squantum.

The program will be conducted on Monday, Dec. 17th at 3 p.m. at the Marshall School and on Tuesday, Dec. 18th at 6 p.m. at Atlantic Middle School.

For additional information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Tuesday, Nov. 27th, at approximately 9:15 p.m., Officer Paul Foley and his canine partner Charlie were on routine patrol when he observed a vehicle exit the McDonald's parking lot on Hancock Street and cross over three lanes of traffic (including a solid double yellow line) traveling north bound on Hancock Street. He pulled the vehicle over just prior to the Neponset Bridge and obtained the driver's Massachusetts license and registration identifying him as the registered owner.

The picture on the license matched the operator (and sole occupant). The officer returned to his cruiser and conducted a check of the operator's license and registration using his cruiser's Registry (RMV) computer. According to the Massachusetts RMV, both the license and registration were active. Recognizing that the operator's Social Security number was issued in Puerto Rico (PR), Officer Foley conducted a Puerto Rico driver's license check to make sure that license was in good standing. At this time Officer Tara Waters arrived on scene to assist.

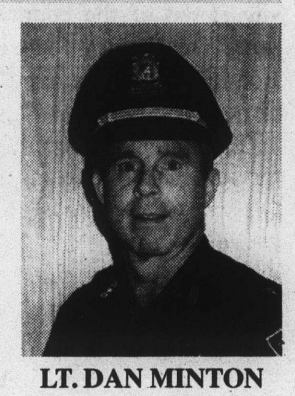
A short time later the officer received a response which confirmed the name, date of birth and social security number on the PR license as identical to the Massachusetts license; however it was clearly an entirely different person pictured on the PR license when compared to the Massachusetts license. When comparing the two photos side by side, the nose, mouth, and especially the ears of the PR license were all shaped very differently than the Massachusetts picture.

Detectives Donovan and Bossart arrived on scene and all officers agreed it was a different person in the PR picture. Through Officer Foley's training and experience, he knew the following:

A.) A Social Security number is similar to a finger print in that it is a unique identifier for people born in the United States or Puerto Rico.

B) A Social Security number and its accompanying Social Security card are highly sought after as it provides its holder with all of the rights and privileges of a U.S. citizen.
C) The Social Security Administration issues only one social security number (distinct nine digit identifier) per U.S. citizen.

D) The only possible explanation for two people using the exact same social security number is that one of them is the identity thief and the other is the identity theft victim.



LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Foley attended a course titled "Identifying Imposters" focusing on criminals who steal, counterfeit and/or purchase identities of others (passports, birth certificates etc) in order to procure legitimate government issued identification. The course explained how for many years now identity thieves have been committing fraud at the counters of Motor Vehicle Registries all over the country. They do this by purchasing counterfeit identity documents (birth certificates, other driver's licenses, passports etc) from "document dealers." They then utter these counterfeit identity documents to unknowing Registry employees (many of whom never receive training in identifying fraudulent documents). The identity thief then walks out the door of that State's RMV with a legitimate driver's license containing their picture but the identity theft victim's biographical information. These identity thieves then use these fraudulently obtained government IDs to open fraudulent credit accounts, obtain government subsidies and commit various types of crimes including drug and credit card crimes.

Although the male's English was sufficient, Officer Foley requested Detective Donovan (who speaks Spanish) to ask the male some basic questions regarding his identity. The male said that he was "37" years old, although his license said he was 36 years old. The man first said he was from the Dominican Republic but then said he was from Puerto Rico. He was unable to recall the address he lived at in Puerto Rico and listed on his PR license. Furthermore, the PR license had the height and weight listed as 5'6", 160 lbs. while the Massachusetts license is listed as 6'1", 200 lbs.

Officer Foley then showed the male the picture of the PR license and asked if he recognized the person in the picture to which he responded, "No." Detective Donovan then asked him in Spanish if he had ever seen that person in the picture before and again the man responded, "No - never."

Based on all information available, the Officer concluded that he had probable cause that the male stole the identity of the man on the PR license, who currently resides in Puerto Rico. The male then fraudulently obtained a Massachusetts driver's license and vehicle registration using that stolen identity. The 36-year-old male from Roxbury was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking on the charges of marked lanes, defective equipment, unlicensed operator of a motor vehicle, identity fraud, forgery, uttering, fraudulently obtaining a Mass. driver's license, false name to police, operating an unregistered/uninsured motor vehicle.

The male uttered the same stolen identity when he was arrested by Medford Police in 2016 for possession with iIntent to distribute heroin and cocaine. Both of those charges are open out of Somerville District Court.

As of the typing of this report, Officer Foley reported the man's true identity remains unknown but it is suspected that he is an undocumented illegal alien from the Dominican Republic. Some 2,670 Dominican Pesos were observed in his wallet along with a credit card with the name of B Nunez Guerrero. The male also had a Florida driver's license with the same stolen SS number and date of birth but a different variation of the name (Carlos Miguel Esquilin Gonzalez).

The male was released on $2,500 cash bail and is due back in court on Jan. 11, 2019. As of this writing, Officer Foley had reached out to Border Patrol Agents in Puerto Rico to contact the victim; however, due to the devastation from a recent hurricane it has been difficult to make the connection. Nice Work!

OBITUARIES

Pauline A. Scanlan Nugent

Funeral services for Pauline A. "Pau" (Russell) Scanlan Nugent, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, were held Dec. 7 in Christ Church Episcopal, Quincy.

Mrs. Scanlan Nugent died peacefully Dec. 4.

She was the beloved wife of the late Robert Nugent and the late Edward Scanlan.

She was the loving mother of four children; Gina Scanlan and her husband Will Smith of Quincy, the late Kevin Scanlan and his late wife Debbie, Paula McNally and her husband Don of Quincy, Nancy Scanlan and her partner Eddie McLaughlin of Quincy.

Mrs. Scanlan Nugent took great pleasure in spending time with and caring for her grandchildren: Ed Smith and his wife Marisa, Andrew Smith and his wife Erin, Stephen Smith-Berlinquet and his husband Dave, Kevin Scanlan, Lynsey Conway and her husband Jack, and Angela Grasso. She is also survived by six great-grandchildren, who she adored. Cherished aunt to many nieces and nephews and a wonderful friend to many.

She grew up in Dorchester with her parents, the late

PAULINE A. SCANLAN NUGENT

Peter and Molly (Bowe) Russell and her four siblings, Evie Hackett, Fran Doyle, the late Louise and Eddie Russell.

Mrs. Scanlan Nugent lived life to the fullest and her hobbies included going to the beach, playing cards, crossword puzzles, Scrabble, and having lively times with her friends and family.

The Rev. Clifford R. Brown, Rector, officiated the services.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Rosie's Place, Attn: Donations, 889 Harrison Ave., Boston, MA 02118.

Beverly J. Shores, 81

Funeral services for Beverly Jean (Snow) Shores, age 81, a longtime resident of Wollaston, were private.

Mrs. Shores died peacefully surrounded by her adoring family on November 3, 2018. She was 81 years old and died of complications from a stroke.

We are all trying to find our way with this significant loss in our lives. We will miss her great sense of humor, feisty personality, razor-sharp memory, beauty, and endless devotion to those she loved. She was a proud mother and grandmother.

She is survived by her only child, her loving daughter, Jennifer Shores, and her husband, Gilbert Carmichael, of Arlington, VA; her caring sister, Nancy Snow, and her husband, Robert Baird, of Berkeley, CA; and her loving and devoted partner of 33 years, Frank Hurley. She is the former wife of Alden Shores of Rockland. She had one grandchild, and was known as Bevy to her cherished granddaughter, Lee Alden Carmichael. She nurtured lifelong friendships and remained close to many of her childhood and high-school friends.

Mrs. Shores was born in Boston and raised in Quincy by her parents, Ida and Archibald Snow. She was a longtime resident of Wollaston Hill where she raised her own family. In her later years, she moved to Marshfield. She graduated from

BEVERLY J. SHORES

North Quincy High School in 1955 and later attended Quincy College. She was an active member of her high-school planning committee and enjoyed attending her class reunions. She was a member of Quincy's Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and also worked as an administrative assistant at Milton Hospital.

Fond family memories include her love of music and dancing, antiques, family history, plants, and pictures, letters and cards, which she cherished and held onto her entire life. Her family was from Canada and she spent many family vacations in Gunning Cove, Shelburne, Nova Scotia, at her family homestead and later enjoyed similar trips with her own family. We all hold those memories dear.

In lieu of flowers or donations, her daughter hopes you will give an extra hug to your mom or loved one and share with them how much you love them.

Norma S. Leo, 92

Funeral and interment services for Norma S. Leo, 92, of South Quincy, were private.

Mrs. Leo died peacefully at Seasons Hospice in Milton on Dec. 1 after a short illness.

She was born in Hartford, Conn., the daughter of the late Vito and Rina Spinelli. She graduated from Quincy High School in 1944. Mrs. Leo was the widow of the late Peter A. Leo, formerly from South Braintree.

She was extremely proud of her Italian heritage, played the mandolin for most of her life and enjoyed listening to all types of music, in particular, operas. Mrs. Leo was a student of world history and philosophy and enjoyed sharing her knowledge. She was especially proud of her grandsons, Alexander and Christopher.

Mrs. Leo is survived by her two sons, Peter M. and his partner, Sandra Moore, and Norman, his wife, Georgiajean and their sons,

NORMA S. LEO

Alexander and Christopher, all of Quincy, her sister, Camille Ameen, of Weymouth, a nephew, Sam Ameen, of Hollywood, CA, a niece, Cami Germaine, of Marshfield and a grand nephew, Vittorio (Vito), and grand niece, Alizeh (Ali).

Funeral arrangements were made by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Bernard Levitsky, 86

A funeral service for Bernard "Bernie" Levitsky, 86, of Quincy, will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

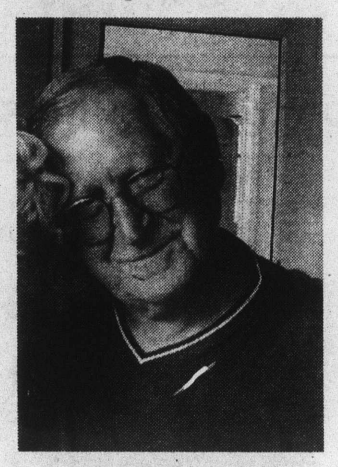
Mr. Levitsky died peacefully on the morning of Dec. 7 at the Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

He was the beloved husband of the late Jan B. (Prillo) Levitsky, who passed away on Oct. 11, 1997.

Born in Roselle, N.J., on June 29, 1932, he was the devoted son of the late David and Ida (Novy) Levitsky.

Mr. Levitsky graduated from Edison High School in Edison, N.J., as a member of the Class of 1950. Following high school, he proudly enlisted and served in the United States Air Force during the Korean War.

For many years, Mr. Levitsky worked as a systems analyst for Prudential Insurance Company for 27 years; he celebrated his well-deserved retirement in 1982. Mr. Levitsky was also a very proud blood donor with the American Red Cross.



BERNARD LEVITSKY

He was the cherished father to Andrew Levitsky and his wife Hayseon of Needham, Ruth Levitsky and her husband Edward Reed Smith of Quincy and the late Robert Levitsky. Treasured grandfather to David A. Levitsky of Somerville. Dear brother of the late Bessie Levitsky, Rosie Blum, and Celia "Sippy" Manderville. He also leaves behind many extended family members and loving friends.

Visitation will be held prior to the service from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may made to the American Red Cross, PO Box 37839, Boone, IA 50037-0839.

Barbara A. Nardone, 86

Funeral services for Barbara A. (Pangraze) Nardone, age 86, of Quincy and Lauderdale by the Sea, Florida, were held Monday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mrs. Nardone died peacefully Dec. 6 at Seasons Hospice Inpatient Center in Milton, in the comfort of her loving family.

She was born in Quincy to the late Robert and Helen (DeCoursey) Pangraze. She was a lifelong Quincy resident and enjoyed spending winters in Lauderdale by the Sea in Florida for thirty-three years.

Mrs. Nardone was a homemaker and an outgoing person who loved shopping and spending time with her family and friends. Most of all, she was dedicated to her family and especially to her three grandchildren.

Beloved wife for sixty-one years of the late Edward W. Nardone, Quincy Fire Department, Retired, who died in January 2017. Devoted mother of Edward R. Nardone, Quincy Fire Department, Retired and his wife Bobbie of Quincy and the late Robert P. Nardone. Cherished grandmother of John E. Nardone of Waltham, Matthew W. Nardone and Kristina L. Nardone both of Quincy. She is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

BARBARA A. NARDONE

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Season's Hospice Foundation, 1 Edgewater Dr., Norwood MA 02062.

Mabel London, 87

A funeral Mass for Mabel Kemp "Sis" London, 87, of Quincy was celebrated Monday in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mrs. London died unexpectedly at her home on Dec. 5.

Born in Quincy, she was the daughter of the late Captain James Walter Kemp (Ret. Quincy PD), and Mabel A. (McMahon). Mrs. London retired from Bank of Boston where she was the administrative assistant to the chief executive officer for many years. She enjoyed boating and horseback riding, and loved all animals, especially her own companions; her two Danny Boys who were cremated when they passed will share Mrs. London's casket and Misha, her current dog, and Doyle, her cat.

Mrs. London lived with diabetes and its effects for much of her life, and was honored with a commemorative medal from the Joslin Diabetes Center for successfully managing the disease for over 50 years.

She was the devoted mother of Brian K. London and his wife Tricia of Westwood; loving grandmother of Alex London of Worcester, and Jillian E. London and her fiancé Matthew Banks of Norwood. She was the sister of the late James "Wally" Kemp, and the aunt of Dana W. Kemp of Braintree. She was the former wife of the late Arnold London.

MABEL LONDON

Transport Your Tree Safely This Holiday Season

The only thing that should be flying this season are reindeer—not your Christmas tree from the roof of your car.

According to AAA research, an estimated 20 million Americans transporting a fresh holiday evergreen in the last three years did not properly secure the tree to their vehicles, risking serious damage and posing a road debris hazard to other motorists.

If your tree is not well secured, it can damage your vehicle's paint, tear door seals and distort the window frames – all of which could cost up to $1,500 to repair. In addition, if your tree lands on the roadway, it could pose a serious hazard to other motorists.

"An improperly secured tree, especially one that's transported on a vehicle without a roof rack, can compromise your own driving ability, and pose a serious distraction or road debris hazard to your fellow drivers," said Mary Maguire, director of Public and Legislative Affairs at AAA Northeast. "And motorists can face fines and penalties if a tree falls from the vehicle."

According to AAA research, road debris has been a factor in more than 200,000 crashes across the country in the last four years, and these crashes resulted in more than 39,000 injuries and 500 deaths.

To transport your tree safely and securely, AAA Northeast suggests:

• Secure your tree to a pickup truck bed, a vehicle roof rack, or inside an S.U.V. or other vehicle with all doors closed.

• If these options are not available, use a well-secured blanket or egg crate-type mattress to protect your vehicle's roof finish.

• Position the tree trunk toward the front of the vehicle on the roof rack or truck bed.

• Use a strong, good quality rope, heavy-duty twine or nylon ratchet straps.

• Secure the tree at its bottom, center and top. To prevent shifting, secure the tree to the fixed vehicle tie-down points if you can. Loop the tie-downs around the trunk above a lower branch.

• Wrap the tree in netting or plastic to make sure no loose tree limbs impede your vision or injure vehicle occupants.

• Use the tug test. Give the tree several tugs to ensure it's secure.

• Drive more slowly and take it easy with your steering, accelerating and braking. High speeds create significant air flow that can damage the tree and compromise even the best tie-down methods.

Take the back roads, if possible, and enjoy your holiday tree!

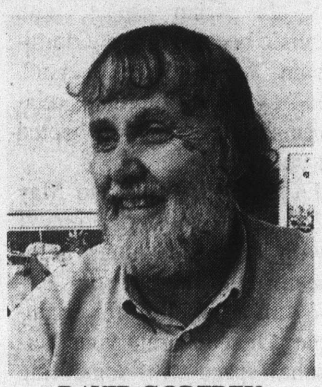
I Wandered Right Back To You!

By DAVID GODFREY



DAVID GODFREY

"Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess." (Deut. 5:33).

Seems pretty straightforward, right? Still, most of us have stories about when we decided to blaze our own trail. And if we're honest, I'll bet not many of those efforts ended up in the plus column.

Remember the parable of the Prodigal Son? "A certain man had two sons: And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living. And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living. And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want. And when he came to himself, he said, I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. . . . For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found" (see Luke 15:11-24).

Despite his blowing through his inheritance, being miserable, having to eat the husks the hogs ate, and then having to return to his father and confess what he'd done, his father (seen to symbolize our Father, God) was still right there waiting for him with open arms. That's the great thing about God. No matter how far we stray, He's always ready to welcome us home again. Now that's not to say that there aren't usually, first, lessons to be learned, and some of them hard, as that young man found out. But he was humble enough to admit his mistake and stop his aberrant behavior.

Mary Baker Eddy's primary work, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, says, " Evil is sometimes a man's highest conception of right, until his grasp on good grows stronger. Then he loses pleasure in wickedness, and it becomes his torment."

I did a bit of wandering myself. After having grown up attending a Christian Science Sunday School, like many young people, I felt I didn't need God to be happy or successful, so I set out on my own. After a relationship flamed out and with a general feeling of being directionless, I began staying out late and carousing with friends.

This behavior continued for a number of years until one morning I woke up feeling empty and that it needed to stop! A couple of weeks later I woke up with a strong inclination that I needed to return to my church. I thought, how could I do that?

I hadn't attended for years and was leery of the kind of welcome that might be waiting. Feeling this nudge was from God, however, I returned the next week and was welcomed with with open arms. That was over thirty five years ago. I remain an active church-goer, finding real joy in the different jobs that I've done, and I've loved being involved in and at our Sunday worship services and at Wednesday healing testimony meetings, and as an usher ready to welcome visitors.

Hymn 245 from the Christian Science Hymnal says, "We know, beloved Shepherd, The path that thou hast trod Leads ever out of darkness, And on and up to God. If from that path we wander, And far astray we roam, O, call us, faithful Shepherd, And bring us safely home."

David Godfrey is a Christian Scientist and has previously conducted worship services as First Reader of his church, served as the church's liaison with the public, and enjoys discussions on religion and faith.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The arts are a strong part of the Arian aspect, with music becoming more dominant. An important decision looms as a longtime relationship takes an unexpected turn.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Surrounding yourself with beautiful things helps restore the Taurean soul. Enjoy an art exhibit, for example. Or redecorate your personal space with something truly splendid.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Some colleagues might try to talk you out of what they insist is a risk, but which you consider an opportunity. As usual, follow your own good sense when making your decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A workplace change you might have worried about soon proves to be highly favorable for the clever Crab who is ready to take advantage of new opportunities opening up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. Your Leonine pride is polished to a dazzling new brilliance thanks to your success in winning support for your new project from even the most doubtful of detractors.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unsettling rumor about a colleague's apparently regrettable behavior is soon proved groundless, allowing you to enjoy the upcoming end-of-year festivities in a happy mood.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your success in helping to create a harmonious environment out of a chaotic situation earns you the admiration of someone who could become an important new presence in your life.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your Scorpion's sense of loyalty could find you leading a passionate defense of a loved one you feel is being unfairly treated. The week's end brings long-awaited family news.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your keen instincts are once more on high alert as you find yourself being pressured to make a quick decision about a certain matter. More facts come to light by week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) An unexpected workplace development could disrupt some family plans. A full explanation, however, averts domestic discord. A financial matter continues to need attention.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spend time away from distractions to reassess some recent moves that might not have worked out as you had hoped. What you learn could be invaluable for future decision-making.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A recent act of kindness is a reminder of how important your friends are to you. You might want to show your appreciation by hosting a special pre-New Year's party just for them.

BORN THIS WEEK: You always try to do your best, which sometimes causes you to be critical of those who don't live up to your standards.

War movie about a barber who repeatedly removes a GI's beard stubble: "Shaving Private Ryan."

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- What's happened to Hollywood? Are there too few new ideas? The latest reboot will be "The Saint," which began as a series of films from 1938-1941, with Louis Hayward, then George Sanders as Simon Templer. The TV series (1962-1969) starred Roger Moore (who went on to be 007 in seven James Bond films). In 1978 it was revived for TV with Ian Ogilvy, but lasted just one season. In 1997 it was resurrected as a film with Val Kilmer as "The Saint" and turned a nice profit. Last year a forgettable TV film was made starring Adam Rayner.

Now producers plan to bring Templer back to big screens again, with Chris Pratt as "The Saint." Pratt has "The Lego Movie 2" coming Feb. 8, "The Avengers" sequel due May 3 and "The Kid," with Ethan Hawke, Dane DeHaan and Adam Baldwin, opening sometime in 2019.

Also in production is "The Sopranos" prequel movie, "The Many Saints of Newark." Without Tony Soprano (James Gandolfini, who died in 2013), producers opted to focus on his uncle Dickey Moltisanti, who was often talked about but never seen in the HBO series. Rising star Alessandro Nivola ("Face/Off," "Disobedience") will play Moltisanti.

And if you're an "X-Men" fan, get ready. On June 7, "Dark Phoenix," with James McAvoy, Michael Fassbender, Jennifer Lawrence and Nicholas Hoult opens, followed by "New Mutants" (with a cast of unknowns) in August and "Gambit," with Channing Tatum, due out in March 2020.

Ryan Reynolds, who scored big with the "Deadpool 2" sequel ($735 million in grosses), has the title role as "Pokemon: Detective Pikachu," opening May 10. Reynolds is now shooting the Michael Bay film "Six Underground," with Dave Franco.

Sorry to report the passing last month of two longtime friends: Wayne Maunder (at age 82) and the always glamorous Frances Davis (89). Maunder starred in three TV series, as "Custer" (1967), "Lancer," with James Stacy (1968-70), and "Chase" (1973-74). It's ironic that Quentin Tarantino has cast former "Beverly Hills 90210" star Luke Perry as Maunder in the Leonardo DiCaprio/Brad Pitt film, "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood."

Frances Davis was the former wife of jazz legend Miles Davis, the subject of 2016's "Miles Ahead," with Emayatzy Corinealdi receiving critical acclaim as Frances to Don Cheadle's Miles. When I first met Frances she told me she'd been in the original Broadway cast of "West Side Story." I mentioned that I'd always wondered why Elizabeth Taylor was listed in the cast and she said, "That was me. I was Frances Elizabeth Taylor, but I had to change my name when I moved to Hollywood, there already was an Elizabeth Taylor!"

Remember friends and family during the holidays, laugh don't cry!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Paper Poster --- How can you tell if a paper poster is old or new? Many have been reproduced. Sometimes a magnifying glass helps. Reprinted posters usually have small dots visible when examined with a magnifying glass. If the original is a photograph, the copy is harder to spot. Look for extra words at the bottom. Original Currier and Ives prints have a title and perhaps a reference to the Library of Congress. Reprints from calendars have added titles mentioning the company. The calendar was not meant to deceive, but when the pictures are sold separately and framed under glass, it is easy to be fooled. Buy posters from a source you trust.

We started buying advertising art in the 1960s. One of our first buys was from the man who started "Desperate Enterprises," the company that later made millions of reproduction metal signs and paper posters used to decorate restaurants or family rooms. He sold us the famous "Satin Skin Powder" poster, which pictured a woman with a fan and packages of skin cream, for about $30. A few days later, he called and gave us a partial refund. He found a stack of mint-condition signs -- hundreds of them -- and cut the price. Today, there still are many original signs, as well as copies in many sizes.

This sign was made for the Alfred F. Wood Perfume Manufacturing Co. of Detroit. It started in 1883 and lasted until about 1910. The company made many cosmetics and perfume. The creams were advertised in newspapers as a cure for "cuts, burns, bruises, scratches and chaps." Samples were available. The original Satin Skin Cream sign is a chromolithograph and is 40 1/2 by 26 1/2 inches in size. Repros are smaller. An original should cost $250 to $450, while a large mounted and framed reproduction sells for about $100 to $200.

Q: My father has a group of very old telephones and even a 1910 operator's headset in very good condition. He wants to sell them, but is at a loss as to what they are worth. Any help would be greatly appreciated.

A: Old telephones sell at auctions and at antiques shows and shops. Prices vary depending on the age and style of the phone. Old rotary phones sell for $42-$135. Old wall-mounted crank phones sell for $75 to $120. Most will not work on a new phone line.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd who made the following sage observation: "The minute you settle for less than you deserve, you get even less than you settled for."

* A law in Memphis, Tennessee, states that it is illegal for a woman to drive a car unless a man walks in front of it to warn approaching motorists and pedestrians.

* Martha Stewart got her start in business by catering from her home.

* It takes 40 gallons of maple sap to make one gallon of the maple syrup you put on your pancakes.

* The Tom Thumb locomotive and Jell-O were invented by the same person.

* Ancient Egyptians often were buried with opium, boats and artificial limbs for use in the afterlife. And it wasn't unusual to have a model of the deceased's home included, as well -- just in case shelter was needed.

* England's Prince Philip was born on a kitchen table in Greece.

* The word "widget" was coined by an American humorist in the 1930s and referred to an imaginary gadget or machine. In the 1990s, however, widgets moved out of the realm of fiction when the makers of beverage cans invented a device that releases carbon dioxide to make foam after a can has been opened -- and they named it a "widget."

* In its entire lifetime -- four to six weeks -- a single worker bee produces a sum total of about 1.5 teaspoons of honey.

* North Carolina once outlawed cats and dogs fighting with each other.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Hairspray spritzed on the end of a thread will stiffen it long enough to get it through a needle head. You also can thread your needle in front of a surface that's an opposing color (i.e. a white piece of paper while threading a needle with black thread).

* Here's an interesting tip for getting Christmas tree resin or sap off your hands: Treat your hands liberally with hand sanitizer. If that doesn't work, try cooking oil.

* Want a fun way to clean road ice off the bottom of your car? If you catch a warm day, run a sprinkler under the car for a few minutes.

* "Three small words: Nutella hot chocolate! It's the best, and we love it at our house. Just stir a teaspoon of Nutella into your hot chocolate and get ready for heaven." -- T.F. in Missouri

* Freshen your pillows in the dryer for 10-15 minutes. Change your pillowcase at least once a week, and try a silk or silk-style pillowcase; they are easier on your hair and skin.

* "With four girls sharing one bathroom, we were stuck for space, and the vanity was always covered with bottles and jars of this and that! My dad installed a low shelf and gave each of us a bin for our things, and it helps to keep things organized. Now we can keep the vanity cleared off." -- Y.A. in Mississippi

ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT of the 'Tis the Season' concert was the performance by the combined NQHS Select Choir and QHS Horizons Choir directed by Timothy Carew (foreground) accompanied by pianist Ted Evangelista and the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

Never Forget' Pearl Harbor

morial is closed this year for repairs, Nicholson noted, but should re-open sometime next year.

Nicholson called the attack on Pearl Harbor a turning point in world history.

"As a famous Japanese admiral had said, Pearl Harbor wasn't a victory for the Japanese, because all it did was unleash a sleeping giant," Nicholson said. "The advancements that we made socially, economically, industrially and scientifically that we needed to defeat that evil took hold in a giant surge during the Second World War thanks to Pearl Harbor. That surge has never stopped.

"When we look back at what Pearl Harbor really represents, it was not just a tragic day in history. It's not just the memory of all those lives that were lost and families that suffered. It is a legacy to us today, because we benefit not just from freedom, but from the ongoing advances in all those areas – education and the four areas I just mentioned."

"Pearl Harbor proved that America is the greatest country on Earth," Nicholson added. "We still are, and we owe that to the men and women who gave their lives at Pearl Harbor."

Following Nicholson's remarks, Leo Reardon, a past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, and George Bouchard, the city's graves registration officer, raised the American flag at the monument from half-staff. Robert LaFleur, who is also a past commander of the QVC, then sounded Taps.

Nicholson concluded the ceremony by saying all American should remember Pearl Harbor.

"I'd like everybody to keep in mind…that there are 320 million of us who ought to be celebrating and remembering today," Nicholson said. "The importance of Pearl Harbor needs to be understood."

VETERANS AND LEADERS of local veterans organizations bow their heads during the invocation at the 77th anniversary observance of the attack on Pearl Harbor at Mount Wollaston Cemetery Dec. 7.

2018-19 Winter Parking Rules

October 15, 2018
through April 15, 2019

DURING A SNOW EMERGENCY:

- No parking is allowed on either side of Emergency Arteries. For a complete list of Emergency Arteries go to the DPW web site at quincyma.gov.
- Residents on non-emergency side streets are allowed to park on the EVEN numbered side of the street this winter season.

Residential parking permits are void during snow emergencies.
Overnight parking on the street is prohibited without a residential parking permit which is available at the Quincy Police Department, 617-479-1212.
The average tow fee is $125.00, plus cost of storage.
To find out if a snow emergency has been declared call 617-770-7669, log into quincyma.gov or tune into QATV cable channels 8 and 9.

There is no curbside collection of trash on Tuesday, January 1, 2019. Collection for the week is delayed one day.
The DPW is closed on Tuesday, January 1, 2019 for the New Year holiday.

Christmas trees are collected curbside on your trash day from December 31, 2018 through January 11, 2019.

Trees with lights, decorations or wrapped in plastic bags will NOT be collected.

Be a Good Neighbor!

Keep your sidewalk and steps clear of snow and ice for the mail carrier and police and fire fighters. Don't force school children to walk in the street. Help your elderly neighbors to shovel.

There are 9,329 catch basins in the city. Clearing catch basins near your home or business will allow rain or melting snow to enter the drainage system and not flood the street.

There are 2,549 fire hydrants in the city. Don't pile snow to obstruct a fire hydrant. In the interest of safety, clear and shovel out nearby fire hydrants.

Thank You!

The DPW Yard

The rear yard is open year-round, weekdays through Friday from 7:30 am to 3 pm to accept yard waste, recyclables, appliances, scrap metal, textiles, books, CDs and electronic products. The rear yard is closed on Saturdays until [illegible].

Yard waste bags are collected curbside on your regular trash day. You must call 617-376-7556 at least one day before your regular trash day to schedule pick-up.

Toilets, and construction demolition debris are not collected curbside. Arrange for a private contractor to dispose of construction debris. Call Willard's Disposal at 617-413-3275.

Jack Cadegan Takes Reins As City's 15th Fire Chief

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's new fire chief said the safety of the city's residents and firefighters, and training for those firefighters, will be his top priorities after being handed the reins of the department Monday.

Jack Cadegan, 63, was sworn in as the 15th chief of the Quincy Fire Department during a brief ceremony Monday morning in the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Government Center. Cadegan is a 33-year veteran of the department and spent the past four years as a deputy chief under Joseph Barron, who served as chief for 10 years before retiring in July.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo swore in the new chief as more than 100 firefighters – current and retired – looked on. Cadegan's wife, Karen, then pinned her husband with his new badge. Cadegan choked up as he signed his name in the city's register after taking the oath of office.

After being sworn in, Cadegan said the safety of citizens and firefighters would be his chief concern as the head of the fire department. Cadegan noted the recent death of Christopher Roy, a 36-year-old Worcester firefighter who died earlier this month after being badly in-

EMBRACING BRACELETS

If there has been one fashion trend that would be difficult to miss from fashion runways to city streets to suburban settings, it is the layering and stacking of wrist wear. Whether they are bangles, cuffs, or bracelets, these pieces need not match in terms of style, material, color or design. In fact, the more diverse the selection of multiple bracelets is, the more chic the look is considered to be. So, go ahead and mix bold, chunky, silver cuffs with gold chain bracelets, strings of beads or pearls, diamond bracelets, enamel bangles, acrylics and/or leather straps. The more eclectic the mix, the more the combination of wrist wraps says about you and your personal style.

Selecting any piece of fine jewelry should be based on one criteria-personal taste. Whether you're choosing a wardrobe of bracelets as fashion accessories, a very special necklace, or a dazzling pair of diamond earrings, you'll want to shop where you can trust the knowledge and count on the integrity of those who serve you. For all your fine jewelry needs, you can always rely on Rogers Jewelry. Easy to find at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, we are licensed and regulated by Massachusetts State Law to buy and sell as well as offer cash loans on gold, platinum and other types of jewelry. SPREAD HOLIDAY HAPPINESS...FREE!

Who says you have to spend money to have a memorable holiday? Give these a try – they're fun... and free!

Mend a quarrel. Keep a promise.
Gladden the heart of a child. Listen.
Seek out a long-lost friend. Give a soft answer.
Do a good deed anonymously.
Think before you speak. Apologize if you were wrong.
Share a treasure. Try to understand.
Let someone else go first. Welcome a stranger.
Appreciate the beauty and wonder of the earth.
And, while there's time, let people know you're glad they're in your life.
That's the greatest gift of all.

Here's where we take our own advice:
To all our Colonial Federal customers & friends, thank you!
We appreciate you more than you will ever know.
From each and every one of us, happy holidays and a healthy, prosperous New Year to you and yours.

SNUG HARBOR SCHOOL fifth grade students

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season . .

Fifth grade students in Quincy's public schools and the Quincy Catholic Academy were invited again this year to write the answer to one question for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

This year's theme is: "If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We want to thank Erin Perkins, Quincy Public Schools' director for Elementary Curriculum and Programs for for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Catherine Cameron, principal of the Quincy Catholic Academy, for her assistance, too.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings. Thank you all, most sincerely.

Robert Bosworth
Publisher, The Quincy Sun

For Christmas, I would give the people in Quincy who are homeless a place to stay and help them get better if they are sick, I would make sure they are well and ready to leave when they are ready.

Aaron Earnest
Atherton Hough

What I would give to others is books for kids who want to read so they can learn new things.

Angelica Chandler
Atherton Hough

I would give some food and toys to the animal shelter.

Angelina Bennett
Atherton Hough

I would give a lot of clean water to people who do not have water that is safe.

Brody Vando
Atherton Hough

This holiday season I would like to give food to people that really need food that haven't had food in days. That is what I would want to give to people.

Daniel Tatem
Atherton Hough

I would give clothes to homeless people because some of my clothes do not fit me or my sister so I will give them to the homeless people.

Destiny Monteiro
Atherton Hough

I would give some people tents and food because in the winter they will freeze and I will give them food because if they don't eat they will not live.

Emma Wood
Atherton Hough

If I could give one gift this holiday season it would be games and toys for kids that are sick in the hospital because I know I would be VERY bored sitting around in a bed during Christmas.

Evan Walsh
Atherton Hough

I would give warm clothes to people who need it in the winter. No one deserves to be cold in winter.

Bella Diaz
Atherton Hough

This holiday season I would give the gift of health, to people who cannot celebrate Christmas with family happily to people that deserve it.

Jake McKenzie
Atherton Hough

If could give one gift this holiday season, I would give kids in need toys. I would give toys because most of the homeless kids don't have toys or I would give them stuffed animals to keep them company at night and to sleep with.

Joseph MacNeil
Atherton Hough

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be warm clothes for people that don't have them. I would give them warm clothes because in the winter it gets really cold and some people don't have shelter or warm clothes and they freeze.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On Jan. 4, 1785, the older of the two Grimm brothers, Jacob, is born in Hanau, Germany. His brother Wilhelm is born the following year. As young men, the brothers published "Children's and Household Tales," later known as "Grimm's Fairy Tales," in several volumes between 1812 and 1822.

• On Dec. 31, 1879, in the first public demonstration of his incandescent light bulb, American inventor Thomas Alva Edison lights up a street in Menlo Park, New Jersey. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company ran special trains to Menlo Park in response to public enthusiasm over the event.

• On Jan. 5, 1933, construction begins on the Golden Gate Bridge, as workers began excavating 3.25 million cubic feet of dirt for the structure's huge anchorages. The bridge officially opened on May 27, 1937, the longest bridge span in the world at the time.

• On Jan. 1, 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill issue a declaration, signed by representatives of 26 countries, called the "United Nations." The signatories vowed to create an international postwar peacekeeping organization.

• On Jan. 2, 1962, an appearance by The Weavers on NBC's "The Jack Paar Show" is canceled when band members refuse to sign an oath of political loyalty. The folk group saw their careers nearly destroyed by the anti-communist Red Scare of the early 1950s.

• On Jan. 6, 1975, some members of a large crowd in line to buy tickets to the rock band Led Zeppelin break into the Boston Garden arena and cause $50,000 in damage. In response, Boston's mayor Kevin H. White bans the band from Boston for five years.

On Jan. 3, 1987, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame admits its first female artist, Aretha Franklin. Since then female inductees have included The Supremes, Janis Joplin and The Shirelles.

Squantum Seaside Gardeners Host Tree Lighting Ceremony

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum recently hosted their annual Tree Lighting Ceremony at the Gilbert Memorial Park in Squantum.

Hot chocolate and cookies were provided by the Garden Club and Santa arrived on a fire truck courtesy of the fire department in Squantum.

Carols were sung, children frolicked about, and a good time was had by all.

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum is a member of The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts as well as the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

Anyone interested in joining the Garden Club should contact Mary LaFlamme, the membership chairperson, at mplaflamme@gmail.com. The club meets the second Wednesday of the month at the Nickerson Post in Squantum at 9:30 a.m.

Scenes From Yesterday

MERRY CHRISTMAS from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States. 85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS 1934 POSTCARD is a view of the Christmas tree erected by the Retail Merchants Bureau of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. It was in front of the Granite Trust Bank building now home to a branch of the Bank of America at 1400 Hancock St. Two weeks before this tree was lit a smaller tree was dedicated on the same spot, but it was toppled by a 55-mile-per-hour gale. MIT engineers brought in to prevent a reoccurrence claimed this new 85-foot tree could withstand winds to 240 mph. The first 60 feet of the trunk, set firmly into the ground, was the boom from a derrick donated by the Swingle Quarry Co. It was capable of lifting 20 tons of granite. On top of the boom was attached a 25-foot real tree. Three hundred and twenty smaller trees salvaged from the collapsed tree were inserted into holes drilled into the boom to served as the lower branches. Six nearly one-inch thick cables secured the tree from all sides, and some 600 lights accompanied a large and small star that flashed alternately at the top. On the occasion of the tree lighting, a spectacular scintillator on top of the bank building threw a great fan of light in all colors more than a mile into the sky. Inside the bank the lobby and all the building's windows were lighted each day with over 1,200 real vigil candles. Howard Johnson's Restaurant was the store on the left at One Chestnut Street. On the right at 1402 Hancock St. was Homer's, a jewelry store that in 1940 became Roger's Jewelry Company and is still in business today as Rogers Jewelry. This postcard has become a tradition in The Quincy Sun and is appearing for the 24th year.

Sheets Win House Seat In Special Election

City Councillor James A. Sheets easily won Quincy's Fourth Norfolk District state representative's seat in the Dec. 16 special election.

Sheets, the Democratic nominee, polled 2,727 votes to top American Party candidate Joseph Killion, who had 1,149 votes – a margin of victory of 1,578 votes. Councillor John Lydon, running as an independent candidate, was third with 1,109 votes. Marilyn Hanabury, another independent candidate, polled 246 votes.

The vacancy was created when Gov. Michael Dukakis appointed Rep. William D. Delahunt Norfolk County district attorney.

HANNON TAKES SOUTH CHAMBER JOB

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who lost his bid for re-election to a third term in November, will begin a new career in January, heading up the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Group.

Hannon will succeed attorney Harold David, a School Committee member who made an unsuccessful bid for councillor-at-large.

Eric Swider, executive vice president of the chamber, made the appointment of Hannon and incoming chamber president Jack Conway made the formal announcement.

LaRAIA MAY REMOVE SOME DOWNTOWN PARKING METERS

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia said his administration will investigate the possibility of removing some of the parking meters in Quincy Square to entice more shoppers to the business district.

Speaking at a special South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting, LaRaia pledged to maintain constant concern with the business community, in an effort to represent that community as fairly and equitably as possible.

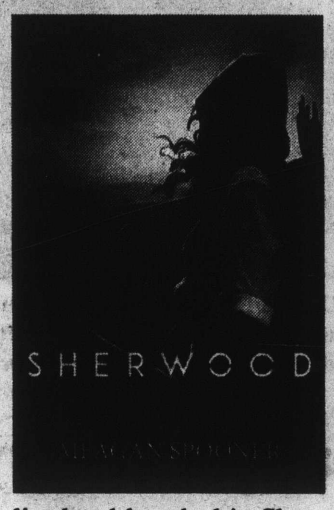
The Fine Print Review: 'SHERWOOD' By Meagan Spooner

By BETH VACCA



Recreating the wheel has never been more fun. There is a genre I have been devouring lately where authors are retelling classic fairy tales. Some are still set in days gone by while others are modern day retellings. Heroes and villains. Princes and princesses. The hunter and the prey. I can not put them down. Generation after generation have enjoyed these tales. We are drawn to good conquering evil. We love when the underdog triumphs or when someone comes along and challenges the status quo.

You would think because you have heard some version of these fairy tales during your lifetime that you would know how these stories end, but you would be wrong. As Meagan Spooner writes in her soon to be released young adult novel SHERWOOD, "no one would ever tell the tale exactly right, for no one person knew the whole truth even before the details began to slide away into the shadows of memory."

In the prologue we learn that Robin of Locksley is dead. Wait, what? I told myself that this was written to mislead me. That this will still be a "knight in shining armor" story and the people will have their hero, the maiden will have her love and justice will prevail over the unjust laws of the land. And although Netflix has me pegged as someone who watches movies with "strong female leads" I still wanted the rebel outlaw to steal from the rich and give to the poor!

Spooner flips this story on its head and the only disappointment I had was in myself for thinking that the heroine in this story wasn't strong enough in her own right.

"But some things about the story would never change. Robin Hood was always quick and fearless, and devoted to his people. He could shoot faster and truer than any man, and was clever enough to outwit his enemies at every turn, He lived and breathed in Sherwood Forest, and made the woods his home, and if ever captured, he would always escape. And his heart, always, belonged to Marian." So true. But not for the reasons you may think.

This is a book for all the young women in your life. Marian is a strong female lead. She is athletic and talented with a bow and sword. She is brave and smart and stubborn while still a caregiver, empathetic, loving and kind. Marian shuns the role of women in her society while not despising her womanhood. She sees the big picture, but is unable to watch as those around her suffer. I hope Spooner's version makes it to the big screen. I will be first in line to watch Marian in action.

Peanut Butter Cookies With A Twist

By MARIE

Last week when I started to bake peanut butter cookies using a recipe that has just 3 ingredients, I decided to add a little bit of molasses to the recipe to see what the results would be.

The first batch I made took a little longer to bake because of the consistency with the added molasses, so I baked them an additional 5 to 10 minutes longer and they were fine.

Pre-heat oven to 350 – Lightly grease a cookie sheet or line with parchment paper

RECIPE:

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
1 cup of peanut butter
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

In a bowl place the sugar with molasses and mix together. Add the egg, the cup of peanut butter, ginger and nutmeg and mix until all ingredients are well blended.

Spoon mixture onto the prepared cookie sheet. (If you want a small cookie then use a teaspoon to place the batter on the cookie sheet. I used a tablespoon because I like a larger cookie and it still made a dozen.)

Bake for 15 to 20 minutes and cool on a wire rack.

Herbed Quinoa Stuffing With Squash, Cranberries And Roasted Chestnuts

By SUSIE

Here is a recipe that I prepared when I was on WBZ as the "nutrition expert" some years ago. I still make it every holiday but I also make it on cold days.

Rather than a stuffing loaded with bread, how about a stuffing that uses quinoa as the main ingredient? Tastes so good, you wont miss the classic bread stuffing. Adds fiber and protein, as well as some important nutrition, and much easier to digest.

Serve it any time with some roasted chicken and a nice salad.

Herbed Quinoa Stuffing With Squash, Cranberries And Roasted Chestnuts

Ingredients

One bag or box of quinoa (16 ounce box)
6 cups organic chicken broth
2/3 cup dried cranberries soaked in boiling water for 15 minutes (apple juice infused, not sweetened with sugar)
1/4 cup liquid from soaked cranberries
3 Tablespoons olive oil
1 package chopped butternut squash
1 cup diced onion
2 large stalks celery
1 cup chopped carrots
1 cup chopped roasted chestnuts (Jarred ones are best)
3 Tablespoons combined chopped fresh sage, chopped fresh thyme, and chopped fresh rosemary or marjoram)
About 2 -3 teaspoons Redmonds Real salt or Trocamare /Herbamare seasoned sea salt
Pepper
Sprigs of rosemary for garnish
1/4 cup fresh chopped parsley
1 tsp real maple syrup

Directions

Cook the quinoa in the broth according to package directions. Cover and set aside. While quinoa is cooking, roast the squash until slightly browned and soft. Season with some salt and pepper, and toss in 1 teaspoon real maple syrup.

In a saute pan, saute onions, celery, and carrots until lightly browned and softened, about 10 minutes. Add the fresh herbs and soaked cranberries and cook another few minutes. Add the 1/4 cup juice from the soaked cranberries and the chestnuts. Combine all of this with the squash and quinoa in pot and stir until combined. Mixture will be a bit mushy, and this is perfect. Taste for seasonings. May need a bit more sea salt.

Place in greased casserole pan (I separate this recipe into 2 pans, freeze one and have the other for the big day! but you may need both) Top with a Tablespoon of pasture butter on each pan. If using one pan, use both Tablespoons. (Pasture butter is a healthy form of butter made from cows that are grass fed.

Excellent health benefits and many experts agree in small amounts, is a wonderfully healthy alternative to inferior oils and margarines.)

Bake at 350 covered with foil for about 40 minutes until sizzling and a good consistency. Serve hot. Great reheated also! Can be made in advance and frozen, if needed.

Quincy Native Producing TV Segments For Tampa - St. Pete - Sarasota PBS

Quincy native Frank DiCesare, president and CEO of Oskar Films in Sarasota, Fla., announces that he has signed a service agreement with WEDU to produce segments for the station's weekly program, Arts Plus.

WEDU is the PBS station for the Tampa, St. Petersburg and Sarasota region, a market ranked at number 11 in the 2019 Nielsen rankings of Designated Market Areas.

"I am honored to join WEDU's stable of freelance producers for its Arts Plus program," DiCesare said. "The Tampa, St. Pete and Sarasota area is filled with first-rate artists in every genre imaginable. I look forward to covering their stories for WEDU's audience."

DiCesare's first segment for Arts Plus, "The Juggling Doctor" aired on Dec. 6. The segment features Dr. Dan Cousin, a Harvard-educated radiologist in Tampa who is also an internationally-recognized juggler. Cousin often uses his juggling talents at work to entertain children. You can watch the segment at www.wedu.org/artsplus.

According to its website, WEDU airs PBS programs for viewers in 5 million homes throughout southwest Florida's 16 counties.

Norweigan Honorary Consul Guest At Choral Society Concert

Norwegian Honorary Consul Terje Korsnes was guest of honor at a concert given by Quincy Choral Society Dec. 9.

Korsnes attended the concert with his wife and a guest. The concert, entitled "A Nordic Winter," featured music from Norway.

Korsnes presented music director Joshua Rohde with a copy of an extensive biography about composer Edvard Grieg, the father of Norwegian music. The book, from Mr. Korsnes' personal library, is one that he has enjoyed for many years and wanted to share.

Dr. Rohde, himself of Norwegian descent, programmed the music to feature the rich variety of Norway's music. Highlights included string selections by Edward Greig, as well as choral music by living contemporary composers Kim Andre Arnesen and Ola Gjeilo. Arnesen's "Even When He Is Silent" was dedicated to the memory of Lucien Fernand "Luc" Theberge, who died Nov. 23, after injuries sustained in a car accident. He was 18.

Luc was a dedicated member of Boy Scout Troup 42, which meets at East Congregational Church where Quincy Choral Society rehearses. The lyrics of "Even When He Is Silent" are based on a poem written on the wall of a World War II concentration camp and are as follows: "I believe in the sun even when it's not shining. /I believe in love even when I feel it not. /I believe in God even when He is silent."

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, at Carnegie Hall as part of the Masterworks Series, and most recently in Montreal and Quebec. In September, the Chorus participated in the Dedication of the Hancock - Adams Common.

For additional information about future concerts, visit us at quincychoral.org and "Like" us on Facebook.

Recreation Department Offering Supervised Lego Workshops

The Quincy Recreation Department will offer Lego workshops during the month of December including the Christmas school vacation for boys and girls in kindergarten through grade three.

This workshop will offer children the opportunity to participate with others with Legos. Children will create and build with Lego toys in both individual and group projects.

The workshops will be conducted in the Community Room of the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex located at One Merrymount Parkway. The cost of the program is $20 for a three hour session and will include the Legos, supervised instruction and a snack. The sessions are:

Workshops will be held: Saturday, Dec. 15 and Saturday, Dec. 22 from 9 a.m. to noon; and Thursday, Dec. 27, Friday, Dec. 28 and Saturday, Dec. 29th from 9 a.m. to noon.

Enrollment will be limited and a minimum number will be needed for each session for proper group activities.

Supervision will be provided by members of the Quincy Recreation Department staff and participants will also be guided in related Lego activities such as design challenges and games. Safety And Effectiveness Of CBD Oil

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Cannabidiol (CBD) oil has become the new trend. The non-intoxicating marijuana extract is being acclaimed as therapy for a myriad of medical issues. People ingest or apply CBD to treat a variety of symptoms, but its use is debatable. Though it may have some health benefits, it may also pose risks.

CBD is one of several compounds in the cannabis plant. CBD oils are oils that contain concentrations of CBD. The concentrations and the uses of these oils vary. The least processed form of the cannabis plant is hemp.

Hemp contains the majority of the CBD that people use medicinally. Hemp and marijuana come from the same plant, Cannabis sativa, but the two are very unalike. Over the years, marijuana farmers have bred their plants to contain high levels of THC. However, hemp farmers have seldom modified the plant. These hemp plants are used to produce CBD oil. Agricultural or industrial hemp was legalized in the U.S in 2014 with the Farm Bill. The term industrial hemp includes the plant Cannabis sativa L. and any part or derivative of such plant, including seeds of such plant, whether growing or not, that is used exclusively for industrial purposes (fiber and seed) with a tetrahydrocannabinols (THC) concentration of not more than 0.3 percent.

Marijuana is comprised of both THC and CBD, and these compounds have diverse effects. CBD is extracted from the flowers and buds of marijuana or hemp plants. It does not produce intoxication; marijuana's high is caused by the chemical tetrahydrocannabinol (THC). THC creates a mind-altering high when a person smokes it or uses it in cooking. This is because THC breaks down when we apply heat and introduce it into the body. CBD is different; it is not psychoactive and does not change a person's state of mind when they use it.

All cannabinoids, including CBD, produce effects in the body by connecting to certain receptors. The human body creates particular cannabinoids on its own. It also has two receptors for cannabinoids, called the CB1 receptors and CB2 receptors. Many CB1 receptors are in the brain. These receptors deal with coordination and movement, pain, emotions, and mood, thinking, appetite, and memories. THC attaches to these receptors. CB2 receptors are more common in the immune system and affect inflammation and pain. CBD does not appear to attach to either receptor, instead directs the body to use more of its own cannabinoids.

Proponents of CBD say that its benefits assist with; natural pain relief and anti-inflammatory properties, anxiety disorders, Alzheimer's disease, and the FDA approved the use of CBD as therapy for two rare conditions characterized by epileptic seizures in 2018. Recommended dosages vary and depend on factors such as body weight, the concentration of the product, and the medical issue.

Many limited studies have investigated the safety of CBD in adults. However, there is still a lack of available long-term safety data and researchers have not performed studies concerning children. The FDA has only approved CBD for the treatment of two forms of epilepsy. Without FDA approval, it is difficult to ascertain if a product contains a safe or effective level of CBD.

Unapproved products may not have the properties or contents listed on the packaging, while studies on CBD also have raised concerns about possible interactions with other drugs, as well as the effect of trace amounts of THC on drug tests.

There is also some indication that CBD may harm the liver, as studies have indicated about 10% of people taking CBD had an increase in their liver enzymes. The CBD industry also benefits from minimal regulatory oversight as CBD products, including oils, salves and body lotions, can be purchased in wellness stores, smoke shops and even some gas stations across the state.

A 2017 study led by the University Of Pennsylvania School Of Medicine found that nearly 7 of 10 CBD products didn't encompass the amount of marijuana extract promised on the label. Nearly 43% contained too little CBD, while about 26% contained an excess. Alarmingly, about 1 in 5 CBD products contained the intoxicating chemical THC.

The consumer group that is emerging the quickest is the over 60 crowd who are utilizing it for acute and chronic pain, while younger consumers mostly obtain it to ease anxiety. Keep in mind, anyone who is considering using CBD should be under the supervision of a health care provider and monitored throughout the treatment.

DA Morrissey Supports QARI In New Safety Initiative

$5,000 Grant To Develop Public Safety Component To Expanding ESL Program

QUINCY ASIAN RESOURCES, INC. CEO Philip Chong (right) accepts $5,000 in support from Norfolk DA Michael Morrissey to integrate public safety and law enforcement sections into their English language lessons for immigrants. From left are QARI's Qi Qin, Jean Mendoza, DA Morrissey, Ray Luo, Stefany Munoz, Joanne Kelly and Chong.

Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey has given Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., a $5,000 grant to develop and include a public safety and law enforcement component in its expanding English as a Second Language program.

"People need to know how to ask for help, and when," District Attorney Morrissey said after presenting QARI's CEO, Philip Chong, with the grant funds.

"We know that immigrant populations can be at particular risk for domestic violence, fraud and other dangers," Morrissey said. "These ESL lessons should address both linguistic barriers and some of the conceptual barriers as well. Whatever their view of law enforcement in their former countries, we need people to know that law enforcement is here to help and make them safe."

CEO Philip Chong said his organization served more than 300 adult ESL students every year, largely from Asia, the Middle East, Brazil and Eastern Europe. QARI has more than 400 youth involved in their mentoring programs and provides help with 18,000 to 20,000 transactions a year at their two main and two satellite locations in Quincy and Randolph.

"We want to be preventative, we want to be proactive to our community – especially to those who are new to the country – who are most vulnerable," Chong said.

The ESL program already had components on how to interact in healthcare settings, financial settings and in digital communication, he said. They will develop a pilot on the vocabulary and facts associated with scam Robo-calls, Massachusetts domestic violence laws and protections, and even what to say and how to act if pulled over by police.

"QARI has grown into an important part of the fabric of the South Shore," Morrissey said. "They will soon be offering services at the Randolph Intergenerational Community Center in addition to their established locations. If you know someone who could benefit, let them know."

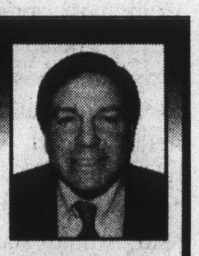
DENTISTRY for the 21st Century



by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

A LIFELONG PURSUIT

People over the age of 65 have as much reason to schedule regular visits to the dentist as their grandchildren do. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), one in five older adults has untreated tooth decay, more than two-thirds have gum disease, and nearly 20 percent have lost all of their teeth. Seniors may be surprised to learn that they are as susceptible to developing tooth decay as young children are because increased gingival (gum) recession leads to exposure of root surfaces and greater use of medications leads to dry mouth, which deprives teeth and gums of the protective benefit of saliva. If anything, the importance of maintaining good oral health increases with age.

Prevention is key to optimum dental health for patients of all ages. Through good habits like choosing a dental-friendly diet and proper brushing and flossing, you have a lot of control over your dental health. One of the most important services we offer is a plan for preventive dental care, including counseling on nutrition, the proper way to brush and floss, and recommendations for oral hygiene products and how to use them. For an appointment, please call our office at 617 479-6220. We're easy to find at 44 Greenleaf Street. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.comto learn more about us.

P.S. A healthy mouth contributes to better nutrition, improved self-image, better mental and physical health, and increased willingness to interact socially.

Buddhist Learning Center In QP Before Planning Board

Proposal Calls For Tearing Down Home At 52 Massachusetts Ave.

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to construct a new Buddhist learning center in Quincy Point is pending before the Planning Board.

The Massachusetts Budhi Siska Society is proposing to tear down the home at 62 Massachusetts Ave. and construct the new learning center, which would connect to the group's existing structure at 54 Massachusetts Ave.

The proposal went before the Planning Board Dec. 12. No vote was taken that night, and the public hearing on the matter was continued until Jan. 9.

The organization had gone before the board with a similar proposal in 2017, but withdrew their application to do so following a community meeting in which residents raised concerns about traffic and parking. The plan brought forward at that time called for building the learning center between two homes the society already owned at that time – one at 54 Massachusetts Ave. and the other 15 Glenwood Way.

The organization has since purchased the home at 62 Massachusetts Ave., which abuts 54 Massachusetts Ave. The former would be torn down to make room for the new learning center, which would connect to the extant building at 54 Massachusetts Ave.

William Phelan, the attorney representing the Buddhist organization, said his client incorporated the additional lot into the property because of concerns expressed when the project went before the board previously.

"It was suggested that the parking really wasn't sufficient and the size of the lot really wasn't sufficient, so the applicant went out and acquired another property and has incorporated that into the project," Phelan said.

By acquiring the additional lot, the group was able to increase the number of parking spaces on site from seven to 33. The additional land also allows the drop-off and pick-up area for Sunday school to be moved off the street.

The new learning center would stand three stories tall, plus a basement. The basement and part of the first floor would be used for the Sunday school, with the rest of the building used as library. The library would not be open to the public and would be used only by members of the society, Phelan said. The bookshelves in the library would be built into the building, so they could not be removed.

Because the organization is a religious group, the learning center is exempt from most zoning requirements, Phelan said, but the proposal mostly adheres to the regulations for the neighborhood, which is a residential B district.

Most of the building, he said, would stand 35 feet high, which is allowed under the zoning code, but an arch over the main entryway would be three feet taller. Phelan said the floor area ratio of the new building would slightly exceed what is allowed in the zoning code.

No members of the public spoke during the public hearing at the Dec. 12 meeting. Residents will have a chance to speak at the continued hearing in January.

Several other proposals were continued to Jan. 9 as well. They include:

- Yimkun Yu's proposal to demolish the single-family home at 35 Main St. and build two two-unit residential homes on site.
- Huang Kai Lin's proposal to build an 18-unit residential structure at 137-139 Sagamore St. The commercial building there now would be renovated and reconstructed as part of the plan.

Phelan, who represents both those applicants, said his clients needed time to respond to feedback from various city departments.

Three other projects, which require special permits, were on the agenda but continued to Jan. 9 because only three board members were present Dec. 12; four members must be present for those projects to be presented. Those projects include:

Darren Maguire's proposal to build a six-unit residential building at 12 Furnace Ave.

Ian McDermott's proposal to construct a seven-unit condominium building at 142 Willard St.

RECE Massachusetts' plan to build a mixed-use building with 3,800 square feet of ground-level retail space and 12-residential units at 279 Willard St. and 12 Bates Ave.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Can I Get Medicare Without Claiming Social Securty?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am 63 and my full retirement age is 66 and 2 months. I want to try and hold out to 70 before I start collecting SS. My 2018 Social Security statement said I'm eligible to apply for Medicare at 65. Do I have to be receiving Social Security payments before I can be covered for Medicare? Or can I be covered beginning at 65 and not receive a Social Security check until I desire at 70? Signed: Approaching Medicare Age

Dear Approaching: You can do just as you wish - you can enroll in Medicare at age 65 without claiming Social Security until you are 70. If you wait until you are 70 to claim Social Security your benefit amount will be nearly 31 percent higher than it would be at your full retirement age of 66 + 2 months.

As you approach age 65 you should enroll in Medicare sometime during the 7-month window called your "initial enrollment period", which starts 3 months before the month you turn 65 and ends 3 months after the month you turn 65. If you want your Medicare coverage to start on the first day of the month you turn 65, then you should enroll no later than one month prior to the month you turn 65; if you wait past that, the start of your Medicare coverage will be delayed. Note that while Medicare Part A (hospitalization coverage) is free for those who have earned at least 40 credits for Social Security eligibility, there is a premium for Medicare Part B (doctors and outpatient services). The base 2019 Part B monthly premium amount is $135.50 (may be more for higher incomes). If you are still working and have "creditable" healthcare coverage from your employer, you can choose to decline Medicare Part B coverage without risking a late enrollment penalty to get Part B after your employer coverage stops. If you want to decline Part B you can do so during the Medicare application process when you enroll in Part A.

You should also consider your prescription drug coverage needs once you're eligible for Medicare. If you do not have "creditable" prescription drug coverage when you turn 65, you will be subject to a late enrollment penalty if you purchase a drug plan later. Although prescription drug plans are referred to as "Medicare Part D", this coverage is purchased from private providers either as an individual plan, or as part of a Medicare Advantage (Part C) plan (VA drug coverage is also considered "creditable").

Finally, if you aren't collecting Social Security when you enroll in Medicare Part B, you will need to make separate arrangements to pay the Part B premium. This is quite easy to do in any of the following ways:

- Use your bank's auto-pay function to automatically send payments to Medicare.
- Use Medicare's Easy-Pay option to have them automatically debit your bank account.
- Pay by check or money order via US Mail, using payment coupons Medicare will provide.
- Pay by credit card, using the payment coupons Medicare provides (enter card info on the coupon and mail to Medicare).

I suggest that as you approach age 65 you consider contacting a licensed Medicare insurance agent to explore your options for covering the medical expenses, which Medicare Parts A and B do not cover. A licensed Medicare Insurance agent can also help ensure you have prescription coverage.

ZBA OKs Arlington St. Apartments

Four-Story, Six-Unit Building At 222 Arlington St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved plans to tear down a two-family on Arlington Street in Wollaston and build a six-unit apartment building on site.

The ZBA on Dec. 11 granted Caihu Chen a variance to construct the new four-story building at 222 Arlington St. The first floor of the building will include parking spaces for seven vehicles, with two apartments each on the three floors above. Each apartment will include two bedrooms and 820 square feet of living space, according to Chen's attorney, Ka-yung Wong.

Wong said the proposed building would be in harmony with the neighborhood, because a five-unit building is located next door at 226 Arlington St., and there is a six-unit building on Newport Avenue behind 222 Arlington St.

"This project would not be detrimental to the neighborhood – it is in harmony with the neighborhood," Wong said.

The seven parking spaces proposed as part of the project are two fewer than the nine parking spaces that would be needed under the city's zoning code, which requires residential buildings in a business C zoning district have 1.5 spaces per unit. Wong said his client tried to meet that requirement, but was unable to do so, and was hopeful the board would approve a variance because of the proximity of the site to the Wollaston T station.

"We tried very hard," Wong responded when asked if an attempt was made to provide more parking on site.

"We have seven parking [spaces], so we understand it is less than 1.5 per unit, but we are hoping because the location is so close to the T station that we will be able to get approval for the variance."

Wong told the board the applicant was unsure if the new units would be apartments or condominiums. Martin Aikens, the board's chairman, said the units would not sell as condominiums because of the number of parking spaces provided, to which Wong responded the applicant would keep the units as apartments.

Jeanne Hopkins, a Hobomack Road resident, said improvements to the area are welcomed, but the proposed building was too large with too many people who could move in.

"I agree that the building that is there needs work and we certainly welcome the neighborhood being improved and cleaned up, but it just seems like it's a very large structure with two-bedroom as opposed to six one-bedroom units there," Hopkins said.

"Six one-bedrooms or six studios, you're going to have one or maybe two occupants – two bedrooms, you're going to have two to four people occupying each unit. You have seven parking spots – granted, you're near the T station so hopefully not everybody will have a car – but there is certainly going to be overflow of some of the cars."

Board members said a project such as the proposal at 222 Arlington St. might not be appropriate elsewhere in the city, but is appropriate near the city's T stations.

"I think this is what we're supposed to be doing – building these type of places next to T stations," said Michael Covais, the board's vice chairman.

"I recognize the woman who had an objection, but I think this is a special circumstance," said Russell Chin. "It's very close to the new T station that is coming up. It's zoned business C, so there is an allowance for greater density."

Aikens, the board's chairman, said this would probably be the furthest from Wollaston station such a building could be constructed.

"We start going any further than that, we've got real problems," he said. "When I first looked at it, I didn't like it all, and then it kind of grew on me as I went through the neighborhood and saw what was happening."

School Committee Keeps Options Open For St. Mary's Site

By TOM GORMAN

The school committee is not supporting – at least for now – a resolution calling for building a new elementary school on the former St. Mary's School site in West Quincy.

On Dec. 12, the committee voted against a resolution submitted by member Douglas Gutro that sought to direct Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro to assess the Crescent Street property for a new kindergarten-to-grade 5 elementary school. Gutro cast the lone vote supporting the resolution. Colleague James DeAmicis was not present.

Gutro said he wanted the property assessed to determine whether it meets the design and construction requirements of Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) for a new elementary school and have the findings presented to the committee by April.

"The resolution is simply asking…if a K-to-5 school is viable for the property or if not, what might be," he said.

Gutro noted that the school committee in January voted to affirm the city council's $2.7 million purchase of the site in the fall of 2017 from the Boston Archdiocese. He said the purchase was contingent the property be used by the city for educational purposes. At the time of the purchase, there was discussion about building an elementary school to serve the West Quincy area.

Mayor Thomas Koch said that Gutro's resolution pigeonholes the city to building an elementary school on the property. He explained that the city is now in the initial stages of a multi-phase process with the MSBA of a plan to build a new Squantum School. Koch said the city isn't ready to commit any proposal at this time for the St. Mary's site.

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give a pet fish to my family because they wanted a pet but thought it might be too much work to take care of. But I think a fish wouldn't be too much work and it would be fun to take care of.

Tracy Chen
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would make homeless people a comfortable blanket that is fuzzy. I would give them hot cocoa with marshmallows inside because it's getting cold now and I like being really nice to people.

Leah Baez
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give warms clothes and blankets to the homeless because it can get really cold.

Chloe Tedeschi
Bernazzani

I would give school to all kids because they need an education. They need to learn how to write and do other subjects. It is a nice place to make friends.

Aine O'Donnell
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to allow kids and adults who can't afford it the chance to go a hospital when they are sick. Sometimes when you're sick you can die, so I want to make sure that doesn't happen.

Alex Darcy
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would donate my hair again to the people who feel uncomfortable not having hair when they have cancer.

Ella Lynch
Bernazzani

I would give warm blankets, clothes, shoes, and hats to the homeless because many people have jobs and work hard, but still are homeless and I think that they deserve to be warm and comfortable this winter.

Aubrey Callard
Bernazzani

I would give my mom and dad tickets for the All Ireland Hurling match that Cork wins because my dad is from Mayfield, Ireland and he loves hurling and it would make him really happy.

Maeve Murray
Bernazzani

I would give my mom and dad a vacation to Aruba because they work hard for me and my sister.

Caleb Bridden
Bernazzani

WOLLASTON SCHOOL fifth grade students

I would give teddy bears and fun board and card games to kids in an orphanage. I would do this because when you live in an orphanage, you don't really have a lot of toys, which is kind of sad, so I want to bring joy to those kids.

Amy Bernard
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give a PS4 to my dad so we could play with it together.

Albjon Zenuni
Bernazzani

I would give money to a homeless person for shelter and maybe some warm clothes and food. It breaks my heart to see people on the streets alone with no place to go and nothing to do, like some of the veterans.

Katie Lee
Bernazzani

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give puzzles to my little sister.

Ken Yan
Bernazzani

I would give a computer. I would give that to my sister because she doesn't have much to do.

Vincent Zhao
Snug Harbor

I would like to give a raise for the world. I think it would be nice and so I could feel nice.

Christopher Young
Snug Harbor

I would give a toy to my little brother. I would give him a toy because he is the best little brother.

Denzel Pires Moreir
Snug Harbor

I would give care to the world. I know that nature is getting destroyed and we have to take care of the environment.

Sophia Tirado
Snug Harbor

A gift I would give would be money. I would give money to several charities so that the money would go to hospitals, education, food, or even clothing.

Wyatt Drinkwater
Snug Harbor

I would give happiness to the hard workers. I would give this gift to my teachers for teaching so many students.

Christine Ong
Snug Harbor

I would give the poor people money for good use! I am sure they could use that money to buy an apartment, food, warmth, a car, and also a job.

Ebrahim Benkhouira
Snug Harbor

I would give my family money so they could buy a ticket to go to China. I would do this because most of our relatives live in China.

Tiffany Zheng
Snug Harbor

I would give homeless people warm clothing. I would do this so they won't get cold during winter or any cold weather.

Sophia Nguyen
Snug Harbor

I would give love. I know it doesn't sound like much, but I want to give it in return to my mom for working super hard at night.

Luna Marsden
Snug Harbor

I would raise money to help people with diseases that couldn't afford the medicine.

Darryl Wright
Snug Harbor

I would give away two tickets to Hollywood to my Mom and Dad. They work between 12 and 16 hours a day so I want to let them have a vacation.

Justin Outar
Snug Harbor

Jennifer Yang
F.W. Parker

It would be lots of Barbie dolls to the world, because my sister, Shilah, loves Barbie Dolls.

Camrin Dent
F.W. Parker

It would be a twenty floor hospital for patients who couldn't find a hospital to make them feel better. There are still a lot of people who are sick and have no hospital to make them feel better.

Nickie Lu
F.W. Parker

It would be a sustainable indoor community farm. I would give this, because there are so many people who don't have the food that they need. By giving a garden they will be able to have food for their entire lives.

Kevin Noti
F.W. Parker

It would be food, because food is what we all need and not everyone has food like we do. So one gift that I would give is food.

Kenneth Le
F.W. Parker

It would be a jacket, because a jacket will make people warm in the winter and it won't let them get cold.

Khang Trieu
F.W. Parker

It would be a MacBook. The reason why is because people with no laptop have unfinished work for school and their teacher will say to do it at home, but they can't because they don't have a laptop. So, that's why I will help them by giving a MacBook.

Bertrand Guan
F.W. Parker

It would be a teddy bear for everyone in the whole world. I want everyone to have a teddy bear, because they will have a best friend to snuggle with for the holidays.

Jack Cadegan Takes Reins As City's 15th Fire Chief

jured responding to a house fire.

"When I went into what we call the car as deputy, my primary concern was safety – safety of the citizens, safety of the guys – and that's still going to be my primary concern," Cadegan said. "We unfortunately saw the tragedy out in Worcester with Firefighter Christopher Roy. Our hearts go out to all his family and his fire department family.

"That's always going to my primary concern – safety of the citizens and firefighters."

Training for the department's firefighters will also be a priority for the new fire chief.

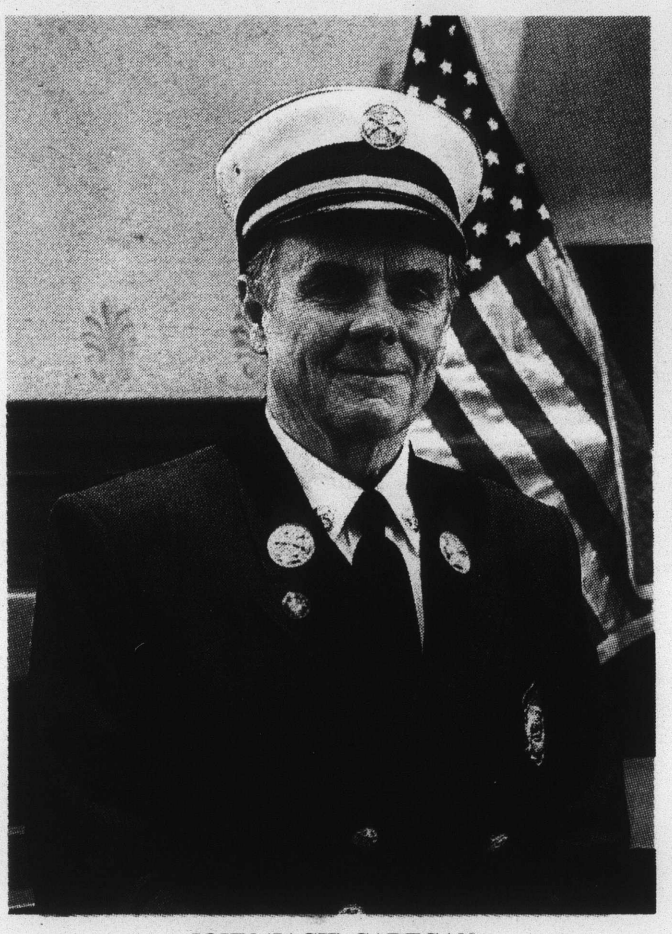
"Training, training, training," Cadegan responded when asked what he hopes to accomplish during his time as fire chief.

"With what we provide the guys, everything will be safer and everything will work better. We have to train these days and the guys know it. That's going to be my one big priority – training."

Cadegan said he was grateful to Mayor Thomas Koch for appointing him fire chief. Cadegan also thanked Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson, who had led the department on an interim basis following Barron's retirement, and the department's firefighters for their work.

"I'm just very grateful to the mayor for this appointment. It's a humbling experience," Cadegan said. "I'd very much like to thank Joe Jackson for all the work he's done the last six months – tremendous asset to the department. We were so lucky to have him. I know we are going to be working very close together, which is great.

"All these guys here, what do you say? That's what makes this job so special. We're very lucky. We get to go out and help people, but we get to do it with some of the finest people… I just can't ask any more of the guys. They've been wonderful."



JOHN (JACK) CADEGAN
Fire Chief, City of Quincy

Koch said Cadegan is a quiet but effective leader who has the right temperament to lead the department, which has an annual budget of $25 million and whose ranks include more than 200 firefighters, officers and civilian employees.

"I know the job of being a manager, being the chief, being the leader of the department is not an easy one. You try to balance all of the issues at hand, all the needs, all the requests, and I think Jack Cadegan has that ability," Koch said. "He's got the right temperament. He is a quiet leader but a very effective leader, and he obviously has the respect of the men in the department."

IAFF Local 792, the union that represents Quincy firefighters, welcomed Cadegan's appointment.

"Chief Cadegan has worked side by side with us a firefighter for more than 30 years, and we are thrilled he's now leading the department," the union said in a statement released through the mayor's office.

NEW QUINCY FIRE Chief Jack Cadegan and his wife, Karen, are all smiles as she pins his new badge at Monday's swearing in ceremony. In the background is Mayor Thomas Koch who appointed Cadegan as Quincy's 15th fire chief. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

"He has the respect of all us on the job, he knows the demands of a growing city and he knows what it takes for us to [do] our jobs safely every day. We applaud Mayor Koch on the appointment and congratulate Chief Cadegan."

Cadegan joined the Quincy Fire Department at the age of 30 after working as a carpenter and teaching night school. Cadegan credited his late father, Frank, for encouraging him to become a firefighter.

"I owe it all to my dad. Thirty-three years ago he was smart enough to see that I might enjoy this job – it might be a good thing for me. I was 30 at the time, so I already had a profession, and I'm so glad I listened to him," Cadegan said. "He knew something I didn't know. I always say the older I get, the smarter he becomes."

Koch said Cadegan's father would be proud of what his son has accomplished.

"I'm sure Jack's dad would have been very, very proud today of his ascending to the highest position in, I think, the greatest department in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," the mayor said.

The new chief also thanked his wife for her support over the years.

"I can't thank my wife enough," Cadegan said. "My wife, Karen, if it wasn't for her I would not be here today. I was 22 years on the job before I took an exam, and she evidently saw something that I didn't and kind of talked me into taking my first exam."

Cadegan joined the Quincy Fire Department as a firefighter in 1985. He was promoted to lieutenant in 2007, captain in 2011 and deputy chief in 2014.

The city hired an assessment center, which vetted the candidates for the $172,000 a year chief's position. Cadegan finished with the highest score of the three candidates who went through that process, Koch said.

"Over the past two years, Civil Service has not held a fire chief exam. They recommend to Civil Service communities that we use assessment centers," the mayor said. "We went through that process and Jack came out top on the points from the assessment center."

The mayor said the city would begin the process of filling Cadegan's old deputy position immediately, though there is no timeline for when a new deputy chief is appointed.

Housing Authority Hosts Tree Lighting Ceremony

The Quincy Housing Authority, together with the City of Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch, Ward 1 Councillor Dave McCarthy, Quincy Police and Fire, Harborview Residents Committee and Quincy YMCA recently held a tree lighting ceremony extravaganza.

The event was attended by over 250 children who all received gifts donated by HRCI and Quincy Housing Authority employees. The festivities were kicked off by Mayor Koch and a sing along led by Dave McCarthy.

The children enjoyed hot chocolate, hay rides by Clydesdales horses, music by DJ, Holiday sing alongs and of course many presents distributed to them.

The event highlighted the renovations being made to the Palmer Street Rotary project funded by CDBG due to be completed in Spring of 2019 together with the two new playgrounds under construction at Riverview and Taffrail Road.

The night was capped off with dance performances put on by the GNC Music Factory at the Germantown Neighborhood Center and pizza served from Time Out Pizza.

QHA Executive Director James Marathas said: "This was a demonstration of the community working together to bring out the holiday festive spirit and the smile on the faces of the children was worth every bit of effort to create this event."

TEAMWORK FOR A GOOD CAUSE – The Quincy and North Quincy girls basketball teams are raising money for the American Cancer Society in honor of the mother of one of the NQ players who is battling cancer. Before their game Dec. 14th, captains from both teams united at half court to ask players, students and families to pick a team and pledge to donate for every foul shot they make during the season. The money raised will be in honor of Liesl Radzik who is battling cancer. Her daughter, Alexa, plays for North Quincy. Proceeds will be donated to the American Cancer Society. One-time donations are also being accepted. The announcement was made Quincy Captain Allison McMorrow (far right). The players also presented flowers to Liesl who attended the Quincy-North Quincy girls' basketball game (photo below).

Quincy Girls Basketball Defeats North Quincy, 48-28

By TREVOR WENNERS

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team showcased its full arsenal Dec. 14.

The Presidents came out of the gates with an aggressive full-court press, while scoring many transition baskets and making the extra pass in half-court sets, as nine different Quincy players scored during a 48-28 win over visiting North Quincy.

Junior captain and forward Allison McMorrow led the Presidents (2-0, 2-0 Patriot League), scoring 10 of her team-high 12 points in the first half. Beyond the stat sheet, McMorrow affected the game in so many ways, as her defensive rotations and instincts were impressive. She also showcased her outstanding versatility, leading Quincy's fast break with great decision making, in addition to impressive speed and footwork skills.

"Allison's defense was great tonight," Presidents head coach Jeff Bretsch said. "She was disciplined and blocked a lot of shots, but they were very fundamental blocks. She was intimidating around the basket, and it was difficult to get shots off when she was in the game. An advantage of having Allison at center is that she is one of the fastest kids in the league. We really have an advantage at that position that makes our press intimidating."

Senior captain and forward Mary Kate McAleavey dropped in a game-high 15 points for the Red Raiders (1-2, 0-2 Patriot League). She was difficult to stop off the dribble with her quick first step, getting to the charity stripe numerous times.

Quincy, which has qualified for the MIAA Tournament in 13 of 17 seasons under Bretsch, came out with a great deal of energy, racing out to an 8-2 advantage on a layup by senior captain and guard Gia Calabro. A layup by junior guard Jillian O'Toole in the closing moments of the first gave Quincy a 16-5 edge. O'Toole's on-ball defense was strong and relentless, forcing many nightmares for the Raiders.

"I thought we started the game very strong," Bretsch said. "The goal was to come out strong and take the game one play at a time, playing our hardest on both ends of the floor and being as aggressive as we always are in those situations. Nobody really wants to dribble with Jillian in their vicinity."

Sophomore guard Fallon Hobin followed up her own miss with five minutes left in the second quarter, and then absorbed contact and finished a layup for an old-fashioned 3-point play, giving the hosts a 22-9 advantage. The Presidents won the second, 14-7, as a basket by McMorrow extended the unit's lead to 30-12 heading into halftime.

Five different Quincy players found their way onto the score sheet in the third, with McMorrow opening the half with a steal and finish in transition, and then junior forward Grace Hobin ended the quarter with a layup, pushing the lead to 42-18.

"They outplayed us," Raiders head coach Paul Bregoli said. "We beat ourselves in the first half. We did not box out and did not get back in transition. We were 4-for-10 from the free-throw line. All of the things that we talk about in practice every single day, we just did not do. We cannot give a team like Quincy breakaway layups."

The Raiders battled to the final whistle, and McAleavey scored seven in the fourth, and junior guard Alexa Radzik banked in a top-of-the-arc three-ball. Freshman starting point guard Kiera Sleiman also had some strong moments for the visitors, fighting for rebounds with front-court players and shot her mid-range jumper with confidence.

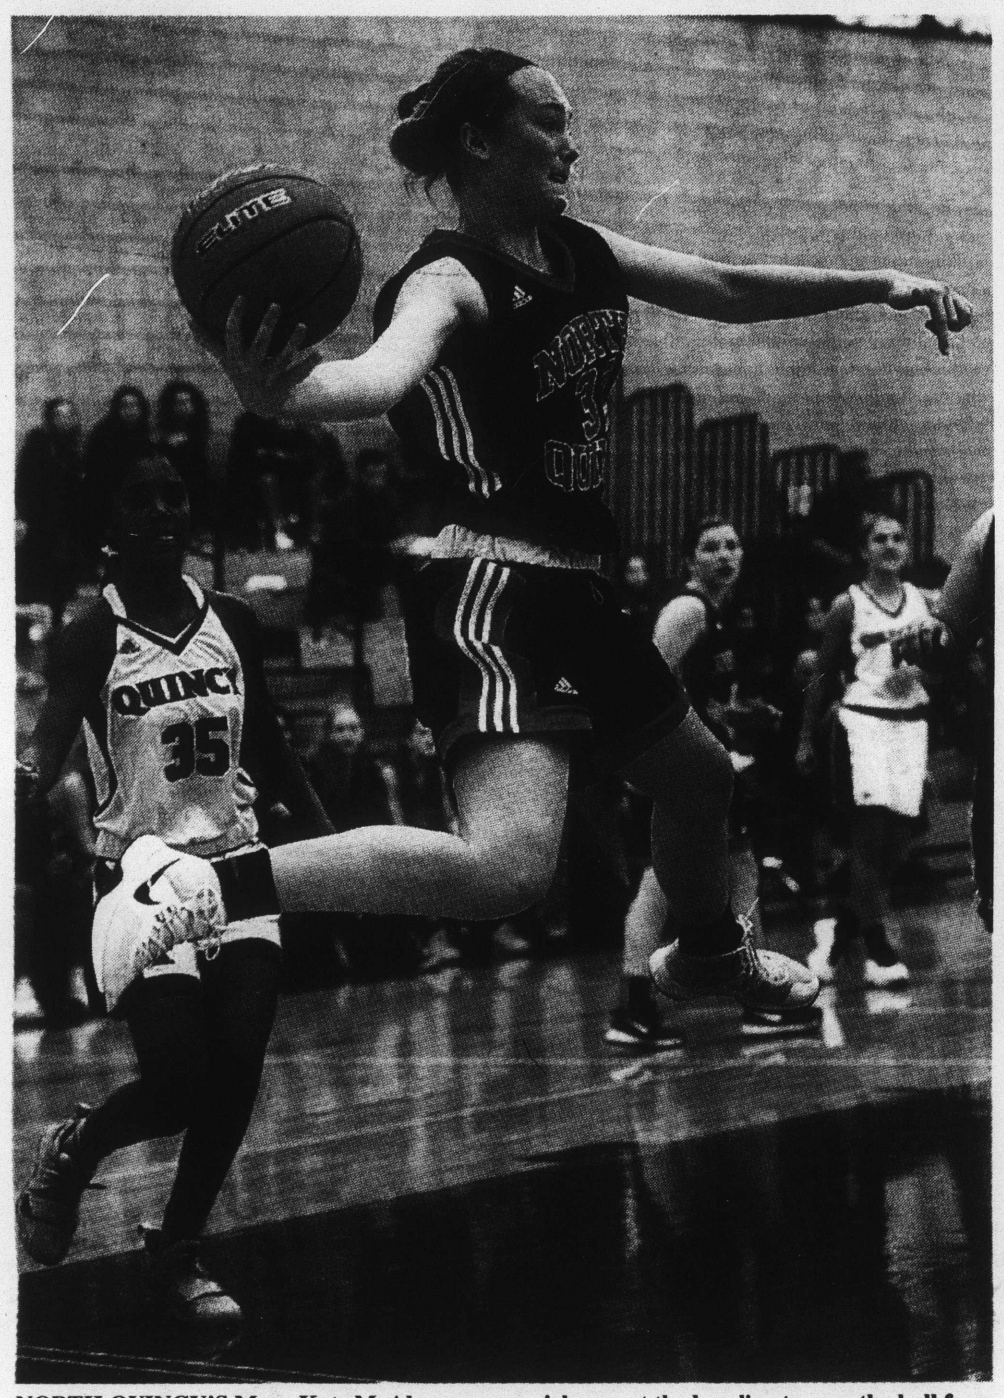
"Kiera Sleiman was our leading rebounder in the first half," Bregoli said. "She is not afraid to stick her nose in there and go for those rebounds. I thought she played well against a really good point guard in Jillian O'Toole. Mary Kate McAleavey hung in there really well, and she is a great athlete. She was our offense tonight."

The Presidents also received strong production from junior forward Juliana Tracey (eight points) and senior forward Julianne Gazzola, who scored her first four points of the season with aggressive work in the low post.

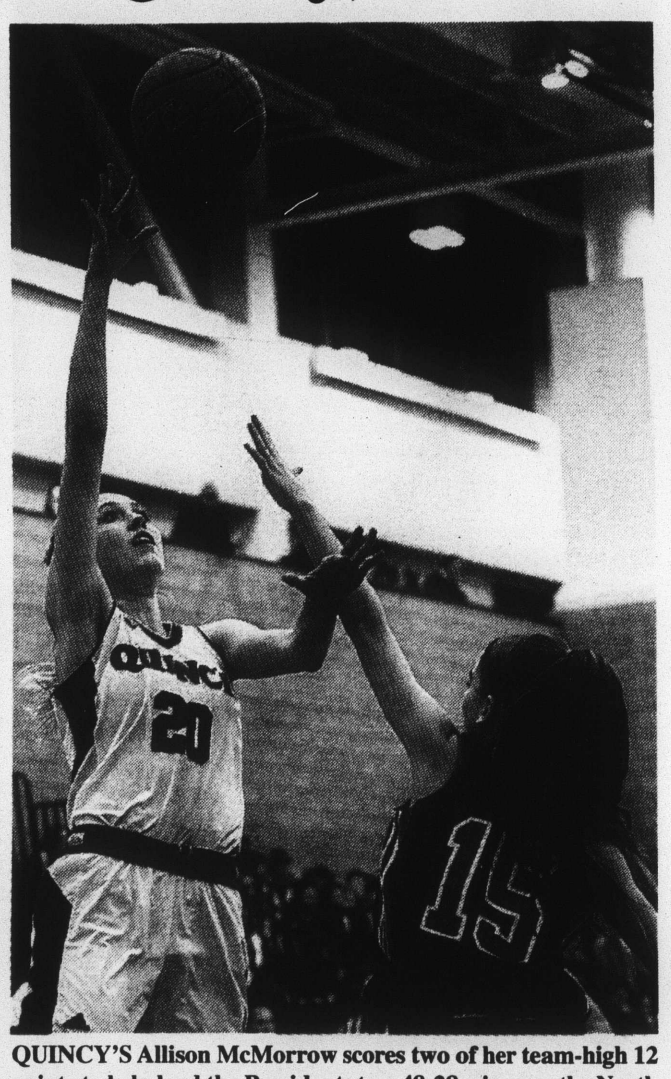
Quincy has held the upper hand in the historic city rivalry lately, winning eight of the last nine meetings. NQ last swept the season series in 2013-14, which was the last time the Raiders qualified for the MIAA Tournament.

The Presidents have qualified in seven of the last nine seasons, including reaching the Division 1 South Sectional as the ninth seed last winter, before being defeated by eighth-seeded Bishop Feehan, 42-32, in the first round. The 2016 season (18-4) was the last time Quincy advanced past the first round, as the seventh-seeded squad downed 10th-seeded Barnstable, 54-25, in the first round, and then fell short, 74-57, to second-seeded Bishop Feehan in the quarterfinals.

"We have been fortunate to enjoy quite a bit of success," Bretsch said. "We have had some really great players. I have had a lot of kids who were committed and willing to work on their games in the offseason. I have always been fortunate in Quincy to have the type of players that were willing to work hard and be coached. I have had kids with positive attitudes who have taken the game seriously, while listening to the teaching that I have given them."



NORTH QUINCY'S Mary Kate McAleavey goes airborne at the baseline to save the ball from going out of bounds against the Quincy Presidents. McAleavey scored a game-high 15 points but Quincy prevailed on their homecourt Dec. 14, 48-28.



QUINCY'S Allison McMorrow scores two of her team-high 12 points to help lead the Presidents to a 48-28 win over the North Quincy Red Raiders Dec. 14.

Quincy Boys Hoop Downs North Quincy, 41-28

By TREVOR WENNERS

Nobody shares the ball better than the Quincy boys' basketball team.

Over the last handful of seasons under the leadership of head coach David Parry, the Presidents have always made the extra pass and have never worried about statistics. The style emphasizes that an assist is as important as a basket, and that getting everyone involved on the offensive end will lead to more energy on the defensive side of the ball.

This formula has netted tangible results, as the Presidents have qualified for the MIAA Tournament in each of the past nine seasons, dating back to the 2010 campaign.

The unselfish brand of basketball was on display again on Friday evening, as the Presidents utilized quick passes and aggressive defense during a 41-28 victory against their archrival North Quincy at Quincy High.

"I do not care who scores," Parry said. "I really never know who is scoring until the end of the game. I hate relying on one or two people; I want everybody to take ownership of the team. If you are involved in the offense, then your defense is going to pick up. If you work on the defensive end, then you are going to get some shots on the offensive end. Everybody knows that if they are unselfish, then the ball is going to come back around. We try to promote that and the kids have bought into it over the last few years."

Senior captain and forward Nick Cedrone posted 11 points for the Presidents (1-1, 1-1 Patriot League), including dropping 10 in the opening 16 minutes. Senior captain and guard A.J. Nelson was also aggressive, finishing with 11 points on five field goals.

Quincy did not settle for many outside shots, as they were in attack mode all night, especially in the first half. Cedrone, a 6-foot, 200-pound forward, made 7-of-9 free-throw attempts, as the ball did not stick at all for the Presidents.

Parry liked the aggressiveness in the first half, but he still thinks his team has many areas to grow in, as they started relying on jumpers in the second half, which was its Achilles' heel in a season-opening loss to Whitman-Hanson on Tuesday, Dec. 11. Historically, Quincy has been a team that attacks the hoop, clearly not subscribing to the analytics' view that 3-pointers are the best thing since sliced bread.

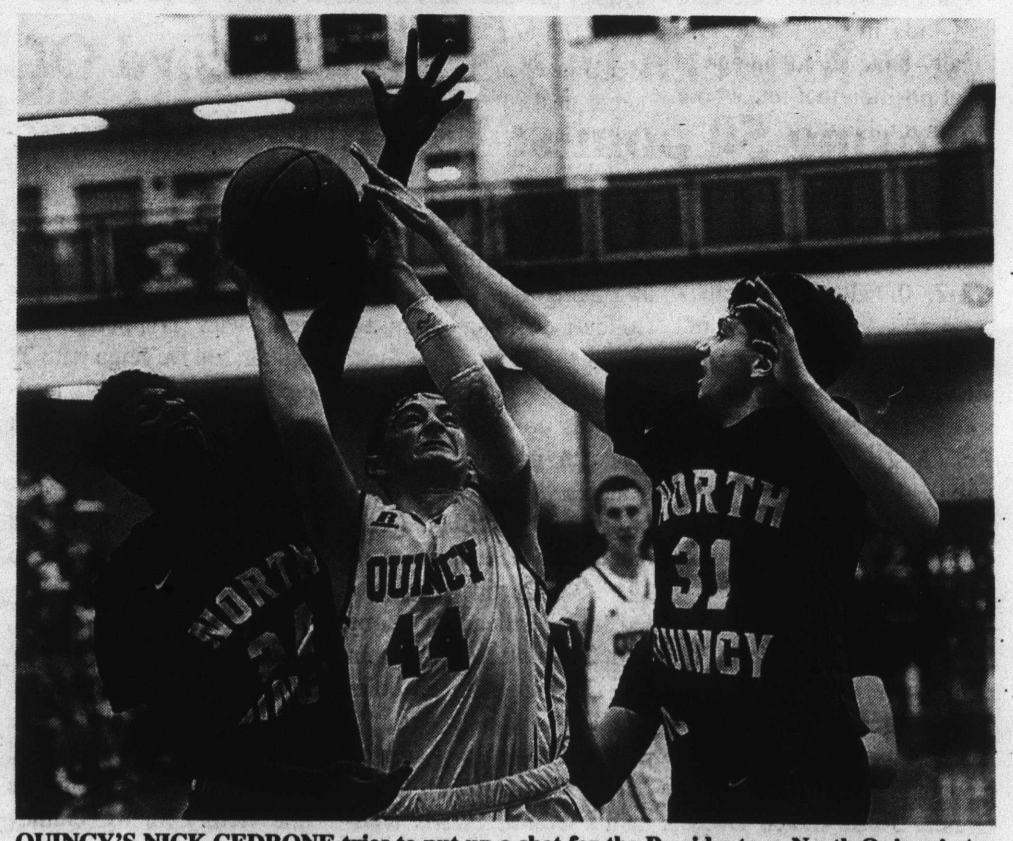
"We wanted to really attack the basket," Parry said. "On Tuesday at Whitman-Hanson, we only went to the free-throw line once, and you cannot win a basketball game like that. In the second half tonight, we started settling for threes again. We cannot do that and win basketball games. We have to attack the basket and get to the free-throw line. Tonight, in the first half we really did that."

The Raiders (0-2, 0-2 Patriot League) were led by a 10-point effort from junior guard Jomone Bing, while sophomore forward Agu Ugwu chipped in with nine, as each player connected on a 3-point shot.

With 2:35 remaining in the first, sophomore guard Dyllan Lopes finished through contact with a finger roll, giving Quincy a 12-3 edge. The hosts led 14-3 at the end of one on a put-back jump hook by Cedrone.

Quincy senior captain and forward Brendan Keaveny attacked the rim on back-to-back possessions in the second quarter and converted both, giving the unit a 25-8 advantage with 2:40 left. The hosts won the second quarter, 15-8, and took a 29-11 lead into intermission on four straight free throw makes by Cedrone.

The Presidents stole the show from the beginning, playing a stifling brand of defense, as the unit rarely allowed an open look in the first half.



QUINCY'S NICK CEDRONE tries to put up a shot for the Presidents as North Quincy's Agu Ugwu (left) and Seve Dalla defend for the Red Raiders. Cedrone scored 11 points for the Presidents in Quincy's 41-28 win over NQ.

"We emphasize closing out and try to take away any open looks," Parry said. "If you can get a guy out of rhythm, then they are going to have a little trouble getting going. We used our length well."

NQ, which reached the Sectional final of the Division 1 South Sectional in 2014 with a 23-2 overall record, came to play in the second half, winning the third quarter, 6-5. Bing started getting downhill, making plays in the lane, as the 6-foot guard forced the defense to collapse and dished out a great pass to junior forward Colby St. Marie, which cut the deficit to 33-15.

The Raiders, who have missed the playoffs in three straight seasons, were trailing 34-17 heading into the final frame, but they won the last period, 11-7, as an old-fashioned 3-point play by Bing with 2:43 left cut the deficit to 38-23. The run was too little, too late as the first-quarter hole proved to be too deep to dig out of for the Raiders.

Parry wants to see his team close out games more efficiently moving forward.

"In the second half, Jomone really started driving and getting to the rack," he said. "When we started collapsing on him, then he started dumping the ball off. I do not like the way we closed the game out, but the season is so young for everybody. We are lucky to get out of here with a win."

Presidents Ice Silver Lake In Season Opener, 4-2

By TREVOR WENNERS

Season openers are not always the best barometer of a team's capabilities.

Many times, rust from a long offseason creeps into the picture and players' motors are running so high, and they try to do too much.

The Quincy High boys' ice hockey team played a strong first period, but then had many lapses in the second and third during a 4-2 win over Silver Lake at the Quincy Youth Arena Dec. 15.

The Presidents will take the win, even though they did not bring their "A" game, but Quincy head coach Ted Walsh Jr. believes that his unit has a long way to go in its 2018-19 journey.

"I thought the effort was not as good as we need it," Walsh said. "As far as the coaches are concerned; we got out out-competed halfway through the second to the end of the game. They took it to us as far as effort goes. What got us through the game was we were more talented than they were and our goalie. Daniel Murphy was outstanding as usual."

Senior forward Jason Whalen led the way for the Presidents (1-0, 1-0 Patriot League) with three assists, while senior forward A.J. Currie and senior defenseman Bobby Dunn each finished with a goal and an assist. Murphy stopped 15-of-17 shots in net, while making timely stops throughout the contest in pivotal moments to keep the hosts in control.

Leading the way for Silver Lake (0-1-2, 0-1-1 Patriot League) were senior forward Alexander Heffernan (two goals) and junior forward Kevin Cardarelli (two assists).

The Presidents held a 32-17 advantage in shots, including a 14-1 edge in the first period. The hosts finished with a 9-7 advantage in the second, and the shots were even at 9-9 in the final period.

The Presidents came out of the gates on the attack, as they scored two goals 52 seconds apart less than five minutes into regulation. Senior captain and forward Daniel O'Leary accelerated up ice through the neutral zone and down the left wing, as he fed a perfect pass across the goal crease on a 2-on-1 break to a streaking Currie, who tapped the puck into the net from point-blank range on the left side three minutes, 31 seconds, into the game.

Quincy kept the pressure up in the next couple minutes, with long bouts of quality zone time. Senior defenseman and captain Griffin Lynch rifled a strong scoring bid from the slot, which was turned aside by Lakers freshman goalie Grady Sullivan with 11 minutes left. O'Leary redirected the rebound toward the net, but Sullivan was able to turn that attempt aside as well. With 10:37 left in the first, Lynch netted a top-shelf shot from the point, giving the Presidents a 2-0 cushion.

Throughout the first 15 minutes, Quincy maintained a decisive territorial advantage, not allowing the Lakers to establish any consistency in the offensive zone. The Lakers were able to kill off a five-minute major boarding penalty that was taken with seven minutes left in the first by junior forward Bobby Guilford.

"Apparently that fast start was really important because if we had to make it up on the back end we would not have been able to," Walsh said.

The Presidents took a 4-0 lead in the second with two more goals, but the quality of play dropped significantly, as the unit took two penalties in the first six minutes of the frame. Murphy rose to the occasion for the hosts with a strong kick save 20 seconds into the period on a drive from Cardarelli.

Junior forward Ryan Quirk put the Presidents up 3-0 one minute, 44 seconds, into the period, as he went to the net hard and forced the puck pass the goal line in a scrum, assisted by Dunn and junior forward Jack O'Brien.

Dunn drove a shot off Sullivan's glove from the left faceoff circle with 8:30 left, which found nylon during a 4-on-4 situation and gave the hosts a 4-0 advantage. With 5:45 left, Murphy stood tall again in net for Quincy, robbing Cardarelli with a rocket in the slot, and then with 3:45 on the clock, Murphy made a chest save on a shot heading for the top of the goal by senior forward Andrew Johnson.

Senior forward Nick Murray nearly put Quincy up 5-0 with 3:05 showing on the scoreboard, but his driving attempt connected with the post.

The Lakers came out with a sense of purpose in the third, as Murphy made an outstanding save on a breakaway opportunity by senior forward David Marani with 8:45 left. The Presidents were unable to clear the puck and 14 seconds later, Heffernan put the visitors on the score sheet.

Heffernan struck again with 6:21 left in regulation, making it a two-goal game with plenty of time left on the clock.

"Judging by the preseason, we did not face any adversity and this is our first sign of adversity so we are going to see how we respond," Walsh said. "I think the first four games of our season are going to tell everything about how our season is going to go. They are all league games. We had Plymouth North on Monday, Plymouth South on Wednesday, and then Duxbury this Saturday going into the break. It is going to say a lot about our season."

O'Leary took a two-minute tripping penalty with 2:41 remaining, and the Lakers decided to pull their goalie with 1:40 left for some 6-on-4 time. Silver Lake was not able to get any quality opportunities down the stretch. Quincy was awarded a penalty shot with 2:29 on the clock, but junior forward Thomas MacPherson's attempt was corralled by Sullivan.

The Presidents have qualified for the MIAA Tournament in each of the last five seasons, dating back to 2014, but have not been able to advance out of the first round. Walsh, like always, has high expectations for this year's group.

"The goal has always been to win the State Tournament," Walsh said. "That is never going to change. Every year that is our goal."

Quincy College's Darrius Hyppolite Sets Modern Day School Record Of Scoring 50 points; 13 Three-Pointers

In a loaded end of semester schedule, Quincy College Granite offensive leaders are shining on the court.

Darrius Hypollite of Bridgewater and Bryan Desire of Boston continue to set the standard as NJCAA Region 21 leaders. Hyppolitte is second in NJCAA Region 21 points per game netting 21.6 points per game. Hyppolitte and Bryan Desire of Boston are leading the rankings for 3PT percentage with 58.3 and 53.1 respectively.

Even with their offensive leaders, Quincy College Granite Head Coach Doug Scott knew this would be a tough week for his Granite squad. On Dec. 11th, Quincy College Granite traveled to Bristol Community College who are ranked 7th in the country. Quincy Granite played hard against this veteran team, led by Trahe Qualls of Dorchester with 15 points and Abu Kaba of Brockton with 14 points. Quincy College Granite team captain Jon DeVeiga of Boston and Darrius Hyppolite rounded out the scoring with 11 and 10 points respectfully. Bristol Community College pulled away in the end gaining an 89 - 65 victory.

With little rest, Quincy College Granite traveled to Bunker Hill Community College, who are ranked 5th in the country on Dec. 13th. Quincy College Granite was down a few players with injuries and foul troubles which hurt Granite efforts as Bunker Hill dominated with a final score of 141 – 92. Darrius Hyppolite led the challenging game with 26 points, team captain Jon DeVeiga with 23 point and Trahe Qualls with 22 points. Coach Scott singled out Dion Bell of East Wareham's overall efforts leading the team with 8 assists.

On Dec. 15th, Quincy College Granite wrapped up a long week on the road with a home game at Lahue Gym, their home court at Eastern Nazarene College. Being home helped Granite solidify their week with a 111 – 94 win versus Holyoke Community College.

Quincy was led by school record offensive play by Darrius Hyppolite who set a modern day school record of scoring 50 points and shooting a record thirteen 3-point baskets. Coach Scott had nothing but praise for the young freshman from Bridgewater Raynham HS, who is emerging as a top player in Region 21 competition. Also sharing the spotlight with Hyppolite was captain Jon DeVeiga with 29 points whose overall leadership of this year's team is starting to net positive results according to Quincy College Granite Head Coach Scott. Scott also singled out the play of David Canavan of Weymouth, Dion Bell and Philbert Lafonde of Stoughton off the bench. The strong defensive efforts of Trahe Qualls and Abu Kaba rounded out this fine victory for the Quincy College Granite.

Quincy rounds out the first half of the season with home games against Gateway Community College on Dec. 18th and Springfield Technical on Dec. 20th. Both games are at Lahue Gym on Eastern Nazarene College campus. Tip off 7 p.m.

Quincy College Granite home games are free and open to the public. View the full schedule of Quincy College Granite games including home games played at Eastern Nazarene College's Lahue Gym:quincycollege.edu/granite.

QNQ Girls Hockey Showing Scoring Capabilities Early This Season

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy/North Quincy girls' hockey co-op does not have the biggest roster going, but that has not dampened expectations this season.

While QNQ may have 10 skaters and two goaltenders, they have some returning talent and once again, their goal is to the MIAA tournament this season.

At the start of the week, the co-op was 1-1 on the season. They opened their season with a 12-6 win over the Latin Academy/Fontbonne co-op on Dec. 13 and on Dec. 15, they dropped an 11-5 road bout against Duxbury, a team that went 17-4-2 last season.

Against Duxbury, QNQ fought back from an 8-0 deficit in the second period and unleashed five goals of their own.

Senior captain Cassandra Davis lit the lamp for the co-op with 6:21 remaining in the period, scoring a goal through traffic; and with 3:31 left in the second frame, freshman forward Orla O'Driscoll scored on a fast break.

Davis scored again with 1:48 left. This time, she jammed the puck through up close while facing pressure from the opposing goaltender.

And in the final minute of the second period, eighth grade forward Maggie Dineen and O'Driscoll added to the score sheet, to make it a 9-5 game before the third period started.

In the final period, QNQ continued to play tough, but did not add to their goal tally; Duxbury tacked on two more goals in the final 15 minutes of the bout.

Regardless, QNQ showed they hang in against one of the tougher teams in the area despite their disadvantages.

"We really like the girls we have coming back," head coach Jeff Craig said. "We ran into probably the toughest team in the state today, so we knew it would be a tough one. But I thought the girls battled, so I was happy with the effort. That team rolls four lines and we're basically skating 10 kids, so we're not used to it. But we'll be fine."

While they do not have the biggest team, Craig said they have the right players. The team has some varsity experience already and ones who are willing to play big minutes for the team.

"We've got some tough kids," he said. "The kids we have all love hockey and love being here. They're a tough group. They're positive."

The co-op is led by its two senior captains: senior forward Cassandra Davis, who amassed 51 points last season, and defender Meghan Greene, who has been a major asset to the team since her freshman year.

Freshman Orla O'Driscoll has also shined for the team early in the season; she had put up 13 points through two games.

Craig said he is also impressed with what he has seen from his team in net this season.

Two days into the season, QNQ lost their goaltenders which led them to turn to a pair of players who had never played hockey before: senior Maggie Tierney and sophomore Emma Ford.

"They've never played," Craig said. "They didn't know how to move. They didn't know how to put the equipment on. They weren't even practicing with the team until a week-and-a-half into the season. We just needed them moving."

Even so, Tierney picked up the win in the team's opener against the Latin Academy/Fontbonne co-op and they each saw some significant playing time in the Duxbury game, making some tough saves.

Currently, the team is focused on playing smart hockey and building up their stamina for the season.

This season, the QNQ team features: Maggie Tierney, Maeve Walsh, Maddie Bailey, Meghan Greene, Avery Glennon, Megan Mulhern, Maggie Dineen, Aimee Cluett, Orla O'Driscoll, Cassandra Davis, Emma Ford, Brigid Flynn, and Morgan Novak.

County Real Estate Sales Sluggish Due To Limited Inventory

Mirroring trends seen across eastern Massachusetts, Norfolk County real estate is continuing to experience sluggish sales due to limited inventory of available properties, according to Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell.

"During the month of November, real estate sales, for both residential and commercial activity, fell 2% from the previous year. A total of 1,476 property transactions were recorded versus 1,512 in November 2017. The bottom line is you can't sell more of what you don't have," O'Donnell said.

According to last month's statistics, the average combined sale price of residential and commercial property for the month was $936,750, a 47% increase year over year. In addition, total dollar sales volume, again for both residential and commercial properties, was $911 million, also a 47% increase from November 2017. These numbers were greatly spiked by a $153 million commercial sale recorded in Brookline.

On the financial side, Norfolk County lending numbers were mixed during the month of November. "The number of mortgages recorded during the month decreased by 16%," O'Donnell said. "However, the total volume of mortgage financing, for both

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to give food to everyone in the world. I say that, because people all around the world can be homeless and don't have any money. So, if I give food to people all around the world, no one will be hungry.

Cory Chen
F.W. Parker

It would be a better laptop for my brother, because his laptop is too slow for him to type. So, I want to give him a better one to let him finish his work faster.

Terry Hua
F.W. Parker

It would be more Chromebooks for my school. That is because my school has a lot of people and they need more Chromebooks for their education.

Tyler Zhang
F.W. Parker

It would be time together for my family. I want that, because some of them are in different places of the world including Spain, New York, Canada, and China.

Jayden Lin
F.W. Parker

It would be food for the homeless. They have nothing, no money, homes, not many clothes, and less. So, if I could I would donate food for the homeless.

Brian Zheng
F.W. Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be clothes to families in need.

Gabe Putnam
F.W. Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be a poster of my family, so we can always remember each other.

Kareem Amer
F.W. Parker

It would be a car for my mom and dad. It's because someone bumped my mom and dad's car. They didn't say sorry; they just drove away. This is why I want to give a car to my family.

Monica Zhou
F.W. Parker

It would be a computer to Alex Zhao. I would give him it because he only plays on his mom's computer.

Wilson Huang
F.W. Parker

It will be to donate food. I would donate food to try to end world hunger because it's sad how some people get to eat and some don't.

Jayla Dodson
F.W. Parker

It would be to give my mom a dog. When she was younger she had a dog but he sadly passed away and he always made my mom happy.

Elizabeth Hoang
F.W. Parker

It would be to give a pet kitten to my best friend Lucy. I want to give her that because she wanted that for a long time and she is my very best friend.

Fiona Chen
F.W. Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season it would be no sicknesses. I would give this because sicknesses can kill people and hurt them.

Eason Wang
F.W. Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season it would be to stop war. I would give this gift because hundreds of people have died during the war.

Nina Zheng
F.W. Parker

It would be to give Fiona a pet kitten. I would give Fiona a pet kitten because she always wished to have a kitten her whole life.

Vicky Zou
F.W. Parker

If I could give one gift this season, it would be to make everyone happy and not have any sickness. I want to do this because lots of people have cancer and other sickness that make them die, why not try to make them live and be happy?

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, Dec. 9, at approximately 4 a.m., Officers Waters, Duggan and Donovan were dispatched to Crown Drive on a report of an argument in one of the apartments. The caller said that she could hear a female yelling.

On arrival, officers followed the sound of a woman's yelling to a specific apartment door. The officers knocked on the door and announced their presence which resulted in total silence inside the apartment. The officers knew there was someone was in the apartment so they kept knocking while announcing, "Quincy Police."

After numerous verbal advisements that they (the officers) were not going to leave until the door was opened and the Fire Department would open the door for them, a female (later identified as the victim) partially opened the door and said, "What can I help you with?" The officers could see she was crying and appeared to be upset.

Officer Waters placed her right arm and right foot in the door way and advised the female they were coming in the apartment to ensure no one was in danger. The officers pushed the door open slowly and found a male standing behind the kitchen island. (Which is a dangerous spot due to knives and utensils.)

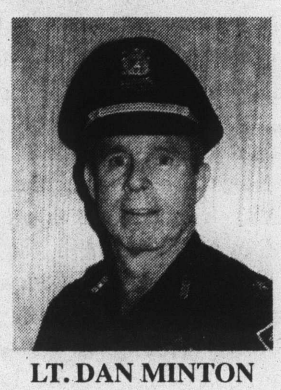
Officers Donovan and Duggan spoke with the male while Officer Waters removed the female from the male's sight and interviewed her. The officer noted the female was wearing a robe and her neck area and chest area were dark red. When asked about the marks, the female said, "I don't want to answer that." The female then became hostile and said, "This is America. People argue. There is nothing wrong or illegal with that."

When asked what the argument was about, the female again declined to respond. While obtaining her biographical information for the report, the male began to yell, "Baby shut up. Don't talk to them. Do not tell them anything."

Officer Waters approached the male to advise him not to interfere and he repeated himself not to tell the Police anything. At this point, Officer Waters requested Officer Donovan place the male in custody for witness intimidation. While he was being escorted from the apartment, the female attempted to push past the officers while saying, "Wait a minute - what are you doing to my boyfriend? Where are you bringing him? You can't do this."

Officer Waters had to put her right forearm up to block her from getting too close to the male. In total, the male yelled to the female four times, "Shut up baby. Don't talk to them. Do not tell them anything." The male was transported to the station for booking.

Officers Duggan and Waters then attempted to speak with the female and asked her about the broken glass strewn about the living room floor as well as a shattered cell phone and car keys at the front door on the floor. The female said, "I was trying to clean it up. Sometimes people drop things." Officer Waters observed children's toys against the living room wall and asked the female if there were any children in the apartment and she responded, "That is our personal information and I do not wish to answer."



LT. DAN MINTON

As Officer Duggan began to conduct a further check to ensure no children were present, the female attempted to push past Officer Waters while yelling, "You have no right. You have not right to be in here. I do not give you permission." A check was made and no children were present. It took a few minutes to calm the female down and explain why the officers were called to the apartment and why her boyfriend was under arrest.

As Officer Waters attempted to gather information as to what occurred, the female again refused to answer any questions and said, "I can't believe this is America. I was having a hard time and was upset. That is all." When asked if she needed an ambulance, the female responded angrily, "No I don't. I am leaving here and going to stay with my mother."

Officer Waters advised the female of her rights to an emergency restraining order and how the officers could assist her in obtaining one. The female laughed and said, "I know you have to say that, but I do not want one. How can I get him out?" She was advised of the bail process and was again advised to call the police station should she change her mind and wish to speak further. Clothing was retrieved for the male by the female because at the time of his arrest he was in boxers/underwear. A domestic violence assessment form was completed and submitted.

The male, a 38-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with intimidation of a witness and assault on a family/household member. Officer Waters noted in her report that the male has an extensive criminal history which included a conviction for manslaughter and numerous assault and battery charges. Nice Work!

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE

On Tuesday Dec. 11, at approximately 11:45 a.m., Officers Kevin DiMattio and Matt Patten responded to the area of West Squantum Street by the North Quincy train station for a possible package theft. The witness, a high school teacher, notified school security that she observed a male open a package on Hunt Street (a short distance away) and walk away with the contents. The male suspect was described as a male in his fifties, wearing a gray 3/4 length jacket.

The officers went to the North Quincy train station to search for the suspect and found him on the platform. The officers approached the suspect and noted he had a plastic bag with an unknown item inside. When Officer Patten looked at the bag, the suspect immediately raised his arm with the bag in hand and then told the officers he found "it" over by the high school. The suspect said there was a laptop computer in the bag.

Officer DiMattio read the suspect his Miranda rights which he waived. The suspect said he was walking on Hunt Street and noticed a package on the ground so he opened it and discovered it was a Dell laptop computer. He said he took the laptop and left the packaging behind, then headed to the train station to look for a Police Officer.

Unable to locate an officer, he decided to get on a train and head into Boston for work.

The officer asked the suspect if the package had a mailing address and he stated that it was a Newbury Avenue location. When asked why he had to open the package, the suspect said, "I thought it was a bomb."

He was immediately asked why he would open a package if he believed is was a bomb but he didn't respond. The suspect was asked why he didn't just return it to the address listed on the package and he said, "I forgot."

The suspect, a 44-year-old Quincy resident was placed under arrest for receiving stolen property under $1,200.

Officer DiMattio interviewed the witness who said that she was in the school parking lot off of Hunt Street (behind school) when she observed the suspect opening a boxed package. She watched as he ripped open the box and threw the packaging to the ground. She saw him remove a laptop computer, place it under his arm and then flee toward the train station. She believed he may have stolen the package from a student's vehicle so she reported the incident to school security.

The officer located the packaging in the parking lot and attempted to locate the victim at the address listed to no avail. The address on the packaging was the same as where the suspect lives. It is believed that the suspect stole the laptop from the foyer area and opened it on Hunt Street where the witness observed him. Nice Work!

School Committee Keeps Options Open For St. Mary's Site

"I think this is premature and isn't appropriate at this time," said Koch. "We are still in the process of getting back into the queue with the Squantum Elementary School. I don't see us in that process, for whatever this committee decides to do with St. Mary's, for a little while yet."

The mayor went on to explain that the St. Mary's site was acquired because there is limited land in the city available for building new school facilities.

"The reason I moved on this property is because we live in a dense city, urban area and land doesn't become available too often," he said. "I thought it was prudent the city secure that land."

Koch said he has publicly discussed the possibility of building an elementary school on the site, but, that "doesn't mean the school committee has to move on that…There will be plenty of time as the process will dictate going forward."

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo agreed.

"I think it's presumptuous for us to assume it (the site) is going to be for an elementary school," she said. "I think the property could be useful for many things. I've had significant discussions with my colleagues on the school committee about some options we could explore."

One option is building a special education facility to keep more students in-district. Many special education students are now bused out of the city to special programs.

"We could collaborate with our community members and neighbors to come up with something more local to keep our kids closer to home," she said.

Lebo said each year the committee examines the district's needs and the St. Mary's proposal at this time does not fit in.

"We look at where are needs are and where are efforts should be put and I don't think we are in a position right now to start making decisions on the St. Mary's property," she said.

Gutro said that earlier this year when the school committee endorsed the city council's purchase of the land, there was discussion on building an elementary school on the site. He said the resolution he presented was in response to that proposal.

"There seemed to be a compelling need for an elementary school in West Quincy," he said, referring to last January's discussion. "I was under the impression, probably wrongly so, that one of the things we were looking at was to ease some of the crowding at Lincoln-Hancock, Marshall and Montclair and some of the other schools in West Quincy. It sounds like you're saying it's probably not viable."

Gutro took issue that his colleagues would not consider assessing the property and having a report on the findings prepared.

"The premise that you can't calculate the square footage to discern the size of the building for the number of classrooms is silly, honestly," he said. "It's not a difficult lift to do. It sounds like this body essentially wants to let it (property) sit idle until a later date when we might want to assess the viability, if anything, for educational purposes, can be constructed. I just wanted to see and have a sense as to what utility that may or may not have, sooner rather than later, and collectively, if we thought there is a need for an elementary school. If this site was the site, great, if not the site, then we would know. That was the purpose of the resolution."

Koch said he, personally, favors building a new elementary school on the St. Mary's school site.

"I still stand by my position that I would like to see an elementary school there," he said.

The mayor reiterated the city council and school committee vote to purchase the land was to "tie it up now for educational purposes down the road."

"You can't just throw a playground in there," he said. "It has to be used in the future for educational use."

Koch explained that he plans to seek funding from the city council to tear down the buildings on the St. Mary's site. He said the city's public buildings engineers determined the structures are no longer useful.

"Those buildings are way beyond their useful years," he said. "Whatever happens down the road, those buildings will not be used."

Koch said that Proposition 2-1/2 forced the closings of schools that hit the West Quincy area hard and it is his personal proposal to build a new school in that area. However, he said a proper analysis must be conducted before anything is decided for the site.

"It's premature to get into something before this body can examine what the needs are," he said.

County Real Estate Sales Sluggish Due To Limited Inventory

residential and commercial properties, came in at $1.2 billion, a 3% increase year over year. There can be no doubt consumers are being prudent when considering big ticket expenses due to increases in the interest rates."

While the figures were mixed, there are some definite reasons for optimism when it comes to foreclosure activity. "First the bad news;" noted the Register, "there were 17 foreclosure deeds filed in November compared to 13 during the same time period in 2017. The good news; during the same time period there was a 68% reduction in the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage filings, the first step in the foreclosure process."

"The Notice to Foreclose Mortgage numbers were really encouraging," O'Donnell said. "With that said, we need to remember that foreclosure activity has a human face. I want to remind Norfolk County residents that my office continues to partner with the Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks Southern Mass., 508-587-0950. These organizations can help homeowners who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage document. A third option is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400."

On the consumer front, the number of Homestead recordings showed a small increase. A total of 1,022 Homesteads were filed compared to 1,004 in November 2017. O'Donnell noted, "A Homestead provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000."

"Once again, we are seeing some troubling concerns in the real estate market brought on by low inventory numbers. The only way we will see a more robust real estate market is through greater inventory and the stabilizing of interest rates," O'Donnell said.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. It is also the repository of over 8.5 million land records. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Quincy Community United Methodist

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church, located at 40 Beale St. in Wollaston, announces its slate of Christmas services.

On Saturday, Dec. 22, the Blue Christmas breakfast and worship will start at 9:30 a.m. in the fellowship hall.

The Christmas Eve service on Monday, Dec. 24, will begin at 11 p.m. It will be a service of candles, carols and Communion.

Blue Christmas Breakfast

The Christmas season is often experienced as an emotionally difficult time. As the days shorten and become darker, feelings of sorrow and loneliness often overwhelm us.

In a season of festivity, it may be quite difficult to share with others these feelings of darkness and sadness. While others are decorating, celebrating and going to parties, those who are struggling may feel vulnerable and lost.

Those who are grieving may be unsure as to how best to follow family traditions without the presence of their loved one. The absence of a family member, a relationship, or a friendship may be very painful. Financial insecurity due to unemployment or underemployment creates difficulty in decision-making regarding food, shelter and the giving of gifts.

This year Quincy Community United Methodist Church will offer a Blue Christmas Breakfast, to be held in the downstairs fellowship hall on Saturday, Dec. 22 at 9:30 a.m.

A special worship service will be incorporated as church members share the first meal following the Longest Night.

When a loved one passes, especially one with whom we have shared our meals, the first meal alone without their presence can be a very difficult time. Come and worship Blue Christmas in a new way.

The church is located at 40 Beale St.

RELIGION

Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road, will have a special worship service and celebration of the birth of Jesus Christ on Sunday, Dec. 23 at 10 a.m.

The service of lessons, carols and the spreading of the light will be led by Rev. Robert Benjamin, Associate Dean for Multicultural Affairs and Student Transitions at Eastern Nazarene College. A light luncheon and fellowship time will follow the service. All are welcome to attend.

On Christmas Eve, the Congregation of Union Congregational Church will celebrate "The Wonder of the Promise" with the congregation of First Church of Squantum at 7 p.m. at the FCS, 164 Bellevue Rd., North Quincy. The choirs of both churches will sing together under the direction of Bob Ougoorlian.

For more information, visit websites www.UnionCongWoll.org and/or www.firstchurchsquantum.org or call 617-479-6661.

Christmas Eve Service At Houghs Neck Congregational

The Christmas eve service of carols and stories at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. starts at 5 p.m.

Pastor Steve Vandergrift will lead the service. The choir will sing under the direction of minister of music, Steve Reed. Carols will be sung by the congregation. Shirley Pearson, Nancy, Ralph and Chris Jacobs will serve for the Diaconate.

The church is decorated with poinsettias thanks to the Seaside Social Club's project. A ceramic nativity scene made by Sheena Giggey Curley many years ago is again in place on the altar.

The final carol, "Silent Night," will be sung by candlelight to end the service.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have a Sunday Worship Service at 9:30 a.m. Linda Parrington will be preaching. Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Outreach Committee doing various charity works.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon-1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Please visit www.bethanycongchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, the Sunday Service is broadcast on QATV at 6 p.m. on Thursdays and 10:00 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

OBITUARIES

Adelaide Durkin, 88

A funeral Mass for Adelaide Durkin, 88, formerly of Hingham, Marion, and Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Durkin died Dec. 5.

She was the wife of the late John Durkin. She was born in Dorchester on Jan. 7, 1930, to the late Francis and Adelaide Sweeney, and was the last survivor of the six Sweeney siblings.

Mrs. Durkin attended Dorchester High School and graduated from Framingham State University with a degree in home economics. In 1953, she married John Durkin and together they raised their family in Quincy. Her six children have fond memories of her involvement in their lives, whether she was swimming with them at Wollaston Beach, pitching at Koch Club, or teaching sewing at Sacred Heart School.

As her children grew older, Mrs. Durkin and her friend and fellow entrepreneur Karen Menz started a successful slipcover and drapery business. It was said that they "slipcovered the South Shore." In 1996 she and her husband, Jack, retired to Marion where they were active in the community and made many new friends. After 52 years of marriage, her husband passed away and Mrs. Durkin once again moved and established new bonds of friendship at Linden Ponds in Hingham.

Wherever she lived, Mrs. Durkin accumulated new friends and continued to treasure her old friends. She always loved her church and her family.

In return, she was greatly loved and will be missed by her entire family: her children, Michael (wife Janet), Ann Wiener (husband Allan), Vincent (wife Jan), Adelaide Grandfield (husband John), Margaret Gallagher (husband James) and Kathleen Waller (husband Peter); and 23 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Concord Regional VNA, Hospice Program, 30 Pillsbury St., Concord, NH 03301.

Jean Grant-Henderson, 93

Funeral services for Jean Grant-Henderson, 93, of Weymouth were private.

Mrs. Grant-Henderson died peacefully in the evening of Dec. 3 after an eleven-year mental decline and valiant physical struggle with Alzheimer's disease.

Born in Quincy on March 26, 1925, she was raised in Wollaston not far from Wollaston Beach where her love of swimming and the sea began. She was the second child of the late Thelma (Boles) Anderson and Harry W. Anderson. She is pre-deceased by her sister, Priscilla Hall and her brother, Alan Anderson.

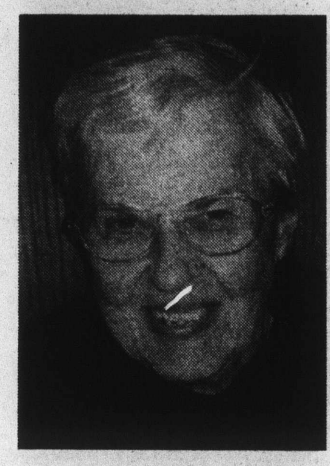
Mrs. Grant-Henderson grew up in the Great Depression and lived through WWII. At the age of 18, she entered the government's Nurse Cadet Program, created during wartime to provide needed nurses. She graduated from the former Quincy City Hospital Nursing School in 1947 as an RN and, at the age of 21, had the start of a lifelong career, one she was deeply proud of.

A realistic, strong individual with deep empathy for others, she desired to be a nurse from a young age having watched her mother care for her father during a long illness. Mrs. Grant-Henderson worked as an RN until the age of 80. A complete professional yet deeply caring, she was an excellent nurse.

She married Daryl L. Grant in 1950 with whom she had four children. Daryl died in 1971. Upon his death, she returned to college, earning a Bachelor of Science degree from Emmanuel College.

In 1988, she married Sheldon Henderson who passed away in 2004.

Mrs. Grant-Henderson



JEAN GRANT-HENDERSON

was a positive, outgoing, fun person, always looking forward to the next day with enthusiasm and curiosity even into her disease, her favorite expression, "I don't want to miss anything". She loved people, and was deeply devoted to family. She gardened, knitted, painted, braided rugs and loved to laugh. She was a survivor and an inspiration.

In 2007, Mrs. Grant-Henderson was formally diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease.

She is survived by her children: Todd Grant of Ann Arbor, MI and his wife Anne, Jeanette Grant of Weymouth, Peter Grant of Cheshire, CT, and Anita Grant-King of Daytona Beach, Florida and her husband Mark; four grandchildren, Alexander Grant of Florida and his wife Stephanie , Daniel Grant of California, David Grant and Andrew Grant of Michigan.

She is survived by three sisters in-law and numerous nieces and nephews.

Well remembered by all with love and laughter.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mark S. Bertman

A funeral service for Mark S. Bertman of Quincy was held Tuesday in Sharon Memorial Park Chapel, Sharon.

Mr. Bertman died Dec. 12.

He is survived by his loving wife of 63 years Isobel (Nathanson) Bertman of Quincy, his sons Jeffrey and Bruce Bertman and grandchildren Wade, Natalie, Jason and Rebecca.

Mr. Bertman graduated from Boston University and owned Rogers Jewelry in Quincy Square since 1960. As a community activist, he was the founder of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, board member of the South Shore Bank, board member of Quincy 2000 and Quincy Tourism, past director of Quincy Historical Society, founder of The Quincy Partnership, member of the Quincy Rotary Club, being honored as a Paul Harris Fellow, a former director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and Quincy Chamber of Commerce, Quincy College Board of Governors, being a past president of Quincy College Trust. Mr. Bertman was honored by the college as the recipient of the 2017 Quintessential Award. He also received the Good Scout Award, the Quincy Lions Award and the Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award.

Mr. Bertman was a global traveler who loved to see the world with his close friends and family. For his commitment to his family and to his community, Mr. Bertman will be greatly missed by all.

Interment at Sharon Memorial Park.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to The Quincy College Trust, 1250 Hancock St, 7th floor, Quincy MA 02169.

Regina Anshewitz, 71

Visiting hours for Regina (Grogan) Anshewitz, 71, were held Dec. 14 in the Hamel Lydon Chapel, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Anshewitz died peacefully in the loving embrace of her family on Dec. 11 in Weymouth following a brief illness.

She was born in Boston to William and Elizabeth Grogan. She attended school in Boston and married Richard Anshewitz in 1969. For well over 45 years, they raised their family and made their home in Quincy.

In addition to being a loving wife and mother, Mrs. Anshewitz worked as a housekeeping supervisor at Quincy Hospital for a number of years prior to her retirement. Mrs. Anshewitz loved her family and loved having a good time. She was a friend to all who knew her and she will be sorely missed.

Mrs. Anshewitz is preceded in death by her brother, William J. Grogan Jr.

REGINA ANSHEWITZ

She is survived by her husband, Richard Anshewitz; her daughter, Tracey Erskine and her husband Jeffrey; her daughter Tara McDonough and her husband David; her sister Mary Bonanno and her brother, Ralph Grogan and her grandchildren, Ashley and Jarrod Erskine. Additionally, she is survived by many nieces and nephews and all of the kids she helped raise in "the old neighborhood" in Quincy.

Private interment.

Quincy City Councillor – Ward 6

In Loving Memory

On Your Third Year Anniversary

We thought of you with love today,
But that is nothing new.
We thought of you yesterday,
And days before that, too.
We think of you in silence,
We often speak your name.
Now all we have is memories,
And your picture in a frame.
Your memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part.
God has you in his keeping,
We have you in our hearts.

Lovingly remembered by Family & Friends
We miss you, Brian!

Raymond Zanelli

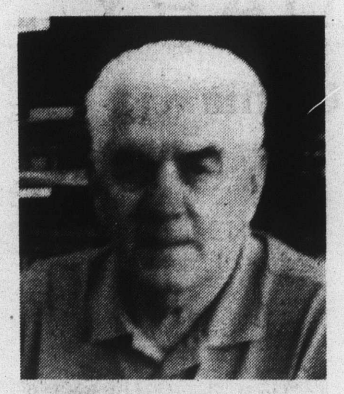
Funeral services for Raymond (Remo) Zanelli of Quincy will be private.

Mr. Zanelli died Dec. 14.

He worked for Raytheon and then owned and operated New England Statuary Company of Boston with his father-in-law until retiring. Mr. Zanelli was a member of the Sons of Italy, enjoyed horse racing and in his younger years was a jockey. He enjoyed going to casinos and spending time at the Kennedy Senior Center.

Mr. Zanelli was always there to help anyone in need and was a strong, generous and funny man who was full of life. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Son of the late Bernardo and Angiolina Zanelli. Beloved husband of 58 years to Anna Zanelli of Quincy. Loving father of Marco Remo Zanelli of Quincy. Cherished brother of Rita Pontremoli of Italy, Anthony Zanelli of Medford, and the late Giovanna Pontremoli. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.



RAYMOND ZANELLI

We wish to thank Dr. Geoffrey Oxnard, Dr. Sarah May, and Dawn Drevers RN and the teams at Dana-Farber and Brigham and Women's Hospital for their wonderful care.

Memorial donations may be made to Dana-Farber, Brigham and Women's Hospital or the American Cancer Society.

Good night, sweet prince, and flights of angels sing thee to thy rest! -W. Shakespeare

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Michael F. Gates

A funeral Mass for Michael F. Gates, 68, of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Gates died Dec. 12.

He was the loving husband of 47 years to Frances M. (Foley) Gates.

The second of four children born to the late James and Patricia (Doherty) Gates, Mr. Gates served his country with honor in the US Army during the war in Vietnam and was awarded the Purple Heart.

He was a member of Nickerson Post 382 of the American Legion, and worked as a teamster, driving with Local 25 for many years. His favorite times were those spent with his family and closest friends, especially in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, where camping and fishing were relished pastimes.

In addition to his wife Fran, he leaves behind his loving children Michael Gates and his wife Jennifer (Clancy) of Quincy, Loren McBride and her husband Daniel of Norwell, Brian Gates and his wife Angela (Maietta) of Weymouth and Kathlyn Reed and her husband Jason of Amherst NH. Cherished grandfather of Thomas, Ella and Henry Gates, Jonathan McBride, Abigail and Charlotte Reed, and Leah Gates. Dear brother of Patrick Gates and his wife Theresa of South Boston, Margaret Visconti and her husband Mark of Merrimack, NH, and the late James Gates. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, extended family, brothers and sisters-in-law and dear friends.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Massachusetts Fallen Heroes, 100 Hallet St., Dorchester, MA 02124 or online at massfallenheros.org

Mr. Deady was a proud United States Army veteran of the Korean War and worked as a manager for General Dynamics for more than 40 years. He loved boating and living on the ocean. He enjoyed both water and snow skiing and loved to scuba dive.

He was a lifetime member of the Quincy Yacht Club and served as treasurer for many years. In his earlier years, Mr. Deady enjoyed coaching the girls' basketball team at the Most Blessed Sacrament Church and, as the years went on, he could always be heard coaching his children and grandchildren from the sidelines.

Most of all Mr. Deady was devoted to his family; they were truly what was most important in his life. He will be sadly missed.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A celebration of life service will be held in the funeral home at 9:15 a.m. on Thursday.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Holliston.

In lieu of flowers, the family has asked for those who are able to please consider donating blood to the Red Cross in memory of Mr. Deady.

Joseph R. Carty, 83

A funeral Mass for Joseph R. Carty, 83, a longtime Quincy resident, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Carty died Dec. 15 at home, surrounded by his family.

The beloved husband of 62 years to Jane (Hanagan) Carty of Quincy. Loving father of Joseph F. Carty of Brewster, Lynne M. Lacorazza of Lakeville, Lori Mann of Dracut, John Carty of Dedham, Mary Bryant of Weymouth, Michael Carty of Tenn., Paul Carty of Quincy and the late Bonnie Carty. Brother of Eleanor Svehlak of MD, Dotty Johnson of Las Vegas and the late John, Thomas, Walter, Mary, Rita, Agnes, Anne and Terry. He is also survived by 11 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

A longtime member of Local 103, Mr. Carty worked as an electrician for more than 50 years. He served his country in the Naval reserves for several years.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A celebration of life service will be held at 9:15 a.m. Friday in the funeral home.

Interment at Mount Benedict Cemetery, Boston.

Ann M. Callahan, 87

Ann Marie Callahan, 87, a lifelong resident of Quincy, died Dec. 7.

Ms. Callahan was a beautiful person who was loved and cherished and will be missed dearly. Ann enjoyed a full life working for Selective Service and then at the accounting firm of Darmody Merlino & Company, in Boston, MA. Her life exemplified one in the Catholic faith, serving as a Eucharistic minister at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy for many years. She enjoyed weekly card games with her friends and trips visiting family or a nearby casino for entertainment.

Ms. Callahan was legendary for being that one-of-a-kind sister and aunt some are blessed to have in their lives. Her generosity and willingness to help so many will never be forgotten. "E" as she was affectionately called never missed a birthday, anniversary, or the little events of life like the passing of an important school test, a horse show, a basketball tournament or a football game. Memories of pool parties, parades, player pianos and the sound of her voice will always bring a smile to our faces but most importantly the unconditional love she showered on everyone will be etched in our hearts forever.

Loved ones who cleared the path for Ms. Callahan are her parents, Anna and James J. Callahan; and her nephew Thomas Edward Welch 3rd. She is survived by her four sisters, Barbara Callahan, Claire Welch Majeski and her husband Anthony, Ellen Callahan and Cathy Snodgrass; her nieces, Tracy Elizabeth Welch Portmann and Leslie Welch Campbell and her husband Jay; her nephews, John Gibbons and his wife Terry and Brian Snodgrass; her grandnephews, Oliver Portmann, Thomas Welch IV, Jack Campbell, John and Thomas Gibbons; her grandnieces, Blake, Lili and Chase Portmann, Ella Campbell, Shannon and Noelle Welch, and Katie Gibbons.

ANN M. CALLAHAN

Memorial donations may be made to Muscular Dystrophy Association, 25 East Spring Valley Ave..#210, Maywood, NJ 07607.

Arrangements are under the care of Orender Family Home for Funerals, Manasquan, NJ.

Janet Williamson, 94

A memorial service for Janet (Gibson) Williamson, 94, of Squantum was held Dec. 15 in the First Church of Squantum.

Mrs. Williamson died Dec. 10.

Beloved wife of Thomas H. Williamson. Devoted mother of Scott Williamson and his wife Maria of Worcester.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, Greater New England Chapter, 101A First Ave., Waltham, MA 02451.

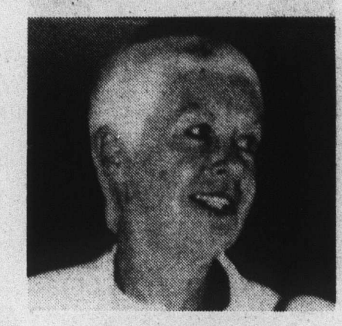
OBITUARY

Nancy Griffin

A memorial Mass for Nancy Power Griffin of Hingham, formerly of Quincy, member of renowned Power clan of Mission Hill, will be celebrated at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Griffin died Dec. 15.

Wife of the late Eugene Griffin and mother of eight: Michael Griffin and his wife Pat of Quincy, Jay Griffin and his wife Joyce of Stoneham, Eugene "Gov" Griffin of Hingham, Tim Griffin and Jen Campbell of Stowe, VT, Jane Griffin and her husband Stan Alexander of Hingham, Jill Griffin of Hingham, Sally Brennan and her husband Tom of Hingham and Polly Griffin of Hingham. Also survived by eleven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.



NANCY GRIFFIN

Sister of the late Frank Power, Barbara Power, Herb Power and Jean Jackson.

Mrs. Griffin was a graduate of Mission Church High School (1949) and Katharine Gibbs Secretarial School of Newbury Street, Boston (1951). Most recently, she was an executive secretary to Quincy chief of police, retiring in 2002, after more than twenty-five years of dedicated service to the City of Quincy.

Having come from a family of sports coaches and athletes, Mrs. Griffin possessed a vast knowledge of sports and was an avid fan of all the "home" teams.

Her happiest moments were spent summering in Nahant and on Nantasket Beach with her beloved family and friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Father Bills Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169.

FX Messina Aims To Evict City From Downtown Lot

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Braintree company that owns the land on which Quincy opened a 100-spot parking lot two years ago has taken legal action to evict the city from the property.

William Geary, the special counsel to Mayor Thomas Koch for downtown redevelopment, on Monday told city councillors FX Messina Enterprises has begun proceedings in Quincy District Court to evict the city from the lot at 1565 Hancock St., which the city intends to fight. Geary said the two sides are set to appear in court today (Thursday) for a motion hearing and a trial date has been scheduled for Jan. 9.

The city has been using the land at 1565 Hancock St. – commonly referred to as the Messina Lot – since 2016. The Messina Lot is one of several parking areas in Quincy Center where motorists who formerly used the Hancock Lot were re-assigned after the latter closed earlier this year. The Messina Lot provides parking for 100 employees from eight different Quincy Center companies, Geary said, and is open to the public for free during evening and weekend hours.

The city and FX Messina signed a one-year deal lease allowing city to use the land – which was previously vacant – in 2016. That lease was renewed in 2017 but was not renewed this year. Geary said the city continued to make rent payments on the lot since the lease expired this past June.

"We are contesting the grounds upon which they wish to evict us, having paid the rent up to the point in time when they did issue that eviction notice," Geary said, "and also challenging the grounds upon which they filed this action in Quincy District Court – this is the kind of action we believe is in the jurisdiction of the Superior Court."

If the city were forced to vacate the lot, Geary said it would create an "untenable circumstance for us, currently and for the foreseeable future."

An attorney representing FX Messina was present at Monday's City Council meeting but declined to comment after the meeting ended.

A council order to temporarily take the Messina Lot was introduced in May after talks between the two sides about renewing the lease reached an impasse. In October, a second order to take the lot outright by eminent domain was introduced and substituted for the original bill. The city proposed paying FX Messina $6.8 million for the land as part of that order, which is still pending before the City Council.

Geary on Monday said representatives for FX Messina told city officials to take the property by eminent domain if the city did not plan to stop using the lot once the new municipal garage on the Hancock Lot opens in late 2019. He said the city would continue to need the lot over the next several years for parking, and would then sell it to a developer after that point.

"We believe that we are going to need that lot irrespective of what occurs for a variety of development needs we will have," Geary said. "The old saying, 'go into real estate because they're not making any more of it,' certainly applies in Quincy Center."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said city officials should have had a backup plan knowing the lease for the Messina Lot was expiring in June.

"The city knew going into this that we had a potential problem…because we do not have a lease," she said. "We went into this knowing in June that we did not have a lease."

Geary said that was not a fair statement to make because the city began using the lot two years ago, with a lease for the land. He said the city was surprised by FX Messina's decision to not renew the lease this year.

"It did come as a surprise, because up until that point in time we did not anticipate that they would have a change of heart," Geary said.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said the city handled the closure of the Hancock Lot well and was optimistic the city could find an alternative to the Messina Lot if necessary.

"There will be other buildings that will come down, other lots that will open up in the area as pieces get moved around where parking will be available," McCarthy said.

Geary said a full presentation on the effort to redevelop Quincy Center – including projects already underway and others forthcoming – would be made to the City Council early in 2019.

Popeyes Planned For Southern Artery

By SCOTT JACKSON

A fast-food restaurant specializing in fried chicken is set to open on the site of a former auto shop on Southern Artery.

The Zoning Board of Appeals on Dec. 11 granted a Popeyes Louisiana Kitchen franchisee a special permit for the drive-through at the new restaurant, which will open at 502 Southern Artery.

The site was formerly home to Monro Muffler, which has been closed for several years. Christopher Harrington, the attorney representing the Popeyes franchisee, said the existing building on the property would be demolished to make way for the restaurant.

The Popeyes would be located inside a 1,674 square foot building with seating for 20 customers.

"A normal size Popeyes restaurant is anywhere from 3,800 to 4,000 square feet," Harrington said. "It is a relatively small Popeyes location."

Harrington said the building meets all the requirements of the zoning code, except for the drive-through. Ten parking spaces will be provided on site – five more than would be needed for a 20-seat restaurant.

The drive-through lane will have space for eight or nine vehicles, Harrington said. A bypass lane will be located to the right of the drive-through, allowing someone to leave the drive-through if they want to do so.

The new Popeyes will open next door to a Wendy's and a short distance from a McDonald's.

"This obviously is a perfect location for a fast-food restaurant," Harrington said. "It fits right in with the other businesses that are already there."

He said the Popeyes would hire 25 full-time employees and 15 part-time ones. Popeyes, Harrington added, is also committed to participating in school programs and local fundraisers in any community in which it operates.

Gary McNaughton, a traffic engineer for the applicant, said the Popeyes would create a total of 54 vehicle trips during the weekday evening peak hour – 28 trips in and 26 trips out. The Saturday lunch hour would be busier, he said, with 47 vehicle trips in and 45 trips out.

About 60 percent of the restaurant's traffic would use the drive-through lane, McNaughton added, based on what happens at other Popeyes locations.

The city's traffic engineer requested the exit from the restaurant to Southern Artery be made right-turn only, which the applicant agreed to, Harrington said.

One resident, John Rodophele of Grenwold Road, spoke in favor of the application during the ZBA meeting.

"I think it's good that Popeyes chose to come to Quincy. This isn't anything worse than Wendy's," he said. "This is good commercial growth. I think that by putting a Popeyes there, we're preventing 40 condos from being developed there in the future."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be busier than you had expected right now. But between the socializing rounds and the workplace tasks, there are opportunities for special moments with that certain someone.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your creative approach leads to a quicker-than-expected solution to a workplace problem. Now you can devote more time to that proposal you hope to introduce by midmonth.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Technological glitches create problems early on. But by midweek, all runs smoothly once again, and you're well and truly on your way to meeting all your deadlines.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels are high, and you feel you can handle everything that comes along. But try to take a break from your hectic pace for some quiet time with someone close to you.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Before you pounce on that shiny new opportunity, take more time to check it out to see how much substance actually lies beneath all that glitter. A family member has important news.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A personal situation you thought was resolved resurfaces, thanks to a possibly well-intentioned move that went awry. Deal with it as soon as possible. Accept the help of a trusted friend.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That goal you set way back when is finally in sight. Maintain your focus on achieving it, and don't allow yourself to be distracted by unimportant demands for your attention.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental flare-up creates negative feelings that need to be dealt with immediately. But things once again go well after the apologies are made and hurt feelings are soothed.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An early impulsive act causes confusion. But all is smoothed over once explanations are made. Expect a friend or family member to ask for your kind and always wise advice.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might have to do some juggling of your priorities, as a personal matter appears to require more time and attention. Put your pride aside and accept help from those who offer it.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your creative aspect is strong. Not only does it help you accomplish your goals, but it also inspires others. This could lead to a potentially rewarding collaboration opportunity.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about making major decisions when you're not really committed to them. And resist any pressure to do otherwise. Better to delay action until all doubts are resolved.
BORN THIS WEEK: You set goals and are rarely distracted by any attempt to move you off the path you've chosen to reach them.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- When word got out that Steven Spielberg was in pre-production of a remake of the 1961 musical "West Side Story" (which won 10 Academy Awards), even Robert Redford posted on Facebook his reasons for objecting to a remake of such a film classic. But Spielberg is one smart producer. While we've been waiting to see who will play Tony and Maria, the first actress cast is 86-year-old Rita Moreno, who won an Oscar for playing Anita (at age 30) in the original film. Moreno will be playing the reconceived role of "Doc," originally played by Ned Glass. She admitted, "Never in my wildest dreams did I see myself revisiting this seminal work, and to be asked by Steven Spielberg to participate is simply thrilling!"

Eddie Redmayne has completed his tour for the "Fantastic Beasts" sequel, "The Crimes of Grindelwald," which fell short of expectations. Both films cost $200 million to make, but the original grossed $814 million while the sequel made only $440 million. Redmayne is reteaming with his "The Theory of Everything" co-star Felicity Jones in the biographical/action film "The Aeronauts," due in November 2019.

Ben Affleck has three films in the works: The action/crime drama "Triple Frontier," with Charlie Hunnam, Garrett Hedlund and Oscar Isaac; Netflix's British-American political thriller "The Last Thing He Wanted," with Anne Hathaway and Willem Dafoe; and "Torrence," with Al Madrigal of "The Daily Show With Jon Stewart."

Armie Hammer's last love interest was Timothee Chalamet in "Call Me By Your Name," but he's landed Felicity Jones as his amour in the biological legal drama "On The Basis of Sex," with Justin Theroux, opening Christmas Day. He's currently shooting an untitled psychological horror film co-starring Dakota Johnson, opening March 19.

The incomparable Cher, touring the U.S. from Jan. 17 to April 18, and at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas on Wednesday/Friday and Saturdays from March 13-30, recently stopped in Chicago to see the Broadway-bound show about her life, "The Cher Show." She admitted she wasn't thrilled with the musical, noting: "Some parts of it are really fabulous, but we're going to work on other parts. Many parts were much better than I thought they would be, while there were other parts where I wanted to gouge my eyes out!" She added, "It needs work because I'm fussy 'cause it's my story, I want it to be honest, right, funny and sad ... like my life!"

You can be sure they made the changes she wanted before they opened on Broadway earlier this month. She probably had a critical mind as she looked back on Sonny-ier days!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Punch Bowl --- If you were getting ready for the traditional Christmas party in 1860s England, you might have been searching the storage cupboards for the holiday punch bowl. Colorful, decorative majolica serving pieces were popular then, and George Jones made some of the best. Starting in 1866, he made covered dishes for cheese, game pie and even sardines. Special dishes were made for honey, cake, oysters, butter, berries, biscuits or other foods. All were decorated with raised flowers, leaves or figures glazed in bright colors. Jones was joined by his sons in 1873 and the company name was changed to "George Jones & Sons." George died in 1893, the company was sold in 1929 and the name was changed by 1951. Early pieces are marked with the overlapping letters "GJ" in a circle until 1873, when a crescent with "& sons" was added. Majolica lost favor and was considered "kitsch" until about 1970 when it began to be used by decorators on the East Coast. Today, George Jones majolica is expensive. The amusing Christmas punch bowl that is decorated with holly and held by the famous puppet character Punch auctioned at Skinner's in Boston for $3,075.

Q: I have a cube puzzle titled "The Night Before Christmas" made by McLoughlin Brothers in New York. It consists of 20 cubes, 2 1/2 inches on an edge, that depict various Christmas scenes based on Clement Moore's poem. Santa is shown in a green coast with a red belt and fur trim. The puzzle is 4 cubes by 5 cubes. The copyright date reads "18--." The last two digits are obscured. What is the copyright date? The puzzle has been enjoyed by four generations of children, and it shows. It's in good enough condition so that all six scenes are shown in detail. What is the approximate value?

A: The copyright date is 1889. The pictures made by assembling the cubes are from the children's book, "The Night Before Christmas," published by McLoughlin Brothers. This Santa Claus cube puzzle sells for over $2,000 in almost perfect condition.

TIP: Snowdomes are liquid-filled paperweights. They should not be stored in the dark. Exposure to the light is necessary to keep the liquid clear. However, do not keep the snowdomes in direct sunlight. They can magnify the rays and may start a fire.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was beloved American comedian and film star Groucho Marx who made the following sage observation: "There's one way to find out if a man is honest -- ask him. If he says 'Yes,' you know he is a crook."

* You might be surprised to learn that, in addition to his holiday duties, Saint Nicholas is the patron saint of children, coopers, sailors, fishermen, merchants, broadcasters, the falsely accused, repentant thieves, brewers, pharmacists, archers, pawnbrokers, Aberdeen, Galway, Russia, Greece, Hellenic Navy, Liverpool, the Italian town of Bari, the city of Siggiewi in Malta, Moscow, Amsterdam and the Lorraine region of France.

* The next time you've enjoyed a happy hour out with friends, you might want to consider the virtually unknown adjective "gambrinous," which means "to be content and happy due to a stomach full of beer."

* A pregnant goldfish is known as a "twit."

* If you make a serious study of Hungarian gypsies, you probably already know that you're a "tziganologist."

* Ever wonder how the statuette taken home by winners of the Academy Awards got its nickname? Evidently, in 1931 a secretary at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences saw the statuette for the first time and exclaimed, "Why, he reminds me of my Uncle Oscar!" The comment struck the fancy of a reporter who was present, and he put it in a story about the awards, and the name stuck.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Putting up new calendars? Before you toss your old one, be sure to look through it for important anniversaries, and cut out and save any pictures or art that might be reusable for craft projects.

* Wrapping up your decorations is a snap with a visit to the recycling bin: egg cartons for ornaments, paper towel cores to wrap lights around, and newspaper for tinsel or lengths of fake boughs.

* "Is your showerhead spraying in all directions? There may be a buildup of mineral deposits blocking some of the holes. Here's a good way to get that cleaned out, and it's no scrub, mostly. Fill a plastic baggie halfway with a vinegar and water solution. Lift it up and put the showerhead into the vinegar. Then secure the bag over the pipe tightly using tape or a hair elastic. Let it sit while you're at work or running errands. Then remove and run the shower normally." -- R.E. in Oklahoma

* Do you use the clutter basket trick? As you clean your home, or just when tidying, carry a basket from room to room. Items that belong in another room go in the basket to be delivered to the right room along the way.

* "Make your own coffee creamer with this easy recipe: Combine 1 can of sweetened condensed milk with 2 cups of whole milk and 1/3 to 1/2 cup flavoring syrup, available in the coffee aisle of your grocery store. Add a teaspoon of vanilla or almond extract for additional flavor." -- W.B. in New York

* Use dry flour or cornstarch on a microfiber cloth for stubborn grease on stainless steel. It absorbs and buffs.

Reps, Senators Worked In Committees, Full Houses To Pass Legislation

Students from Quincy High School participated in Yale's Model Congress from Nov. 29th to Dec. 2nd.

Members of the QHS delegation participated as U.S. representatives and senators and worked in committees and full houses in order to pass legislation. Two delegates, Maeve Walsh and Aidan Murphy, served on the President's cabinet as Secretary of Health and Human Services, and Secretary of Education, respectively.

Two members received special recognition for their efforts: Sara McDonald for Best Legislation on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Brian Gutro for Honorable Mention for his overall role on the House Intelligence Committee.

The trip was organized by QHS Social Studies Teacher Mrs. McMillen.

Displaced Families Find A Home For The Holidays

By TOM GORMAN

Two families living in shelters for the past year after fleeing hurricane-ravaged Puerto Rico have found permanent homes in Quincy, just in time for the holidays.

"This is my dream Christmas gift," said Wendy Castillo, as she stood with her family in the living room of their new apartment. "It's everything I could ask for my kids."

The families were welcomed during a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 12 Figurehead Lane in Germantown on Wednesday, Dec. 19. The Quincy Housing Authority building that once was an office and has been vacant for 20 years was renovated into two residential units.

Castillo and her husband, Juan Espinal, and children, Wellington, 10, Amelia, 9, and Yadiel, 5 and Alex Colon and Jacqueline Bonilli and their sons, Jowell, 8, and Alexis, 7, have been bouncing from place to place after coming to Massachusetts after the September 2017 hurricane destroyed their homes.

"These two families lived in Puerto Rico and they got wiped out by Hurricane Maria and lost everything they had," said Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director James Marathas. "They lived in shelters for over a year."

Marathas explained that the authority partnered with the Quincy Department of Housing and Community Development and Mayor Thomas Koch's office for funding to convert the vacant building into apartments to house the displaced families. The housing authority received $400,000

Mark McKenna
Football, Track, Baseball - Quincy H.S.

"Mark is a team leader on and off the field and in the community. He is a student of the game, who always works hard and wants to learn more."
- Kevin Carey

Mark played baseball for 2 years, track for 3 years, and football for all 4 years at Quincy High School. He currently serves as captain of the QHS Varsity Football Team. Mark is a member and acting Secretary of the National Business Honor Society. Mark holds a 3.79 GPA and ranks 77 out of 391 in his class. Although he has not finalized his choice of college, he plans to study Business and Finance next fall.

Maria Zraizaa
Soccer, Basketball - North Quincy H.S.

"Maria had a fantastic season in the net. She was fearless and stopped many one-on-one attempts. She gave the team the spark they needed and was a great leader!"
- Emily Rooney

Maria played soccer and basketball for all four years at NQHS. For the past two years, she played at the Varsity team level. Maria is currently the captain of the NQHS Varsity Basketball Team. Off the field, she stays involved with Drama Club and participation on the Drama and Student Council. Her GPA is a 3.8. Maria is planning to major in Biology on the pre-med track in college next year.

Jason MacIsaac Promoted To Police Sergeant

By SCOTT JACKSON

Jason MacIsaac, a 20-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, was recently promoted to the rank of sergeant during a City Hall ceremony.

MacIsaac, 46, was promoted to sergeant on the morning of Dec. 20 inside the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Government Center with dozens of family members and fellow officers present. City Clerk Nicole Crispo swore-in the new sergeant, and then MacIsaac's wife, Rose, pinned him with his new badge.

MacIsaac joined the department in September 1998 and had been assigned to the Bureau of Criminal Investigations as a detective since January 2003. He will be assigned to patrol as a sergeant.

The new sergeant said he was happy to receive his promotion.

"It's kind of everything, isn't it?" MacIsaac said when asked what the promotion means to him. "You choose a career and a life and do your best. I wanted to put my own stamp on things, took the test and here I am."

Police Seek Public's Help Amid Rash Of Break-Ins

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy police are asking the public for assistance after a spike in break-ins seen in certain areas of the city in recent weeks.

Lt. Dan Minton said 22 break-ins occurred in Quincy between Nov. 1 and Dec. 18; the last two of those break-ins took place on Dec. 10 and 11, though Minton said they were unrelated to the string of break-ins seen in some parts of Ward 3.

Minton said the number of break-ins is unusual in Quincy, particularly during this time of year, which led police to take action to stop them.

"We have random breaks throughout the city and for a city a so close to Boston, we don't have nearly the breaks that other communities have. So when we started seeing the rash of breaks occurring in pockets...we flooded the area," Minton said in an interview.

The 22 breaks occurred citywide, but police were concerned about incidents that occurred in three particular areas of the city. They started in the Hospital Hill area, then moved to the vicinity of Colonial Drive and Puritan Drive, and then over to Forbes Hill to the west and north of the Furnace Brook Golf Club.

"The first ones started over by Hospital Hill and

ATTENTION ARRESTING RED

Because January's birthstone is so durable, remnants of garnet jewelry have been traced as far back as the Bronze Age. This luminous gemstone was also vastly popular among the ancient Egyptians; Romans; the nobility of the Middle Ages; and the Victorians, who famously used clusters of the tiny red gems to create statement pieces. While garnet is mined in a variety of colors that include red, green, yellow, orange, brown, pink, purple, gray and black, it is best known for its dark-red hue. The gemstone's clarity ranges from transparent to translucent, which further helps to identify Pyrope (red) garnet with its namesake, the pomegranate seed. This red gemstone never fails to get the attention that it so richly deserves.

Here at Rogers Jewelry, our knowledgeable staff members offer guidance, friendly smiles and professional advice to ensure our customers' security in knowing that their investment in fine jewelry is wisely spent. Visit us at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, and WE will introduce you to the colorful world of garnets and other stunning gemstones, either in loose stones or gorgeous settings. PH: 617-773-3636.

Winter Weather, College Changes Among City's Top News Stories

2018 The Year In Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

Severe winter storms – ones that covered the city in more than a foot of snow, and one that flooded low-lying areas of the city – made headlines in 2018, as did changes at Quincy College.

This winter started with a bang, as a January nor'easter dumped more than 14 inches of snow in the city and brought with it a record-breaking high tide that inundated two city buildings. A lull in February quickly gave way to a March nor'easter that caused flooding so severe first responders evacuated 500 residents from vehicles and homes. Another March nor'easter, officially a blizzard, left some parts of the city under 16 inches of snow. The severe storms gave urgency to plans to replace seawalls along Quincy Bay that were unveiled later in the year.

Quincy College went through major changes in 2018. A state board withdrew approval of the school's nursing program. The college's president resigned shortly thereafter, citing friction with the college's governors. The governors then handed the reins of the school to Mayor Thomas Koch on a temporary basis before appointing Michael Bellotti acting president. Bellotti left his longtime post as Norfolk County sheriff to accept the new job.

This year also saw the completion of the Hancock-Adams Common, the long-planned park in Quincy Center that connects the United First Parish Church in City Hall. More than 3,500 residents attended the dedication, which featured the state's governor and a Pulitzer-winning author as its keynote speakers.

The Hancock Lot in Quincy Center closed this summer to make way for a new parking garage and a pair of mixed-use develop-

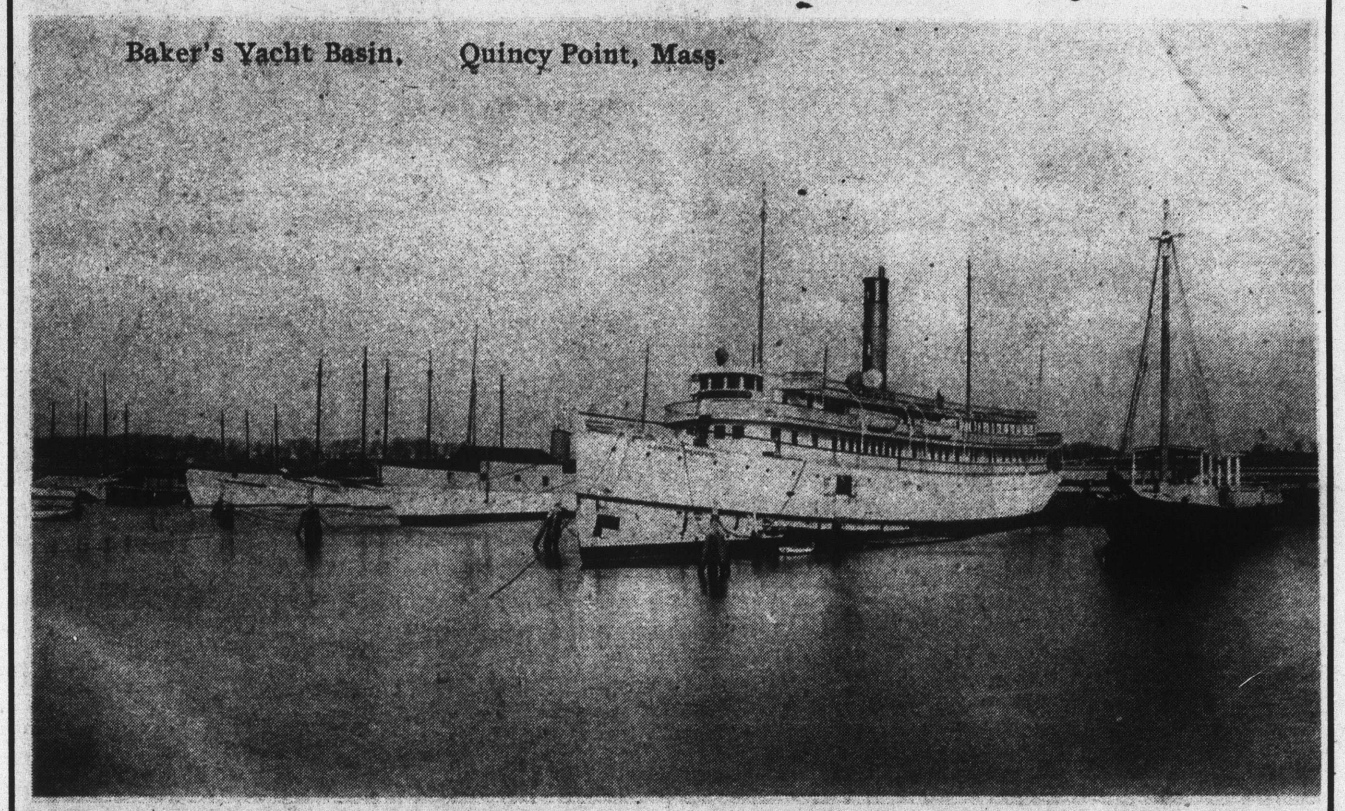
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1920s postcard view of the Baker Yacht Basin on the Town River in Quincy Point. This well-protected deepwater anchorage was used to store excursion steamboats during the winter. Lorenzo D. Baker, Jr. had an extensive yacht building and repair business there for many years. His father was a sea captain from Wellfleet on Cape Cod and was well known as one of the founders of the United Fruit Company in Boston. Captain Baker had bought the land here in Quincy to build a shipping facility for his fleet of freighters that brought bananas from Central America. He had planned to build a railroad from here across Washington Street to connect with the Fore River Railroad for shipping the fruit throughout the northeast. He died before the facility was built.

City Receives $55,706 Partial Payment For Civil Defense Center

The city received $55,706 from the federal government as partial payment for construction costs of the city's new Civil Defense Emergency Center.

Civil Defense Director John E. Schmock said the amount represents federal reimbursement to the city for approximately 75% of the construction cost.

The center is the entire lower or subsurface level of the city's new public works and office building on Sea St.

During normal working conditions, city departments, such as the water and sewer departments, will be located on the center's level, but during an emergency situation the entire floor would become a coordination center for civil defense and other city officials to direct emergency operations.

INAUGURAL RECEPTION OPEN TO ALL CITY RESIDENTS

For the first time in the city's history, all residents of the city have been invited to the Inaugural Reception of the newly elected city officials.

The reception will be from 8-10:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Motor Inn.

Mayor James R. McIntyre and the nine city councillors will be sworn into office in ceremonies earlier in the day at City Hall.

City residents who attend the reception will pass through a receiving line to greet the mayor, city councillors and their wives and then be served coffee.

McINTYRE COMMENDS SNOW REMOVAL PLAN

The city's Public Works Department has a new system for combating snow removal problems, such as was presented Saturday. The new method, which involves a city map and route chart showing the location of, and routes to be covered by snow removal equipment, which were used by the city during Saturday's snowstorm. Mayor James R. McIntyre commended Public Works Commissioner John Browne and his crews for their effective work clearing the city's streets.

City Should Address Rat Problem, Abandoned Carts

Now that the Adams-Hancock park and the Old City Hall projects are complete, maybe the mayor can deal with the rat problem in Quincy.

Why is Quincy the only nearby community without rubbish and recycling barrel covers? Many residents do not cover their barrels and are an invitation to rats, squirrels and raccoons.

There is also a serious problem with abandoned shopping carts throughout the city.

Quincy should fine the supermarkets that let shopping carts become an eyesore in the neighborhoods. With the extra revenue, the mayor wouldn't have to raise property taxes every year.

John Riley

Opioid Problem Is An Epic Battle

I am appalled at the magnitude of opioid use in Boston Massachusetts and that the victims are as young as 11 years old. As a social worker in the making, currently at Bridgewater State University, I've had first-hand experience working with victims of substance abuse which opioid was the major contributor, and it is most definitely not a job for the faint of heart.

As this dreaded disease rears its ugly head in our community, we have an epic battle ahead of us. Before going forward I must use this medium to publicly thank the many staff and volunteers who have dedicated their time and energy in providing assistance to the victims of opioid addiction.

Before this dreaded epidemic become a pandemic we must take radical steps to eradicate it. One way of doing so is having widespread educational program geared to the entire population irrespective of your economical statute in life. However we must place emphasis on teaching our young children about the dangers of opioid and explain to them how one encounter with this dangerous substance can lead to addiction, and the end of life as they know it.

On the other hand our healthcare professionals must be cognizant of the fact that these drugs they are prescribing and distributing can easily become an addiction, and they must understand how easily a person predisposed to addictive tendency will become addicted to these medications or suffer a devastating relapse, and if they can not abide by the rules that govern the prescribing and distributing of these medications they should be held accountable for their actions.

In October of 2018 I was admitted to a prominent hospital in Boston for a scheduled surgery. On my first night I was prescribed oxycodone as a pain reliever. The nurse told me that I could get 5 mg or 2.5 mg; I accepted 2.5 mg. Shortly after taking it I realized that I was feeling funny. (I am unable to verbalize the feelings and thoughts experienced.) Fortunately I fell asleep soon afterwards and slept for hours until I was awakened for more medications. I kept refusing that medication onwards, upon discharge I again verbalized my non-compliance with not taking the oxycodone and the nurse stated that, "I have to give it to you the prescription, because it was prescribed by your doctor, however, you don't have to fill it, you can use the acetaminophen prescribed to control your pain." So I was given a prescription of 5 mg to be taken every 6 hours lasting for 14 days.

Now if that is not a recipe for disaster I don't know what would be. Now my medical team who took impeccable care of me are now my first drug dealers who are instrumental in starting me on a road to addiction. What can we do to send a strong message to our medical teams that this is not acceptable behavior? Can we take a minute to contrast the financial benefits to Massachusetts, if our medical teams would take a minute to think about their actions before prescribing opioid to vulnerable persons in our society?

Gala Raises Over $315,000 For Interfaith Social Services

Hundreds of Interfaith Social Services' supporters gathered Dec. 7 to eat, drink, play games, dance and celebrate as they "partied with a purpose" for the organization's 21st Annual Feed the Hungry Gala. The event, held at Granite Links Golf Club, raised more than $315,000 to support Interfaith's programs.

Interfaith provides a safety net for families that may need food, housing assistance or mental health counseling. Interfaith's food pantry distributes nearly 500,000 meals each year and seasonal programs provide local children in need with Halloween costumes, holiday gifts, school backpacks and more. Proceeds from the gala provide for a third of Interfaith's annual budget.

Attendees at this year's event sampled dishes from local restaurants Alma Nove, Davio's, Eat Local, Granite Links Golf Club, JP Fuji Group, Smokey Stax BBQ, The Corner Stop Eatery, The Quarry Restaurant & Lounge, The Range and The Townshend.

The gala's new Craft Beer Corner offered samples from Bent Water Brewing, Mayflower Brewing, Stellwagen Beer Company and Widowmaker Brewing. Other beverages were provided by BinEnds, Bradford Distillery, Samuel Adams and Simpson Spring.

Ally Donnelly of NBC10 Boston, a longtime supporter of Interfaith, emceed the program. Donnelly was recognized later in the evening for her commitment to serving children in need. A corner of Interfaith's food pantry, where diapers, baby products and snacks for children are stored, will be dubbed "Ally's Corner" in her honor.

The Aldous Collins Band ended the evening with an energetic set as Coffee Break Café, Fratelli's, Montilio's and Sadie Mae's Cupcake Café & Bakery provided desserts and coffee for attendees.

The Feed the Hungry Gala was produced by a dedicated committee headed by Donna Mavromates, of Hingham, and Maura O'Brien, of Scituate. This year's lead sponsors include Presenting Sponsor Arbella Insurance Foundation and Champion Sponsors Granite Telecommunications and JetBlue Vacations. Hero Sponsors include the Rural Masonic Lodge of Quincy, MavroCreative, Quincy Mutual Group, Signet Electronic Systems and South Shore Living.

The community is invited to mark their calendars for next year's Feed the Hungry Gala, to be held Dec. 6, 2019.
